Chamber of Commerce Given Credit by Mayor

CRUSADERS' WORK

Ald. W. R. McCreary is New Chairman of Waterworks

The council for the City of Belleville was inaugurated today at the usual New Year's meeting in impressive ceremony. After Wilfrid Holmes, city clerk, had declared the members elected, invocation on the deliverance of the board was given by the coming year was asked by Rev. J. A. Seymour of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, after which all joined in the Lord's Prayer. The newly elected Mayor, Hon. C. Tice, gave a resume of the past year and his economies likely to be effected in the coming sessions during the period of depression, which has engulfed the business world and the world during the past four years, and also commended the Crusaders' Association for their work in promoting Empire Trade during the visit of Governor General Bessborough to the city and the motherland. The Mayor also referred to the fall by Alderman Frank Domenico and Alderman Ira Wallace, members of the Board of Aldermen Armstrong, Inlah. Alderman Domenico and Alderman Wallace were also welcomed the new-ly elected aldermen, Wm. Gay, Domenico and Cushing.

Text of Mayor's Inaugural Address

Fellow Citizens, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

For the third time it is my privilege to appear before you as your elected Mayor and Chief Magistrate. For this renewed expression of confidence I am deeply grateful. I have it on deep gratitude. I am not vain as to attribute this uncommon endorsation to my own personal qualifications. The spirit of optimism which I have always been responsible for operations in the work of the past year I have had the loyal co-operation of most of the most conscientious electorate groups in Belleville's history. Beyond that there has also been the effective if unspectacular work quietly carried out by the remarkably capable official staff now serving our city. The success that therefore been a collective achievement and honor and praise should be distributed accordingly.

Alderman Ald. Domenico and Alderman Wallace also commended the spirit of our people. The improvement in general business conditions that we looked forward to a year ago with more of hope than of expectation, has been so inconspicuous that our municipalities are facing financial difficulty. Incomes have been still further reduced, while the cost of relief and buying power, except for the absolute essentials, very often eliminated. The situation in regard to unemployment has not been materially altered.

Ald. W. R. McCreary in an exceedingly adverse factors the city council took declares steps early in the year to bring about a more reasonable adjustment of city expenditures to the ability of the average citizen to pay.

We therefore entered upon an intensive study of our financial position and endeavored to ascertain where economies might be effected. In this movement we invited and secured the co-operation of the public. The response made and the result achieved were most gratifying. The Board of Control brought about many substantial economies, notwithstanding our enforced increase of appropriation for unemployment relief. The salaries of all city officials were materially reduced and we have managed to bring about a considerable reduction in the cost of the unemployment relief. The salaries of the bescapable charges occasioned by the unprecedented labor situation and the hard times generally, without any fault of their own have been deprived of all means of livelihood, and were in fact but for the minimal amounts of unpaid taxes our public revenues would indeed be in a happy position and our tax-rate could be materially reduced. Outstanding evidence of the thrift and credit of Belleville is remarkably high and our debentures when offered for sale are eagerly sought after by discriminating investors. Important sections of our electric system have been tremendously improved and clarify our financial situation.

Our citizens will have noted a change in the method of unemployment relief as compared with that put into effect in the fall of 1932. At that time the federal and provincial governments both declared in favor of direct relief. We were thus led to believe that it was necessary to secure funds and achieved a far greater proportion of relief than where an attempt was made to provide work.

This season, as you all know, the governments have reverted to the former practice and are stipulating that relief funds provided by them must be expended only where work is found. They have arrived at the conclusion that economy which is directly paid to the subject for relief, and where no equivalent is returned in the way of work, is a form of deteriorating effect and tends to lower the standard of self-respect in the recipient. It is unquestionably a great deal of work to do that way as relief and it is not for us to call it into question.

This change has made the task tremendously difficult we ought to take encouragement from the many hopeful signs that are now appearing indicative of improvement in the industry and commerce. Commodity prices are gradually but certainly rising. Many industrial concerns are operating on a better basis. The railways are showing increased patronage. Employment is on the upgrade. The spirit of optimism is abroad and general pessimism has largely disappeared.

During the past year Belleville has been fortunate in securing the location here of five new industries—the Lime and Hydrates Plants of the Canada Crushed Stone Corporation, Ltd., the Big Jay Oil Company of Chicago, Ill., King, Rankin and Co., locally organized and financed industry, the Belleville Sandwich Co., and the Belleville Tobacco Co. All of these are adding their quota to our industrial wealth and are helped materially to provide employment during the past season. It will be our policy this year, as it has been in the past, to carry out an energetic campaign for the acquirement of more industries. The splendid results achieved the past few years in attracting here the Canadian Crushed Stone some of the largest American industrial corporations has been a most encouraging factor in maintaining our population, notwithstanding the serious losses we have suffered through great numbers of our railway workers being transferred to other centres as the result of changes in transportation policies.

Much credit is due to the good work accomplished for the community by the Chamber of Commerce. This organization has performed splendid service during the past year through its Open Forum meetings. It first was instrumental in bringing about a conference of the boards of finance and co-operated with the City Council and the Board of Education in the matter of the relief situation, a matter which at that time was occasioning grave concern. The Chamber of Commerce has never hesitated to bring under the attention of the press of Toronto and other centres the advantages of Belleville as an industrial and tourist city, and publicity, Alderman T. Henry Cushing.

Going into the committee on by-laws Harold Bateman, J. Vincent Ellis and Charles H. Rodway were appointed to the Board of Health. Ald. Ellis, Inlah to the Public Library Board, Leon Walmsley and Ald. Robert E. Collins on the Parks Board and Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., and George P. Cotton as High School Trustees. The Tavern were duly passed through the three readings and the meeting on other business the council adjourned.

LACK OF FOOD AND EXPOSURE PROVES FATAL

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)— Victim of lack of food and proper clothing during the November cold spell, Mrs. Mary Kish died today in hospital. Her husband died in the same institution on Nov. 11.

MAY NOT TAKE TRIP

Ottawa, Jan. 2 (CP)—A projected trip of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to Calgary, early possible to Yukon, has not been decided today and Dave Arsenal some doubt if Mr. Bennett would make the journey in view of the approaching Dominion-Provincial Conference which would make his time very short.

Honesty Shown at Railway Depot Money Sent for Unpaid Rail Fare

London, Ont., Jan. 2.—There has been a great deal of honesty displayed at the local Canadian National Railway depot during the last few weeks.

This morning a letter reached the station containing five cents and a statement that the balance of a $1.50 fare on which the traveller had paid $1.00 a few days ago. He did not have an extra nickel at the time.

Last week a man who borrowed a stub of pencil from the agent returned it by mail from Toronto. Only a short while before a letter with a sum of money covering a fare he had not paid to the railroad.

U. S. BUYING LARGE AMOUNT OF WHISKEY

Two Plants Will Market 7 Million Gallons Bourbon and Rye

EXTRA PURCHASES

Canada Industrial Alcohol Company One of Two

Montreal, Jan. 2.—(CP)—Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, Limited, and National Distillers Products Corporation, of New York, have reached an agreement under which the American Company will market about 7,000,000 gallons of Bourbon and Rye from the Canadian Company's inventory, it was announced today.

The joint statement, issued here, came coincident with the announcement that the Federal Alcohol Control Administration would permit an additional 25,000,000 gallons of Canadian Whiskies into the United States.

A new distributing company will be organized under the laws of the State of New York, controlled jointly by National Distillers and Canadian Industrial Alcohol, but managed by National Distillers.

While the statement said about 7,000,000 gallons of the Canadian company's stocks would be disposed of under this agreement, it made no reference to the price. It did not specify the distribution of profits from the transaction, either, it added. It did state, however, that arrangements had been made to replace the whiskies on the American market as rapidly as possible.

31 DROWNED IN FLOODS

Third Catastrophe Follows Cloudburst in California

Los Angeles, Jan. 2 (AP)—The horror of another catastrophe, the third in nine months, gripped Southern California with misery, distress and enormous damage today.

Following a cloudburst Monday night which poured 3.42 inches of rainfall in history here loosed floor waters which had gathered in the mountains. In October 30 men and women were drowned in the March an earthquake terrorized the southland, claiming 102 lives including those of 115 school children.

Between eight and 15 inches of rain descended on the area in a trap door had been sprung in heaven and the worst storm in modern history here. The railways are showing increased patronage. Employment is on the upgrade. The spirit of optimism is abroad and general pessimism has largely disappeared.

During the past year Belleville has been fortunate in securing the location here of five new industries—the Lime and Hydrates Plants of the Canada Crushed Stone Corporation, Ltd., the Big Jay Oil Company of Chicago, Ill., King, Rankin and Co., locally organized and financed industry, the Belleville Sandwich Co., and the Belleville Tobacco Co. The Chamber of Commerce has never hesitated to bring under the attention of the press of Toronto and other centres the advantages of Belleville as an industrial and tourist city, and publicity, Alderman T. Henry Cushing.

I am pleased to report that excellent progress is being made in our local endeavors to increase direct trade between the port of Belleville and Great Britain. Widespread publicity has been secured by the efforts that have been made by the local organization, known as the Commerce Crusaders, to bring about the direct exchange of commodities between ports in the Bay of Quinte district and those of the Motherland. Enterprise in this nature can be productive of much good and I am hopeful that the heartiest support on the part of the business public. Much favorable comment has been published in the press of Toronto and elsewhere on account of Belleville's convincing evidence of interest in Empire trade.

Starting as we did at the beginning of a new year let me express the hope that the coming twelve months may be productive of better times for all our citizens and witness the end of the depression and the difficulties that have confronted us during the past four years.

Economy and efficiency will again be the watchwords of the City Council and in the achievement of these aims we solicit the loyal co-operation of every citizen.

GEO. O. TICE, Mayor and Chief Magistrate.

DR. DOOLITTLE DIES AT 73

Pioneer in Motoring And Father of Highways Dies

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Dr. Perry E. Doolittle, "father of West Toronto highway," and pioneer Canadian motorist, died in his home here today from an illness with which he had been afflicted for the past two and a half years. He was 73 years old and do his bed for the greater portion of that time.

Dr. Doolittle was in his 73rd. year. Surviving him are his widow, Emily Pearson Doolittle, and one son, G. W. Doolittle.

The funeral was held today from the family residence, 619 Sherbourne street, to Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Gel Bicycle at Seven

Dr. Doolittle was born in Aylmer, Ontario, March 22, 1861. It seems incredible to assume that seven years later was born the extraordinary sustained enthusiasm for good roads that he was to exhibit, and succeeding for them from coast to coast, and lead to the being known throughout the Dominion by the title in which he took particular pride, "Father of the Transcanada Highway." It was in 1868 that he became the proud owner of a home-made bicycle. A few years later he was one of the youthful pioneer riders of the high wooden bicycles derisively dubbed "bone-shakers."

JOSEPH FAHEY LOCAL NATIVE

Conductor Who Carried Winnipeg Rifles To Battleford

Born at Belleville, Ont., December 7, 1857, Mr. Fahey came west to Winnipeg in 1877, travelling by boat up the Red River from Fort Garry, Minn.

And from the day of his arrival in the west he took an active part in all its interests. A pioneer, still a man, he was conductor on the train that carried the Winnipeg 90th Rifles to Battleford during the Northwest Rebellion in the early 80's. When the Riel Rebellion was quelled, Louis Riel, the leader, was brought to Winnipeg aboard Mr. Fahey's train to be tried and hanged.

His interest in sport was always maintained. He was a member of the North Winnipeg Athletic Association since 1903 and had met and shaken hands with every leading boxer from John L. Sullivan to Jack Dempsey's days. His stentorian voice was heard announcing events at all sports meets in Winnipeg for over 30 years.

Rarely ill, Mr. Fahey took six two months ago when he developed in a leg. Two days ago pneumonia developed and he died after two spells when doctors thought he was dying before he succumbed. He is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Mr. John Fahey of this city, is a nephew of the deceased.

Horner, Alma College principal; Hugh Saunderville, Que., for 25 years a western farmer and a retiring director of the Canadian National Railways; Walter B. Aseltine, K.C., Rosetown, Sask., lawyer and wheat farmer.

Mongrel Lena Goes Duck Hunting Jumping from Ice Floe to Ice Floe

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Lena went duck hunting on Lake Ontario today, jumping from ice floe to ice floe in a vain attempt to obtain a new year's dinner. Lena is a female mongrel canine, address unknown, but at present residing with the humane society.

Lena, hungry and cold but not cold enough to be afraid of Lake Ontario's icy waters, saw the ducks and immediately started after them. She made the first ice floe and the second but tumbled into the water on the third.

Life guards put out in their boat and rescued Lena from her precarious position. She was taken to the humane society.

WARD BEATEN TO DEATH BY INSANE MAN

NO MOTIVE

Passed Four Other Sleeping Patients to Attack Boy

Halifax, Jan. 2. — A 17-year-old ward of the City Home was beaten to death today by a fellow insane patient who broke loose his cell and crushed the boy's skull with an iron bar, wrenched loose from the grating. Authorities declined to reveal the name immediately.

The man crashed through the iron grill that separates him from a number of inmates sleeping in a dormitory, according to superintendent Buchanan of the Home, and with a long piece of steel began beating the feebled-minded youth. The superintendent said he was at a loss to understand the motive for the killing.

The slayer, a 40-year-old heavyset man, passed four other sleeping patients before attacking the boy, who was fatally wounded before a guard could summon assistance to subdue the enraged man. He was overpowered, however, and soon after chief of police was handcuffed to two burly officers and taken in the patrol wagon to police headquarters.

Crown authorities said he would be arraigned in police court on a charge of murder later in the day, early details of the slaying were given in a brief official statement by the superintendent of the home.

"About 2:45 this morning one of the insane men broke out of his cell and used a portion of the gill door to beat about the head a man sleeping in an open ward. The man who broke out was released from the Nova Scotia hospital for the insane on March 4, 1932. The victim died at five o'clock in hospital."

CANON R.J. DUMBRILLE NAMED ARCHDEACON

Will Have Jurisdiction Over Western Half of Diocese.

Brockville, Jan. 2.—Announcement is made by Rt. Rev. Reginald Lyons of the Diocese of Ontario of the appointment of Rev. Canon R. J. Dumbrille, Vicar of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Kingston, to the Archdeaconry of Frontenac, succeeding the late Archdeacon A. H. Creegan of Napanee.

There was a very good attendance at the watchnight service at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday night, the minister, Rev. Dr. James Semple, in charge. A number of hymns were sung appropriate to the season and Dr. Semple spoke on the Book of Deuteronomy as the "Book of Remembrance."

NEW YEAR'S MAIL IS LIGHT

New Year's mail was light at the local post office on Monday afternoon, J. V. G. Trudach today. Only the usual number of greeting cards were received at the office, and postmen were able to complete their routes on schedule time. The bulk of the mail had been handled at Christmas when 4,000 printed cards with New Year cards and Christmas cards being despatched at about the same time.

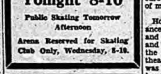
RELIEF WORKERS ON ISLAND JOB

Relief workers again faced the tall knolls of earth on Zwick's Island today as fall rains softened it and turned to the job with picks, shovels and wheelbarrows. Conditions while the island were easier today and the numbing cold of last week was cut down their numbers and forced eliminations at the work on Saturday was tempered with northwinds and sunshine. Department of public works officials estimate that men on Tuesday at work clearing up the icy streets and sidewalks and walks and roads. On New Year's day a force of extra men was necessary to keep the streets from flooding after Sunday's rain.

REV. J. A. SEYMOUR DELIVERS MESSAGE

The Choir, under direction of Mr. Tompkins, rendered a suitable program. Rev. H. B. Hastings was in charge of the service and Rev. J. A. Seymour of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church delivered an appropriate and challenging message for New Year's.

WATERWORKS IS KEPT BUSY



With the frost steadily sinking deeper into the ground, waterworks department officials fear the worst is to end and on Tuesday were hard at work in an attempt to keep pace with frozen water services in all sections of the city. Hours of concern piped attacked deep in the ground by the frost have been shared over the week-end by the department who used the newer system of thawing the pipes by electricity. So far daily inspections have kept the city hydrants for fire purposes free from freezing. Plumbers were kept busy until midnight Saturday repairing circulation.

NEW YEARS IS QUIETLY USHERED IN BY RESIDENTS

Private House Parties More Numerous Than in Former Years

Blanketed by a thick steamy fog through which occasional pedestrians and cars loomed in ghostly fashion over the almost deserted streets, and subdued by the Sabbatical influence, this city and district ushered in the New Year on Monday morning in less strenuous and demonstrative fashion than in previous years.

Bells, chimes and whistles split the air from all corners of the city sharp on the stroke of midnight on Monday morning, but their loose from the most part trailed off into emptiness, ushered by the city at large behind the frosted doors of theatres, cafes, hotels and other recreational centres, any parties were the order of the night and morning, but the sentiment was of a subdued variety and short lived. Only at occasional parties in private homes did the revelry extend to the gay dawn. By two o'clock Front street and residential streets had taken on the air of a deserted village. Only an occasional wayfarer, who passed about quietly home, or a car parked at the curb gave parties in the early hours of morning.

Many Private Parties.

Hotels reported excellent attendance of private parties; dance halls and clubs were thronged with youth and patrons; long queues formed at the cashier's window of the local theatres soon after midnight, but it was noted that private and public house parties struck the highest note of entertainment. But not only to the city was the merriment extended. Even into the isolated sections of the district scenes of farm house glowed with light and cheer, while the carriage and whine of many a fiddle and the thump of dancing feet told that the rural residents were welcoming the new day.

Rain and dismal fog, which almost hailed transportation entirely, and forced the city to a standstill for travel at a snail's pace, and icy streets rendered walking very slippy water presented a picture of an April morning rather than that of New Year's. Even pedestrians traffic was carried on with difficulty, forcing the city to the realization that it's zens to stay at home and take their New Year's revels in doors in improvised fashion.

Police Circles Quiet.

Police reported one of the quietest New Year's in years. Not a single arrest had been recorded over the week-end, and officers on beat in the downtown sections said they had not even a warning had been issued for those who might have been tempted to become too boisterous.

For the police and the public works, New Year's eve and New Year's day was a light and easy day of work. Thirty extra men had been hired by the department on Monday to relieve some of the flooding of the downtown walks. Long flies of pedestrians had been kept busy all day carving channels through the ice to relieve some of the flood and pools of rain water to flow to the catch basins. Piles of sand and cinders were strewn on streets, intersections and hills to assist foot and vehicular traffic.

HEAVY GLASS GASHES FOOT

Youth Slips Against Plate Glass in Store Front

Falling face forward through a heavy plate glass window of a downtown department store after he had slipped on the icy walk and emerging unscathed through the shattered wreckage, afterward to be pinned by the broken glass to a display rack of heavy glass which penetrated his forehead, and suffering severe gash in one foot, was the strange experience of Dan McFee, 50 Murray street, on Monday afternoon. Rushed to the Belleville General Hospital in Constable Bird in the police ambulance, the injured foot was treated and the youth, who is 16 years old, then taken home.

The young man had been standing in the arcade of store with two other people examining the display in the window when without warning he slipped and fell forward. The weight of his body crashed the glass and threw him among the falling pieces. Beyond a few slight cuts to his clothing, little damage was done. Then, assisted to his feet by his companions, the youth recovered himself and was about to walk away when a heavy, jagged piece of glass fell, entered the rear of his head without cutting it, but cutting deeply into his foot. Bleeding profusely, first aid was rendered by Constable Izard in a nearby store, and from there the boy was taken to the hospital.

An adjustment will be made.

Improvement in Goodyear Shown
Dividends Earned on Both Preferred and Common Says Carlisle
"Comparing the year's operations with last year, the current year has shown a considerable improvement," C. H. Carlisle, president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada, Limited, in a letter to shareholders accompanying the cheques for dividends on the preferred and common stocks for the last quarter of the year.
Mr. Carlisle states that the dividends for the year on both the preferences for depreciation, bad debts, taxes, etc., there will be a comfortable balance to carry forward to surplus.
Following a complete audit of the affairs of the company now being made, the balance sheet and full information as to the year's operations will go forward to shareholders.
Mr. Carlisle points out that the company has not only earned and paid dividends since 1926, but each year has added to its surplus and reserves.
"I am asking you," says Mr. Carlisle, "to continue to give Canadian shareholders to take an active interest in the company's affairs, such as the purchasing of your own product, your influence with your friends and in your locality. Any criticisms or complaints which you may have to offer to the officers and staff will be of great assistance. We have appreciated your co-operation in the past, and it has been a big factor in the building of your company. Business is now improvement, and we are looking forward to better conditions for the coming year."

WEDDED FOR HALF CENTURY

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Henderson Celebrate Anniversary

Quietly, at their home, 20 Cedar Street, and those of J. S. Henderson, numbered among the city's best known couples, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, on Monday afternoon. One of the busiest days of the year for Mr. Henderson, New Year's Day spent him to receive quietly the many messages of congratulation and good will that poured in to him and Mrs. Henderson, on achieving the honored anniversary.

Mr. Henderson and Miss Henderson in the midst of his many duties, took time out to recall a few of the high spots of the day forty years ago when they were married with Miss Elizabeth Hicks, also of Mount Pleasant, as bridesmaid and Mr. Ira Reid as best man. The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. H. Farmer.

Although the weather was cold, the ground was free of snow and a horse and buggy was necessary to cover the long distance from the country the happy couple repaired to their new home where they were to be married—one of the many unsavory waste which covered the country. The night of the wedding it snowed, and continued to snow for the next day. The heavy downfall covered the county almost to a level with the tops of the rail fences and made travelling throughout the country and put an end to most all transaction for nearly a week.

It was in the year 1899 that Mr. and Mrs. Henderson moved from Mount Pleasant to Belleville, and with the exception of a few years they have resided almost continuously. For the past 21 years Mr. Henderson has been the chief policy of the city as public works commissioner, a position which he has held since 1913.

Years ago when the question of Belleville's early street car line, but the motive power was a single horse, and before the electric lines were introduced, the cars were run by the day were in accordance.

"I got a dollar a week for that job," stated Mr. Henderson. "But that was good money in those days and I was able to keep a family on it in good style. Wages in other trades were just as low."

Three daughters, Mrs. G. Hoyle, Mrs. A. Hall of Belleville, and Mrs. Albert Juby of Peterboro, were among the nearest relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson who added their congratulations to the large number received by the couple on Monday.

Still on the job every day of the week and around on the work hours before many other early risers have commenced the day, Mr. Henderson still reflects the good health and stamina of a man many years his junior. He expects many more years of useful life added to the majority he has already accrued.

Boy of Twelve Hit by Board and Hurled Down from Fire Escape

Jealousy of Lad's Accomplishment Said to be Cause

GANG BLAMED

Whooping like wild Indians before they pounced on their luckless victim, a gang of twenty or more boys, ranging in years from eight to twelve who evidently attempted to put another boy, a twelve-year-old stranger, through some sort of an initiation at the side of a downtown building late Saturday afternoon, were alleged to have hit him on the head with a board when he attempted to resist their attentions, and then wound up by pushing him from the fire escape to the ground below, a distance of from twelve to fifteen feet.

Attracted by the noise of the small mob, Constable Arnott approached the scene in time to rescue the lad from further punishment at the hands of the young rowdies. Suffering from superficial cuts and bruises, the boy was then rushed to the hospital by Constable Arnott, where his presence where first aid was then given. The boy was then taken to his home in Chatham street.

According to what police learned of the matter, the group of lads had been holding court near the building engaged in "stumpies" each other at various tricks. Incited with the spirit of mischief, they then darted several newcomers who were standing on the side lines to go through the tricks. The challenge was accepted by the stranger lad and the boy, assisted by the others, then emulated the hardest tricks performed. Apparently a little jealous of the newcomer's ability the gang got to him through a third degree or a ballyhan initiation. When he objected they "hit him on the head with a board, and pushed him off the fire escape."

Constables F. Izard and C. Arnott secured a handful of names of the boys and warned them that future action depended of the future taken by the injured lad's parents.

Today the youthful victim had completely recovered from the affair. No charges, it is expected, will be laid.

English Boy Choristers of Royal Military College Sing at Christ Church

The visit to Belleville of the English boy choristers from the Royal Military Chapel, London, England, will be one that will long remain in pleasure by the fairly large audience which had the opportunity of listening to the forty members of the choir recital given by them in Christ Church last night. Had the time been other than New Year's night, when so many performances are arranged social engagements take place, no doubt a much larger audience have been entirely filled. Those who did not hear the young choristers missed a delightful treat. Their fame to the giving of the recital the choristers, robed in their cassocks and white surplices, entered the choir stalls in procession and sang a short form of evensong which was conducted by Rev. Canon Wright and Mr. Wright. Mr. Carlton Borrow, A. R. C. O., sub-organist Chapel of the Savoy, presided at the organ and his playing of the accompaniments was beautifully performed. During the Evensong the boys sang the service, in F, Psalms, the Magnificat and the Nunc Dimittis in a very excellent and finished manner. At the conclusion of Evensong the regular recital commenced and consisted of carols, three and four-part anthems and several solos which delighted the audience. The choir is a truthful quality, perfectly trained, were well rendered in every selection.

For the opportunity of hearing these most excellent choristers who are a splendid lot of English boys, an expression of appreciation is due to Mr. Cyril Waite, the organist and choir master at Christ Church and to them is accredited the credit for bringing the choristers to Belleville.

Hon. E. Dunlop's Body Taken to Pembroke for Interment on Wednesday

Provincial Treasurer Dies Monday After Lengthy Illness

MANY INTERESTS

Elected to Cabinet Post in 1930 by Hon. Mr. Ferguson

Hon. Edward A. Dunlop, Ontario's Treasurer, who died early Monday morning in the General Hospital, will be buried tomorrow from his home in Pembroke.

Premier Henry and other members of the Provincial Cabinet, many members of the legislature, both Conservatives and Opposition, and a number of officials from the Treasury Department itself, will attend the funeral services.

A special train has been arranged by the Prime Minister to leave Toronto Union Station at 10.45 tonight—considerably in advance of the regularly scheduled 1001 train. All members of the Legislature from Western and Northern Ontario were notified by telegram last evening that this train's departure so as to give them sufficient time to make plans, if they are able to, to take this special.

"Although not without warning", said Mr. Henry, last night in paying tribute to Mr. Dunlop's memory, "the death of my friend and colleague came as a severe blow, not only to myself but to the Cabinet, and also, I feel, to members of the Legislature as a whole, and to the many friends who loved and admired him.

"I have known Mr. Dunlop for upwards of 20 years, and when he was persuaded to enter the Cabinet as Provincial Treasurer in 1930 it was everywhere felt that his training and ability fitted him admirably for the post. That expectation very fully bore out in the years the past three years of turmoil in financial affairs. Ontario has been fortunate in having Mr. Dunlop as its Treasurer at the many difficult times which confronted him he applied the same sterling common sense and business ability which marked his commercial career. He gave himself unsparingly to the many exacting duties and there is no doubt the strain of his labors has hastened his end.

"His death comes to me with a sense of deep personal loss and my sincere sympathy goes out to the family in their bereavement."

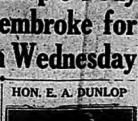
Organizing Genius.

Possessed of a keen analytical mind, a genius for organization and sound business experience, Hon. E. A. Dunlop brought to the provincial treasurership of Ontario, on July 1, 1930, when appointed by Premier Ferguson, unusual qualifications for handling the finances of his province during a stressful times.

Mr. Dunlop's friends in the Ottawa Valley, where since his youth he was an outstanding figure, declared he would some day be Premier of Ontario. It is believed Mr. Dunlop himself, when asked if he is light be the next provincial Prime Minister, unhesitatingly replied in the negative. "I have some sense of humor", he said, "and I think that remark was quoted as characteristic of his unaffected attitude to all the limelight. Rather his desire was to use all his energies and abilities to the best advantage.

Born at Pembroke, October 6, 1869, the son of Arunah Dunlop, one-time member of the Ontario Legislature, Edward Arunah Dunlop Deacon, Edward, Arunah Dunlop was a descendant of pioneer families of the Ottawa Valley. Educated in the local schools, he received his first business experience in his fathers' hardware store. At the age of 20 he became director of the Pembroke Hardware Company, and in 1901 assumed the management of that concern. His business interests multiplied. He was general superintendent of the Steel Equipment Company, Limited, and Pembroke Electric Light Company, Limited, and director of the Pembroke Lumber Co., 1920; Match Company, Limited; Cochrane Dunlop Hardware and other industries which were shortly integrated in the extension of his companies' trade.

First Elected in 1921



Following the death of his father, Mr. Dunlop was elected member for North Renfrew in the Ontario Legislative Assembly at a by-election in 1903, as a Conservative. He had previously been defeated in contesting the general election of 1898. He was re-elected in 1905, declined nomination in 1908, re-elected by acclamation in 1911, and in 1914, when was defeated in the general election of 1919, when Drury and the Farmer-Labor coalition attained power. Mr. Dunlop returned to the Legislature as member for the old constituency in 1923, after a by-election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Alexander Stuart. He was again elected by acclamation in the general election of 1929.

Mr. Dunlop was appointed Minister Without Portfolio in the Ferguson cabinet in December, 1923. He had only seven months' service as a member of the cabinet before rank. Two years later he was made Provincial Secretary.

During all this time he found opportunity for distinguished service in Public Life. As councillor for many years he took a prominent part in his activities and progress.

In June, 1906, Mr. Dunlop married Mabel Ferguson, daughter of Donald Ferguson, of Pembroke. They had three daughters and one son.

Mr. Dunlop was a member of the United Church of Canada. His residence was in Pembroke and County, Ottawa, and the Albany, Toronto.

VET'S SHOW A GOOD ONE

High Class Vaudeville Act And Strong Man Act Given

Replete with thrills and spills so dear to the hearts of children as well as the grown ups, and interspersed with other acts and features worthy of high class vaudeville, Sunday night's benefit show staged in the city hall by the Army and Navy Veterans, Unit 201 of this city, was the one of the most successful and best arranged shows to have visited this city for some time. Unfortunately the attendance, thinned out by the severity of the inclement conditions underfoot, was poor at the afternoon performance although during the evening a fair crowd did brave the elements to see the interesting show.

Clean all through, and with acts that left spectators slightly bewildered—from the fast-moving tempo and carefully prepared thrills, the whole progress was entirely enjoyable for young and old.

Notable was the bewildering performance of the educated pony, Sheba, owned by Mr. Hilliard and amazing repertoire of tricks, from the selection of the right lady in the sweater in the front row, to telling the correct number of coins selected by one of the audience. Cards containing numbers, and racked on the stage by the medium of conversation between pony and the trainer, Mr. Hilliard, Prince Leo, "the educated pony", appearing for the first time in this district, proved one of the best of the vaudeville circuits and his gained fame from coast to coast for his clever performance.

Strong Man Good

Strong man acts have long had the limelight to themselves, but the offering presented by Zando "world's strongest man" and his group of lifters, artificial aids for props. Startling feats were performed by Zando, who lifted a man with Harry O'Connor, manager of the steel-hard muscles of his body and ability to stand training. It was one of the best strong man acts to be presented in this city. Perfect muscular development, the bending of heavy iron bars, breaking chains with his bare chest, supporting a 300 pound vehicle on his chest, and finally pounding it with sledgehammers and then lifting the debris, all were perfectly formed ex-soldier.

Ike Alex, of the entertainment variety that given by Volaire, acrobat extraordinary, the Watson Sisters and Miss Isobel Campbell in various character and acrobatic dances, songs, skits and other acts the Mundy Brothers, lumbers and acrobats, and not least of all, the Owens, Mike and Ike, who kept the audience in cheerful good humour by interspersing their clever monologues with extraordinary acts on the black wire.

ARDEN RESIDENT IS PUNISHED FOR CRIME

Penal guilty of breaking and entering, and stealing from the general store of Mr. David Reid, Arden, Clarence Thompson, former resident of that village, was sentenced on Friday afternoon by Judge Lowell of Kingston, to a term of 18 months detention and to 12 months Industrial in the Ontario Reformatory. His companion, and the man with whom he had previously worked, Robert Brimston, had been sentenced for six months by the magistrate of Gravenhurst.

Thompson, it will be remembered, at the end of a trial which had stirred residents of the Arden section for weeks. Previous to the arrest of the two men a wave of robberies had been reported in the village and surrounding district, residents had armed themselves in anticipation of further attempts on their personal property.

D. SMITH IS GIVEN THREE YEAR TERM

Pleads Guilty to Four Charges of Entering And Theft

REGAN DEFENDS

Pleading guilty to four charges of breaking entering and theft, Douglas D. Smith, Bloomfield, was sentenced to serve three years in the Kingston penitentiary, while his brother, Cleveland Smith, 18, was given a year's probation and suspended sentence, providing he abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages, after he had similarly pleaded guilty to an equal number of theft charges in the connection with criminal court held in Belleville before His Honor Judge Deroche on Saturday afternoon. Both cases arose out of the recent robberies of Bloomfield of Michael Rewy, an 88-year-old resident of Prinyer Edward, who charged and robbed on the night of December 21st last. Two other alleged members of the gang, William Pettine and William Davis, both of Trenton, have yet to face the charges.

Following early trial by judge three subsequent charges were read to the Smith brothers on Saturday, that of stealing gasoline from the Canadian Oil Company, Bloomfield, and entering the home of John Clapp and the stealing of some twenty gallons of oil. The latter charges were preferred on or about the night of December 2.

Asked Clemency.

R. C. Regan, K.C., local crown attorney, conducted the prosecution, while Mr. Fred Ketcheson, Belleville defence solicitor, defended the Smith boys, advising them to plead guilty. Mr. Regan addressed His Honor Judge Deroche at length relating to the case of Cleveland Smith, who is but eighteen. He also referred to the splendid character evidence produced asked for clemency. His Honor took the matter under advisement in case of the defence, which incidentally were submitted by Mr. Ketcheson, and gave the younger Smith a chance to prove his sincerity to society by suspending sentence and placing him on probation for the use of liquor, which was the cause of his present entire proceedings.

The father of Douglas Smith, however, Mr. Donnan pointed out was not to blame for the many previously convicted, having served two years in the penitentiary on various charges of breaking and entering and theft. His Honor assured Douglas Smith that the full limit of punishment once imposed he could not reconsidered a parole in less than a five year sentence should have been imposed. Cleveland Smith, 18, began eloquently pleaded for clemency on behalf of his client.

Oil Explodes.

The most harmless tragedy in the history of litigation occurred about 5.30 p.m. on Saturday when Frederick Lockwood, 62, and Mary Cummings, aged 17, were burned when coal oil exploded in a pail of oil, warming on the stove in Lockwood's home at Consecon. Lockwood, trapping flour men in a blazing inferno.

Ernest Best, aged 40, and Willard Tuckaberry, aged 17, escaped the same fate by only inches and the presence of mind of Best, who broke a window and threw Tuckaberry to safety, later getting out himself with burns on his hands and face.

It is thought that the oil of a customer's car which Lockwood was draining on a stove became overheated causing an explosion.

In a few seconds the small room of the house filled with a mass of flames. Best rushed to an adjoining room for help, broke a window where he and Tuckaberry pushed them through to safety.

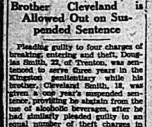
Fire Soon Controlled



The fire department made a fast run and the fire was soon under control with the blaze practically completely gutted.

The bodies of the victims were found side by side near the door. Their clothes were burned off with the exception of the rubber boot on each.

Kenneth Cummings, father of the dead boy, helped removed the bodies.

A pall of gloom was cast over the entire community as both the victims were well known and highly respected.

Late Mrs. Samuel J. Jenners.

Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Laura Edith Jenners, beloved wife of Samuel J. Jenners, passed away Sunday night at her late residence Murphy Street. The deceased was the daughter of the late George and Sarah Henderson and was born in Hungerford township 47 years ago. For a time she lived in Sidney but during the last 16 years had been in this town. She was a member of Grace United Church and had services there interment was made in the Front of Sidney cemetery.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. Ingwas, Roy, Frank and Lorne Wright and Messrs Earle Bickle, Floyd Ketchison and Harold Terry.

FEW UPSETS IN ELECTIONS

130 Cities, Towns, Villages and Townships Choose Leaders

Toronto, Jan. 2.—In more than 130 cities, towns, villages and townships of Ontario governing officers for 1934 were chosen New Year's day, Mayors were elected in many cases Reeves and Councillors were elected by acclamation and by acclamations.

Controllers and Sault Ste. Marie returned their mayors, Toronto giving Mayor Stewart a majority of 30,000 terms in office and 11th honor of being the chief magistrate during the celebration of the city's centenary in this summer. After a hectic election campaign, Mayor James Lyons will rule as the Soo's mayor for another year.

By-laws calling for increased passenger expenditures were carried by the ratepayers passed on by-laws dealing with maintenance of schools nurses and on power and gas rate matters. In Toronto the citizens voted in favor of giving free street car passes to the blind and world war amputation victims and a meeting of the transportation commission will meet shortly to pass on the matter.

RESOLUTION MAY NOT LAST WHOLE YEAR

A resident of an upper flat in some building on Front Street near Campbell is probably hanging for the soothing solace of a cheque this day, although the indispensable aid of a New Brunswick judge upon a hasty impulse after swearing off the week, just as the chance did he's were peeling out ushering in the New Year, pronounced it a waiver entered up and a pipe ordered to the street below accordingly mailing a policeman who was the arresting officer.

The pipe bounced once on the pavement at the feet of the wayfarer. The solitary figure stood up to a hearty reverence of the accidents and armed themselves in anticipation of further attempts on their personal property.

GIVE SENTENCE ON THURSDAY

Charge of Attempted Suicide Heard in Camera

Picton, Jan. 2 (Special)—The case of Curtis Selman, charged with attempted suicide, was heard Thursday before Magistrate A. E. Calnan. The hearing was held in camera and the court stenographer being present, as some purely family matters connected with the case were part of the evidence taken. Crown Attorney Gordon Walmsley conducted the case for the crown, while Wilfrid Lane acted for Mr. Selman. Dr. Gerald Allison, Mayor Cox and Mrs. Curtis Selman were among the witnesses. The magistrate reserved sentence until Thursday, January 4.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke, Fullerton, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCabe, who spent the Christmas week end in Walkerton, returned to Picton on Wednesday. They found the roads dangerous with the result were fourteen hours making the return trip.

Captain Thomas Hefferman, accompanied by Mrs. Hefferman will spend the winter months on the captain's boat which is laid up in Hamilton.

Mr. Eugene Harrington fell on the icy street, breaking a bone in his leg. Dr. Ponton reports the case fast in setting the break, which will confine the patient to the house for three weeks.

On Mary Street west the thermometer dropped to 38 degrees below zero at Mr. Albert Hare's residence on Friday morning. At Mr. Bell 35 degrees below was the lowest temperature recorded. Car traffic was general, milk being delivered as late as three in the afternoon from some of the dairies.

FOG AND SNOW RESPONSIBLE

Railway Head-on Collision Causes One Death And Injury to Eight

North Bay, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)—Heavy fog and snow drifts were held responsible today for the head-on collision between a Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway passenger train and a stationary train campaign, Mayor James Lyons will rule as the Soo's mayor for another year.

By-laws calling for increased passenger expenditures were carried by the ratepayers passed on by-laws dealing with maintenance of schools nurses and on power and gas rate matters. In Toronto the citizens voted in favor of giving free street car passes to the blind and world war amputation victims and a meeting of the transportation commission will meet shortly to pass on the matter.

Engineer Best, aged 40, and Willard Tuckaberry, aged 17, escaped the same fate by only inches and the presence of mind of Best, who broke a window and threw Tuckaberry to safety, later getting out himself with burns on his hands and face.

It is thought that the oil of a customer's car which Lockwood was draining on a stove became overheated causing an explosion.

In a few seconds the small room of the house filled with a mass of flames. Best rushed to an adjoining room for help, broke a window where he and Tuckaberry pushed them through to safety.

Fire Soon Controlled

The fire department made a fast run and the fire was soon under control with the blaze practically completely gutted.

The bodies of the victims were found side by side near the door. Their clothes were burned off with the exception of the rubber boot on each.

Kenneth Cummings, father of the dead boy, helped removed the bodies.

A pall of gloom was cast over the entire community as both the victims were well known and highly respected.

Frederick Lockwood had lived in Consecon for the past six years when he moved from Newberry with his wife and one son, Lorne, who sur-

Board of Education and Its Year's Work

As the retiring members of the 1933 Board of Education step down this year to hand the reins over to the new incoming Board for 1934, they will bequeath to their successors in office a most excellently ordered state of affairs in all departments, and particularly in the Finance Committee where, as the result of careful economy during the past term, direct savings of nearly eighteen thousand dollars for the year have been given the ratepayers of the city.

In a report of the Finance Committee reproduced below, it is indicated where savings have been greatest during the past term. It is shown clearly that the greatest decrease in expenditures of the Board this year over last year has been effected as the result of the reduction in teachers' salaries, with an estimated saving of $7,252.51. In equipment of the Collegiate Institute and School a decrease of $1,360.38 is expected, and in public school book supplies and in sundries, etc., public school equipment, further savings have been materialized, effected, only in three items, light, power and water, replacements and defined sums for the Secretary of the Board where new equipments has been necessary, has any gain been shown over previous expenditures, and these are but in small items, totalling only $262.27.

Several troublesome questions will present themselves to the incoming Board for the year 1934. First after the retirement of Mr. Bert Meiss, resigned from the city solicitor, it will be necessary to fill the vacancy the present number of twenty-one members of the Board.

A recommendation also that an addition be made to Queen Mary School, as the present school accommodation before the year is over, to take care of the increasing number of school children in the city, also the question of a new school.

There is a question of an agreement with Hastings County Council over the fee for county pupils attending the Collegiate and Vocational School. The appointment of a solicitor, and the retention of the present bylaws under which the Board operates will also be taken up by the incoming Board of Control members. These will be in addition to the regular work of the Board.

CHARGE LAID IS ADMITTED

Kills Father, When He Ill-treats Boy's Mother

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 2.—Eighteen-year-old Joe Maruiak spent New Year's day in jail, waiting for crown authorities to lay the murder charge he had promised to bring against him. Joe's mother was dead, his body riddled with shotgun pellets; and Maruiak and Joe had admitted during his father because he ill-treated the boy's mother.

The "confession" was on the records at Sydney. At Inverness, Inspector police officer Hugh R. McDonald had been detained in the shooting of Joseph, Sr., the morning after Christmas. The elder Maruiak had been on a wife beating rampage, the officer said the boys told him, and at 11 o'clock on Christmas Eve, shot his shotgun and shot the father.

He died in Inverness Friday. He was buried Sunday. Among the mourners was young Joe. Police officials broke precedent and took him to his father's home from the county jail, where he was held on a wounding charge.

He followed the hearse to the church, a police officer by his side, and then went on to the cemetery.

Friends and neighbors, many of them Italians, like the Maruiaks, came to sympathy at the graveside. Joe stood at the grave, his father's body into the grave, and then, dryeyed he went back to jail.

MAYOR TICE ON THE YEAR 1934

Mayor Tice's address delivered at the inauguration of 1934 city council into office today suggests that if present trend continues the unemployment situation may have largely disappeared by the end of the year 1934. "While our position is tremendously difficult," the mayor told the council and citizens, "we ought to take encouragement from the many hopeful signs that were now appearing indicative of improvement in business, industry and commerce. Commodity prices are gradually but steadily increasing. Many manufacturing plants are becoming busier. The railways are showing increased patronage. I am strongly of the opinion that before the end of the present year unemployment will have largely disappeared."

Citizens who have, as the mayor knows, been called upon to contribute to the depression courageously, will hope that Mayor Tice is correct in his view of the outlook.

The activity of the Chamber of Commerce also has not only the task of encouraging the bringing of new industry to Belleville and of fostering extension of plants already established here, but has stressed the advantage of a civic budget plan and of the thorough knowledge of the entire range of civic affairs, by compliment-ed by the chief magistrate for its steadying and encouraging influence.

The mayor also touched on the efforts being made by the local business men to foster trade with Britain so as to bring about a direct exchange of commodities. He says: "The keenest interest has been aroused by the efforts that have been made by the Commerce Crusaders to bring about the establishment of commercial relations produced on the Bay of Quinte and those of the Motherland." He praises the enterprise as one likely to redound much to the benefit of buyers and sellers.

The watchwords that are the only watchwords of the day of industrial and business prosperity are economy and efficiency. Economy is necessary to keep the taxes down so that the taxpayer may be able to pay them, and that there may not be too many defaults, and efficiency is essential to profit by, and to aid in this taxsaving so as to give the greatest amount of value for the expenditure.

The spirit of the people was tested in the fire of difficulty last year. "The improvement in general business conditions that we looked forward to a year ago with more of hope than of expectation, has been no incompliance that our merchants, manufacturers, professional men and citizens generally still find themselves in extreme difficulty. Income have still further depleted, savings have been exhausted and buying power except for the absolute essentials, very often eliminated. The stressful situation in regard to unemployment has not been materially altered." In view of this last year the council boldly cut down expenditures with the result that the burden of the unemployment situation was borne and a cut made in the tax rate.

MOTOR AND ROAD PIONEER

Dr. P. E. Doolittle, of Toronto, who visited most parts of Canada as pioneer motorist and as an advocate of highway development is dead. With him passed away the man who first caught the vision of a motorized Canada. To few men is it given to catch the very spirit of a new era. Dr. Doolittle looked forward and caught the gleam and brought others to see as he saw.

This champion of the motor car and of the Trans-Canada highway actually believed in motors himself. He started with a bicycle and then took to an automobile. In time it came to be that his trips were an Odyssey of automobile travel.

He found in the office of president of the Ontario Motor League a vehicle to spread his ideas the result of which have been growing several decades.

He was naturally of an inventive turn—the coaster brake, the demountable rim, the by-pass valve were his contributions. Thirty-seven years ago he went to Europe and took part in the Emancipation Day London-to-Brighton run in that year celebrating the abolition of the law which held motorcars to a limit of two miles an hour. In those days a motorcar had to be preceded by a man carrying a red flag.

One of his greatest gifts to Canada is the tourist traffic. Canadians can give to him credit for the great stream of visitors annually pouring into this country from the United States.

Dr. Doolittle is remembered in Belleville for he officially visited this city in the interests of the motor league.

He was by profession a medical practitioner. In addition he is a class one man both in helping to pave the way for the Canada of fine highways and to create a motor mindedness among Canadians. If any class profits by the motor developments of this age it is the medical profession. Doctors ever have long and trying trips to make but the motorcar cuts down much his time and makes possible a great deal more rapid response to urgent calls.

TRIUMPHS UNSUNG

Above all triumphs history relates
Of warriors who drenched the world in blood,
Who conquered peoples, subjugated states
And moved through life in a victorious mood.
Are other triumphs greater far than theirs,
Although unsung, unrecognized they go;
These are the faiths that rise above despairs,
The loves that laugh at barren hours of woe.
In faith and love the dauntless ones are glad,
No other armor need they, or desire;
Serene their hearts, their days unshadowed, glad
And theirs the valor that will never tire.
When all earth's conquerors' banners shall be done,
Still love and faith in triumph will march on.

CHARLES DICKENS IS DEAD, so is his only surviving son, Sydney Dickens, who died in London, England, December 21 from injuries received when knocked down by a motorcycle, but the characters created by Charles Dickens will never die, unless future generation are totally different in likes and dislikes from the present one. Just at the present season Tiny Tim, Bob Cratchit, Old Scrooge, Marley, et al, are largely in the public eye, and it is not hard to find their counterparts in everyday life. Mr. Pickwick, Dickens and company with Samuel Weller and his esteemed father whose mission in life was to sound the ominous warning "Beware of vidders," are living, moving, breathing characters full of good fun and jollity, at the same time lifting the veil on some of the anomalies of life in their day. Little Dorritt and her friends of the ancient debtors' prison, now happily a thing of the past; Oliver Twist and all the rest of all the vast company of shadowy Dickens characters still live in the hearts and lives of those who have read and re-read Dickens with understanding.

A modern counterpart to the man who had to tip his own executioner is to be found in a certain officer who served during the Great War. Arnold Bennett relates the tale in his diary. On December 18, 1918, he says, he met an army officer from Walsall at the Reform Club. "He had been wounded nine times," the diarist records, "prisoner in Germany; was reported dead. After he returned to life his solicitor, among other bills, forwarded the following: 'To memorial service (fully choral) three guineas.'"

MOST PEOPLE MIGHT WELL MIX OFTENER

All Possess Social Instinct Which Should Not be Thwarted

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The general tendency of the average person is to become less social as the years pass by.

More and more do we find pleasure in just sitting at home, in the privacy of the family circle, and reading a newspaper or a book, a smoking stand at our side, chatting casually with those who are most dear to us.

Social contacts more or less tire us; even when we have to go out and think. We don't care for dances, the theatre, even for the movies which used to be as much as we used to.

Too many social relationships are as bad as too few, but there is not a person, even the most retiring, a moderate amount of social indulgence.

Society, whether formal or informal, is here to stay. Civilization is a hundred or a dozen, can have a marked effect upon one's mind and point of view of life.

To sit at home every night without exception, or if it be with our beloved ones amid surroundings that are familiar to us, may be desired, gets under the skin and irritates like poison ivy, and we become bored and restive.

The parlor, automobile, played piano, cards and games, all help to break the monotony, but variety and mixing accomplishes the same thing.

But best of all is occasional periods of bright, intelligent and, if possible, inspiring talk, or conversation with men and women about personalities and events with whom you can chat freely.

If you cannot get away from your home, we are likely to be rather formal and to talk about our well-typed manner. We are not our real true selves as much as we ought to be.

Accordingly we become repressed, inhibited, artificial, more so than ina good for us. We lose interesting qualities that help to harmonize with the ways of others.

Too often our manners, polish and cultural attainments begin to disappear. We become awkward, self-conscious.

After a while, we begin to dislike society of all kinds and find refuge in the excuse that social intercourse is a waste of something, or distracting or even vicious.

We must keep in mind that we were not born to live for ourselves. We were born to live for others and in cooperation with each other.

All of us possess a social instinct which should not be thwarted!

Even the most talented social relationships and have managed to get into the habit of doing so, and we are at once feel better. There is a sense, somehow, of fitting into the scheme of life which we were designed to live.

One can overdo the social intact of course. And that is as bad as too little of it.

Late hours irregular sleep, rich dinners, alcohol and excessive tobacco, as well as too frequent emotional stimulation, tend to undermine the nerves about as fast as anything.

Besides, choose wisely those whom you would make your intimates.

Not only are we greatly influenced by the company on keep, but the type of character we choose to associate with are bound to influence and change our own character.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Beer, wine and spirituous liquors tend to increase the acidity of the blood themselves, as well as because they produce appetite and a consequent increase in the consumption of food. Alcoholic beverages, in moderation, are, however, helpful to digestion and health generally. Aged persons will be better with an occasional glass of wine or even a little brandy at meals. The secret of successful drinking is never to overdo and never to make of it a habit.

HARVEY—HINCHCLIFFE

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church, parsonage on Tuesday, December 26th, when Miss Lucille Hinchcliffe of Eldorado, became the bride of Mr. Harvey Harvey of Winnipeg, Manitoba. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. R. Trumpour. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Edna Chambers and Mr. Harry McCoy.

The bride was most becomingly attired in a navy blue tailored ensemble. They left on the train for Toronto and will visit friends enroute and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey intend to reside here on their return.

On Wednesday evening, December 27th, the Young Men and Young People held their regular meeting. Devotional service was opened by President, Mr. Cecil Sandiford.

The Scripture lesson was read by Gladys Chambers, and prayer offered by Rev. J. R. Trumpour.

It was decided to send for a travelling library as soon as possible.

Months in the absence of the President, Mr. Sandiford.

Mr. and Miss Grace Robinson, captain of another group for the year 1934.

The group having the highest points at the end of the year puts on the entertainment for the group defeated. Miss Leda Post, Literary Convener, then took charge of the meeting, Mr. Clifford Chambers, gave the opening address. Mr. Lloyd Davis gave in his usual interesting way a reading entitled "The Sheep Herd" which was enjoyed by all.

The Christmas service on Sunday last was well attended. The Christmas Tree was lighted by the "Silent Night, Holy Night" and "Joy to the World" was sung by the congregation and choir, with Miss Ina Hinchcliffe at the organ. Rev. J. R. Trumpour, gave a Christmas address.

At the close meeting of the Band of Hope Mission Band, Eldorado, held on Tuesday, December 26th, at the home of the Leader. In spite of the very bad weather the roll call showed seventeen members present. Miss Jean Trumpour, first vice-president, had charge of the meeting. Jean Trumpour opened with "Hark, Hark Soft Night, Holy Night", was beautifully rendered by Gladys Chambers, followed with the Friendship prayer, led by Jean Trumpour with response by the group.

The story Johnnie's little red hen, was given by Mrs. Trumpour, as a reading by Bernis McCann, entitled "Johnnie and the Hen."

Rev. J. R. Trumpour delighted the children with the story of his visit to Santa Claus entitled "The story "Just under the Carpet" was given by Ruth Andrews.

The election of officers by ballot then followed and was presided over by the Rev. J. R. Trumpour and resulted as follows:

Mr. James H. Walmsley in the municipal elections yesterday defeated Mr. Harry Powell for the position of mayor of the city for the year 1894 by a majority of 147. Prohibition carried in every ward. The total vote polled was 1,647. Prohibition carried in every ward. The total vote polled was 1,647. Ward reduction was also carried by a majority of 47. When the returns were known a large crowd gathered at the city hall and speeches were made by the victorious and defeated candidates. Among the speeches was considered a procession was formed with Mayor-elect Whitmarsh, Mr. Hugh Walker and other friends in two sleighs, and headed by the I.O.O.F. band proceeded up Front Street to the upper bridge through College Ward, then up Mill Street to the C.P.R. depot, then over Station Hill to Bridge street, down Bridge Street to Front Street, and across the lower bridge to the residence of the mayor-elect on Isabel Street. The procession was met at every corner by crowds who cheered lustily for the successful candidate. A number of the friends and supporters gathered in the handsome residence of the mayor-elect and refreshments were served and an hour or so spent in social chat and congratulations.

On New Year's eve, Mr. A. J. Bird, accountant of the Bank of Montreal, presented with a handsome extensive concern was, very much to his surprise, presented by the employees of Mr. Corby's mill and distillery, with a handsomely mounted meerschaum bronze ratian chair with crimson plush seat. The presentation was made by Mr. Bowyer accompanied with an address which expressed in appreciation of Mr. Bird's kindness and gentlemanly bearing towards them during the three years' association with them in a business way. The address was read by Mr. Corby and was signed by W. R. Taylor, Jos. Bradden, Jos. Hinchcliffe, Mich. Cox, Jos. Chas. Beckett, P. Mayle, Joseph Metcalf. Mr. Bird responded in a suitable reply. We add our congratulations to those of Mr. Bird's many friends on this deserved recognition of his worth. The skating rink was well patronized yesterday. At one time there were 1,000 persons on the ice.

The Oddfellows' and Military bands started from their hall on a serenading tour about midnight before twelve o'clock New Year's eve and the ladies' reception New Year's afternoon about half past two o'clock. The excellent music was much enjoyed.

ALL-STARS NO MATCH FOR FAST GOING "OILMEN"

After holding the speedy Cities Service team at close check for over two periods the local Orlis Garage pucksters faded, through the lack of sufficient practice and pre-season training, to stop the onslaught set up by the "Oilmen" in the last period and tasted a 9 to 1 defeat in an exhibition hockey game played at the Belleville Arena on Saturday night. Due to the subzero weather prevailing but a handful of fans saw the opening hockey game of the season.

Trailing the Cities Service team by but a 3 to 1 score in the opening moments of the final stanza the "Mechanics" could not stem the tide when the pressure was applied by their more seasoned opponents, who then scored six goals in quick succession. Practically every member of the "green and white" counted a goal during the pastime. As for the stars of the winning six honors surely went to "Smiler" Buskard, in goal for the Orlis outfit. Buskard single handed thwarted effort after effort of the fast skating "Oilmen" when he rose to the occasion and repeatedly baffled the Dudley-managed marksmen by his phenomenal saves between the goal posts.

A make-shift team gathered at the last, moment, wore the Mechanic's red and blue uniforms, with Alex Weir and Jack Connors on the defence, both turning in excellent performances. Manager Orlis started Henry Canning at centre flanked by Jack Canning and Happy Day, with Wales, High and "Stew" McBrath filling in as alternates. The Canning twins and Weir all played good hockey, taking into consideration the amount of practice that has been afforded the locals thus far this season. Coach Kincaid presented an augmented team, when the "Oilmen" greeted our Mase Rigby on the defence with Jerry Brandt, while Corcoran Lowery of the Brockville Maguires replaced Carl Morgan on the front line. "Ace" Pete Morgan, displayed some of his old time speed, while Covert looked the best by the starting line although Si. Morgan and Nickol looked good against their weaker opposition. The "Oilmen" scored twice in the initial frame, once in the middle canto and six times in the final stanza. Jack Canning, on a perfect pass from Alex Weir scored the "Mechanics" only goal.

The line-ups:

Orlis—Goal, Buskard; defence, Weir and Connors; centre H. Canning; wings J. Canning and Day; subs. Welsh, McBrath and High.

Cities Service—Goal Tow; defence Brady and Rigby; centre Nickol; wings Covert and H. Morgan; subs McGuire, F. Morgan, MacDonald and Lowery.

Referee—Bill Sherry.

Indians Tricked on End Run by Al Barabas With Hidden Ball

(By Paul Zimmerman, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2 (AP) — Columbia today still was the gem of the eastern crown and so was any other for that matter—so far as football fans of the United States western seaboard were concerned.

For yesterday, before approximately 93,000 persons in the Rose Bowl staged the most amazing chapter in Rose Bowl history by defeating Stanford 7 to 0.

The great plays plus heads-up football gave Coach Lou Little's New Yorkers a victory which made storm ridden Southern California forget its wet feet, made so by torrential rains before the contest and spasmodic showers during the game.

The touchdown came midway in the second period. Cliff Montgomery, 185 pound quarterback, faked an end run, a play on which he had been considerably successful up to this point of the contest. But as he raced toward the goalline he turned and unleashed a sharp forward pass.

In spite of the insecure footing, and the soggy ball, mad Anthony Mastal, Columbia end, leaped higher over the head of Bobby Grayson, Stanford back, and brought the slippery pigskin down hugged tightly to his bosom, 17 yards from the goal line.

Indians Fooled

Alfred Barabas took the ball on the next play and attempted to hand it to Montgomery on a reverse but fumbled and recovered for no gain. He took it again, faking first to Ed Bromilski and then to Montgomery. Another end run for Montgomery thought Stanford. The rain-soaked fans agreed.

But Al Barabas. He started to the right as the Redskins sought Montgomery's carry to him in time with the ball tucked half-hidden on the right side of his hip, Barabas angled for the goal line.

So late the Indians saw they had been duped. Barabas was far out of reach and scored standing up. Newell kicked the extra point but it wasn't necessary.

Stanford partially attended to that with its fumbles and Columbia contributed with its tight goal line defense and its alert recovery of the Indian backs' bobbles.

With the great Bobby Grayson doing most of the work, Stanford had time to score in the final second period driving 51 yards to the Lions' 29-yard marker, where it lost possession, shortly before the end ended.

In the third and again in the drying period, the Indians pounded up and down the soggy gridiron seeking to score but all they got out of it was exercise.

CATTLE TRADE WITH BRITAIN

Mr Edmund Kennedy Tells of Outlook For Canadian Cattle

An open market for Canadian cattle in the British Isles, which will steadily grow larger with each succeeding shipment, is forecast by Mr. Edmund Kennedy, of Ebor's Hill, who has just returned to the district from Glasgow, Scotland, and Liverpool, where he was successful in assisting in the delivery of 410 head of prime Ontario beef, 54 of which were purchased and shipped from this Bay of Quinte district.

"Old country buyers are particular in their preference for Ontario cattle, and I see a big market for this export," stated Mr. Kennedy, when questioned today. "As time goes on I believe that cattle and other livestock will be the chief export of this province. Just now they can't get enough of them," he added. No definite number of "head per month could be given by Mr. Kennedy, but he believed that the number shipped "would be considerable.

Out of the four hundred and ten head of cattle shipped from Montreal on the large boat, only one died. "Sea fever", stated Mr. Kennedy. These covered by insurance. The passage was fairly calm, with four days of rough weather, as they neared the British Isles. Fourteen Old Country lads accompanied the shipment. Mr. Kennedy was hired by Mr. William Clarke, buyer of this city, to accompany the 54 head from here.

Arriving at Glasgow, the cattle were unloaded and immediately driven to the large stock yards where they were fed and rested in preparation for the weekly cattle auctions by which the commission men dispose of the animals to individual buyers and butchers. They arrived in excellent shape, and excited considerable comment among the buyers. "Best cattle we ever saw", was the general consensus of opinion among them, stated Mr. Kennedy.

Although cattle are comparatively cheap in this section, in the old country, prime beef such as shipped from here comes high. Still the demand is great for that class of beef, and preference is always given Ontario cattle.

Canada has lost its glamour for a lot of the old English and Scotch residents, stated Mr. Kennedy whose three weeks' stay in England and Scotland, during which time he visited the majority of principal points, enabled him to size up the situation. Depression still exists to a great degree in the Isles, with large numbers still on the dole, but recovery seems on the way, with the announcement of relief work which is to be undertaken by the larger municipalities.

"Later shipments, in larger amounts, will probably include other livestock, although the demand just now is for two-year-old cattle," stated Mr. Kennedy.

Dave Komonen

Torchy Peden

Jimmy McLarnin

Bobby Pearce Ab. Box

Canadian sports writers were emphatic in opinion that Dave Komonen, the "phantom Finn", was Canada's outstanding athlete in 1933. And this despite the fact that Jimmie Ball of Winnipeg was awarded the Norton Crowe Cup by the A.A.U. of C. for the outstanding achievement by a Canadian athlete during the year. Komonen, now world-famous as a marathon runner, has won most of the outstanding events in that class during the year both in Canada and in the United States. Jimmy McLarnin followed closely after Komonen by virtue of his smashing victory over Young Corbett III to win the world's welterweight championship. On the heels of these two fine athletes was Torchy Peden, the red-haired bicycle rider from Victoria, who has fame and some fortune in six-day bike races across the continent. Fourth on the list was Ab Box kicking ha...back on Argonaut's Dominion championship team, who played the latter part of the season with a fractured cheekbone and was largely responsible for many of Argo's victories. Tied with Box was Bobby Pearce, Hamilton's famous oarsman, who defeated Ted Phelps for the world's professional sculling title.

AMERKS WIN

Draw Closer to Section Leader by Downing Senators

(By the Canadian Press)

If anyone doubted Toronto Leafs are far and away the class of the National Hockey League they had ample argument to clinch that point. For the National Hockey League champions beat Chicago again last night and added two more points to a total that must be most discouraging to the less favored outfits.

Toronto won by the odd goal in three at Chicago, making it two wins and no votes in their pair of scraps with the American section leaders. They beat the Hawks 1-0 in a previous engagement in Toronto. Elsewhere, the ever amazing Americans were taking Ottawa Senators 4-2 in New York and drawing up within a point of the Montreal Maroons and four of Ottawa in the Canadian division standings.

Continuing at their present rate the Leafs are expected to start breaking records any day now. They have beaten every team in the league and have lost only three games, two to Montreal Canadiens and another to Ottawa. In 14 wins and three ties they have piled up 74 goal's against 30 scored by their opponents.

Last night the largest crowd of the season—15,500—packed the Chicago Stadium to see them play Tommy Gorman's Hawks. Goals by Buns Boll and Andy Blair won for the Canadian section leaders in the second period after Johnny Gottselig had notched Chicago's counter ear'ier in the frame.

"Red" Horner, Toronto defenseman, got back in the game after his six-game suspension for striking Eddie Shore as the night "Ace" Bailey was injured in Boston.

Over-Anxious

Over-anxiety to tie the score in the third period cost the speedy Senators any chance they may have had to beat Americans. Ronnie Martin and Hank Goldup scored goals for the New Yorkers before Frank Finnigan put the Ottawans in the running in the middle frame and the Senators went out in the third to tie it up.

Hal Pirkets and Lloyd Gross both caught the Senator defense down the ice looking for goals and in less than a minute in the third they bonged the puck past Bill Beveridge Bill Toohey, working with Danny Cox and Nick Wasnie, got the assist on Senator goal.

Ottawa continued their policy of shooting only when it looked as if they might count. In 60 minutes they sent only 20 shots at Worters, while Beveridge was hard pressed to as many offerings from American marksmen.

ENGLAND'S NEW CHALLENGE TO CARNERA

England has put forth a rival to the boom of the giant Italian Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion of the world. He is Roger Tumber, graduated of the London police school and is now an argular patrol in the streets of Westminster. While attending the police academy, young Hunter showed remarkable promise as a boxer and instructors urged him into competition. He is now taking part in the Lafeete Cup championships and has reached the semi-finals. The lad stands taller than Carnera, being six feet, nine inches tall, and tips the beam at 260 pounds. Being only 20 years old, he has plenty of time to shape an effective boxing career for himself.

Nice Duck Dinner Enjoyed by Leafs

The Maple Leafs made a duck dinner out of the Red Wings on Saturday night in a manner that would have even satisfied the celebrated Mr. Wimpy—who is very fond of duck dinners if you bring your own ducks.

With Charlie Conacher crashing about the premises in un-stoppable style and Kenny Doraty scrambling very successfully around the goal mouth, the Leafs were at their best. And even Hainsworth robbed the visitors of several almost certain scores, they gave up for New Year's.

Thus the locals swished into 1934 so far in front of the race that the onlookers will soon have to tell the other teams which way they went. For this 1933 Maple Leaf machine is a stream-lining, super model with all accessories and the greatest that has yet been assembled

Among the New Year's Eve gatherings was a jolly party of the younger Jewish group of the city. Fifteen couples were present and later in the evening had supper at the Quinte Cafe.

Mrs. H. Travis of Toronto, spent New Year's with her sister, Mrs. Williamson, 39 Pine street.

Warren Williamson, who has been attending Older Boys' Parliament, at Aurora, returned home today.

Word was received in the city on Sunday by Mr. Allen Morton, Trent Road, of the death of his cousin, William Morton of Owen Sound, at his late residence in that town, the same day.

The first band of the season at the Belleville Arena, yesterday, brought out a very large crowd. The ice was in splendid condition and the skaters greatly enjoyed the music.

Dr. Charles E. O'Connor, Kingston, and his niece, Miss Molly O'Day of Newfoundland, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Tennent on Sunday and while in town attended the Belleville Club New Year's dance.

The Salvation Army Band had their annual tea last evening in the Citadel. Bandsmen, their wives and children were present and spent a very pleasant evening. Arrangements were in charge of Bandmaster Wardle.

The annual New Year's Eve dance of the officers and members of the Belleville Club was a gala event early Monday morning. The Club was charmingly decorated in Yuletide colours and about one hundred and fifty guests enjoyed the smart dance program by the Commodores which began at 12.05 on Monday morning. Dainty refreshments were served by the Club Steward, Ernest Pardoe and Mrs. Pardoe.

South End Athletic Club members were at home to over one hundred guests at their club rooms on South Front street, when their regular weekly dance was held on New Year's night. Old time dances were the order of the evening with a special solo during the luncheon intermission by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Samain with one of their old-time tandem step dances. The night was a decided success and appreciated by the officers of the club as this is one of the revenue producers of the club building. Log Cabin Boys' Orchestra was in attendance.

Notwithstanding the very bad weather, between thirty and forty couples gathered at the Officers' Mess at the Armouries as guests of the Commanding Officer, Lieut.-Colonel E. A. Geen and Officers of the Argyll Light Infantry to join in the festivities of New Year's Eve. The guests were received in the Officers' Mess which had been decorated for the occasion. Favours were distributed just previous to the midnight hour and all joined in singing Auld Lang Syne and other songs. Later dancing took place in the Lecture Room. The officers of the regiment appeared for the first time in the new "blues", presenting a smart feature of the evening's entertainment. The hosts of the evening were Lieut. E. Bateman and Lieut. O. Butler, assisted by the Mess Committee.

Members of the Boy Choristers of the Royal Military Chapel, London, England, who were in the city to present a program, were entertained at the Belleville Arena to an afternoon's skating yesterday. As guests of the management, the boys enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon. Bob Smith, Captain of the Broom Gang, and his assistants looked after the smaller chaps who were not so accustomed to skating.

Yesterday afternoon the Y.M.C.A. held open house to its members and friends. Activities were in progress in all departments of the Association and the several hundred visitors who took advantage of the invitation to attend were interested spectators of a typical Y programme of activities that are carried on daily, during the week. In the parlors of the Association refreshments were served by a group of ladies who are members of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Headed by Mrs. E. Hickey, President the following ladies assisted, Mrs. R. Hinchey, Mrs. Talbot Ketcheson, Mrs. Arbuckle, Mrs. S. Licence, Mrs. J. E. Shorrt.

EMPSON — JONES

(Contributed)

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jones was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday, December 25th, at 2 p.m. when their daughter, Luella Irene, became the bride of Dr. Robert H. Empson, son of Robt. Empson, Cannifton. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. W. R. Merrick, assisted by Rev. Morris Wootton.

The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March rendered by Miss Ferne Patterson and took her place before a bank of ferns and white chrysanthemums. She was charmingly attired in an ankle-length gown of white crepe satin fashioned on fitted lines with lace trimmings. Her veil of silk net was caught in cap shape with orange blossoms, and fell in flowing lines to form a train, while white slippers completed the ensemble. The bride's bouquet was of roses, lily of the valley and maiden-hair fern tied with streamers of white satin ribbon.

After the ceremony the guests numbering thirty-five were invited to the dining room which was beautifully decorated with roses and lighted with pale green and white candles. Over the bride's table hung a large white bell encircled by small white bells, from these flowed white streamers which formed a tent. Arranged about the spacious room were small tables centred with pink rosebuds and green and white candles in silver holders; place cards decorated with mistletoe completed the color scheme.

A dainty buffet luncheon was served by girl friends of the bride, Miss Mary Merrick, Miss Muriel Wardner, Mrs. Wanda Sine, Miss Hazel Horton and Miss Mae Stevenson.

The bride is a graduate of Peterboro Normal School and has been engaged as a teacher for the past five years. The groom is a dentist of Belleville. On their return they will reside at the groom's home, Cannifton.

CUNNINGHAM — ORR

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the House of Refuge, when Edgar John Cunningham, son of George and Kathleen Cunningham of Cobourg and Eunice Ann Orr, daughter of the late Woodford and Myrtle Sandercock, were united in holy wedlock by Rev. Albert Geen. At 8 p.m. the groom, friends and clergyman were in their place in the beautifully decorated private parlor, the bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Sandercock, and took her place before a lovely floral background. The bride looked charming in a beautiful silver white gown. After the ceremony the happy couple visited the men of the Home in large chapel and then the women in their assembly room. In the centre of this room stood a table covered with a very attractive set of dishes. The men joined the women and when all were present the women presented the dishes and read an address, to which the clergyman added a few words in which he praised the love of the inmates to the bride who had assisted in the Home and had been kind to them. The price of the dishes was made up in small amounts from the men and women inmates. The happy couple will reside in Cobourg where Mr. Cunningham carries on business.

USES GASOLINE FOR COAL OIL, IS BADLY BURNED

LONSDALE—The usual Christmas feasts were observed in this vicinity. Everyone seemed to have a merry time. Owing to the severe weather and roads in bad condition made it hard for some to get to their destination.

Men at roadwork had to discontinue their work on account of the recent snow storm. Also cars have been tied up and will be for some time.

The annual school meeting was held on Wednesday morning and there was a good attendance. Business was discussed and Mr. Harold McCullough was elected trustee for 1934.

Quite a number attended the school concert and Christmas Tree at Kingsford School. A good programme was given. The evening was much enjoyed by all.

Friends will be sorry to hear of Mr. Alfred Cummings formerly of Lonsdale now in Manitoba, having the misfortune of being badly burned when he in a mistake used gasoline in place of coal oil, so has been confined to his bed for two weeks we all hope for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. R. Marlin left on Saturday for Toronto, to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Ross Stuart after spending the past week with her daughter, Mrs. M. McCullough.

Mrs. Arthur Waddingham spent one day recently with her mother.

Messrs. Ernest and Arthur Waddingham were in Belleville, on Wednesday to see their uncle who is reported, not in very good condition at present.

Quite a few attended the funeral of Mr. J. McGurn, Marysville, one day this week.

Quite a number of school pupils attending high school in Kingston and Napanee, are spending the holiday with their parents.

J. B. BELSHAW IS PRESIDENT

Banner Oats Association Has Annual Meeting

Stirling, Jan. 2 (Special)— The annual meeting of the Banner Oats Association was held in the Agricultural rooms on Saturday, Dec. 30th, at 3 p.m. with a fair attendance of shareholders.

The President, J. B. Belshaw was in the chair and called upon Secretary J. Wilson to read the minutes which were affirmed. The auditor's report was submitted by Chas Thompson and approved by the meeting. This showed a comfortable balance on hand of over $50 at the conclusion of the season. The officers of 1933 were reinstated for the ensuing year and are as follows: President, J. B. Belshaw; Secretary Treasurer, Jas. Wilson, B.S.A.; Auditor, Charles Thompson.

Mr. Thos. Andrews was re-engaged to run the mill for 1934 and it was decided to purchase some necessary repairs. The dividends to shareholders will be paid as soon as all accounts due have been collected.

Twenty baskets generously filled with provisions providing for an excellent Christmas dinner for a good sized family were packed by the Boy Scouts, and Girl Guides under the supervision of Mrs. J. McC. Potts, and Mr. Morgan Rowland. Ten of these were distributed in Frankford by Rev. A. S. McConnell. This work was most commendable and should be an encouragement to the young to realize that "It is More Blessed to Give Than to Receive."

Stirling was shrouded in darkness for over three hours on Sunday afternoon when hydro wires in front of Baker's service station broke and falling came in contact with other wires causing a flame to shoot up illuminating the entire village. The power was off until 7.30 in the evening delaying the church services and causing a good deal of inconvenience to citizens.

Game Postponed

The exhibition hockey game billed to be played in the local arena on Monday afternoon between the Campbellford juniors and the Stirling juniors was postponed due to the impassability of the Stirling and Campbellford Highway. This game was arranged in order to give the boys a workout prior to the first league fixture and to give the fans and hockey enthusiasts an opportunity of witnessing the local lads in action.

The Ridge Road which has been impassable for the past week was opened to traffic for the first on Monday.

Car Overturns

Rev. H. J. Farrell had a miraculous escape from death on Monday morning when returning from celebrating Mass in Frankford about 10.45, his car left the road and turned over in the ditch. Father Farrell was unharmed except for a severe shaking up. The roads were extremely icy and the car was proceeding at a very moderate rate of speed when it slid off the road turning over. The car was not seriously damaged and was driven to the service station on its own power.

A number of friends from Stirling and vicinity attended the reception given on Saturday evening for the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Coombes at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Morgan at Halloway.

Mr. Roderick McDonald, B. Com, of Chicago is holidaying with friends in Stirling and district.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter spent New Year's Day in Frankford.

Mr. Jack Goodwin of the Royal Bank staff spent the week end at his home in Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton McGee and family were Sunday dinner guests, of Mr. and Mrs. M. Shea.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Dancing Lady"

Metro Goldwyn Mayer's new and considerably anticipated co-starring vehicle for Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, "Dancing Lady," is the feature attraction at the Belle today until Friday, matinee daily, and is reported to have been produced on an ultra-lavish scale with a cast that boasts a score or more of well known stage and motion picture names as well as a flock of chorus beauties picked from some ten thousand applicants in various cities throughout the country.

Fights Way to Fame

"Dancing Lady" reunits Gable and the sparkling Miss Crawford for the fourth time. It is recalled that Gable first won attention when he played opposite the stunning actress in "Dance, Fools, Dance." Later he again scored with her in "Laughing Sinners" and "Possessed." In the present picture Miss Crawford plays the type of role upon which she built her greatest popularity in "Our Dancing Daughters" and its equally successful sequels, "Our Modern Maidens" and "Our Blushing Brides." She is seen as a girl born to dance who fights her way to fame on Broadway.

Gable's role is another two-fisted characterization. He plays the part of a hard-boiled dance director in a musical comedy who eventually falls in love with the fresh chorine whom he has tried unsuccessfully to browbeat.

Outstanding names in the large supporting cast include Franchot Tone, who has played with Miss Crawford in previous pictures, May Robson, Winnie Lightner, the famous stage dancer, Fred Astaire, the celebrated literary wit, Robert Benchley, Ted Healey and his Stooges, Gloria Foy, Art Jarrett, Grant Mitchell, Maynard Holmes, Nelson Eddy and Sterling Holloway.

Catchy Song Numbers

The music in the production includes a group of catchy new numbers sung by Miss Crawford, Art Jarrett of radio fame, and Nelson Eddy, one of America's outstanding concert baritones. Included in the song numbers are "Let's Go Bavarian," "Heigh Ho" and "Everything I Have is Yours" by Burton Lane and Harold Adamson; "That's the Rhythm of the Day" by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart; and "Dancing Lady" by Jimmy McHugh and Dorothy Fields."

"His Honor" is the title of a very funny Bert Lahr comedy to be presented on the same program with a Popeye, the Sailor, Cartoon, and the latest Belle News, revealing the world at large in pictorial form.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Midshipman Jack"

Bruce Cabot, hero of "King Kong", portrays a young naval academy cadet who falls in love with the daughter of his commandant and gets himself into a jam by sneaking from quarters after Taps to press his suit with her. Threatened with dismissal with one more breach of orders, he is placed in command of a submarine chaser during the war manoeuvres. A mistake by his beloved crony wrecks the boat in a head-on collision with an airplane in full flight. He heroically rescues his pal from an underwater tangle of wreckage, and true to Navy traditions, accepts the onus, hazarding disgrace, loss of his love, and dismissal, for friendship's sake.

More than 400 midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and scores of officers take part in the production of "Midshipman Jack". By consent of Admiral Hart, in command, the entire cadet personnel of the famous institution turned out in full dress parade on two occasions, and once again for a ball, held in the Armory. Buddy Wiles, son of Destroyer Commander Wiles, received the assignment to invite 3,000 girls for the dance. Sub-debs from Washington, D.C., Baltimore and Annapolis took part, as did daughters of all Academy officers, including Nancy Hart, daughter of Admiral Hart.

Nine submarine chasers, 12 seaplanes and 400 officers and midshipmen took part in a thrilling war manoeuvre staged for the production, which is climaxed by a head-on collision between a seaplane in full flight and a subchaser.

For drama, romance and adventure you should see "Midshipman Jack". "His Weak Moment", an Andy Clyde comedy, with beautiful Cecelia Parker is mirth provoking Toyland Carton and Capitol News complete the film entertainment. Royal Princess dinnerware given away tonight—coupe soups.

Buying of Cautious Nature—Distillery Issues Gave Market Strong Leadership—1934 Sentiment of Mildly Cheerful Variety

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, January 2 (CP)—While mining shares maintained a generally firm tone there was no disposition among traders to follow prices up on active buying was of a cautious nature. Special activity however cropped up in spots and a few shares registered headway gains in the first three hours of trading.

Macassa featured the medium-priced group with a rise of 17 cents to 2.01 in heavy trading. A weak spot in the group was Wayside, off 3 cents.

Most of the senior gold shares dragged, Dome, Lake Shore, McIntyre and Teck standing unchanged while Pioneer made some headway.

TORONTO STOCKS

The distillery issues gave the market strong leadership. The group showing net gains this afternoon up to 3¼ points. Announcement that Canadian Industrial Alcohol had signed a marketing agreement with Walker Distillers of the United States had only a moderately favorable effect on the quotation of Alcohol. The price this afternoon holding a gain of ¼ at 20¼. Walkers was up 3¼ and Distillers Seagram 2.

Ford A was a strong member of the interlisted group, while the oil and beer shares were buoyant.

Smelters advanced a point to 132.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Jan. 2. — Financial markets stepped cautiously but firmly into 1934 today. Commodities, as a whole, was of the mildly cheerful variety.

Leading equities pushed up one to two or more points to make progress while grains, cotton and most other commodities registered moderate improvement. Mail send displayed a rising inclination and other bonds were comparatively steady.

Shares of Chrysler and General Motors moved up gradually to around a point to exceed their 1933 highs. Industrial Alcohol was stronger than three while Allied Chemical, American Commercial Alcohol and Cl. A. Industrial Alcohol registered about a point each.

Canadian issues moved on a fairly even keel. Canadian Pacific and Canadian Pacific rights were steady. Dome and International Nickel eased a shade. On the curb, Lake Shore issues sold a slight fraction lower but Hiram Walker was up a trifle more than two points. Dominion Tarpenauer, 5's were unchanged while 4's improved fractions. Bonds in the Canadian dollar was unchanged at 100.13⅞.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. HENRY RANSON

With many former friends in attendance, the funeral of the late Mrs. Catherine Jane Ranson was held from her late residence, 293 Charles Street, Saturday afternoon last. The Rev. Dr. J. A. Seymour, pastor of the Bridge Street Methodist Church, conducted the service at the house and at the interment in the Belleville cemetery. Floral tributes from both the immediate and more evidence of the love and esteem in which Mrs. Ranson had been held during her long life and the sympathy felt for the bereaved husband, son and sister surviving. The service of the Rebekahs was performed under the direction of Mrs. Grace McEwan, J.P.N. Grand or Quinte Lodge, acting as Noble Grand, and assisted by Mrs. Mina Lizzie Whiten as chaplain, and Mrs. Mary Newman as Vice-Grand. The bearers were Messrs. Charles Frost, Jr., F. F. Hickman, William Brooks, Gordon Miller, George Yourker and Perry Denike.

U. S. AWAKENS TO NEW HOPE

Britisher Sees U. S. Inflation of Mild Form

Montreal, Jan. 2 (CP)—The people of the United States have been awakened to a new hope and a new activity by the N.R.A., declared Hon. Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, Bart., Minister of Labor and member of the Board of Governors of the London School of Economics, who has been studying the N.R.A. in the United States for the past two months at the invitation of the Rockefeller Foundation, declared here today. "The psychological effect wrought by the act is, in itself, one of the five essentials to recovery," declared Sir Arthur stated in an interview.

Speaking about the President's inflation plans, Sir Arthur said he was quite positive the United States would never let the dollar "run away" from the pound or from the mark. He also expressed the belief the people of the country would like to see the dollar remain fixed, either in relation to gold or to sterling.

STORE BURNS

Elwood, Ind., Jan. 2 (AP)—A department store building owned and operated by the R. L. Lesson Co. was destroyed by fire early today. The loss is estimated at $500,000.

The fire is believed to have been started by defective wiring.

JUDGES ARE MADE KNIGHTS

Many Canadian Women In Welfare Work Honored

London, Jan. 2—Two Canadians who have rendered long and distinguished public service were raised to knighthood by His Majesty in the New Year's honours list—Lyman P. Duff, chief justice of the Canadian Supreme Court, and Louis Telmer, chief Justice of the Supreme Court of King's Bench, Quebec.

Publication of the honors list disclosed there were no grounds for the widespread rumors that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London, would be either knighted or raised to the peerage.

List of Canadians

The Canadians in His Majesty's honors list were as follows:

Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George (addressed "Sir"): Rt. Hon. Lyman P. Duff, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Knight Bachelor (addressed "Sir"): Joseph Matthias Tellier, Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, Quebec.

Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George: Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House of Commons; R. W. Breadner, former Canadian Ambassador to Ireland, recently appointed tariff adviser to the Finance Ministry; Thomas Mayne Daly, retiring Under-Secretary of State; H. H. Rowatt, formerly Deputy Minister of the Interior.

Commanders of the Order of the British Empire: Dr. Helen MacMurchy, chief medical officer of the child welfare division of the Dominion Department of Health; Miss Ethel Hayden, superintendent of the Hamilton General Hospital; Miss T. L. Smellie, chief of the Victorian Order of Nurses of Canada; Miss Charlotte Whitton, executive director of the Canadian Council of Child Welfare; Mrs. Laura Wood, for educational services in New Brunswick; Miss Laura Holland, Vancouver, for developing outpost welfare services.

Officers of the civil division, Order of the British Empire—Madame Beaudoin Montreal, for services to sick and crippled children, and the founding of the Beaudoin Hospital; Mrs. G. E. Campbell, Windsor, Ont., for community welfare work; Miss Gertrude Childs, supervisor of the department of health and welfare of Manitoba; Miss J. M. Colby, Standhouse, and finding their escape by the stairs cut off, the occupants made their way to a balcony where their cries for help were heard by a passer-by who turned in an alarm.

COMMUNISTS BEERS

Toronto, Jan. 2 (CP)—Communist organizations will no longer be allowed the use of Massey Hall, large Toronto music hall, William Robbins, member of the Board of Directors stated today.

ived cross nursing services; Miss Josephine Strothard, Truro, N.S., for many years' effective work as head of the Maritime Home Girls School; Madame Tremier, Que., for nearly half a century of service for needy mothers and children.

Members O.B.E.

Members of the Order of the British Empire—John Guy, confidential messenger of the Governor-General's office, Ottawa; Mrs. Craven, New Liskeard, for services in improving rural life; Mrs. Darrach, Brandon, Man., for organizing health services; Miss R. M. Davies, for educational work in the Skeena, B.C., district; Miss Mary Dunn, Sunset Prairie, B.C., nursing outpost for the Peace River; Miss Amy Earl, Charlottetown, for community welfare work; Miss Hannah Estabrook, Saint John for assistance to settlers in the Maritimes; Mrs. Hedley Moore Jaw, Sask., for welfare and relief work; Mrs. Parsons Pivet Credit, for child welfare work; Miss Elizabeth Pearson, Grand Prairie, Alta., for outpost hospital services; Mrs. Phillips, Prince Albert, Sask., for social and public welfare work; Mrs. Ross Riley, Brook, N.B., for nursing services; Miss Bertha Shaftesbury, Ont., for child and community welfare work; Miss Annie Tiffey, Lethbridge, Alta., nursing mission head; Miss M. E. Lawson, Victoria, on retirement from a lifetime of community work; Mrs. Coghlin, Montreal, for welfare services.

O'DUFFY WINS FIRST ROUND IN FIGHT

Charge Outside Tribunal's Jurisdiction Says Judge

The military tribunal decided this morning to obey—for the time being, at least—the high court's conditional order prohibiting it from proceeding with the case against the militant blue-shirter.

Justice Byrne granted the court order yesterday on the ground the charge was outside the tribunal's jurisdiction.

Five Rescued at Ottawa From Balcony

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—(CP)— Scantily clad, five persons were rescued by firemen in 10 below zero weather when Jerry Gleason's home was partially destroyed by fire here early.

Awakened by smoke filling the house, and finding their escape by the stairs cut off, the occupants made their way to a balcony where their cries for help were heard by a passer-by who turned in an alarm.

DETERMINE PATERNITY BY BLOOD TEST

Asks For Test to Support Plea of Innocence

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A Brooklyn judge has ordered a mother and her son to submit to the Landsteiner blood-grouping test as an aid in establishing the child's paternity.

The mother, Betty Beschel of Long Beach, has brought suit for support against Jacob Manovitz, claiming he is the father of her two-year-old son.

Manowitz, a Long Island real estate operator, asked for a blood test to support his plea of innocence.

Supreme Court Justice Meier Steinbrink, who issued the order, made it plain that the results will not be considered conclusive, but merely a part of the evidence.

The test, which is displayed Rockefeller Institute devised the test which helped win for him the 1930 Nobel prize.

His theory is that human blood is of four general types, and that ordinarily a child inherits the types of its parents.

RED FLOW OF WATER OVER NIAGARA ROCKS

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Jan. 3—(AP)—Niagara Falls on the United States side flowed a dark red today.

Apparently because of some disturbance up river, instead of the familiar sea green curtain from the Horseshoe Falls, there was a mass of foam below, there was a curtain like red velvet. The color changed during the night.

STOLEN BELL RECOVERED

New York, Jan. 2—(AP)—A special cable from Sydney, Australia, to the New York Times today said that a bell from the German cruiser Emden, stolen from the Sydney War Museum in April, has been found buried in park lands in the outskirts of Melbourne. The bell, a historic war relic of priceless value, represented Australia's first sea fight.

JUSTICE RIDDELL'S CONDITION

Toronto, Jan. 2 (CP)—The condition of Mr. Justice W. A. Riddell seriously ill at his home here for several days, was reported greatly improved today. "He is very much better." It was reported from his home.

EXTENDS GREETINGS

Quebec, Jan. 2.—(CP)—Mayor H. E. Lavigueur, Quebec today extended New Year's greetings to all the municipalities in Canada, as President of the Union of Canadian Municipalities.

In doing so he expressed the hope that times are on the mend, and that this coming summer the union will be able to hold its convention in this city.

MISS ADA C. MACKENZIE IS CANADA'S SPORT QUEEN

Hilda Strike, Montreal Sprinter Was a Close Second

By ELMER DULMAGE

Toronto, Dec. 30—(CP)—Canada's queen of sport for 1933 in the opinion of sports writers who voted in the second annual Canadian Press Poll, is Miss Ada C. Mackenzie of Toronto, Canadian tennis and indoor golf champion.

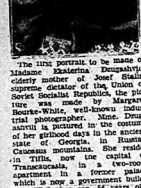
The veteran competitor who won her first major title 14 years ago, and swept the boards in two weeks of gruelling match play last summer at Winnipeg to come out undefeated, received a steady flow of ballots from all parts of the country to top Montreal's Hilda Strike, ace sprinter, by five votes.

A year ago the writers named Miss Strike as the outstanding athlete for 1932 by an overwhelming vote. Many of the voters named for the second time, doubtless on the basis of her sensational performances that equalled or bettered world's records in the early summer.

General Support.

But Miss Mackenzie had general support. Fourteen of the 36 who cast ballots selected the champion golfer. Miss voted for Miss Strike and five for Mary Prissell of Vancouver, one of a little group that threatens to oust the Montreal flier from her place at the top of the sprint list.

Miss Frizzell a member of the Canadian Olympic team in 1932, won the women's 100 metres title last summer at New Westminster against a field that included many stars, but not Miss Strike or Betty Walker of Hamilton.



Two votes went to Miss White, one of the most promising sprinters in the country and Grayce Child, strike-out pitcher of the Toronto Supremes softball team. Ontario champions. Ballots for Miss Child were perhaps the first sign of National recognition for softball.

Betty Taylor, 13 Votes.

Betty Taylor, 17-year-old Hamilton girl, another who defeated every good timber-topper—Canadian or American—she faced during the season, received three votes. Miss Taylor cracked two Canadian records and flirted with world marks persistently towards the end of the campaign.

Mrs. Robt Tower-Corsan of Toronto, winner of the Canadian National Exhibition 10-mile swim for women, received one vote, she was the only professional mentioned in the balloting.

Mother of Dictator

The first portrait to be made of Madame Ekaterina Dougashvili, elderly mother of Josef Stalin, supreme dictator of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the picture was made by Margaret Bourke-White, well-known Indianapolis photographer. Mme. Dougashvili is interested in the cosmetics of her girlhood days in the ancient state of Georgia, in Russia's Caucasus mountains. She resides in Tiflis, now the capital of Transcaucasia, in a two-room apartment in a former palace which is now a government building. While her son, 54 years old, makes history in Moscow the mother watches proudly from the comparatively humble home. Stalin was born in the Georgian township of Gori, where his father, Vissarion Dougashvili, was an operative in a shoe factory. Since the boy's birth date, December 21 and impressed by the nearness of the date of the birth of her first child to Christmas, the mother named her son Josef and destined him for the church.

St. Raymond, Que., Dec. 30.—The 24-year-old St. Raymond College, administered by the Christian Brothers, is a mass of ruins today, destroyed in a blaze which caused damage of $100,000 or more and for a time threatened the entire village.

ZION CHRISTMAS TREE AND DRAMA

On Friday evening preceding Christmas the annual Christmas entertainment was presented in the Zion church.

The edifice was well filled with parents and friends of the numerous to see the drama which was presented by the young people of that community. Mr. Percy Cavanagh was chairman for the evening and called upon several of the younger members of the school for songs and readings between the different acts of the play.

Mr. Everson, the minister, also gave a very inspiring talk on the Christmas season and its relation to each of us.

The different characters of the play "Christmas Spirit at Bar Room") were then introduced by Mr. Homer Townsend. Miss Hilda Wall then given freely of his time and talent toward the production of the play. Each player proved himself well chosen for his part and all carried their parts perfectly, even without a hesitation.

Those taking part were: Sheriff (Cronkright) has sold his grist mill and purchased the Globe hotel and saloon at Cedarville hoping at least to double his annual income. Wife (Mrs. Gibson) is kind and daughter to manage kitchen and dining. Jack and son Frank (Bill Burrows) at the bar, Slade sees where he can do a profitable business.

Mr. Ronaine (Ruth Cranston) an English philanthropist arrives at Cedarville to rescue Slade and shows much anxiety for the son, whom he finds is exposed to terrible temptation.

Two young men of the village Harvey Green (Gordon Kennedy) and Willie Hammond (Bruce Beckwith) idle much time in drinking and gambling and become quarrelsome.

Sample Switchel (Orville May) is employed by Judge Drummond a very wealthy resident, to look after his affairs and keep an observing eye on the son, Willie. Switchel frequents the tavern and boasts of his ability to drink and keep from being a drunkard.

One of the villagers, Joe Morgan (Richard Cranston) once well to do has come to poverty and now when his last penny is gone, he is not wanted in Slade's home. Morgan's daughter, Hilda Mary (Olive Searles) comes to the tavern each night to coax her father homeward, when Mother (Edna Ray) is alone crying and waiting her husband's return. When Morgan refuses to leave at the landlord's command trouble begins, tragedy follows and death visits the once happy home of Joe Morgan. Proceeds were $25.

Blizzards and Cold Strike Eastern Canada

Blizzards and sub-zero weather have tied up communication and transportation all over Eastern Canada and the United States while Western Canada shivers in temperatures down in the 30's and 40's—below zero. The snow has been a blessing in disguise to the unemployed, thousands of whom have been given work, keeping streets clear. But it also works a hardship for some as the snow will testify. The owner of the car shown will have to do some hard shovelling before he gets out.

Little Benny's Note Book

Last nite Mr. and Mrs. Hews came over to play bridge, and they was tawking about diffrent subjecks with pop and ma such as how time flies, Mr. Hews saying, An insurance fellow asked me how old I was the other day and I studied it out carefully an by jingoes I was 42 and getting older every minute.

You're a meer child, I'm 44 and never felt better in my life, pop said, and you look it, Mr. Wiljon dont exaggerate, the ideer what are jbog trying to do give rise to a popular impression that I'm older than I am?

Aren't they ridiculus? Mrs. Hews said, The ideer of making themselves out much older than they really are just out of an exaggerated feeling of falls pride, she said, and pop said, I forgot to mention, by the way that my wife is younger than I am, O much younger, sir. O yes, you see she was only 13 when she married, I bleeve.

Dont be silly, I was 20 to be exact, and you were so much older that my friends asked me if it was true that I was really going to marry such a old man, ma said, and pop said, That's rite, I was 20 at the time, but my ere went down a good eel in the big market crash.

That reminds me of my own case, Mr. Hews said. I was 80 at the time of my marriage, with some white hair, but it terned brown overnite when my wife's sister eloped and got married and stopped living at her house. I'll tell the world it makes my wife 17 on her next birthday, the same age as our 2nd daxter, he said, and Mrs. Hews said, Qi keep quiet, I admire a man that can put his foot in it without getting herried after when he tries to extricate himself.

So do I, ma said. But the trubble is, they're like Tennison's brook; they dont know when to stop, for goodness sakes let's start the bridge game going.

With they did.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As the storm broke, Jana realized that the man behind her was entirely ignorant of the danger threatening him. Without hesitating, The Red Flower of Zoram turned and fled swiftly down the trail she had just so laboriously climbed. She must reach Jason before the waters did. Soon a foaming torrent would cover the bottom of the gorge. Already it ran deep in the canyon. Never in her life had Jana attempted a storm so terrible.

The wind howled and the vivid lightning struck. Constantly rising rain fell in blinding sheets. Constantly rising death, the girl groped blindly downward upon her hopeless errand of mercy. How hopeless it was she was soon to see. For the waters in the gorge had already risen—she saw them just below her now. Nothing down there could have survived; the man must have long since been washed away. Jason was dead! For an instant she watched the swirling torrent rising below her.

Suddenly there came to The Red Flower an urge to throw herself in. She did not want to live. But something stayed her, and she turned and fought her way upward, the waters rising below threatening to overtake her and the falling torrents above almost hurling her back to destruction. Jason Gridley had seen cloudbursts in California and Arizona. He knew how quickly gulleys and ravines could be transformed into raging torrents though never before had he witnessed so swift a rush of water.

And so as he saw the sudden flood sweep the gorge he lost no time in seeking higher ground. But the canyon's walls were steep and the waters rose to his knees before he could gain a safe spot. The rain thundered down upon him, beating him back—so that often for several minutes he could make no headway. Clutching at a deceiving branch, now him, he lost his rifle, which slid into the turbid water. And as he strove to catch it he was swept from his footing into the raging torrent.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

"Sue."

Jeffrey drew her aside. "You're an ace. You're a hit. You should be glad on your feet, but you're tired, as a flock pf daisies."

"I'm starving, too. Like a strange animal in a cage at the zoo. Spoonfuls please, and any wonder when I am going to bite. I haven't bitten anyone yet."

Jeffrey laughed.

"Haven't you even growled at them?" he asked.

"One or two tiny little growls, when they pushed me."

"When you feel like it, snarl."

"I might. Have you noticed my music, Jeff? Sort of a general 'Good Old Fortune' theme. A sustained gringe. It's creepy."

"One of Sue's pleasant little habits. Don't right now—I'm busy. Publish her forever theme."

"Jeff," hissing the crimson shoulding her face. "That look of hers at the ballet right now—I She had almost reached out and touched his unshaven look.

"I know. Standing on end. Sure sign of suppressed wrath. What about Mercedes?"

"I don't know. Could she be lost? Vanished? I left a car. Don't think she's abandoned us to our fate."

"You don't know Maisy."

"When I'm not about the most sweet, kind, helpful little Sea."

"Jeff, do these parties go on and on?"

"Not for us. Be back in a minute. Have a bite, Sue, Sue."

Sue, helping herself to an occasional sniff of the perfumes on her shoulder and "holding in".

"Oh, yes, Mr. Jeffrey. We had a most exciting time in Paris. Nothing can ever always has an exciting time in Paris."

"Quite so." The executor of the scandal eaters cleared his throat. "Now that you're back, you young folks, you'll settle down to the serious business of living. Tremendous chastising, for instance. Jeffrey's mother understood. A clever woman. A brilliant woman. I have a list of the late Mrs. Hamilton's charities. It should prove most helpful."

Clearly! Sue breathed deep. There was a part of a dollar, plus a few cents in her pocketbook.

From the end of the drawing-room came the murmur of a string quartet. A search that set feet to jig forward with the rhythm. Late arrivals claimed Sue's attention.

"About that idea." Jeffrey managed to cut Sue out again from the crowd. "Well, dear, there's a village upstairs—a hundred miles or so—where we'll wake, license and preacher and everything. We can be married there. I've discovered that the helpful Bertie has arranged for a few members of the death watch to come in for dinner. We'll go through with the dinner, then we'll slide out with Bertie and be back tomorrow in time to answer any alarm that might be broadcast."

"Jeff, you're a general." Sue, admiring.

"I'll be general Smash if we don't stage a parson soon," Jeffrey promised.

"A-hem!" Mr. Gifford interrupted the tete-a-tete ponderously. "Hope I've not intruding, Jeffrey, but I must get along. Thought I should let you know that it is absolutely imperative you be at the office by, morrow morning. Early as possible. Ten o'clock would do. No later."

"Phil—this—this is made me dizzy pians."

"Sorry, Jeffrey, but I'm afraid you'll have to abandon these other legal matters do not wait."

She's heart, standing still. The hint in Mr. Gifford's eyes, that there, until now, opaque, colorless, suspicion? Menace? She would decide, she could defeat him.

"Don't mind, Jeff," she said, cheerfully. If Jeffrey failed to catch the danger signals she was flashing this might be the end.

"We've been playing about while Mr. Gifford has been working. Let's take care of your money. It's noble of him, really, and we can postpone our wedding after that. Later."

"I don't want to postpone my wedding, Sue," very softly, objecting to being moved around against my will. I tell you, Clifford, I won't be moved around—"

"I feel sort of dizzy." Sue, leaning on Jeffrey's arm. "I shall be such a full day. So much excitement—do you think I could slip away without anyone's noticing?"

"Straight! Back a few steps. There's a door under the tapestry. We can step through."

They were moving backward slowly.

"I'll depend on you tomorrow, Jeffrey. Waiting, of course, on Mrs. Hamilton's behalf."

They were back of the tapestry, through the door.

"He suspects! He may know." Sue, recovering. Immediately the door had closed.

"You're all right? You don't feel faint?" Jeffrey, peering through the gloom of the passage for assurance that Sue was all she sounded.

"I'm not faint. In the least. But I'm frightened. Did you notice your swindle round Max? I was never out of her sight. And Cyril is stalking you. They aren't sure yet—but they intend to make sure. They're combining Paris plans now for a record of our marriage."

"Stay, Sue. You're going off half-cocked. Paris is only a part of France, and France is only a part of Europe. We never said we were married in Paris."

"Paris is a good guess. If they do not find a record there, they'll go to work in Europe."

"Then let's pop out the back way, jump in my car, and get them a record."

CHAPTER 17

"It begins to look, Jeff, as though the back door is our only exit. Let's not take it until we're forced. They would love it so—Sue and Sir—if they could whisper the scandal. No, a notion I know their game. They want to commit us absolutely. I make us stay in this house tonight. Let's be normal. Our bluff is as good as their scheme."

"But, Sue, you don't seem to understand—"

"Of course, I understand. They are determined to force us to stay in the same rooms—tonight. Well, we'll stay."

"I can't allow you—"

"Oh Jeff. Stop being protective, will you. I'm quite able to protect myself, and you, too, against such nonsense. It's no time to be squeamish. We've got to be brazen. Bold and bad."

Crash!

"What was that?" Sue, clutching at Jeffrey.

"Someone dropped a tray—of glasses, I should say. Stand still. I'll see what it's all about." Jeffrey moved off down the passage.

"Twas the tray, sir," a voice quavered. "It—it slipped."

"All right, Oaston. Go back and get another tray."

"Yes, sir. Thank you, sir."

"This way, Sue." Jeffrey was through the passage in a rush, Sue stumbling after.

"Up three stairs. Careful, they're steep." Sue following Jeffrey, grateful for the guidance of his hand. "Here we are. Up forward in the hall, on the left."

A door closed behind. A lock clicked. Sue was in the broad high-ceilinged room of the lamps and the many windows.

"Do—I do you think he heard—Oaston, I mean, what we were saying in the passage?" Sue, teeth chattering.

"No. Oaston is not a listener. He's just dumb."

"And who is this dumb Oaston, may I ask?"

From beneath the spreading shade of a jade lamp Matilda Pechenotsky's homely face beamed out at them. Matilda, munching chocolates, a magazine of fashion open in her lap, a pot everything through the customs, so here I am."

Sue Smiley sat on the edge of the bed staring at a spot in the carpet. Mai Sue visualized one. The carpet was thick and silvery grey, like mist in the moonlight.

Her head reeled. She had taken one, two, maybe three glasses of champagne at dinner—certainly the impression she was not new to champagne—and she had eaten practically nothing. She couldn't eat with excitement bubbling from her throat.

Where was Matilda? Oh yes, one flight up, first door to the right. Sue had marked the door carefully. She had counted the doors. Yes, that was it, washed-out.

There were two doors opening from her room. One into the hall. Beyond the door was the long hallway—no her present—as-if-inhand. Clanging at the locks, the doors, the windows. Ought she to look that door?

Sue tiptoed to the door leading to the living room, pressed her ear against the thick panel. She could hear nothing. She fumbled with the lock. The door was open, moved by the catch forward—no you didn't. She was a prisoner, waiting in dumb misery for the elements to spend their wrath.

Sue went back to the bed and slid between the cool sheets.

Some time in the night Sue wakened with a start. The ship was dipping, rising, pitching, rolling. Another storm? A savage rustling. A presence. An unfamiliar presence. Had some one entered the cabin?

"Matilda?" Sue's voice, low, protesting. No answer. She sat up in bed—now she was wide awake. The moon cut a path across the misty carpet. Jeffrey! Had he stolen into her room? If Jeffrey dared—

"I'm hearing things." Sue assured herself, "and feeling them, too. I'm feeling the motion of the ship. A glass of cold water would help." She clicked on the night light. The rustling and strange rushing persisted. Uncanny. Turn on other lights and dispel the uneasiness.

Sue suited action to the thought and gazed about the room. The drawers of the dressing table! Surely she hadn't left them open and every! And her bag! Distinctly she recalled that she had slipped it under the cushions of a cane lounge. Yet here it was on a chair near the door.

"No callers again." Angry, like heat lightning, flashing in Sue's eyes. Sue thrust her feet into worn faded kimona, went to the door to the sitting room and gave a subdued rap. Almost at once Jeffrey's voice answered.

"Jeff, are you dressed?"

"Practically. Pajamas and lounge robe. Can't you sleep?"

"Not for the present. I'm going to open the door, Jeff. Something's happened."

Before she could turn the knob the door swung open and Jeffrey was on the threshold.

To Stop COLDS QUICK!

A COLD is twice as easily relieved if it's the first, or Dry, stage. Don't cause precious time to be lost. Use measure. Take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets as directed. Then see things necessary. First, it opens the bowels. Second, it relieves the cold germs in the system. It relieves that headache. Third, it checks fever and tones the entire system and helps greatly against further attack.

Ask for it by the full name, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine — and insist on getting it.

SAYS RELIGION MIND PRODUCT

W. M. Davis of Harvard Speaks on Faith of Reverent Science

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 30 —Religion, like science, ultimately will be seen as wholly-the natural product of the human mind," the Sfrd. annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science was told yesterday.

That will end the centuries-long conflict between Christian theology and modern science, William M. Davis, professor emeritus of geology at Harvard, declared in his second annual Hector Mallen Lecture, in which he took for his subject, "The Faith of Reverent Science."

The battle between science and religion ended in the Victorian era, with science triumphant, he said, and has now been followed by an era of reconciliation , "in which many theological views, long tenaciously held concerned in fixed on the earth, the antiquity of man, the evolution of organic forms, the origin of disease and many other matters, have been given in favor of newer scientific lews."

"The additional theological elements of Christianity," he continued, "still held by conservatives, rest upon evidence better than that which formerly supported many other elements, which, having been found untenable, have been given up as fables. Such elements as these will in time also be given up, and religion, like science, will then be seen to be wholly the natural product of the human mind."

The natural evolution of religions may be objected to now as Darwin's theory was so vehemently opposed to years ago, the speaker concluded, but its ultimate acceptance is inevitable.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By George McManus

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Jason Gridley with all his strength fought the torrent as he was swept down the gorge. At last he succeeded in catching a passing hold and drew himself out of the waters. Onward and upward he fought until he reached a spot where he was confident the flood could not reach him. There he crouched in the shelter of an overhanging ledge, just as Tarzan and his companions were crouching from the same storm in another part of the mountains, waiting in dumb misery for the elements to spend their wrath.

When finally the storm ceased and the sun burst forth, Jason's spirits revived. Again he set off in the general direction in which Jana had told him Zoram lay. He found a nest of eggs that satisfied his hunger. After he had eaten he removed his clothing, hanging it upon a tree branch where the sunlight might dry it. Then he lay down to sleep and in the warmth of Pellucidar's eternal noon he felt no discomfort.

He awoke completely rested and refreshed. Stretching himself luxuriously he prepared to dress. To his consternation, his clothes were gone. Upon the ground lay a shirt dropped by the thief, his revolver and ammunition. Never in his life had the Californian felt so helpless, so emasculated is civilized man to his strange apparel. But there was nothing he could do about it. So he tore the shirt into strips, fashioned it around his waist, buckled the ammunition belts over this and proceeded onward.

His greatest discomfort was the loss of his boots. Higher up in the mountains he came upon game and shot a small animal from whose hide he fashioned crude sandals. The sun of Pellucidar, beating down upon his naked body, soon gave it a golden bronze color. As he took on the hardy color of tan and his feet became hardened, somehow Gridley did not seem so conscious of his nakedness. Thus sleeping, eating and hunting, many days passed as he descended to the summit of the range and saw a fairer country beyond.

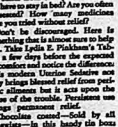
LIBRARY CORNER

Stefan Zweig in his biography "Marie Antoinette" depicts the queen as the woman and woman whom the drama of the Revolution moved into playing an heroic role. The life of Marie Antoinette is perhaps the most signal example of the way in which destiny will at times pluck a mediocre human being from obscurity and, with commanding hand force the man or woman in question to overstep the bounds of mediocrity. The author presents a well-coloured series of pictures of the subject, succeeding one another like scenes in a great drama. Had it not been for the outbreak of the Revolution the future princess who had married the king of France would have remained a cheerful and untroubled world, to live her life after the manner of the women of her class, dancing, chatting, laughing. But for her sufferings and tribulations no one would have known her, who she really was.More important still, she herself would not have known. It was after the trials and afflictions that she became aware of herself and rose to a height of greatness in history. The consciousness of a supreme duty lifted her to a higher level than she had known." Mr. Zweig's vivid interpretation of Marie Antoinette is presented with directness and power. "It must be recorded," says Herbert Gorman of the New York Times, "as the biography to end all biographies on Marie Antoinette."

The story of a flight made by William Seabrook, an American journalist, and a Parrish flying ace across the Sahara desert to Timbuctoo and back is given in Seabrook's volume "Air Adventure." The object of the flight was to interview Pere Yaboukia, the monk who was reported in the author's letter book "Jungle Ways". The adventure is not confined to the air, however, for the travellers took part in a crocodile hunt in crawling rivers, a subterranean expedition under the Sahara, and in dangerous encounters with pre-historic beasts. The author's vivid and easy style of writing makes the book an enjoyable one.



Acclaimed by leading critics as the one book worth reading that has so far appeared on Hitler and National Socialism, Calvin Hoover's book "Germany and the Third Reich," traces the course of events that has led to the Nazi revolution and made possible the Nazi victory. Professor Hoover discusses the German situation with the same intelligent understanding he displayed in his previous study of Soviet Russia. Not only did he happen to be on the spot when the Nazi revolution occurred but more fortunately he had been to Germany for nearly a year prior to the outburst. The book discusses in all judicial fairness the movement with reference to the economic aspects and the probable international consequences of its triumph.

FOURTH TERM GIVEN MAYOR W. J. STEWART

Polls 35,000 More Votes Than Three Opponents Together

BOARD RE-ELECTED

McBride, Ramsden, Simpson and Robbins Receive Endorsation

Toronto, Jan. 2—(CP)—Mayor W. J. Stewart of Toronto was back in the saddle today as chief executive of the city. Citizens yesterday piled up an overwhelming vote in favor of the return to office of the slightly-built, dapper little mayor. H. L. Rogers was closest of three others to the mayor's vote, but the best he could do was 97,203 as compared with Mayor Stewart's 72,358.

F. R. Smith, former Minister and now leader of the Canadian Labor Defense League, ran third with but 8,325 votes, while in fourth place was A. E. Hacker, who polled only 1,468.

The city voted, too, to return its Board of Control of four members. Sam McBride, former mayor and veteran of city politics, headed the poll with 54,855 votes. J. G. Ramsden, James Simpson and W. D. Robbins were also elected with 48,182, 47,308 and 37,715 respectively. Sir Edmund Walker, on a straight Co-operative Commonwealth Federation-Labor ticket and survivor of storm of criticism, which had followed his announcement of so running.

He is a vice president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and has been prominent in the labor movement for many years.

Mrs. Alice Buck, wife of Tim Buck, Communist leader who is serving a term in Kingston Penitentiary, was second from the bottom of the list of nine candidates with 9,767 votes.

The vote was the nature of a referendum. It does not compel the T.T.C. to return the free transportation privileges. Should the commission decide to do so, however, some members of council have stated they would oppose or take to the legislature.

GINA VANNA

Gina Vanna, young singer of a Chicago radio station, is travelling a different highway to fame, contrary to the usual practice of going from the stage to the microphone. Miss Vanna is headed for the stage via the other waves. After hearing her sing on the radio Paul Longone, general director of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, signed her for the coming opera season.

By an overwhelming majority, the following question was approved: "Are you in favor of the Toronto Transportation Commission continuing free transportation privileges on the street cars to members of the Amalgamation Association of the Great War and to bling people in Toronto receiving passes through the Canadian National Institute for the Blind?"

The Transportation Commission will meet today to discuss the matter of continuing the free transportation.

STERILIZATION LAWS OPERATIVE IN CANADA AND U.'S.

Sterilization of the unfit, attracting world-wide attention due to the Nazi program of the Hitler regime in Germany, which has been vigorously assailed by Pope Pius, has been practiced for a number of years in nearly half of the states of the United States and for the past few years in Canada by the province of Alberta. A survey indicates that 23 states have laws which legalize the deprivation of reproductive powers in certain pronounced mental and physical defectives. The law has affected more than 12,000 on this continent to date, according to figures.

"CRUISE OF T RAGEDY" ENDS IN DE ATH OF FOUR

The terrific gales whipping up the English channel, pounded the English and Scotch coasts, causing an enormous toll. Heavy seas off Gravelines, broke the lightship "Dyck" from her moorings and with her crew of seven, drifted on a "cruise of tragedy" which ended when she foundered on the rocks of Dunkirk. One of the sailors, went mad and plunged over the side of the ship to his death. Two others were swept overboard by waves, to a watery grave. A fourth was battered to death by the heavy seas. The three survivors were rescued by lifeboat who put out from the shore when the ship struck. She is shown here lying on her side on the rocks as the tide ran out.

NRA PERMANENT SAYS PRES. ROOSEVELT

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 3—(CP)—Theodore Martyn, Finkle Street, reported to police today that he had been held up in his bedroom at 4.25 a.m. by an unidentified assailant who shot him through the right hand and escaped, stealing $25 in bills and some change.

Washington, Jan. 3—(AP)—The United States government again today quoted $34.66 an ounce for newly-mined domestic gold.

The RFC has announced dealer-bank purchases have totalled $34,000,000 and foreign purchases more, than $70,000,000.

Philadelphia, Jan. 3—(CP)—The hardest work of the staff in one of Pennsylvania's new state liquor stores was to go home. There were long waiting queues of thirsty folk all worked from the inside. After an hour of investigations and conferences, the manager and clerks locked the front door of the former bank building and slipped out at the rear, leaving a policeman to keep all-night vigil.

Chester, Eng., Jan. 3—(AP)—Hope for the embattled potato farmer in the growing feminine tendency toward curves was seen today by Captain Ralph Wood, chairman of the British potato marketing board.

"If we ask women turned in that direction we shall grow more potatoes," he said in a speech here. "The recent decline in our industry has been due largely by the slimming craze."

New York, Jan. 3—(AP)—Mervyn Leroy, young Hollywood director and his bride, who was Doris Warner, daughter of the late Harry M. Warner, President of Warner Brothers, will honeymoon on the Empress of Britain, on a cruise around the world. The ocean tour of the world. They were married last night in the presence of a host of film celebs, or the film and theatrical world.

He was fined $10 and costs after Al Sargent, 63, appeared in court and exhibited a black eye. Spratt who claims to be Fairfield's oldest peace officer, also had a black eye. Each claimed the other struck first.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 3—(CP)—Seeking a divorce, W. D. Carnahan told Judge Gladys Gerwig the old chestnut "to his wife, Isabella, for 20 years. He said she threw a potato masher, hit him in the face, and the telephone directory, and told malicious stories which helped defeat him in a school board election. The last straw, however, was when she ran out of coffee, refusing to help beg him up, he testified.

Baltimore, Jan. 3—(CP)—Chief Inspector George G. Henry of the police department, is wondering what's wrong with Baltimore women, and why he did not know about it sooner.

Henry got a letter from a woman in Chicago, telling him about hearing of the recent robbery epidemic in Baltimore and asking about her brother, believed to be living here.

"When you come into court you had better remember that you're a little better or we might impose a penalty." So leads you a lesson the magistrate replied.

Shanghai, Jan. 4 (Thursday)—(AP)—Rioting students early today ordered all English motorists in Foochow province, numbering about 150, to proceed to Anoy for refuge during fighting between the Nationalist government and rebel forces of the province.

Tax Evaders, Negligent Bankers Hit Hard in Speech to U. S. Congress

Monetary Stabilization Not to be Established at This Time

CREDIT IMPROVED

U. S. Will Move as Rapidly as Possible From Direct Relief

Washington, Jan. 3. — President Roosevelt called upon the United States Congress today for a rigid continuation of the recovery campaign on the path of "reform of old methods."

In a personal appearance before the joint session of congress, Mr. Roosevelt read his message reporting progress in domestic recovery and proposing "stringent preventive or regulatory measures" for income tax evaders, negligent bank officials and speculators.

International monetary stabilization could not be established at this time, he declared.

The president reserved specific legislative recommendations for later. Conceding that the NRA may require changes, he hailed it as permanent.

In the meantime grants of federal credit as "fortified" by economies and formed the farm acreage reduction procedure "succeeding".

Public works plan.

The civil works plan, which the administration says has put 4,000,000 unemployed to work, will not deal with specifically, but Mr. Roosevelt said that the purpose is to seek "to move as rapidly as possible from direct relief to publicly supported work and from that to the rapid restoration of private employment."

The president also emphasized the responsibility of foodstuffs for world affairs and repeated that American effort to co-operate for restoration of economic well-being, saying of "trade barriers", he warned however, that the United States cannot take part in political arrangements in Europe.

In certain parts of the world, he said, "fear of immediate or future aggression" has led to the spending of vast sums on armaments, and the continued building up of defensive trade barriers, preventing world congress in peace or trade agreements.

He hinted of a new plan on war debts, when he said that "settled by most of the nations.

The first hundred words were reserved for unnamed tax dodgers and bankers guilty of "wanton and criminal" financial practices, which the president said call "for stringent preventive or regulatory measures."

Evaders Denounced

"I am speaking," he said, "of those few who in their greed have lost the spirit and purpose of our tax laws. I refer to those banks or banks or corporations who have grown rich at the expense of their fellowmen by the withholding of reckless speculators with their own or other people's money whose operations have injured the values of the farming crops and the savings of the poor."

He called upon the government to suppress operations "tending to undermine the foundations of sound banking, credit and investment."

Reviewing his ten months in the White House, he briefly described his gold monetary programme as designed at restoring the financial structure "and to establish a commodity at a medium of exchange which will have over the years just and reliable purchasing and debt paying power."

Careful investigation and conclusive evidence, he said, prove that in the matter of foreign exchange certain nationals of our sister nations find themselves so handicapped by internal and other conditions that they feel unable at this time to enter into stabilization discussions based on permanent and world-objectives.

Permanent Readjustment

"Now that we are definitely in the process of recovery," he said, "time have been rightly drawn between those to whom this recovery means a return to old methods—and the number of these people is small—and those for whom recovery means a reform of many old methods, of permanent readjustment, of changes in our ways of thinking and therefore changes in our social and economic arrangements.

RABBLE WARS ON CITIZENRY

Chinese Outlaws Hold up and Rob British Engineer

Peiping, Jan. 3 (AP)—The rabble-remnants of General Liu Kuei-Tang's rebel army from Chahar province, 2,000 attempted to penetrate Peiping today, pillaging and terrorizing the citizenry.

Government order forces repulsed the invaders who were considered incapable of threatening Peiping.

The main body of outlaws appeared near the border of the demilitarized zone.

Japanese aeroplanes flew over, reporting observing the outlaws, who would have been attacked by the Japanese if they had entered the demilitarized zone.

The band of outlaws held up and robbed Cuthbert Shelley, engineer of the British Legation, a few miles outside of Peiping and made travel in this section highly dangerous. Traffic into the city was held up.

Reduction of Ontario Cabinet by Two, Merger of Departments Likely

Special Correspondent Tells of Probable Changes at Hand

RECENT DEATHS

Hon. Dr. Monteith May Take Portfolio of Merged Department

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Reduction of the size of the Ontario cabinet by two members, as pledged by Premier G. S. Henry during last year's session of the legislature, may take place in the near future, it was learned here today. The premier's promise, made when the House was passing the redistribution bill whereby the size was cut from 111 members to 90, was that "in due course" the cabinet would be reduced in the same proportion.

The expression "in due course" was taken to mean as soon as the reduction in the membership of the House could be effected, which could only be after the general election which will be held next autumn. Hon. Howard Ferguson, Hon. E. A. Dunlop and serious illness of Hon. J. D. Monteith have made inroads on the cabinet strength, informed opinion here believes the premier considers it inexpedient to delay further in implementing his promise.

Mr. Henry is now acting provincial treasurer in the absence of the late Mr. Dunlop, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, present minister of highways and the most promising of the junior members of the administration, is generally conceded as being Mr. Henry's most likely choice for the treasurership. It is expected that the department of highways will then be merged with that of mines and labor, of which Hon. Dr. Monteith is minister.

Probable Course.

On his recovery Dr. Monteith, it is believed, will take charge of the combined department. He should be able to handle to resume his duties by the time a general election is held next summer, his retirement and the appointment of a successor are considered probable. In any event the department of public welfare now divided as a separate administrative entity and placed under the provincial secretary will be headed by G. Martin, now head of the welfare department, and not by Hon. Dr. Monteith.

The mooted merging of the highways and works and labor departments and that of the public welfare and provincial secretary's departments would affect only the cabinet minister heads. The deputies would remain separate administrative units in the new setup with their own deputy ministers.

It will be seen that the rumored reorganization of the government would save the premier the embarrassment of having to choose between members of the cabinet for their portfolios in order to fulfill his pledge. At the same time it will enable him to claim he has effected further "economy measures" when Ontario goes to the polls next summer.

FOUNDER OF SCHOOL DIES

Toronto, Jan 3 (CP)—Founder of the Loretta School of Stenography, Rev. Mother M. Evangelista is dead at Loretto College School here. She died yesterday at the age of 87. She was for religious life in Canada, Ireland and Loretto Academies in Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Joliet, Ill. She was particularly interested in commercial work for girls.

SHOT IN HAND BY GUNMAN

Woodstock Police Probe Sensational Story by Citizen

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP)—Police are investigating the story of Theodore Martyn who claims to have been shot in the right hand at an early hour this morning by an unidentified man who appeared at his bedside, gun in hand and asked for his money.

Martyn's story is that he jumped out of bed and got his wallet, containing $25 in bills; his driver's license and some change. This he claims to have handed to the intruder, at the same time telling him to take the gun away and brushed at it with his hand, whereupon the gun exploded and the robber left Martyn suffering a gunshot wound in his right hand. Police later found a .22 calibre bullet in the yard and a .22 calibre rifle in a nearby room with a discharged shell in it. The gun is owned by a friend of Martyn's and had been in the house for some time. The empty wallet was found outdoors but a few yards from the house. Bullet and gun have been turned over to an expert gunsmith by the police.

150 MINERS ARE TRAPPED

Twelve Bodies Taken From Czechoslovakian Coal Mine

Alderman Resigns to Satisfy Inquirer

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 3—(CP) Former Mayor C. I. Graff, who last night tendered his resignation as an alderman on the 1934 city council announced today that he had resigned because it had been brought to his attention that his eligibility to sit on the council has been questioned, owing to the fact that houses owned by him have been occupied by persons on relief.

HONORED BY KING

London, Jan. 3 (C.P. Cable)—Vice-Admiral Reginald Aylmer Ranfurly Plunkett-Ernle-Erle-Drax, the only admiral of the fleet of the America and West Indies station of the Royal Navy since 1932, is among those honored in the King's New Year list, being made a Knight Commander of the Bath.

The Admiral served afloat in the war from the Dardanelles to the end and was on board H.M.S. Lion during the Heligoland action, Dogger Bank and the Battle of Jutland.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 3.—Happy new year is to be the phrase this year to the Erickson brothers, Lief, Harold, Rudolph and Leyder. As 1934 rang round these five brothers, who they had been left in estate of more than $50,000 by their grandfather in Oslo.

WHAT CONGRESS EXPECTS TO DO

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Here is a partial list of legislation that probably will be enacted by the 73rd. Congress before the close of its present session.

Ratification of the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty with Canada.

A four cent tax, placing a levy of $2, a gallon on spirits, designed to raise more than $500,000,000 in revenue.

A general tax measure, revising the income, tax law and tightening loopholes estimated to produce $970,000,000.

Legislation for continuation of the reconstruction corporation and the civilian conservation corps.

Amendment of the basic acts under which the NRA and Agricultural Adjustment Administration were founded, and some revision of the Securities Act, and, possibly, authorization for the President to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements without submitting each to the Senate for ratification.

Additional legislation probably to be included, some of which is almost certain of enactment, includes:

Revision of the existing banking legislation, including bank deposit guarantee provisions;

Authorization to the President to declare arms embargoes in concert with other nations;

Regulation of the stock exchanges, and Regulation of the communication systems.

WILL OPERATE UPON CRIMINALS IN STATE

Oklahoma Plans Agrinst Criminal Increase

Ok'ahoma City, Jan. 3—Several thousand criminals and insane persons are listed as subjects for consideration under Oklahoma's program to eliminate criminal tendencies among mentally inclined elements.

The eliminations program is regarded as the second largest of its kind ever attempted in the world. Only the Nazi campaign to sterilize the criminal and insane of Germany is believed to be more far-reaching.

W. C. Hughes, chairman of the State Board of Affairs, said that probably 2,000 persons now confined in the state penitentiary at McAlester and the State Reformatory at Vinita, Norman and Supply would be released to the operation.

Twenty habitual criminals soon to be released from the McAlester prison also are on the list of early operations. A man who is a third-term convict is regarded as habitual criminal and is subject to sterilization.

Hearings will be granted to persons who desire to investigate whether they or their relatives will be permitted to protest.

WOMAN ARRESTED

Welland, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP)—Agnes Fox, 30 Patricia Ave., Thorold township, was arrested at her home by Police Sergt. Charles Anderson and Constable Tom Wilson of Welland, in connection with the discovery yesterday afternoon under ashes on Aloma Street, Welland, of the body of a fully matured infant.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS CAR

Youth Presumably Shot Himself After Taking Girl Friend Home

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP) Orville Neil, 20, 11th. concession Burford, was found dead in his car Wednesday with a gun in his hand early this morning. The discovery of Neil's body was made by a chum who lives in a shack with Neil. Neil had attended a dance at Oakcrest last night, held by the Oakcrest Women's Institute and he presumably returned to the shack he shared with his car.

Miss Stella Barker, Oakcrest, who attended the dance with Neil, stated that there had been no argument and Neil had taken her to her home at about 1.30.

MAY HAVE SHOT WOMAN PRACTICING AT TARGET

Sweeping Driveway When She Suddenly Collapses

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP)—J. P. Kemp, sitting on the front porch of his home, was startled to see a neighbor, Mrs. Retta B. Rodden, 64, fall down while sweeping the driveway.

Mr. Kennedy rushed to her side but Mrs. Rodden was dead. Friends supposed death had been caused by a heart attack.

Police, however, discovered she had been shot through the heart. Detectives found a 16 year old boy, Thomas Hardy, a next door neighbor, admitted firing two shots from his .22 calibre rifle at a target but denied hitting anyone.

LOSS OF LIFE MAY BE FIFTY IN FLOOD AREA

Search for Victims Carried on by 7000 Men

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP)—Searchers for victims and rehabilitating stricken areas, an army of 7,000 men were organized today to bring order out of the chaos left by the New Year's Day flood here.

A death list of 36 and a report of 73 persons missing was before city and county officials as the dispatched workmen into the flood-ravaged districts. It was feared that the dead had been identified.

Eighteen persons were reported seriously injured.

Conservative estimates predicted a final death list around 50.

Voters Had Enough of Woman Mayor Electing a Male Mayor by Big Vote

Issaquah, Wash., Jan. 3 (AP) — Someone who wears men's pants is the boss in the town of this little Pacific Northwest coal mining town.

The voters have had enough of Mrs. Stella Alexander and "woman rule."

The vote yesterday was 206 to 85.

What's the downcast. As she put it:

"About time I'll go out for a job! One that pays some money—sheriff or something."

The recall movement started last summer, after she had fired the entire police force of this little Pacific Northwest coal mining town.

Then she refused to sign an order ousting the city marshal and paid off an old $382 debt she said), and, otherwise offended the all-masculine council. Court action was finally instituted, and on general charges of "misfeasance and misfeasance" a recall election won.

Town Clerk R. L. Case, who successfully conducted Mrs. Alexander's suits to block the election, is nominal about who the next mayor will be, but almost everyone else thinks a man will be named.

He should be able to resume his duties by the time a general election is held next summer, his retirement and the appointment of a successor are considered probable. In any event the department of public welfare now divided as a separate administrative entity and placed under the provincial secretary will be headed by G. Martin, now head of the welfare department, and not by Hon. Dr. Monteith.

The mooted merging of the highways and works and labor departments and that of the public welfare and provincial secretary's departments would affect only the cabinet minister heads. The deputies would remain separate administrative units in the new setup with their own deputy ministers.

It will be seen that the rumored reorganization of the government would save the premier the embarrassment of having to choose between members of the cabinet for their portfolios in order to fulfill his pledge. At the same time it will enable him to claim he has effected further "economy measures" when Ontario goes to the polls next summer.

FOUNDER OF SCHOOL DIES

Toronto, Jan 3 (CP)—Founder of the Loretta School of Stenography, Rev. Mother M. Evangelista is dead at Loretto College School here. She died yesterday at the age of 87. She was for religious life in Canada, Ireland and Loretto Academies in Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Joliet, Ill. She was particularly interested in commercial work for girls.

GREAT START BUT WRONG DIRECTION

Hollywood, Jan. 3 (AP)—George Raft has made a great start on the new year—but in the wrong direction.

On New Year's Eve, the actor, attending a dance, was asked to take a bow. Stepping down from the orchestra stand he turned his ankle, fracturing a small bone.

While the ankle is being bobbed to the door, where he found that his new 16-cylinder automobile had been stolen.

He called a taxicab and went home. There he found that the Los Angeles raindrops had left eight feet of water in his basement, no electricity and no heat.

DOGS CAUSE THREE DIVORCES, FATALITIES

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 3—Seven fatalities and three divorces were caused directly in 1933 by affection of men and women for their dogs, a report released by the Chappel Kennel Foundation revealed.

Three persons—one a 10 year old girl—were killed in attempts to save pets from various forms of disaster. Two dog owners killed men for insulting their pets and one man committed suicide because his dog had died.

The Foundation report, compiled annually by efforts to trace the effects upon human nature of sentiment for animal pets, showed that 11 men and women left their husbands because of jealousy over affection given to dogs. A Pittsburgh, Pa., man took a six-month jail sentence rather than obey a court order to kill his dog.

One man was shot in a quarrel over a dog's ownership and a 11-year-old boy was killed while crossing a railroad track in a vain to the grave of his dog.

Not all manifestations of this powerful love for animal friends brought tragedy in its wake, however. A wealthy Idaho sheep raiser furnished laughter when he rented an entire floor of the Hotel Chicagoan hotel rather than obey an order to confine his dog to one room.

FALL IN U.S. FUNDS ASSISTS DOMINION

Ottawa, Jan. 3—Canada has been placed to a much improved position, as far as foreign exchange business is concerned, by the policy of the United States Administration, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, stated in a review of the conditions at the close of the year. A year ago, the Minister says, it was estimated that there was $60,000 of Canadian bonds, including provincial, municipal, principal and private corporation, were held in the United States alone. This involved, at the rate of exchange then ruling, $3,750,000 additional obligation of virtually $500,000 for the exchange thus being necessary to meet interest charges. This burden is now in part relieved.

The Minister's review cites improved conditions in the past year as a basis for looking forward to gradual recovery in 1934.

Modernize All Local Governments to Lower Taxation, Says Lehman

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 3.—Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York, in his message to the legislature today, proposed modernizing all local governments in the state to lower local taxation and eliminate "invisible government".

Following close on the heels of the move by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York City for establishment of an emergency "dictatorship" to handle the financial crisis there, the governor today proposed a commission made up of men of the better and attainments of former governor Alfred E. Smith, former governor Nathan L. Miller, and former Gov. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

For the 13,497 units of up-state government, exclusive of New York city, the governor proposed a constitutional amendment to permit legislature to suggest new forms of county charters.

The present system of town government dates back some two hundred years, and county government back to 1777.

City and District News

DANGEROUS HILLS ARE SANDED

No serious automobile accidents were reported by the Provincial Police this morning despite the icy and treacherous condition of the highways leading out of this city. It is reported that all curves and hills on Highway No. 2 were sanded last night, as a result roads are much safer for travel today.

BELLEVILLE MAN EDITS MAGAZINE

There was handed in to this paper recently the official publication of the newly-formed Canadian Association of Railwaymen. This organization has for its evident purpose the consolidation of the Canadian railway employees. Its magazine is a new departure from the usual trend of labor papers and is worthwhile reading. Radicalism is pleasantly absent from its pages and the observations and comments on the current situation, as expressed thruout, are markedly fair. It is understood that Mr. W. Michaud of Belleville, is the editor of the new magazine, and it is thought that later the magazine will be available at the news stands.

CUSTOMS RETURNS FOR DECEMBER

Collection at the Port of Belleville amounted in December to $63,149.09 as compared with $63,321.07 for the preceding month and $86,512.86 with the corresponding month in 1932.

For the third quarter of the government's fiscal year ending December 31st collections in Belleville amounted to $184,975.31 as compared with revenue of $228,521.13 in October, November and December of 1932.

KI-Y LEAGUES TO BE ORGANIZED

With all pre-season arrangements completed the various teams to compete in the local Ki-Y Hockey League will convene at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night at 7.30 p.m. when schedules and playing rules will be drafted.

Providing sufficient clubs are entered in the various classes, midget, bantam, juvenile and junior sections will be operated at the Belleville Arena this season. To date all groups have been represented and at Thursday night's meeting all final applications for affiliation will be received. A representative body from the Kiwanis Club and the Y.M.C.A. will convene with the club managers or captains tomorrow night. All applications should be on hand at the designated hour.

ICE SAMPLES PASS ALL TESTS

Official information relating to the standard of ice in the Bay of Quinte was received by the local Health Department yesterday, when a telegraph message from the Provincial Laboratory of Health stated that the ice samples submitted had passed the tests.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, local M.O.H., at once informed the local icemen and ice-cutting activities will commence at once. Health Inspector McGinnis announced this morning, that the local ice samples submitted this year were of the highest quality, that have been cut in many years past.

According to the local icemen the average thickness of ice in the bay today is about 14 or 15 inches.

PENNY BANK SAVINGS INCREASE

An increase is shown in the penny bank savings for this city up to the end of October in comparison to the figures of one year ago. There was on deposit at the end of October $9,395.56 in comparison to the figure $9,247.75 for the same period of 1932. The average for the schools of Belleville during the last period was King George 62, Queen Victoria 45, Queen Mary 41, and Queen Alexandra 34. The total amount on deposit in the Province at the end of October 1933 was $1,199,411.92 made up from 470 schools depositing. The figures for the same period in 1932 were $1,274,693.93 from 474 schools.

MOIRA LODGE TO INSTAL OFFICERS

Installation of officers for 1934 of Moira Lodge, No. 11, A.F. & A.M. will take place this evening, Wednesday, at the Masonic Temple on Front Street. Rt. Wor. Bro. J. W. Barlow will be the chief installing officer.

MADOC ROAD IN SLIPPERY CONDITION

Temperatures just slightly lower than the lowest registration on thermometers in the district of Tweed were recorded in Bancroft district during the cold snap of last week. According to official registration taken from government tested thermometers the lowest point reached during the cold snap was 40 below zero. Since then temperatures have been variable in the district, with an average reading of from 10 to 15 below. Roads to Bancroft, it is reported, have been made hazardous by a thick coating of ice, with the worst section being between Belleville and Madoc. On this stretch the tires of trucks and buses are said to have worn the glare ice smoother than glass.

COUNCIL MEMBERS TO BE GUESTS

Members of the city council will be guests of the local Chamber of Commerce at their regular weekly luncheon held in the office of the Chamber on Thursday. Election of officers for 1934 for the Chamber of Commerce will follow the luncheon.

WARMER WEATHER ON WAY FROM WEST

For the first time in several days, residents of the district on Wednesday enjoyed a breathing spell from the sub zero weather and biting winds, that have been general throughout the section. Basking in an average temperature of 8 above zero throughout the day, the change was a welcome one from the low registrations previously recorded. Lowest mark on Wednesday was during the morning when 3 above was recorded. By noon temperatures had reached 10 above, with indications, that warmer weather was on the way. By way of contrast, just one year ago today high was marked at 41 above and low at 25.

POLICE CIRCLES QUITE QUIET

Activities continued to be of a rather tranquil nature in and about local police circles. No arrests were registered at the local Police Station during the past 24 hours although a number of summons were issued to local youths, who have not as yet paid their 1933 poll tax. But six transients applied at the police station for a night's lodging last night, while not a single major motor car accident was reported to the police. No police court was held this morning.

JAMES SPRACKETT AGAIN RETURNED

Mr. James Sprackett, Reeve of Tudor and Cashel, was returned to that office for 1934 in the elections held there on Monday by a vote of 50 majority over his opponent, Edward Norman. An excellent turnout of voters characterized the election.

MARMORA S. S. BOARD ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Marmora Separate School Board this week the following were elected to office for the year 1934:

Chairman, Rev. Father J. J. Keeley; secretary-treasurer, T. J. Byrnes; trustees, Rev. Father J. J. Keeley, John Crawford, George Forestell, Joseph Doyle, J. A. Shannon, and William Forestell.

Messrs. J. A. Shannon and Wm. Forestell were elected to serve on the Marmora Continuation School Board as well. Mr. J. L. Shannon was appointed auditor in succession to J. P. Marrin.

SQUEALS, HOWLS AND WHISTLES

What's the matter with your radio? Has it developed a temperament? Just when you want a good hockey game or some special program. Rather exasperating, eh! what? Elsewhere in this issue is an article of interest to radio fans and owners generally. It consists of answers to questions which are asked every day and answered by a modern radio service department such as maintained by The Big A Co., of Belleville. This appears today in another column on this page, and readers are invited to send in their queries to the Company to be answered in this newspaper. Just how frequently the articles will appear depends upon to what extent the public takes advantage of the service.

LAKE TROUT FRY TO BE SHIPPED SOON

First shipments of lake trout fry to be used in restocking the waters of northern lakes in the Province are expected to be sent from the local Government Fish Hatchery, in about fifteen days' time, it was stated by officials of the hatchery today. The probable destination of the young fry has not yet been stated.

This year, unhampered by the cold weather, the hatchery has under successful culture about the same quantity of white fish and trout eggs as in previous years. Demand for restocking purposes in the Bay of Quinte and lakes throughout the Province has been a steady one, and has resulted in considerable work at the local hatchery.

Large numbers of white fish now under culture will be used for restocking local waters when they are of sufficient size to be released.

"What is causing my set to fade so badly lately?"—Tim Sullivan.

Well, fading is caused primarily by a change in the strength of the electrical signal which reaches your aerial.

First of all I would inspect the aerial system, see if the lead-in contact to the outside wire is tight and clean, see that there are no breaks in the lead-in. Examine the connection where the ground wire is fastened to the water pipe. Be sure it is clean and tight. Loose contacts like these will cause a lot of interference as well.

Be very sure the plug that make the electrical connection at the socket or wall plug is tight. If it is loose your set may not be getting the proper amount of juice, and this will also cause plenty of noise in your reception.

Now the most important part of your receiver, I'll bet a plugged nickel you haven't even seen for two years. When did you have your tubes tested last. More than likely one of them feels just like you do when you are tired. It likes to rest once in a while.

Bring them in and let Davy test them for you and see for yourself. He'll tell you the truth and it won't cost you a red cent either. It may save you a real repair bill later, too.

LANDSCAPE GARDENER TO ASSIST IN WORK

Planting Will Be Done On Island in Spring

Intimation, that he would arrive in the city within the next few days to assist in the work of completing the design for improvement on Zwick's Island, as recommended in a previous visit here which was sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club, was given in a letter received today by City Engineer Chas. A. Mott from Mr. W. H. Moore, noted landscape artist, and retained by the city to design plans for the work to be completed. Mr. Moore, a resident of Islington, Ontario, at the present time, and one of the country's best landscape artists, who was one of the principal designers of the world renowned Peace Garden on the western Canadian-United States Border. In the communication received by City Engineer Mott, Mr. Moore stressed the need for having the design for the island completed before spring planting time.

LOVE OF HOME IS FIRST URGE

Modern Tempo of Living Has Failed to Shake Fireside's Hold

"Despite much comment to the contrary, the love of family and fireside, so deeply rooted in all of us from our earliest days, is still a primary emotional force in the daily lives of the great majority of Canadian people." Such is the comment of Mr. Harry Sedgwick, Managing Director of Radio Station C.F.R.B. who, in support of his statement, points to the great popularity of the "homely philosophy" and "contentment" type of radio program.

"Programs of this nature," says Mr. Sedgwick, "are as a rule of a most wholesome and entertaining character, and have a very material influence in spreading friendship and goodwill. One of the most recent presentations of this nature is of Canadian origin, sponsored by a Canadian company of wide reputation. This new program is called "The Old Philosopher", a friendly character who relates homely happenings and bits of rhyming philosophy in a sincere and entertaining manner. Favorite songs and melodies of yesterday add a pleasant background to the Old Philosopher's sayings."

"In these days of international and domestic unrest, the more encouragement that can be given toward friendship and contentment, the better. I firmly believe the Old Philosopher type of program can exercise a great influence in this direction."

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. HENRY ATKINS

With many friends and neighbors in attendance the funeral of the late Mrs. Ermina E. Atkins was held on Tuesday afternoon from her late residence, 60 Everett Street. The service was conducted at the home and at the graveside in the Belleville cemetery by the Rev. Dr. J. A. Seymour, pastor of the church of which the deceased had been a member, assisted by the Rev. Robt. Hall.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. E. Turner, William Bennett, J. McCarthy, J. Lloyd, A. Keene and H. Ranson.

MRS. ELWELL B. BELL

Ill since August last Mrs. Mary Thressa Bell, beloved wife of Elwell B. Bell passed away this (Wednesday) morning at her late residence, 271 William street. The deceased was the daughter of the late Isaac and Jane Warner and was born in Richmond Township of Lennox County, 66 years ago. She had resided in that township till she removed to Belleville, where she had resided the past 17 years. Mrs. Bell was a devoted and active member of the Tabernacle United Church, Women's Missionary Society and Woman's Association and a convener of Group No. 6 of the church. She will be missed sincerely in church and other circles in the city. The sympathy of numerous friends goes to those left to mourn her loss.

Surviving immediately besides the husband are three sons: Kenneth J. and Percy W., at Napanee and Aubrey F. in Watertown, N.Y.; and three daughters, Mrs. Fred Yard of Cornwall, Mrs. James Roushorn at Queensboro and Miss Ruth, graduate nurse of the Belleville General Hospital. A sister Mrs. Isaac Taylor of Napanee, predeceased two years ago.

SAW TUT'S TOMB OPENED, IS NOW DEAD

Noted Egyptologist's Death Recalls King Tut's Curse

London, Jan 3—Arthur Edward Pearse Brome Weigall, a leading authority on the antiquities of Egypt, died here after a long illness. He was 53 years old.

He retired from a position as the Egyptian Government's inspector general of antiquities in 1914, and devoted himself to travel and writing. He published a book almost every year from then until his death, covering subjects ranging from "Bedouin Love" to "Wanderings in Anglo-Saxon Britain."

Mr. Weigall was the author of biographies of Cleopatra, Nero, Marc Antony, Sappho of Lessos and Alexander the Great.

The legend of Tutankhamen's curse, under which mis-adventure was foreordained for violators of that ancient Egyptian king's tomb, was recalled with the death of Mr. Weigall, for he was present when King Tut's tomb was opened.

Friends said there was something mysterious about his illness, the cause of which could not be traced, and that it was "extraordinary" that he should have died so young.

The London Mail said Weigall, himself, was not free of the Tutankhamen superstition.

In 1923 Weigall wrote a book entitled "Tutankhamen and other essays."

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 3—(AP)—George Hedrix, 40, a butcher suffered a fractured leg when he caught his foot in the brass rail of a bar in a club.

DEWWORMS UNEARTHED AT ZWICK'S ISLAND

Fish bait, live and wriggly—the kind generally associated with green lawns in mid-August is one of the latest novelties to be unearthed at Zwick's Island by the relief workers now engaged there. While zero laden winds swirled, through the district, and picks rang hard on the frosty ground of the island on Tuesday, several lively worms were dug up by one worker. They had been hibernating in the ground at a distance of from three to four feet down from the surface of one knoll.

Frost has penetrated to varying depths in the soil of the island since the first freeze-up. During the past few days the ground has been found hardened in some places to a depth of four feet, while in other places it has tapered up to within three inches of the surface of the ground. It is believed that the last rain had drawn the frost out in the sections where it had not sunk so deeply.

At present the large force of men are concentrating on the work of levelling the knolls on the south side, and today were at the preliminary work of filling the marsh on the east side, and reconstructing the island road.

BUGS BATTLE WITH WINTER

Little Danger of Pests Being Killed by Cold Weather

The importance of climate in controlling insect pests in this particular section of the country is not so great, stated entomologists of the Dominion Entomological Bureau here today.

"Most of our native bugs, and even those which have been imported to the country even comparatively recently, could manage through the coldest weather such as we have had, as long as it remained fairly stationary," stated Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the local laboratory. "As long as it stays cold, and we don't get too many thaws, followed by freezing weather, then the bugs are fairly snug. They've become acclimatized," added Mr. Baird.

The corn borer in the larvae stage is fairly comfortable in the ground; the cedar beetle, that has made such inroads in this section, is snug as a bug under the heavy bark of the tree. Both of them can freeze stiff, but when the sun warmed days of spring again roll around, then they emerge as grub or insect all ready to commence their year's work of destruction.

Prolonged periods of intense cold might have some effect on the bugs of all species, but the fairly ordinary temperatures of even 30 below such as have been received will not be so harmful to them.

Trees of the larger variety in the section have been snapping and booming with frost during the cold evenings of the past week or so, but the smaller trees in the orchards will probably emerge through the coldest weather practically unharmed.

"We are interested chiefly with our own department that of entomology, and can't say definitely regarding conditions in the orchards in the section, but I made some inquiries from local orchardists the other day following the cold snap. Most of them were of the opinion that the fruit trees were wintering fairly well, and so far have suffered little damage from the cold weather," stated Mr. Baird.

Mr. Baird has just returned to the city from a four-day convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, held at Harvard University, Boston, Mass., last week. He described it as one of the most successful meetings yet held by that distinguished society.

Representatives and leading entomologists from throughout the continent were present at the convention and gave enlightening addresses on the various fields of the science they are most vitally interested in.

Kellogg Company Head Tells of Year's Progress

London, Jan. 3—On a radio hook-up from St. Petersburg, Florida, reaching Sydney, Australia; London, England; London, Ontario; Mexico City, Mexico; Battle Creek, Michigan and twenty-six sales offices throughout the United States, W. K. Kellogg, President of the Kellogg Company, extended New Year's greetings to members of the Kellogg Sales Organization at home and abroad, at the same time reviewing conditions throughout the past year and outlining plans for the future.

The founder and president of the world's largest manufacturers of ready-to-eat cereals stated that 1933 had proved an extraordinarily good year for the Company and that he expected conditions to improve. "The Kellogg Company, Mr. Kellogg stated, are employing more people, spending more money and working harder for business than at any other period in our history."

Touching on plans for 1934, Mr. Kellogg said that the company's promotional budget for the year ahead was larger than ever before and that the newspaper advertising alone would reach a new high mark in both scope and intensity.

CLUB ADOPTS REAL SLOGAN IN YEAR 1934

"Work Not Words" Will Be Watchword of Kiwanis Club

OFFICERS INSTALLED

"Works not words" has been adopted by the Kiwanis Club as their slogan for 1934 and the Club was given a real sendoff in the inaugural meeting of the year, when Eddie Shapiro, elected president, was installed in office by Past President P. C. MacLaurin after a most masterful address by the installing officer. President Jack McIntosh gave up the reins of office after giving a resume of the club activities during the past year. Jack graciously took over the reins and pinched hit for Earl McCutcheon, who was forced to relinquish command, when he accepted a pulpit in Western Canada. The directors of the Club were also installed and every one present offered to the incoming president a 100 per cent. of co-operation in the coming year.

Mr. MacLaurin believed that the cart was being put before the horse, when the club was put before the members and he outlined in short synopsis, what kind of men should belong to the Club to have the perfect Club, that all dream of. He outlined seven characteristics that a club member should have, they being, "one that inspires confidence", "scorn discouragement and be able to take a rebuff", "tactfully and intelligently impart experiences to others", "bear to be misunderstood and still able to bear criticism," "hold in proper prospective good, faults and weakness of his fellowmen", "Possess endurance and vision" and lastly "honesty". If each member possesses these characteristics" said the speaker, "then the club will flourish and succeed". Asking the question what is a club?" the speaker answered, "a group of business and professional men devoted to the rendition of service to their community". "There should be less thought about the treasury and more about the service, that can be done", said Mr. MacLaurin, "It is work that counts and the only way to achieve success is by Works not Words."

President Receives Pin

Jack McIntosh in pinning the president's jewel on Eddie Shapiro, remarked, "you are no longer unemployed." The newly elected president thanked the directorate and the members for the honour conferred and not so much the honour as the confidence, that had been placed. Eddie wished that every member would accept the task given him and perform same to his best ability. "This is not criticism but observation", said Mr. Shapiro, "that the president and directors are doing most of the work in the club and from the many clubs I have visited, this is not the plan adopted in these clubs. The work is distributed with each member contributing his small mite and at the end of the year a great deal has been accomplished. Exactly what you put in Kiwanis will you take out. I am quite serious about this job and I am going to forego personal pleasure in the coming year for the sake of the club." The newly elected president asked the members to be punctual at meeting and to keep their attendance up and to be on the lookout for new timber for the club. Each of the directors gave a short address each offering cooperation to the president.

Frank Domenico, who has again become active in Kiwanis suggested, that early in the year a dance worthy of Kiwanis should be held and this met with instant response from the members, but the matter will be more fully discussed at the meeting next week. The review of the year just passed as given by Jack McIntosh is herewith given.

Valedictory

Fellow Kiwanians, before I turn over this meeting to Past President MacLaurin for the ceremony of Installation, I should just like to say that I have been pleased to serve this club as pinch hitter for Earl McCutcheon, for the past seven months and to thank the officers and members for their support in the many club matters and different ventures that we have attempted.

It has been my objective to make the meetings interesting and I hope I have done so. I should like to stress the importance of regular attendance here for President's sake. By that I mean it is very discouraging to have a speaker to address the club and only 15 or 18 members present.

I am sorry to leave the treasury as low, "the lowest in years," "but it is not for trying. We had numerous activities, Sims Shows: Seconds Sale: Fall Karnival in Armouries: Boxing Show: Little Theatre Movement Play, "Kempy". The only one that went over was our new President's stunt, the sale of the seconds, but we tried and that is better than sitting back. With this money we lighted the summer camp of four buildings and grounds of the children's shelter at a cost of around $100.00, made our usual grants to Ki-Y Soft Ball League: Victorian Order of Nurses. Some of our meetings commemorated: Ak Kiwanis Night held at Country Club with Trenton Rotary Club as guests: International Day, Col. Barragar as guest speaker: Maritime Day, with Art. Allen Kiwanis International Merton Heiss, Chicago; Thanksgiving, Rev. Mr. Naylor; Armistic, Rev. Robt. Hall.

Entertainment Provided

We entertained the boys in camp at Madoc, Rev. Koffend speaker, City Council on Civic Day; Children's Shelter to Christmas Tree and Santa Claus. The Kiwanis ladies at two ladies' nights and theatre party. Met jointly with the "Y's" Men's and Rotarians in a fellowship meeting at Hotel Quinte, Col. Ross as speaker. Held several musical days during summer months.

We brought Mr. Moore famous landscape gardener to Belleville to meet city council and parks board to draw up plans for a park: Athletic fields: and bathing beach at Zwick's Island, on which the council have already started as a relief project.

We took the old people from the Home for the Aged for an automobile drive around the bay. Gave Kiwanis cup to 1st of July across the Bay swim.

Enough for the past. In the New Year I do hope you will stand behind your President and Directors with 100 per cent. attendance which is very essential to the inspiration and pep that it instils in the man who is to sit at the head table and run your affairs for 1934. I should also like to see our new President and his membership committee build our club up to membership of 50, keeping quality in the foreground before numbers.

In closing, I would again thank each one of you for your support and bespeak for President Eddie, your support and the best year yet in 1934. Wishing you all the compliments of the season.

CHILDREN AMONG MANY VICTIMS OF SEVERE COLD WAVE

Of the many tragic deaths caused by the extreme cold wave which swept Canada and parts of the United States, perhaps the most tragic were the deaths of the 15-month-old twins of Albert Marshall of Chicago. Huddled together about their kitchen stove, which gave but little warmth because sufficient fuel was lacking, three surviving children of Marshall, left to right, Albert, Jr., 3, and the twins, Mildred and Marilyn, who are 6, and Lillian 4, are pictured following the death of their twin sisters, Baby Blanche and Baby Barbara, inset, 15 months old, suffocated to death when the father and mother moved the twins into their own bed to sleep with them because of the intense cold.

CONSERVATIVES STAND PAT IN EAST KENT

Expect Duff Brien Will be Candidate in Riding

Ridgetown, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP) — Conservatives of East Kent sat pat and said nothing today as official nominations for the by-election necessitated by the death of Phil Henry, Conservative, rolled around. It was understood, however, the name of Duff Brien of Ridgetown, would be submitted as standard-bearer before the nominations closed.

Meanwhile, Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Liberal leader, and Harry C. Nixon, Progressive head, are scheduled to fire the opening gun of the campaign at Thamesville tonight.

FLOODS INTERRUPT SERVICE.

Edmonton, Jan. 3 (CP)—Flood waters of the Snake River, 21 miles east of Jasper, today were interrupting service on the Canadian National Railways lines Due to ice jams, the river has been diverted from its usual channels and is flowing over the railway tracks for several hundred yards. Efforts to curb the stream are being made.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY

Premier And Cabinet Attend Funeral of Hon. E. A. Dunlop

PEMBROKE, Ont., Jan. 3—(CP) A sorrowing town paid final tribute today to Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer with his colleagues in the Ontario Cabinet as honorary pall-bearers, men in every walk of life and from many parts of Ontario attended the funeral.

With flags at half-mast on public buildings and a period of mourning proclaimed from the time the body arrived this morning from Toronto until interment in the Wesley Cemetery, Pembroke paid its respect to one of its major industrial builders and leading benefactors. From every centre of the Renfrews, which had seen his father, Arunah Dunlop, borne to the grave 42 years ago today, citizens were gathered. Members of the Town Council and other public organizations attended in a body.

Conducted by Rev. G. A. McIntosh, funeral services were held in the Wesley United Church following arrival of the body by special train. Rev. W. T. G. Brown, Kingston, brother-in-law of Mr. Dunlop, assisted.

Premier George S. Henry of Ontario, seven colleague in the Ontario Cabinet and more than thirty members of the Legislature and Treasury officials accompanied the remains from Toronto by special train. From Ottawa a special train also carried political associates and friends who came to pay their respects to the Treasurer who died in Toronto on New Year's Day after an illness had forced him from his official duties for more than two months.

Ministers attending with Premier Henry were Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Minister of Highways, Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Paul Poisson, Minister without Portfolio, Hon. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health, and Hon. G. S. Challies, Provincial Secretary.

CATTLE AND SHEEP ARE ENDANGERED BY COLD

Serious but Not Startling is Statement Made

Winnipeg, Jan. 3 (CP)—Severe cold and heavy snowfall today was endangering cattle and sheep on the prairie ranges.

Alberta, reporting heavy snowfalls, found 500,000 head of sheep and cattle suffering from the weather, while in Saskatchewan the severe cold had killed off some horses and brought suffering to cattle.

"Serious, but not startling," was the way J. G. Robertson, Regina, Livestock Commissioner for the Saskatchewan government, described the situation. Coup'ed with the severe cold was a feed shortage.

He found numerous deaths among horses in the district north of Moose Jaw and in a great area in the southern part of the province. Keeler and Craik districts reported suffering of cattle but in the Shaunavon and other districts the situation was normal.

ATTEMPT MADE TO STEAL CAR

Garage Door Blocked With Ice Stops The Thieves

Picton, Jan. 3. — Thieves gained entrance to Nick Sargeant's garage on Ross street through a window late Sunday night. They attempted to drive a car away, but the large front doors were blocked by ice that frustrated their attempt. Mr. Sargeant found the cars shifted around and some tools taken when he visited the garage New Year's day. Police have no clue as yet as to the identity of the intruders.

Dance Enjoyed.

The dance held by the younger members of the Golf and Country Club on Friday night, December 29, in the Oddfellows' Hall, was a most enjoyable affair. More than sixty couples enjoyed tripping the light fantastic to music furnished by a Belleville orchestra. Supper was served in the banquet room at twelve o'clock after which dancing continued. Mrs. Gerald Allison, convener, Mrs. A. J. H. Downing in charge of refreshments, and Mr. Colin Hepburn, president of the club, were largely responsible for the success of the affair.

Face Frost Bitten.

Mr. Brogden, Metropolitan Insurance agent, Main street west, was at work in Wellington on Thursday afternoon last. Missing the bus home, Mr. Brogden walked the ten miles to Picton in the severe cold that night. The trip took two and one-half hours and Mr. Brogden's face was severely frost bitten.

Mrs. Abigal Watson.

Mrs. Abigal Watson, one of Picton's oldest residents, passed away Sunday, December 31, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Case, after an illness of two months' duration. Mrs. Watson's maiden name was Abigal Washburn and she was born at Camden East, ninety-five years ago. She had spent almost her entire life in Picton, where her husband predeceased her many years ago. Mrs. Watson was a member of the United Church, and for years has been active at the mothers' meetings, conducted by the deaconess, in the Mission Church. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at the Mission Church, when Rev. S. M. Scott conducted the service. Interment was made in Glenwood Cemetery. Left to mourn the loss of a kind mother and two daughters, Mrs. Case and Mrs. Sinden of Picton, a son in Boston, and a grand-son, Fred Watson of Picton.

John Albert Benson.

On Monday, January 1, there passed away at Prince Edward County Hospital, John Albert Benson, son of Richard Benson and his wife Jane Emond Benson, aged seventeen years. The young man was born in Simcoe county, and had recently been visiting relatives here. He was admitted to hospital for a major operation and died of complications following the operation. The body was taken to Oshawa for interment, accompanied by a sister, Mrs. Lesoley of Oshawa. Mrs. Donald Heffernan, another sister of the deceased, lives on the High Shore road here.

GENUINE VAN DYCK CANVAS IS DESTROYED

OWNER SHOCKED

Purchased Canvas From Family in Nova Scotia

Ottawa, Jan. 3 (CP)— Through the ravages of fire, Canada today was apprised of the destruction of one of the three celebrated canvases each known as the "Angel's Choir" or "Concert Des Anges" which have been attributed to the brush of the famous Flemish Master Van Dyck.

News that the lone painting of this subject in existence on this continent had been destroyed, came following a survey of damage caused by a blaze, which struck at the heart of a private art collection yesterday in the home of John Gleason, prominent Ottawa businessman.

In addition to the reputed Van Dyck, several other paintings and prized treasures were burned or damaged by smoke and water, with loss estimated in excess of $300,000.

Suffering from the effect of shock Mr. Gleason was still in hospital today, but he had recovered sufficiently to discuss briefly with reporters what he described as his "reparable loss" chief among which he said was the "Angel's Choir." It is reported he acquired this canvas for about $150,000. But Mr. Gleason would not disclose the actual amount.

The painting he said had originally been taken out of Belgium by Napoleon's soldiers. Later in had found its way to Albany, N.Y. and then to the home of a well-known Nova Scotia family, with whom it had remained for nearly 90 years.

Mr. Gleason revealed he had purchased the painting "about five or six years ago," after he had satisfied himself that it was a genuine Van Dyck.

Three of Same Subject

The great masters, Mr. Gleason said, often had made several models of the same subject. In this case there had been three. One of these was now believed to be in Rome. Another had been stolen in December 1929 while being shipped from Brussels, Belgium, to an art dealer in London. "The other, and I believe the finest of the three came into my possession, but it is gone," Mr. Gleason lamented.

Several authorities, he declared, had passed upon his painting as an authentic Van Dyck, but apart from this assurance he had also despatched a representative to Europe to check on its history, which Mr. Gleason said had proved the canvas genuine to his own satisfaction.

Other masterpieces destroyed by the blaze, which ate its way through the living room of the Gleason home were the "Late Arrival" by the British master, Frank Branowyn, "Marguerite and Mephisto" by the Frenchman Delacroix, "The Mystic Marriage of St. Catharine", by Pietro Palini, and acquired from the collection of the Earl of Northbrook, a Dutch masterpiece by Bauer, "Etreta" by Coubeils, two canvases by Joseph Israels and single works by such noted artists as Corot, Fantin, Latour, Daubigny, Charles Jacques and Monticelli.

Slight damage was also done to the furnishings, but the fire was brought under control before it had gained great headway. The cause of the outbreak has not yet been discovered.

QUICK!

A COLD is twice as easily relieved in the first, or Dry, stage. Don't waste precious time with half-way measures. Take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine quickly—it does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system. It relieves that headache and "grippy" feeling and tones the entire system and helps fortify against further attack.

Ask for it by the full name, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine —and insist on getting it.

TWO FIREMEN ARE INJURED

Truck Skids on Slippery Streets Proceeding to Fire

Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP)—Two firemen are in hospital today, suffering from injuries received when they were hurled from a speeding fire truck as it skidded while turning a corner. The injured are George W. Willey and Wm. G. Clarke.

Willey was the most seriously injured, receiving a fractured skull, Clarke suffered injuries to his hips. Willey was thrown from the step on the rear of the truck, landing on the ground on his head. When the truck started to slide sideways Clarke jumped, landing on his back.

The driver of the truck was unhurt as the machine crashed into a bridge railing, swinging completely around on the slippery street.

AUTHORITIES RULE FATALITY, ACCIDENT

Hired Man, Who Shot Child in State of Collapse

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP) — Richard Collins, hired man on the farm of C. A. Springstead, lies in bed in a state of collapse today, stricken with remorse. A game of "Cowboy and Indian" with a young playmate, eight year old Donald Springstead, ended fatally yesterday.

Donald ran into the barn with a cap-gun. He was dressed in his new cowboy suit. Collins, the "Indian" of the play, picked up a shotgun and pointed it at the little fellow. The full charge of shot tore through Donald's breast. Collins did not know the gun was loaded. Authorities accepted his explanation and ruled the fatality was an accident.

NO UNDUE CONCERN

Winnipeg, Jan. 3.—(CP)—No change was reported today in the condition of Senator Robert Forke, onetime leader of the Progressive Party in the Federal House who is in the hospital here, following a heart attack. His condition is not causing undue concern and it is expected he will recover.

LEADERS ARE OPTIMISTIC OF THE FUTURE

"Fury of Economic Storm Subsided" Says Premier Bennett

ON WAY UP

Turning Point Comes at The Beginning of Year

Toronto, Jan. 3.—A distinct tone of optimism is evident in the statements of political and business leaders of Canada, published by both Toronto morning papers today in their reviews of financial, agricultural and mining conditions in Canada in 1933 and prospects for 1934.

In a message carried in the Globe, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett says "the fury of the economic storm has subsided and the sky has begun to clear." For the first time since 1930 there is definite and concrete evidence to bear this out, he states.

In the same paper, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance for the Dominion, says the index of the physical volume of business for November as compared with that for February has increased 27 per cent.

Hon. Robert Weir, federal minister of agriculture, while declaring conditions surrounding the purchasing power of farm products still unsatisfactory as compared with normal times, there is a definite rise in such and a more substantial improvement was evident in agricultural prices than those for manufactured goods.

The heads of both railroads, S. J. Hungerford, acting president of the Canadian National and E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific also saw better prospects for the ensuing year.

Recovery On Way.

Mr. George S. Henry, Premier of Ontario, said there were many signs of improvement and reasons for encouragement, in an article carried by the Mail and Empire. Ontario, he said, had taken great strides toward recovery, and the industries of the province were becoming busier, entailing more employment.

The mining ministers of three provinces, Hon. Charles McCrea of Ontario, Hon. J. S. McDiarmid of Manitoba, and Hon. George Pearson of British Columbia, foresaw better prospects for that industry and predicted increased gold production.

J. S. McLean, president of the Canadian Packers, suggested wider markets should be sought for farm products other than wheat, since the prospects for that grain did not appear bright over the long range and he thought such markets could be obtained through the export of livestock.

The business depression lasted until early spring of last year and since then there has been a "positive" upswing in Canadian business, says Jackson Dodds, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association. Some 250,000 workers have been given employment since that time, he says.

A Start to Success

A first step towards business success is a bank account. No business-like man or woman today can get along without a bank account.

Start with a savings account. Deposit a fixed proportion of income, however small, regularly and without fail, adjusting your expenses accordingly. This is a start to success, possibly to financial independence.

Interest is added to your savings on June 30th and December 31st in each year.

ACCIDENTS ON HIGHWAYS

The number of deaths by motor vehicles in Ontario increased 330 for the first ten months of 1933. This total was 88 less than the average for the same period of the last six years, and 30 less than in that period of 1927 despite the fact that there were approximately 100,000 fewer motor vehicles registered in that year than in 1933.

Motor accidents reported to the end of October, which numbered 7,125, resulted in injury to 6,612 persons, and property damage of $686,513. Decreases of 69 fatalities, 356 accidents, 263 in the number of non-fatal injuries, and of $145,627 in the amount of property damage, were noted when compared with the totals for the corresponding period of 1932.

When a driver of a motor vehicle becomes involved in an accident, apparently, his first thought is to find an alibi which he hopes will relieve him of responsibility. If there is another car implicated, he blames 'the other driver'—if these is no other driver, or pedestrian, involved, a puncture or blow-out is too frequently given as the cause of his misfortune. At the present season, slippery road surfaces are too often given 'cause' of the accident.

Actually, the great majority of accidents are the result of improper human actions. Few can be attributed to the condition of the road, weather, traffic or vehicle or other circumstances usually manifest if the driver is aware of his responsibility.

The time when motor vehicle accidents become proportionally more frequent, though less severe, when driving conditions are less favorable indicates that drivers can be more careful when conditions demand it.

The following precautions are suggested to offset the hazards of low visibility and of the increased likelihood of skidding during the winter months:

Reduce speed.

Allow plenty of distance for stopping when other vehicles ahead are in line.

Do not drive when vision is obscured by ice on windshield.

Have brakes properly equalized. Do not jam on brakes—apply them intermittently.

See that both headlights are focussed and that all lights operate properly.

Do not park on travelled part of any street or highway to clean the windshield or for any other reason.

A total of personal injury accidents are those in which persons were killed or injured and do not represent the number of persons killed or injured.

PROFIT IN MAPLES

"More than three million dollars' worth of syrup and sugar was produced from maple trees in Canada in 1931, according to the Dominion census in that regard," according to the Sarnia Canadian Observer. "The actual figure in the census of ten years before was $4,294,837, so that there is proof of a falling off in an industry that is exclusively Canadian and that ought to be registering progress rather than retrogression. It is possible that a lower price for maple products in 1931 as compared with a decade ago, accounts for the disparity in the revenues because in 1931 the number of trees tapped was 24,216,891 as compared with 32,628,060 in 1921.

"Since reforestation is gaining vogue in the country it might be advantageous to make some concentration with regard to the maples, which is a direct producer of revenue, magnificent in appearance and unexcelled for fuel. It would seem that the cultivation of maple trees offers encouragement to reforestation either on a small or large scale."

It is easy to promise, and alas! how easy to forget!—A. de Musset.

SIDELIGHTS

GRAVE and GAY

THE RAILROAD

I like the clang of the engine bell,
As it comes to the station stop,
I like the roar of escaping steam,
As it makes the safety "pop";
I like the screech of the air-brakes' shoes,
As they lock the whirling wheels,
For they all spell safety to passengers
When the train in transit reels.

I like the chug of the air pump valves,
And the tanks crammed to the speed,
To answer the call from the engine cab,
When the train is brought to rest.
I like to watch the mogul start
With their massive, gentle jerk,
And I like the sound of the pet cock's hiss,
When the cylinders start to work.

I like to see the smoke rings rise,
As they're puffed by the steam exhaust,
And the smoke-clouds roll o'er the running train,
As out of the stack they're tossed:
I like the rhythmic, rattling raps,
Of the wheels on the rail-joint ends,
Like the snaredrum roll of a drummer's traps,
In time, as the music blends.

I like the scream of the whistle shrill,
As we tear through the countryside,
The signals it gives of the train we meet,
And to others they warn or guide.
I like to watch the receding rails,
As they flash in the bright sunlight car,
And lose themselves with the wired poles
In perspective's distance far.

I like the engineer's goggled face,
As he watches in my behalf,
And I like the smile the trainman wears,
The conductor's cheery laugh.
So let me travel in royal state,
O'er the steel-railed bed, well tied,
Where safety and comfort are paid reign,
For that's where I love to ride.

—Ralph Gordon.

NINETEEN-THIRTY-THREE began with technocracy and ended with the repeal of prohibition, saya Lewis Gannett, book reviewer for the New York Herald Tribune. Who states that the big feature in the book world of 1933 was "Anthony Adverse," which upset all tradition and made a record as a best seller. The story was too long, according to all book publisher standards, based on the belief that people would not read stories if they were over-long. "Anthony Adverse" was published in the last week of June and before the end of the year the sale had passed the three hundred thousand mark. Quite a suitable reward for the author, Harvey Allan, who spent five years in writing the story. That sets up a record, for no other book sold as many copies in the same length of time in the United States. Such a success does not mean that "Anthony Adverse" will ever be remembered a quarter of a century hence, according to Lewis Gannett, who re-calls various best sellers of bygone years well nigh forgotten now, in fiction, such as "The Lady of the Decoration" by Frances Little (1907): Elinor Glyn's, "Three Weeks"; Locke's "Beloved Vagabond"; Marie Corelli's novel "Port of Missing Men", etc., while on the stage (1907) "The Red Mill" and "The Merry Widow" were the headliners. John Fox's "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" followed in 1908 and Mary Roberts Rhinehart's "The Circular Staircase", while Zangwill's "Melting Pot" was the big success. Now that "Anthony Adverse" with its twelve hundred and odd pages has set the pace for future best sellers, critics, in fact the publishers are already digging up manuscript buried because of size. 'Sfunny about books and publishers, twenty-two New York publishers turned down "All Quiet on the Western Front" because they thought the public was tired of war books. All was not quiet on the New York publishers' front when the book sold over a quarter of a million copies the first season. Then came a flood of war stories which the market demanded and spoiled it for war stories. The Herald Tribune reviewer gives honorable mention to other 1933 books including "One More Spring", Robt. Nathan's gentle saga of the depression in Central Park, "one of the wittiest books of the year"; "As the Earth Turns South on Moon Under," and "Lamb in Her Bosom," Gladys Hasty Carroll's cycle of the seasons in Maine; Louis Bromfield's 'The Farm' and others.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO

JANY. 3, 1914.

Mr. W. E. Burke, an old Belleville boy, who has been with the Mutual Line of Steamships for some time, has been appointed Assistant Manager of the Canada Steamship Lines at Montreal. Mr. Burke's promotion is well deserved and his many friends will be delighted.

No doubt Ald. Fred Wallbridge will again poll a large vote. His name while near the bottom of the ballot paper apparently makes no difference to the intelligent voter who knows how to select the best men for the council.

Mayor-elect Thompson has returned home from Warren, Pa., where he has been visiting friends.

Mrs. J. B. Gilbert of Yorkton, Sask., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Vermilyea, West Bridge Street.

30 YEARS AGO

JANY. 3, 1904.

Mr. R. E. Bell, formerly of the Intelligencer, has accepted a position with Messrs. John Lovell & Co., Montreal.

Mrs. R. H. Bennett, daughter and Rev. F. B. Stratton has arrived in the city from Detroit to visit her parents at their home on Burton street.

Mr. Wm. Lott is a candidate for aldermanic honors.

The Christmas tree entertainment at Centre Street Church on last night was a great success.

There is now good skating on the river and the boys and girls are enjoying it.

"Open house" at the Y.M.C.A. on New Year's Day was a great success. The rooms were crowded afternoon and evening.

PA'S LOUNGING ROBE—

A year ago they held debate, and then it was conceded.
A lounging robe, plain and sedate, was just what father needed:

But chores pile up and fill pop's with cuss words and an idea needed.

ADD PROSPERITY NOTE—

Things are picking up in the country around here. The statement is made by local merchants that a sudden demand for battery radio sets has developed into a fairly heavy trade. Old sets are being remodelled and sold, and even the newer electric sets are some localities are moving briskly.

THREE ROOMED HOUSE—

There are only three rooms in a house, no less house has more than three, no matter what the numerical count may be, said Owen D. Young, director of the General Electric Company, in a recent address, and no small house has less than three, the chairman insisted them as—"a kitchen, a settin' room and a bedroom. These are the heart of the house. Once we cease have, and more we cannot use. No citizen in any country should be so poor as to have less and no citizen can ever be so rich as to buy more," stated Mr. Owen in his address.

REFLECTIONS—

Here's a few things some of the old timers of Belleville would like to see again. Kids sun-fishing at the upper end of Victoria Park before the railway bridge was constructed across it. And the late Harry Corby's slick team of sheep with their tinkling bells daily around of the park. Mackie's white goods front facing the other door to pass the corner at Front and Mary-Ann Streets. Bob and Jim for two—and the defunct Cycle Club. Also in connection with Young bloods racing up Front Street with some of their high-stepping horses right into the harness, with the bit in their mouths. Dundas street, the main up minutes for some passenger to catch the stage. The rough and tumble hockey matches in Arnott's field on Dundas street. The annual G.T.R. picnic at Massassaga, and the North West excursion. The old Bell Line of her trip from Charlotte. The ice trotters on the Bay of Quinte. The lumber-laden wagons driving into Jimmie Roy's. Wooden sidewalks. And most of the river drivers to town. Power's elephants taking their morning swim off the Park and the man with the peanut stand. Bridges them on. The fifteen cent movies when two reels were packed with real entertainment. Free movies were advertised, and the wheezy cylinder talking machine, speaking machine outside in front. The old torchlight processions which celebrated the political victories of forty years ago. The big fire in front of Foster's old drug store store. The Kittie's Band concerts in Victoria Park. The regular Barber shop 'hours with the customer's ears' when them, and the old copper water heater sitting on top of the wood stove. Police Sinnette relieving on the seat for customers waiting their turn. The immediate man which on the market square, city leevee ball teams on Coleman Flats. Frozen Meats on the Moira River and the harbor. And fill in your own gaps . . . . . etc.

MANY CAUSES RESPONSIBLE FOR CATARRH

No Person With Chronic Catarrh Should However Lose Hope

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous, Authority on Health And Psychology

(Copyright, 1933)

(King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

In certain districts—New York City for instance—catarrhal conditions of the nasal passages are extremely common. In fact, catarrh is prevalent everywhere.

Chronic catarrh may follow several acute attacks. Usually it is accompanied by a run-down state of health. Even occasional drinking of alcohol or tobacco may bring about the condition. Rheumatism has been found to be a cause. It is claimed by some that heredity may be a factor.

What predisposes to catarrhal state, is anatomical deformities of the nose. In most people either the septum, which divides the nose, is pushed to one side or the other, or spurs grow upon it, or the mucous membrane is either swollen, or polyps are present, and the like. Any of these conditions, alone, may be responsible for catarrh.

Fitness examinations are so frequently present, operations for the cure of chronic catarrh, have always been in vogue. Such routine practice is, however, to be deplored. An operation should not be undertaken if the symptoms are tolerable either by medication. Otherwise other resulting serious conditions may be established. Besides, you may result eventually.

Operative interference is usually indicated in the straightening of the septum, or spurs, press on the turbinates, or the nasal bones are bent. Also where the turbinated bones are swollen, there may be polyps of the nose or on the septum. Operations should rarely be done for relieving the swollen turbinates cut off proper and free breathing. Only in rare cases is necessary local medical treatments for the nasal cavity.

The reason I stress the matter of operations is because I believe that only such will relieve them. And there are literally millions who suffer from these conditions and have not found the relief expected. These latter, of course, are likely to condemn all operations. This is unfortunate.

It happens often that an operation is attempted too late. Sometimes the internal ear has already become involved before any sort of remedial treatment has begun. Needless to say, every case of catarrh should be under the care or by a nose and throat specialist.

Much can often be accomplished with proper sprays of an astringent nature to relieve the nasal congestion. Such spraying, however, should be done at least three times daily, and even regularly at certain damp and cold changeable seasons of the year.

The usual symptoms of nasal catarrh are the stopped-up nasal breathing, dull headaches, diminution or absence of the sense of taste and of smell, marked "running of the nose" and sneezing.

Although an ordinary head cold may give these symptoms, they are not those of nasal catarrh, on the other hand, the symptoms persist with little or no relief, everyday, even sometimes when the weather is dry and cold.

No person with chronic catarrh should, however, despair. He must be persistent. He must stubborn to overcome yes continued treatment. Sometimes the patient goes to an operation, often produces surprising results eventually.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

In proportion as people reduce weight, so will more than adults because they are growing and they need all the energy for muscle and tissue. The amount of food that the child requires for growth is estimated as one-third. Stuffing, however, is not the best method for a child, say of ten or twelve, should not eat the quantity of food that a grown person of years gradually pass the child's diet should also gradually be increased.

MISSIONARIES STILL REMAIN

Repeated Warnings Given to All to Leave Stricken Areas

Foochow, China, Jan. 3 (AP)—Despite repeated warnings from Nationalist authorities, persisted today in remaining at their stations in the Communist area, even despite the repeated warnings to evacuate immediately.

Officers of the United States consulate today had succeeded in moving most of the 164 Americans living in and near Foochow to Nanking in the South Min River.

Their warnings had come from Nanking, however, by many living outsides Foochow and Amoy — the U.S. ambassador and others refused even to seek safety in the foreign quarters of the two cities.

These foreign sections, spared from the recent Nationalist government aerial bombing attacks, were becoming overcrowded with refugees Europeans and Chinese alike.

Meanwhile, hope that Japan would be further rebuffed was raised by Japan's announced intention to visit the Demilitarized Nationals from Fukien.

Strong Arguments Oppose "Commodity Dollar"—Explain Plan

Alfred E. Smith Bernard Baruch James P. Warburg

Written for Central Press Canadian By LESLIE GOULD

Noted New York Financial Writer New York, Jan. 3.—On the other side of the monetary fence stand the opponents of the "commodity" or "rubber" dollar scheme—the so-called "sound money" group. This group desires a return to a dollar with a fixed and constant value and weight of gold.

They are not campaigning for the restoration of the old gold standard dollar, but to what they term a modernization of that unit. This modernization includes a bit of silver and a lower gold content or weight.

The old dollar had a fixed weight in gold of 25.8 grains, of the equivalent of $23.67 to the ounce, since the abandonment of the gold standard, it now takes more than $34 to buy an ounce of gold as against $20.67 prior to the banking holiday.

Their Hopes

The "sound money" group declares a return to a gold dollar would benefit every class in terms of the old currency, or a currency that is 59.06 per cent of $23.67 and $41 to buy an ounce of gold. This would be revaluation.

James P. Warburg, the New York banker and financial adviser to the London Monetary and Economic Conference, is the leading exponent of this type of dollar. Others behind the move to bring a return of the United States to a gold standard are former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Professor Irving M. Fisher, Bernard M. Baruch and others.

The Mechanics

Others behind the move to bring a return of the United States to a gold standard are former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Professor Irving M. Fisher, Bernard M. Baruch and others.

The Mechanics

Then, the idea is to stabilize the dollar at that level in relation to other currencies and keep that relation by the Federal Reserve banks in such a way, the government alter revaluing, say at 50 cents, would be ready to support the currency in the foreign exchange markets by selling gold when necessary, to buy or sell gold, or permit the redemption of dollars in gold at that new weight.

That is the cardinal difference between the two groups. The "commodity" dollar people would keep the dollar at any weight changed from time to time to keep the average price per a list of 784 basic commodities constant.

Why Constant or Stabilized

The gold dollar group desires the gold dollar stabilized in terms of other currencies.

One group would endeavor to keep domestic commodity prices level and let the foreign exchange rate for the dollar fluctuate. The other would seek to stabilize the foreign exchange and let the law of supply and demand govern the fluctuations in commodity prices.

It is not possible, to have both, and there is no agreement between them for keeping domestic commodity prices stable and at the same time having a sound currency. The commodity dollar sponsors admit that, and the President himself has made a statement.

Both are in agreement on one thing—that is the government's credit must be sound if the money is to be sound, whether it is a commodity dollar or a fixed weight gold standard dollar. This calls for a balanced budget.

Matter of Credit

The same rule applies to a country as to an individual. A nation's expenditures must not exceed its incomes or revenues. A country's credit are its taxes.

A currency is only a nation's promise to pay. If it is living beyond its means, its money is no better than the promissory note of an individual squandering more than he makes.

Under revaluation, the program for the gold standard group is for the setup of what is popularly called a "bullion standard". Under the standard, gold no longer a circulating medium. That is, gold coins are withdrawn from circulation as money and instead of gold coins, gold bars or bullion is stored in the vaults of central banks as the backing for the respective currencies, by the government itself or by the Federal Reserve.

Gold Held to Secure Currency

Central banks would hold the gold as a cover or backing for their currency and would be only be-tween central banks or banks of issue. This would make it difficult, if not impossible for a foreign individual to raid another nation's gold hoard, as was possible in the past.

To further prevent the possibility of hoarding and raiding of gold treasures, gold miners would be compelled, under the gold standard plan to sell their product to their respective governments. Other sales would be forbidden by law. Gold industries arts and professions, when permitted, would be under government control and when the purchasers are licensed by the government.

Legal Minimum Ratio

This gold standard group would make another change. They would fix the gold backing of the currency. In addition to the gold backing they would set the legal minimum ratio of value of gold reserve for base of the banknote circulation at 25 per cent., instead of the present 40 per cent. average. The bullion standard by preventing a rise in the price of gold, a lower legal backing or ratio possible.

Under the proposed workings of the government, under a 25 per cent. base, and would support approximately 86 billions of currency, approximately 86 billions of currency, as same as against about 19 billions now.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his favorite chair and ma said, There's no more doubt about it, Willyum, it's a tried and true old saying, I found the old gray hair in my head today.

My, my, who found the first one? asked ma, and ma said, I did, a few days ago, an my first reaction was the optimistic thawt that it must be a stray hair that had come in by a superficial laugh but when I found another one this afternoon I realized with a thud that I'm really getting gray and I'm already in the first warning stage.

Put tat, or I mite even go further and say not at all, pop said. One swallow doesn't make a summer and 2 gray hairs dont make a winter, and there is no need to get excited, Willyum it's no joking matter.

Of course it is, I said, pop has a few gray hairs on the subjeck but he's only kidding himself, for a while you wait, pop said, for the first thing you know a gray hair that has no turning. Or better still, a few gray hairs that have turned gray in the butter, he said, and ma, and I had to find them for them, and pop found one in mine, Ha ha, I mite add that it was a funny looking hair you a bottle of dye with the proceeds, he said, and ma said, How Willyum that's enough and it's been enough for some time, and the next time you've got to take me to the movies to help me forget my troubles.

Hair, hair, I mean hear hear, pop said.

Being the last one before they left for the movies.

Maroons Also Better Position By Winning From Boston

MORENZ HURT

Jack Adams of Detroit Makes Changes in The Lineup

(By The Canadian Press)

Stirring efforts against teams rated higher than they had New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons advanced further toward their goal of a National Hockey League playoff berth today.

Beating Montreal Canadiens 3-2 the world champions leaped from the United States division ceiling they had hugged since the beginning of the season to second place. Maroons, edging Bruins out 1-0 at Boston moved to within a point of Ottawa in the Canadian section. Rangers' win at New York left them only three points behind Chicago, leaders of the four closely packed teams; Detroit and Boston trail the New Yorkers by only a point.

Canadiens not only lost a tough game last night but were deprived of the brilliant play of Howie Morenz, their star centre, for at least a game or two. The Stratford flash suffered a twisted ankle in the third period, when he tumbled over Bun Cook near the New York net.

Cecil Dillon, Ranger wing, who scored six goals in the play-offs last season but had only been able to gather one in previous games this season, aided Butch Keeling in bringing Rangers their win.

Dillon scored in the first period and aided Keeling in their third period marker. Earl Seibert got an assist on Butch's middle frame tally.

8 Game Scoring Record

Aurel Joliat, the veteran habitant wing, who is making a lot of youngsters sit up and take notice this winter, entered the scoring lists for the eighth consecutive game, when he got Canadien's first goal in the third period. Jack Riley scored the other Montreal goal with only four seconds of the game left.

Don Smillie, the Toronto amateur, Art Ross signed a few days ago, is probably getting a lecture on staying on the ice from the Boston manager today. While he was sitting in the penalty box last night Dave Trottier scored the only goal of the Maroon-Bruin clash.

The Maroon wing gathered so much speed in his lone swing into Boston territory in the third period that he was carried against the back boards and was knocked unconscious. He was able to return to play shortly after.

Wings Make Changes

While Rangers were beating Canadiens, Detroit Red Wings prepared for the return of the New Yorkers Thursday. John Ross Roach, veteran Wing goalie, who has looked bad in recent games, is being given a rest and Wilf Cude, sensational Syracuse net-minder will take his place. Manager Jack Adams announced yesterday as he started rebuilding his team. Orney Ledermann, manager of Detroit Olympics, will be brought up to work on the Wings defence with Ebbie Goodfellow, who will be moved back from the front line.

Wilf Star, Olympic Wing, also is being promoted to the National League team and Ted Graham has been obtained from Maroons in a straight trade for Stew Evans.

QUEENS LOSE TO CHICAGO

Baby Ruths Score 3-0 Win Over Visiting Canadians

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The Baby Ruths of the Chicago Amateur Hockey League today held a 3-0 victory over Queen's University team from Kingston, Ontario, as a result of the brilliant attack they unleashed last night against the Canadians.

Every period was fiercely fought and the victors did not break through until late in the first period when Mandenfield converted a pass from Latva. The second goal also from Mandenfield's stick, came fifteen seconds before the end of the second period. Nichols accounted for the final score late in the final frame.

The Canadians displayed a flashy passing game and had all kinds of shots, but were thwarted by goalie Poulin.

First Period.

1. Chicago....Mandenfield (Latva).....17.48

SKATING CLUB TO OPERATE

First Practice Wednesday Evening Followed by Meeting

After enjoying a successful season last winter the Belleville Fancy and Figure Skating Club is to again function this year and will hold its annual meeting and election of officers this evening (Wednesday) at the Belleville arena.

Already some fifty members have signified their intentions of retaining their standing in the 1934 organization while the present officers hope to have fully one hundred members before the end of the week. Two special sessions for figure and fancy skating have been allotted the club members, one on Wednesday evening and one afternoon, over the week-ends. Following the election of officers tonight a two hour period of skating has been arranged for those already members and others wishing to join the organization.

Last season, the initial winter to see a local fancy skating club operate in Belleville, the members were afforded the services of a professional tutor from the Toronto Skating Club. If sufficient members can be obtained this year the same instructor will be available for those wishing instructions in the art of fancy and figure skating. It is not necessary to take fancy skating lessons to become a club member as many of the present members of the club invert to the orthodox manner of skating entirely.

Any skater wishing to join the Belleville Figure and Fancy Skating Club is invited to attend their annual meeting and election of officers this evening, following which a two hour period of skating will be enjoyed at the Belleville arena. The more advanced pupils in the art at present practising for a carnival at Tweed, at which the Belleville Skating Club will be the feature attraction, Single, double, quartette and group skating formations will be featured by the members of the local organization.

FLUKE GOAL AIDS TIGERS

By Win Over Nationals, Hamilton Heads Loop

(By the Canadian Press)

Aided by a "fluke" goal and smart combination, Hamilton climbed into top position in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association group standings as the result of their 2-1 defeat of West Toronto Nationals last night. Hard luck toppled the Nationals to second place with Dealer Stein scoring on himself when attempting to clear a shot from Fitzgerald.

While Hamilton was altering the league standings in Toronto, Niagara Falls advanced three points by handing the Saints a 3-0 defeat to cement their fifth place position.

The Toronto struggle went scoreless in the first period with the visitors having the best of the play. Nationals opened the scoring in the second session while McCafland scored on a lone effort, neatly beating Stein.

A few minutes later in the middle frame the "fluke" goal appeared that tied the contest. Fitzgerald tossed a shot at Stein, who attempted to clear but the rubber flopped into the net behind him when his stick caught it the wrong way. In the final frame Blake put the Tigers at the head of the league with the winning goal on a pass from Conlon.

Niagara Falls' defence was too strong for the visiting Sailors. On a pass from Lagace, Hunter scored the Falls' first counter in the second period and 40 seconds later in the same frame Lagace talied again for the homesters, finishing the scoring.

Frederick N. Morrow, the third member, has declined to accept any salary for his services.

LOCAL MAN IN POLICE NET

Frank Godfrey Captured at Border Wanted For York Robbery

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 3—Frank Godfrey, 23, of Belleville, has been turned over to York township police to stand trial for robbery. Godfrey surrendered here Monday. He is alleged to be one of two men who held up Dominic Hulevitch, a bakery wagon driver, on Christmas Eve, beat him brutally, robbed him of $87 and shot him in the neck. Godfrey told police that he and Harry Jackson of Toronto, his alleged partner in the robbery, came here to enter the United States. Jackson was across the border but Godfrey was turned back by immigration men, whereupon he gave himself up to police.

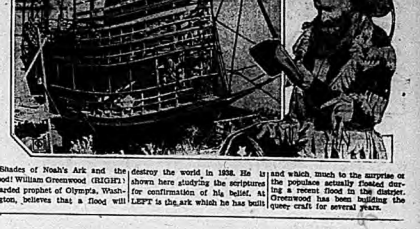
Oakland, Calif., Jan. 3—An enraged beggar jammed his thumb into William Lentz' eye, after the latter gave him a dime, and physicians said sight in the optic was destroyed.



Lentz, 49, told police the beggar asked him for "enough for a little something to eat" and then few into a rage at receiving only 10 cents. The man fled.

38,042 ACCIDENTS

Toronto, Jan. 3—The summary of figures for the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario for the year 1933, shows a total of 38,042 accidents reported during the year, as compared with 41,470 during the prior year. The fatal accidents numbered 238, as compared with 247 during 1932.

All Advertising Audiences Come From the Newspaper Family

Because whatever else people may see or hear, they all have the daily newspaper reading habit.

EVERY advertiser talks to newspaper readers no matter what method of advertising he employs.

He may use letters or circulars to address his prospective customers.

He may employ advertising signs to catch the eye of those who walk or ride past.

He may broadcast a message to those who listen to the radio.

He may make his appeal through the columns of popular magazines.

But in every case, his advertising goes to habitual newspaper readers—to people who read the papers today and will read them again tomorrow.

Therefore, newspaper advertisers enjoy the unique advantage of reaching all who are reached by any advertising and many more whom only newspapers reach.

This obvious reason for the continued success of newspaper advertising should receive the thoughtful consideration of every merchant and manufacturer. Business is improving—particularly for those willing to look for it.

Newspaper advertising gets to everybody every day -- and gets there FIRST.

Weddings

DEVOLIN—JUBY

Stirling, (Special)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Juby on Bayside, tastefully decorated with evergreens, bells and streamers in shades of pink and white, formed an attractive setting for the marriage of their only daughter, Myrle Juby, to Charles Henry Devolin, son of the late Fred Devolin and of Mrs. Alex. Mrs. Walter Baker of Madoc. The nuptial ceremony was performed at 7.30 on New Year's evening by the Rev. J. A. Koffend, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Stirling beneath a bridal arch of evergreen, white bells and streamers erected at the end of the drawing room.

The bride, leaning on the arm of her father descended the stairs and entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Ella James Halmfoth, cousin of the bride. She was beautiful in the sleeveless wedding gown of ivory brocaded French crepe, make length and moulded on fitted lines. A bridal wreath of white roses caught in her hair and she carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and roses, tied with satin ribbon, the large bow of white satin ribbon. White slippers completed the ensemble. The bride's only attendant was Miss Ada Margaret Baker of Madoc, sister of the groom, who was charmingly attired in a sleeveless ankle-length model of pale blue crepe trimmed with turquoise and gold rhinestones and fashioned on fitted lines with a corsage bouquet of white carnations. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Harold Juby, brother of the bride, who with the groom wore a white carnation boutonniere. During the register was covered in a brown crepe and regulhell ensemble with a corsage bouquet of carnations. During the signing of the register Miss Florence Eggleton, cousin of the bride, sang sweetly "I Love You Truly".

The groom's gift to the bride was a substantial cheque, to the bridesmaid a gold wrist watch, beautiful necklaces, and to the groomsman a silk scarf.

Following the ceremony, a supper-wedding breakfast was served to about thirty guests, all immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bridal table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake and was lighted with silver candelabra, silver and pink and white lighted tapers in silver holders. Rev. J. A. Koffend the officiating clergyman proposed the toast to the bride, which was ably responded to by the groom. The bride's table was decorated with evergreens and pink and white lighted tapers in silver candelabra, while the bridesmaid's table was centred with a basket of pink and white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Devolin left by motor for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a dress of middle blue crepe and silver with matching hat and accessories and black cloth coat with sable collar. On their return they will reside in Stirling.

Among the out-of-town guests present at the Devolin-Juby nuptials were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Juby of Toronto, the former a brother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Devolin of Toronto, a brother of the groom.

Christmas Trees

The annual Christmas entertainment of the Sidney Baptist Church was held on December 20th, when the Sidney Baptist Young People and pupils of the public school provided the program. The young people are to be congratulated for the many fine numbers they presented, while the fine presentations by the school children are due to the efforts of Miss Dorothy Clare.

Although not large the attendance was very good considering the slippery roads and the stormy evening.

A fine program was provided including the following: song by the school; recitation, Writing to Santa Claus by Gordon McMillan; song by small boys; dialogue "Santa Claus Abroad; musical selection, O. Sents Abroad; musical selection, O. Sidney Baptist Young People; recitation, "O Little Town of Bethlehem"; recitation, Douglas Reid; song Christmas, Lullaby by girls; dialogue "Santa Claus in the Post Office"; song, by Viola McCartney; monologue, "Snowball's Adventures" by Jack McLellan; male quartette, Faulkner, Wilson, Predergast and Reid; song by school children; dialogue "A Slight Mistake in the Order"; recitation, Douglas Aldridge, "A Dream of Mother Goose"; song, "Good Night"; pantomime, "O Little Town of Bethlehem"; recitation, Douglas Reid; God Save the King. Santa Claus.

After wishing everyone the compliments of the season Santa Claus distributed the tree and also distributed bags of candy and nuts and then went home to Mrs. Santa Claus.

After the business session, members of Mrs. Wallbridge's group were hostesses for lunch.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Shall They Go to a Ball

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been brought up quite strictly, and have never been allowed to go out with any boys. Therefore we are not sure—if we use a couple of tickets given us to go to a very nice ball—whether they will be asked to dance or not. You see we are attending this dance without escort, and to add to our troubles, we're inclined to be rather stout, one wearing size 38 and the other 40. We're considered good-looking, and have been told by our friends that we possess personality, is it proper for my girls to dance together? We'd rather do that than not dance at all.

ANXIOUS TWO.

It's quite permissible for two girls to dance together, and here's hoping that someone may introduce you to nice boys to dance with. You will always this difficulty, when girls have been held in too strictly, and I always urge parents to let their daughters become acquainted with nice boys under the parental roof.

Asked Without a Friend Said

About Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This summer I met a boy and started to go with him. He takes me out quite a lot and I like him. This boy has other girls friends, hoping to hear a few compliments, but I'm certain he cares for me. My friend answered that though I was very young and too silly to be taken seriously, and that he didn't like me and never intended to take me.

But the Thursday before I asked this question I had asked to go with me and got away with it, too. This boy knows I'm only 17 years old. I keep my word or not?

C.M.

It seems to me that it's not flattering to the "friend" in giving you an imaginery version of —— feeling in regard to you. He may have done this through a mistaken idea of the kindness you intended to be jealous. In either case, I hope you will not stay interested in him for you met last summer, until you know his opinion of you. Perhaps you may prefer not to have even his most intimate boy friend know exactly how he feels about you.

Wants to Get Along With Her Parents

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl's mother, as some women do, would like to run my daughter's friends without consulting the girl's tastes. She tells my girl if she doesn't go with these boys she can't go with me. I have invited them over to our house, as we are all neighbors together, but my girl says she won't do that, and this hurts my mother's feelings.

I don't know what the matter, because I've never tried to kiss this girl; I don't think I ever will. I always act as a gentleman should.

I met this girl at dances and other girls' houses, where I am welcome and where I like to go, and I can't see why I should be kept from meeting that way. How can I get in the good graces of this girl's family?

When I go to this girl's house, which is weeks and weeks apart, her mother and father like to be present room with the radio on, so that I can hear everything he says. It seems to me as if you have to be a mind reader to know what's in the girl, which I think is ridiculous.

Also,

I'm sorry you didn't tell me how old this young lady is, because if she's very young and still in school, her parents may feel that she's too young to receive the attentions of a boy who's in love with her. As to making an impression on a girl's mother and father, the best way is to show them that you lead a clean life, are doing well in school or work, and that you are ambitious.

You neglected to tell me whether you are working or still studying. If the latter, you might take up some extra work at the University of the city from which you write me. And as you meet your girl frequently in the house of her friends, why not try to possess your soul in patience for a little while longer?

Seem to Have Made a Complete Conquest

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We're two girls who always read your columns, and we want to know your opinion on something that is boring the lives out of us. We constantly talk about a certain young men who live across the street from us. No matter what we do or where we go, they are always there. We are not flirts either.

We imagine they must get up before dawn, or all night watching us.

We know these boys, and they have asked us to go out with them numerous times, but we have not accepted. We don't care for them in the least, but they are feeling hurt us. We've tried many schemes for letting them know we don't want to go with them, and the whole thing is getting on our nerves. What would you advise us to do?

WILLING RECITATION.

Too Popular for Comfort

If you really wanted to drop these faithful watchers at the pane you would have no trouble in their bids. And you'd better turn your thoughts toward the future. I find their persistence a little hard to understand, unless these boys are rather sensitive and very quickly pick up the feeling that you are avoided. Sometimes, also even when girls really like them, the boys imagine they are unpopular.

True Love Must be Devoted

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have just read a letter in your column from a man who wonders if there's a man in the world who's not old, fat, or ugly—would could like him. Well, I'm one, because this gentleman's matrimonial chances are small as I have started out to have a good time with the ladies regardless of whether they were married or single.

Now, if I were a girl contemplating matrimony, I would consider that man a bad risk, as he has acquired more so much that I doubt if he could quit his promiscuous ways and be true to but to any one woman. There are good reasons why men are the ones to take of caring for someone besides their own husbands, and these I am sorry to say in full.

True love cannot be promiscuous. It must be made to be believed. Though I happen to be a man, I do sympathize with those girls and their husbands than husbands true to their wives.

Red-Headed Bachelor.

It's too bad, really, that a man having such fine ideals and such keen observation as to the fidelity of husbands should have given such a signature. Can't you be persuaded to look about for someone to whom you can give true love and devotion? Old bachelors are terribly lonely. Mate hay while the sun shines

How to be Healthy Though Hurried

IF ALL THE SHREDS in a Shredded Wheat biscuit were laid end to end, they'd reach from here to . . . . well, from here to there. We don't know how far they would reach, but who cares, anyway. What we care about is that Shredded Wheat brings honest nourishment to tired bodies. It's the ideal breakfasta that are all too often woefully inadequate for the needs of busy people.

Because we do not like to hurry, it's all the more important to have a cereal that is digested easily and completely. Shredded Wheat is the most digestible form of whole wheat. Digestible, that means 100% whole wheat—all the vitamins, all the mineral salts, bran, in exactly the proportion that Nature provided.

There are actually between 975 and 900 grains of whole wheat in each Shredded Wheat biscuit. Nothing is added, nothing taken away . . . all the wheat is made steam-cooked, then Shredded and baked. The steam-cooking breaks down the starch cells. Then the grains are drawn out into fluffy, porous shreds, so that the digestive juices can penetrate every particle. Shredded Wheat was invented and put on the market by a man who had suffered from indigestion all his life. It was the only cereal he could eat.

Shredded Wheat fans are finding new ways to serve it, too. They say it's too valuable a food to be limited to breakfast. Delicious for lunch with all sorts of ways; as a basis from creamed dishes, as a meat substitute, and second to no further, in omelets and meat pies. Whether you can add texture and flavor to home-made breads; simple to make by the addition of 100% whole wheat.

Shredded Wheat Omelet
2 cups milk
2 egg yolks
1 tsp. salt and pepper
1 tbsp. parsley, chopped
2 Shredded Wheat biscuits crumbs
3 egg whites

Split the first five ingredients and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cover. Let cook over low flame until set. Fold omelet and serve with tomato sauce. 6 portions.

Shredded Wheat Meat Roll
2 Shredded Wheat biscuits
4 cups corn beef hash
2 strips bacon
Tomato catsup

Split Shredded Wheat Biscuits, and on each half heap portions of corn beef hash. Garnish each with a strip of bacon. Place on greased baking sheet and bake in hot oven (425 degrees F) 10 minutes. Uncover and brown. Serve with tomato catsup. 6 portions.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Aldeh)

There is art in handling color, as shown in many of the new frocks. On a lovely, sheath-like evening dress of heavy satin in green with a blacklish cast there are two panel trains in lipstick red. The neckline in front is high and a brief cape in back covers part of the deep decolletage.

Over the head go many of the jackets used to make dinner dresses out of evening frocks. A lovely frock in sapphire blue velvet with a crepe weave has a Russian style jumper that slips over the head and makes the dress ideal for dinner wear. The jumper has pockets to give it that casual air.

That regal air that used to be so difficult to attain is within reach of all of us by courtesy of the present fashions. Truly majestic is a tall, trained evening dress of heavy crepe in red. It has metal shoulder straps studded with ruby red stones and is worn with a mink cape. In the hair is a tiara also studded with the ruby-like stones.

Stay at home and wear a lovely house coat, the newest thing in which is a model in dull red of yellow moire with burnt orange raglan sleeves. Attached just to the side of the waistline with three large amber buttons, has long, tight sleeves, and a cowl neckline in back.

It is not easy to find a hat to wear with tailored things that is becoming but smart yet comfortable. But these requirements are accomplished in a felt of lipstick red duvetyne that has a trimming of speckled pheasant wing tips and jets, placed just like a cockomb.

ORANGE PEKOE BLEND "SALADA" TEA

"Fresh from the Gardens"

Be animated even if you are wearing a simple black woollen frock. Brighten it up with a huge bow of lame and a matching lame belt and cuffs. These sets can be obtained at almost every smart shop.

Half way between red and brown is a lovely shade that is ideal for evening wear. This color is used in a lovely frock of crepe that has a fitted bodice that is cut low in front and a deep decolletage in back. There are buttons of the same shade in the trailing skirt, which has a pleated flounce at the hemline.

Don't neglect pyjamas, even if the negligee and the nightie are the current favorites. A delightful pyjama suit is of heavy white satin, trimmed with red silk braid from and a bright red satin sash. Its shoulders are wide and its neckline is high.

We gleam with sequins of all colors these days. Thus, a simple black woollen jersey dress gets fillingly to afternoon tea, because it has a collar and cuffs and a belt of sequins in black, with gauntlet cuffs of the sequins.

Father about your bedroom on a cold morning in comfortable mules. Brighten it up with a huge bow of lame and a matching lame belt and cuffs. These sets can be obtained at almost every smart shop.

Just right is the shirtwaist dress, so tailored, yet so feminine. This line is used for a nice chiffon dress of brown and gold lame in a subdued design. The turn-down collar and cuffs are of gold metal cloth. A medium blue is let in down the front of the tucked bodice.

Much nicer than an indifferent fur trimming on a wrap is the coat of lame for evening wear. This needs no trimming, the material itself is so decorative. These coats come in full and three-quarters length and are cut with a cascade look.

TRENTON IS DEFEATED 3-2

Trenton, Jan. 2 (Special)—The local entry in the Intermediate O.H.A. journeyed to Cobourg last night where they lost a fast and furious game to the Waverleys by a score of 3-2.

Referee "Army" Armstrong met-ed out no less than twelve penalties with Cobourg getting the majority before a large crowd, who turned out to officially open the O.H.A. season in Cobourg.

The locals were handicapped because of the ice condition along the boards. Playing the puck along the side was impossible as after it struck it was generally found among the spectators and a couple of times in the gallery.

With the cold weather that has prevailed this condition is uncalled for.

Manager Jack Ewart has a nice bunch of hockey players but lady luck was against them at times.

The play opened with Cobourg rushing the play. "Hoot" Gibson tested Chambers three times at the start. Trenton scored the first penalty when he tripped "Doug" Francis who was getting around the Cobourg defence. "Max" Gerald rushed with Chambers making a wonderful save. "Doc" Ivey zoomed off for charging. Bohan and Mattis were in the game as a nice combination play when Gerald threw his stick at, block the way. "Archie" Campbell backchecked like a fiend when the Waverleys were two men short. The period ended with no score.

Gerald Gets Two

"Bill" Miller got a rest for holding and Gerald sailed through to beat Chambers. Two minutes later he notched another on a beautiful shot in the far top corner from the side. Johnson, Miller and Bohan combined nicely on the second. Miller handed Johnson a beautiful pass and Ken McCauley for the local's first goal.

Ivey and Johnson had a set-to and they took a rest in the jaw on Johnson. He drew five minutes and Johnson three.

Campbell and Freeman combining but Chambers was there.

Freeman and Powers came to blows in the corner.

Cobourg made many rushes but the goalies were not fooled.

The fifth found Campbell off his hip to get a rest.

Trenton was bombarding McCauley when the period closed 2-1 for Cobourg.

Each Tally In Third

Freeman opened the third stanza with a long rush through the centre, Trenton team but failed to score.

Coach Benny Bowen put Johnson, Bohan and Gerald on the from line and their fine rushes were characteristic of Trenton.

Archie Campbell's nice pass to big hand from the fans when he looked after Ivey when he tore down was short handed.

The locals stormed in time and time again but could not score, they had the play but could not get the game and the bell sounded with Cobourg leading 3-2.

Referee — "Army" Armstrong of Oshawa.

First Period.

No score.

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Volume on the Toronto Stock Exchange in the early session today was confined mainly to the distillery stocks, Canada Malting and Ford "A", with little business passing in the oil shares. The long generally was firm and at noon the board showed 20 gains against 8 recessions.

All three leading distillery issues came out in heavy volume and minimum gains of 1 to 2 points. Hiram Walkers Common up ¼ to 56¾, Distillers Seagrams up ½ to 75 and Canadian Industrial Alcohol up ½ to 19¾. Brewers and Distillers proceed 5 to 2.50.

Distillery, beer and oil shares held the main interest and accounted for the bulk of the gains registered up till mid-afternoon. Canada Malting was a feature turning 3 points to 32 on top of the two points chalked up yesterday. Brewing Corporation and Cosgrave came forward strongly 1½.

Trading was steady in Walker's Common, Distillers Seagram and Industrial Alcohol and the group had gains of ¼ to a point this afternoon.

Mayfair and Ventures featured the other interlisted shares, including Ford "A", International Nickel and C.P.R.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York Jan. 3 (AP)—Financial markets of the world were stabilized today turned to Congress and the President's message for inspiration.

While the inauguration in the early Potomac perspective which could be sometimes dangerously misleading the speculative appetite, equity prices maintained a fairly steady to firm demeanour. Traders continued to display a cautious attitude, however, and they were not ready to the majority of stock favorites. Bonds were also in moderate demand.

Scattered advances included Union Pacific with a gain of 2 points and Allied Chemical and U. S. Smelting, sp nearly a point. Specialties were shown by U. S. Steel, American Smelting, American Can, American Smelting, Chrysler, N.Y. Central, International Harvester, Continental Can and Western Union.

Fluctuations in the Canadian group were maintained in narrow bounds. McIntyre Porcupine, National Nickel were a bit higher. Canadian Pacific added ¼ and Bell Canada a shade. On the curb Hiram Walker climbed a fraction. Dominion government 4s and 4½s were firmer but the 5s advanced ¼ of a point. The Associated Press dollar was off 1-16 of a cent at 100.06¾.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto Jan. 3 (CP)— Mining stocks drifted today in the early hours of the Standard Exchange, price changes appearing in the main on the down side. Senior gold shares were quite easy and slightly lower, metal leaders similarly unsteady and silver shares firm.

Dome sagged $1 to $34, Hollinger 25 cents to 11.45, Lake Shore 25 cents to 14.50, Teck and Hughes 50 and Bralorne 25 cents to 10.25. Teck and Hughes, however, moved up down about 5 cents each.

Nickel and Sudbury held within 15 cents to yesterday's closing prices.

Gold shares showed some improvement in the early afternoon, following a morning of drifting during which lower prices were recorded. Improved bullion values were cited.

The outlook for silver legislation at Washington was said to be more stiffening the while metal shares and the whole group showed slightly higher particularly the Great Bear Lake issues, Bear Exploration and Eldorado.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Cattle trade was dull at the opening of the Toronto livestock market today, receipts were not enough sales were registered to establish prices. Receipts at noon were totalled 1,100. The market closed yesterday's prices 15 cents lower than the previous week's close on both ends were down as much as 40 cents. The calf market was steady and prices tumbled 50 cents. Hogs opened unsettled with steady and lambs slow.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1,100, calves 300, hogs 1800, sheep and lambs 100.

Choice veal calves brought $7.00 to $7.50, down 50 cents. Common calves sold down to $4.00.

Lambs sold slowly under a small run. A few good ewes and wethers brought $7.50 with culls at $5.00. Few sheep were offered.

NEW TRAVEL VOLUME SEEN

Railways And Express Point to Improve Sentiment

Holiday traffic on passenger trains into and through the city over Christmas and New Year's struck a high stride almost comparable in volume to predepression days, according to a check up made at offices of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways in this city.

"Very satisfactory passenger traffic," stated the despatcher's office at the local C.N.R. passenger station. "Our ticket sales were excellent in the city and Toronto offices report a satisfactory amount of business over the holidays," stated the despatcher office of the Canadian Pacific.

At both express offices in the city a check-up now under way will probably declare the holiday season's shipments will top those of last year at any rate, it was reported.

Choristers in City Schools

Pupils of the Public Schools were delighted to hear on their return from holidays to learn that a choir of the English Boy Choristers, this morning and thoroughly enjoyed the program given by the young singers. As one of the choristers was ill, the director stayed with him at the hotel, and a senior boy took charge of the group. The singing was entirely unaccompanied, the leader giving the keynote on mouth organ.

An interesting program was chosen for presentation at the schools. The numbers included:

Three Elizabethan Madrigals:

(a) All Creatures now are merry minded, (Bennett), three part harmony.

(b) In going to my lonely bed (Edwards), four part harmony.

(c) Now is the month of Maying (Morley), four part harmony.

Three Christmas Carols:

The Bells of St. Michael's Tower.

God Save the King.

The boys' singing revealed a beautiful blending of pure tone, and fine musicianship seldom met with in such young singers.

A happy afternoon was enjoyed yesterday by the boys, skating on the river and subsequently at the Y.M.C.A. pool. This afternoon they left by motorbrough to continue their schedule.

EMPLOYEES CHARGED

Ottawa, Jan. 3—(CP)—An earthquake of moderate intensity was registered at the Dominion Observatory early today, it was reported. The first preliminary tremors, registered at 4.53 a.m. the distance to the epicentre was 7,450 kilometres or 4,630 miles, the time at the epicentre was 4.47 a.m.

The record continued for more than an hour.

WOMAN BEATEN WITH BROOM

West Side Resident Allegedly Struck by Elder Woman

When a baker went to the door of a west side residence and opened the door, there fell forward, a young woman who had been in a said, the victim of one of the strangest attacks heard of by local police. Downstairs live a husband and wife, and upstairs, live a husband and wife. Yesterday on hearing the baker call, the young woman descended the stairs in this way and it is said that she was met by the woman below, who took a broom, and struck her across the forehead with it, and belabored her with the broom and handle so that the young woman tumbled a number of steps to the ground floor, and fell against the older woman, with the result the door was opened, against the baker.

The baker carried the young woman next door when he realized what had happened and called a doctor, who responded, and found the woman in a highly nervous state. She had evidently been injured slightly in the back but no serious injuries. The affair was taken back into her home and is still confined to her bed today.

Police plain clothesman Fred Baird investigated the case. The charge alleging assault has not yet been laid, it was stated at the police headquarters today. The young woman will soon be in normal condition again.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Steady to higher prices prevailed on Montreal Dairy and Produce Market today.

The butter market was quoted up 0.25 1-4c per lb. for cartons or 1-2, lots of No. 1 pasteurized re-packed at 29 1-2c per lb. delivered.

The cheese market was 10c. to higher for large, unchanged for small Ontarios, with summers quited 1c higher. Prices were 24 to 25c.

Trade adjustments in carlots or l.c.l. lots of Ontario No. 1 fall were particularly strong. Receipts were 435 cases. Wednesday's jobbing bound announced advances in all grades lower than 4 pullets.

Dressed poultry prices to the retail trade in Montreal today are quoted by wholesale jobbing houses as follows: B grade general-by being 2c. under the A grade prices.

Blind, Frozen and Exhausted, Two Survivors of Burned Boat Stumble on Comrades Stranded on Bleak Shore

Tragedy on Great Bear Lake as Storm Separates Two Boats — One Smashed Against Rocks, While Other Burns, Forcing Crew to Flimsy Lifeboat

TWO OF CREW BURNED TO DEATH—OTHERS LOST FOR WEEKS

A tragic adventure under the Arctic circle on wind-swept Great Bear Lake is told by 19-year-old Joseph Walecke, one of the survivors. Walecke is shown in (1) with one of his dogs. Eleven men set out from Fort Franklin, Great Bear Lake, on October 20 for Cameron Bay. On a storm the low-boat "Speed II" was away from the barge it was towing. On the barge were seven men. In the boat were four. The barge was smashed on a rocky shore and the seven men left stranded. The boat caught fire, burned two of the crew to death and forced the others overboard in a small rubber life-boat. They eventually and accidentally stumbled blindly into the camp of the other seven. The layout shows (2) Cameron Bay, ultimate destination of the party, (3) map of Great Bear Lake where the tragedy took place, (4) One of the lead dogs in the party which proved a valuable asset in rescuing the stranded men. (5) Aeroplane on Great Bear Lake two of which finally rescued the party.

An epic of Canada's northland, a story of heroism and sacrifice, of shipwreck and death on storm-lashed Great Bear Lake, of hunger, cold and privation, is told by one of the survivors of the ill-fated "Speed II," which left Fort Franklin on October 20 for Cameron Bay with a party of eleven men and towing a supply barge. The tragic adventures of the party are recounted fully here for the first time by nineteen-year-old Joseph Walecke, who left a law firm in Saskatoon and worked his way all through the country under the Arctic Circle to land finally at Cameron Bay, his destination. Only the meagre details of the tragedy of the Speed II. have so far reached civilization. The whole thrilling story is told below.

Cameron Bay, N.W.T., Jan. 3 — Cast adrift in a motorless barge on fast-freezing gale-swept Great Bear Lake . . . thrown high upon a rocky barren shore by waves twenty feet high, our clothes frozen to our skins and the temperature down around 50 below . . . marooned on a bubbles waste with, scarcely any food . . . then to learn that even these experiences were tame compared with the tragic fate of our companions.

Two of their number were burned to death. The other two staggered blindly for miles before they stumbled accidentally into our camp. Only sheer luck had saved the latter of the stout adorny lake after our barge had been cut away from the tow-boat, "Speed II."

Helpless as a match in the fury of the storm, the Speed, with Vic Ingraham, Currie, Potts and Jebb aboard, caught fire.

Ingraham and Jebb fought desperately but vainly to save the lives of their stricken companions but were finally forced to leave the burning ship in a five-foot rubber lifeboat, miles from shore.

Powerless they paddled away from the ship, and were only about a hundred yards away when the Speed was torn asunder by a terrific explosion.

They drifted for five hours in that bitter storm before they reached safety. They had no food, only one dry match, Ingraham had had the loss of his moccasins burned off and both his hands were so badly burned that it is doubtful now if they can save all his fingers.

It must have been fate that made them head in our direction. Otherwise they would never have lived. They could have headed for Cameron Bay, our original destination, but decided that if we had succeeded in getting ashore, we would be closer.

In-Trouble From Start

We had left Fort Franklin for Cameron Bay on Friday, October 20. Right from the start we were in difficulty, and had to get out with a small stemwinder and a skiff to break the ice.

The Speed was towing a barge loaded with a crew of seven men and 12 tons of supplies, to say nothing of seven dogs. Cameron Bay was about 300 miles away, but at the end of the sixth day we had only travelled about half way.

The first night out we encountered stormy weather and a bad sea. To make matters worse, the Speed's compass failed us, and the engine in the sow broke down.

After hours of battling, we finally made Grizzly Bear mountain where we anchored in a small inlet. Sticking closely to the shore, we were able to make McVicar Arm up the next day, and the following day set out into the lake in the teeth of a strong head wind. But we could get no farther than Bear Island, where we fought refuge in order to repair the Speed's engine.

Finally, after five days of strenuous but tedious labor, we succeeded in reaching Keith Point, about half way to our destination.

There the tragedy happened.

From Leith Point we set out for Cameron Bay, but the strong wind blew us out of sight of land. The snow began to leak, and the pumps were frozen. We could scarcely move, our parkis were frozen so stiff. Toward late afternoon our motor failed us again, and, then just as darkness set in, we ob the scow, lost our rudder.

Dogs Started to Howl

The waves were getting higher and higher, and often we could not even see the Speed, only a few yards out in front.

The dogs, seeming to sense the impending tragedy, started to howl with a shudder ran up and down my spine as I thought of the serious predicament we were in.

For twelve long hours we drifted helplessly, hoping the storm would abate. But instead it increased its fury and Ingraham in the darkness decided to cut away the barge.

I will never forget the feeling of being in a motorless barge in a storm like that; we prepared all the bedding and food we could and placed it in the lifeboats. After tossing about for hours in the dead of night we realized that we had drifted close to what seemed to be a steep cliff.

I am sure that there were others besides myself who had a sickly feeling in the stomach as we thought what would happen if we were ever tossed against it.

Thrown Up On Rocks

But it turned out to be a rocky shore line, and on the crest of a huge wave, we crashed high up on the rocks, 25 feet from shore. It was useless to try and rescue any of our bedding, for it was caked with ice and frozen solidly to the boats. We jumped out and yelled ashore, waist deep in freezing water.

Once on shore we immediately set about in pairs searching for wood. There was no bush and we could only gather what drift wood Kidd and Ingraham had left for us. About an hour later, someone had succeeded in finding some about a mile away and built a fire. All we could do for the rest of the night was stand around the thin fire and keep warm in front, while the bitter wind nearly froze our backs.

The next morning we found our snow badly smashed on the rocks, the lifeboats in splinters. We chopped our blankets out, dried them and prepared camp, fully confident that the Speed would soon pick us up.

For three days we worked under the cliff which we thought then, we could load on the Speed when it returned. The thought never occurred to us that a worse fate had struck them.

On the morning of the fourth, day we were astonished to see two men staggering toward us. Not even Ingraham could think of Speed, and it was not until they were within a few feet that we knew them for Vic Ingraham and Currie.

And two wretched men they were, burned and frozen, starved and half blind, they had staggered from God knows where. They told us a story of hardship and torture that only men of the calibre of those two could have fought. They had certainly put up an heroic battle. Here is their story, as related by Ingraham:

"When the Speed cut away from the barge we decided to drift until daybreak. Potts and Jebb (the other two member of the Speed's crew), were in the bunks, sea-sick. "Water was getting into the bilge and we had to pump it out with engine. The engine backfired through the carburetor and set fire to some gas that had leaked into the bilge.

Fire Spread Rapidly

"Before we could do a thing, the fire had caught a mattress and in a moment the whole cabin was a mass of flames. We tried desperately to fight our way to Potts and Jebb, but it was impossible. The gas fumes and smoke nearly suffocated us and we were forced to leave them to their fate.

"We climbed into that small rubber lifeboat and got away from the ship as fast as we could, for we knew what would happen when the flames got to the gasoline tanks on deck. We barely got away when the boat went up with a terrific explosion.

"We drifted for about five hours before we reached shore, and we were certainly in bad shape.

"We had no food (all food was kept on the barge) and all we had in the way of fire was one dry match and a candle.

"You can imagine how carefully we handled that match in the wind. But it worked, and we got a fire going and dried out. I had left coats for both Currie and Currie had gone two days without food. We were both burned and cold, and pretty much down in the mouth.

"We set out in the direction in which we thought the barge would be cast ashore, and we have been just two and a half days getting there. For more than a day I was completely blind, and Currie had to lead me. Then when my eyes got a bit better Currie's went blind. I think we have gone about ten miles a day and were probably about 25 miles up the lake."

Rescue Party Sets Out

That story made our troubles seem nothing in comparison. Right now that we were all together again we were greatly heartened although saddened by the loss of Potts and Jebb.

Realizing that Ingraham was in bad shape from cold and his burns, we decided that a rescue party would have to set out for Cameron Bay immediately. We set up a dog sled and harnessed the dogs, and next morning three men started out.

The rescue party, however, was doomed to failure. They crashed through the ice crossing a small bay. Three or the dogs managed to chew their way out of the harness, but the foundering party could do nothing for, and left it with the sled and supplies. The men got another sledding into the bargain.

Undismayed by this misfortune and consequent two-day delay, two other boys, taking with them a couple of dogs, started out the bare necessities the only food we had was dried potatoes and salt pork until someone fortunately shot a caribou, set out by foot.

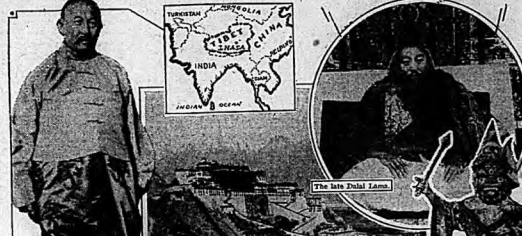
Planes Arrive in Time

Four days passed and there was still no sign of a plane. Things began to look bad. On the fifth day we decided to pit up the canoe. Everything was ready and we were getting it loaded when we heard the distant drone of a plane. Quickly we tore up the fire and set up a black smoke. The plane saw us.

Never has an aeroplane looked so beautiful to me. Only a few minutes later another plane also spied us. The second plane had been sent by the two rescuers who had managed, after six days' travel, to get through to civilization.

It took the planes forty minutes to make the journey back.

Thus, more than three weeks after we had set out from Fort Franklin, we reached Cameron Bay. But what a three weeks!



BACKACHE is Your Warning

Backache is usually the first sign of Kidney trouble. When your back pains, look to your kidneys. Don't neglect them—it is too serious. Race for Throne of "Jewel in the Lotus Flower" Reveals Discord and Intrigue in Forbidden City

And his holiness,Ngawang Lobsang Thubten Gyatsho, the Dalai Lama who reigned 27 years as the thirteenth incarnation of the "Living Buddha", is dead in the depths of Potala, the gigantic skyscraper palace clinging to the sides of towering Tibetan hills.

Thirteenth regent in direct descent since 1474 of the first Dalai who gathered the emblems of power and moulded them into an imperial state, the late pontiff, "The Jewel in the Lotus Flower", outlived the traditional span allotted to the god by almost 40 years.

Now dead, what is undoubtedly the most fascinating duel for a vacant throne in an Asiatic race between the transmigrated soul of the late Dalai and the Tashi or Panchen Lama, his great but lesser vassal abbot who is racing to Lhasa by aeroplane from Peiping after a long exile.

Prophecy of 32

Historians speak of the potent prophecy of 13 which predicts the ending of the long rule by the Dalai Lamas with the death of the thirteenth "Living Buddha". Undoubtedly the Invading Panchen-Tashi seeks to invoke this tradition to demand the throne for himself, either by words, or by use of the marauding "new" military model.

Yet the fleeing soul of the late Dalai is able to escape every trap or power of his usurping rival, for the Buddhist Lama idea that transmigration of his soul into another living body is the most potent possession of the Dalai's. Thus whenever the Penchen-Tashi finishes off one of the infant "Living Gods", automatically the soul enters another young child, a never ending cycle of security utterly beyond the control of the Panchen-Tashi.

"The Forbidden City" strenuously guarded against all western intruders, is the religious and intellectual capital of Buddhist monasticism or Lamaism, to which millions of fanatical believers pay homage throughout Asia.

Only a handful of foreigners has ever penetrated to Lhasa, "The Place of the Gods," which has its counterpart in Mecca, the holy city of Moslems.

Clothed by legend with mysterious and stupendous powers of magic, the Dalai Lama exists as the living descendant of Buddha. With physical death, his soul goes instantly into the body of a new-born child. Thus arises the Dalai's immortality and his spiritual control of life and death over his faithful.

Priests Abound.

No faith or people is so priest ridden as Tibet Buddhism. In barren, wind-swept, arid country, one out of five is either monk or nun, dwelling in the huge lamaseries which are perhaps the sole permanent buildings in that vast plateau.

The monks are mostly unwashed, ignorant, opportunist fanatics; peasants are nomadic, butter-eating devil-fearing. The combination creates a vast roaming army of prayer-wheel turning clergy who reap much gold by scaring the peasants with grotesque masks, weird dances, and scattering swastikas and good luck charms over the countryside.

So numerous and powerful are the priests, that the abbot leaders of the several monasteries about Lhasa are the real rulers of Tibet. In the past it was their practice to select the child Dalai Lama and during his youth rule as regents. When he neared majority, he was quietly disposed of through various poisons known only to these Mongol "Borgias."

It explains how the late Dalai enjoyed life so long, by means of a long succession of official food tasters.

The former "Living Buddha" experienced various fortunes after he came into power. He arose from peasant stock, like most Lamas, and outwitting his designing regents, he consolidated the power of priest and king within himself again.

"Lotus Flower" in Exile.

Caught between the growing imperialism of rapid Russia and England in 1904, he was forced to flee Lhasa, and during the next years underwent an exile similar to Mohammed. When the rebellious Tibetans ousted the Chinese overlords, the Dalai returned in triumph after eight years of wandering in chants of "Onne Mane Padme Hun" (Hail Thou Jewel in the Lotus Flower).

Though a "yellow" conservative monk, he believed in western improvements, causing a rickety telegraph line to be set up with the outside wide, and had himself driven frequently around in an automobile, in a land without roads.

Rumors that the long delayed "cup of aconite" hastened the Dalai's death have arisen, especially with news that the Panchen-Tashi's return presaged a "coup d'etat", the Hordes of "red", grease-covered monks, who roam the country pillaging, constitute ominous threats to all Dalai Lamas remaining obdurate to power seeking abbots controlling these marauders.

Perhaps the conservative Lamaists have become fearful of the enormous influence wielded by Tsarong Shapeh commander-in-chief of the Tibet army, whose influence as the Lalai's secretary of state gradually sought to close the breach with England against the traditional lama hostility for the west.

Gold and Gems.

Other observers regard the Panchen-Tashi's moves as attempts by the Chinese favored rival to possess some of the vast treasures of gold and gems stored in the monasteries throughout Tibet.

For hundreds of years, bribes, extortion and prayers have diverted almost all the wealth into the hands of the monks. The vast cathedral looming beneath the solid cliffs of Potala is surmounted with a spire of pure gold, and within its holy of holies is incalculable wealth.

The 11-storey palace of the Dalai is a vast succession of rooms, working quarters, dunnels, chapels, thronged with hundreds of monks and retainers.

Legends speak here also of massed wealth since the first Dalai Lama came to dwell at Lhasa in 1474 as the incarnation of the "Living Buddha".

Only the "prophecy of the 13" will grant an answer.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

"You're all right, Sue?" The concern in his voice steadied her. "Perfectly. It's just that there have been many unusual visitors."

"But how could that be? I've been awake, waiting for them. And I have fairly good ears."

"Not good enough to hear through several inches of door. I tried it myself. It's practically sound-proof." Scarlet mounting in her cheeks, she blurted, "Now, by her own admission, she had been listening."

"Did you lock the door into the hall?"

"I think not. I was sort of stunned by the extraordinary turn of affairs. I guess you might call it that." She looked at him soberly enough to take my bag out from under the pillows on the davenport, and put it on that chair. Or to open dressing-table drawers."

Jeffrey's eyes followed to the telltale evidence.

"Well, I'll be da--or rather I'll be quoting busy. Might be a good idea to frame the first person who said who the prowler is or sweep the place clean. It is time we did some."

"Jeff! My passport!" Sue, standing in the middle of the room, lips twitching.

"Passport! You mean you've lost it--it's been taken!"

"It hasn't been taken. They came for it, but they couldn't find it. It's safe. Mathilda has it. I don't want to criticize your family, but I've a notion one of your cousins had an irresistible curiosity to learn what was on that passport."

"Why? I find Sue Ellen has stooped to such methods I'll--"

"You'll what? Let them know we're concerned? Play into their hands? Not if I can prevent you. I'm with you, Jeff. It's my game as much as it is yours. Were got to adopt it with joint force. I'll not risk your father--"

"Father! You mean you've lost it--it's been taken!"

"I'll tell you I don't like this business of wishful waiting. Jeffrey's hands were thrust deep in his pockets. His mouth was stubborn. "I can't see taking it on the chin."

"Better on the chin than in the back," Sue, quietly. "As we stand now, we are wide open to attack in the back. Good night, Jeff, or rather good morning. Do try to sleep. You'll need to be fresh to meet Mr. Gifford and his big bunch of tricks."

Eight o'clock in the morning. Sue wide awake, tingling for action, rang the bell and dispatched a maid for Mathilda.

"We'll have to equip your bedroom with burglar alarms," Mathilda said when she had related the happenings of the night. "Today that passport goes into my safety deposit box in the bank. Too many persons are interested in it. Now that that's settled, I advise you to put on your best gown, Susie. If you have any kind of luck, this will be your last day at sea."

At nine o'clock there was a knock on the door to the living room.

"Mr. Mathilda," Sue, making a last-time of preening before a mirror sympathetically noting the dark shadows fingers had become thumbs.

Mathilda opened the door.

"Come in," she said cheerily. "Mrs. Randall has just completed her toilet."

An awkward pause.

"Here we are," Mathilda broke the spell. All dressed up and plenty of places to go. What's the program, Jeffrey?"

Sue, searching for an imaginary something on the dressing-table, her cheeks burning. She could hear Jeffrey. She could not see him with him, in a suite.

"I'm going to get down to the office and see Clifford at once," Jeffrey said. He was as master of fact as a seasoned husband taking off his daily routine. "He will probably drop me until noon or later. Sue, you and Matty will have lunch. Who's your next to sit--Jeffrey's turn? Make it this afternoon,--and we'll all Matty for witness."

"But yes!" Mathilda's honest laugh relieved the strain. "The marriage certificate, Jeffrey, is a necessity. I well without it that it seems a shame to bother."

Sue, echoing the ripple of laughter.

"For the purposes of the record, Matty," she said.

"Speaking of attending to things," Mathilda said, "its important that we have a conference before the bridal wardrobe is not adequate to by several months a fur coat or two, and other essentials. She must go back clothes. No arguing, do do her job without being properly uniformed."

"I'd thought of that." Jeffrey took a slip of paper on a table, made a check drawn to cash, then to the National State Bank. "Telephone them you're presenting it. And I'll open an account over in the morning." Jeffrey handed. You are to draw on it. Sue as you please."

Sue, flushed again. A check for clothes? Clothes, money, accepting them from Jeffrey! Humiliation. Gold-digging. A gold-digger who takes everything and gives nothing. Thieves! She was being treated as a child. Jeffrey was an affair of business, not of love. For women, checks were business assets, bond securities.

"We'll be here at two," Sue, folding the check with deliberation, slowing it in her bag. "Meantime, if I'm accosted by the cousins in their allies, I shall refer everything to you, Jeff."

On the threshold of the living room Jeffrey hesitated, turned cause to Sue. Her head high, proud, her eyes were packed with the baffled hurt he had seen. The compassion for kindness, that compelled Sue to hold back the words she wanted to say to him.

"Partner," he said, "it's turned out to be a delightful visit. If you'd rather stop playing, we'll call it a game."

Sue, rallying. "Jeffrey had not been endowed with the small change of quality. I'm amused so can.

"Game!" she said, and shook her head in rebuke. "I'm amused at you Jeff. Why we haven't even finished of sheriffing the place."

CHAPTER 18

Sue and Mathilda finished breakfast. Sue, lagging on her hat. Escape from Mathilda she wanted. This grey-white pile was a prison.

A knock at the hall door.

Beatrice Randall. Black chiffon clinging her diminutive figure. Black chiffon that trailed. Spidery.

"Am I intruding?" Beatrice Randall negotiated the door between the door and Sue with all the agility of the spider. "Good morning, Sue. Persons told me Jeff had gone out. I've caught you last in time. What a love of a hat. Paris is like that." She leaned back to survey Sue. That had was from Thirty-fourth street, New York, two seasons ago.

"Jeff saw it in a shop window in the Rue St. [illegible]. He bought it promptly. "He insisted I have it. Not a bad choice."

The spider retreated, inwardly. But only for the briefest second.

"Jeff's quite a connoisseur." Insinuation could be deadly, if you'd to ask you to be in for tea, Mrs. for some friends of Jeff who are panting to meet you."

"I don't know--" Sue, sparring for time.

"Mr. and Mrs. Randall are engaged for tea," Mathilda said, consulting a notebook she drew from the pocket of her coat-suit.

"But you can't, possibly, Sue." Beatrice Randall, the family friends, is--"

"Please take the matter up with Mr. Randall." Mathilda's voice was firm. "Come, Mrs. Randall, we are late. Unpardonably late." Mathilda moved toward the hall door.

"I'll speak to Jeff," Beatrice said between lips drawn in a thin line. "It isn't like him to be rude."

Persons was in the lower hall, near the elevator, when Mathilda and Sue emerged.

"Good morning, Madame." Was Persons twinkling at Sue behind his mask of impertubability? It was sure she caught the flick of a smile. "Our car is waiting."

"I'm going to like Persons," Sue thought.

As the long lean town car pulled out from under the porte-cochere and turned into the avenue, Sue Mathilda and Sue were so enthralled by their unaccustomed luxury that they failed to notice another car, as large and shining as the one in which they rode, pull out from the curb across the street from the Randall house and swing in behind them.

The saleswoman in the French salon of the Mendel Press shop, purveyor to women of fashion, held a sheath of white and silver across her arms.

"And this will be all? Madame is quite sure?" Her voice was treacle, dripping.

"I think so--for today." Sue's eyes were on the dress. Its loveliness fascinated her. It was here. Her very own. Jeffrey had said the shop would send it to her at once.

"I wanted to try it on, alone. To revel in its pristine beauty."

"I advise you to look at the dress one again--Patin, wasn't it?" Mathilda urged.

"Matty." Sue, protesting.

"Would you mind bringing the green one? Mrs. Randall may reconsider." Mathilda's glance bore the saleswoman into her confidence. The woman hastened away.

"But, Matty." Sue, protesting. "I don't want that green dress." She selected three evening gowns, or was it four, and scads of other things. After all, I'm not opening a dress shop."

"I wanted to get her out of the way," Mathilda said. "I've had an inspiration. I'll tell you on the journey. You'd like them to pack everything in your trunks. You'll send them the trunks."

"A journey! What are you talking about?"

"Wait till you hear. We go to the nearest place where first-class baggage is sold and buy trunks, I have some stickers with the name of the Tonion and the steamship line in my purse. I was keeping them for souvenirs. I'll paste them on the trunks and we'll see they are brought here to this shop this morning. Then I'll arrange for an express--no, to call for them and take them to the Fifth avenue shops."

"I don't see--"

"You soon will, one lone trunk, not crowded with the fruit of the Rue de la Paix either. And the trunks are pretty battered. You are going to have three or four trunks--we can decide on the number later--and bring back everything at your own house from the pier, when they were delayed, this afternoon, I'll ask about them the minute we enter the house and complain loudly if they're not there."

"Matty!" Sue laughed until Mathilda feared the salesman would return and think her silent was suffering an attack of hysteria. "If you get any more inventive than this you'll be a criminal. She managed, "I'll die laughing before I get a chance to enjoy my Paris wardrobe--the great adventure."

Sue and Mathilda lunched in the Oval Room of a hotel the name of which they had expected, until the coming of Jeffrey. He would remain a name to them and nothing more, which Mathilda finished, Sue decided to try reaching her mother from the telephone booth in the hotel.

Mrs. Mandeville was in a hurry with complaints as always, but inexpressibly dear to the listener in the booth, answered.

"My daughter! Where in the world are you? Why haven't you come home?"

"Oh Mumsie, how good it is to hear you!" Sue, winking back the tears. "I'm in New York dear. I'll come to see you as soon as ever I can, tomorrow I hope."

"Tomorrow! But that will never do. You must come now, today."

"Hasn't Tommy told you about--"

"That you are married? Yes. That's just it. I can't believe you'd go away and get married without letting your mother know a thing about it. I'm sure I've never been cruel to you in anything you've wanted to do."

"Of course you haven't, beautiful, you've been a perfect brick. I would have told you, but it was all so sudden--I met Jeff--my husband --on the trip to Paris. You'd like him, dear. Are you feeling all right, Mumsie?"

"If you don't think enough of your own mother to come and see for yourself--you can't know about this daughter--"

"I know, darling." No use trying to pull the veil of silence asleep tion from her mother's eyes. "Won't you trust me? Tell me if you're the truth; I'll explain tomorrow."

"Are you sure, Sue Ellen, I can. We'll be waiting for you--Tommy and I and your father--"

"Your father's sulking. To swallow the lump in her throat. All right, Mumsie, I'm fighting for that sacred word being applied to Sue-Ellen Mandeville, And her mother still used it.

TILLIE THE TOILER

By Russ Westover.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By George McManus

TARZAN AT THE EART H'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In order to accommodate his precious ammunition, Gridley made a crude bow, arrows and a spear. Long since had he given up hope of finding either Tarzan or the giant airship. Now he believed he was doomed to spend his life among the savage creatures of this inner world. He hoped he would soon find a tribe of men with which he might cast his lot, for most of all he missed human companionship. His eyes were always on the alert for signs of man; nor was he now to have long to wait.

A breeze coming from a ravine beyond brought to Gridley's nostrils the smell of smoke. Eagerly he crept toward the canyon's rim, for smoke meant fire and fire meant man. Looking down, he saw a thin wisp of smoke rising from a fire before which squatted a horned warrior. Jason had about decided to approach the man on the chance that the Warrior would believe his intentions to be friendly when his attention was attracted to the cliff bordering the opposite side of the canyon.

There stood such a creature as no living man upon the outer earth had ever looked upon. It was a giant armored dinosaur, fully seventy feet long and twenty-five feet high. Along its spine ran thin, horny plates that terminated in a stout tail. Its small, limpid-like head was close to the ground as it appeared to be watching the man in the canyon. And suddenly, to Jason's amazement, it gathered its gigantic hind legs beneath it and launched itself straight from the top of the lofty cliff.

He thought it would be dashed to pieces upon the canyon floor. Instead, he saw that it did not fall but was gliding swiftly through the air, supported by its huge spinal plates which it had dropped to a horizontal position. The swish of its flight now attracted the attention of the warrior. He leaped to his feet, snatching up his spear. And simultaneously Jason Gridley sprang over the cliff edge and leaped down the declivity toward the lone warrior, at the same time whipping both his six-guns from their holsters.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

MAN'S CASTLE

"Man's Castle," Columbia film to be shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre, is without a doubt the most moving love story that has ever been made into a motion picture. Entrusted to the genius of Director F. Borzage, the new photoplay emerges on the Capitol screen a powerfully emotional and compelling classic—truly one of the great pictures of the year. Two sheer poignancy, for sentiment glossed over by reality, for a homely tale of a love that braves all obstacles—Borzage proves a master of them all.

Sharing honors with the director for excellence in the picture are the two stars, Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young, cast, respectively, as Bill, a shiftless, homeless wanderer, and Trina, a starving waif whom he picks up on the street and takes to his ramshackle home on the dumps. Borzage's deft touches and the artistry with which these two perfect players interpret their roles put into the production a pathos and moving force that sweeps the spectator along with it in its flood of emotional appeal.

Bill, footloose and irresponsible, soon becomes restless under the restraint of living so long in one place. He has no use for money; he tells Trina he does not love her and will leave her as he needs a rich and beautiful show girl who wants him for a playmate. Bill is beginning to love Trina in a gruff way; he sees her beauty; he becomes more considerate, less indifferent. Then his world tumbles about his ears. Trina tells him he is about to become a father.

To get money to take care of her he attempts robbery and fails. The affair is cleared up and Bill leaves aboard a freight car—headed for somewhere—and with him is Trina.

The supporting cast is exceptionally capable. Marjorie Rambeau, Arthur Hohl, Walter Connolly, Glenda Farrell and Dickie Moore all turn in performances so superb it is difficult to rate them in the order of their excellence.

"Man's Castle" possesses the same emotional appeal as "Seventh Heaven" and is rated even a greater picture. "Helen Reliations", a two-reel comedy; Movie Struck, a Scrappy cartoon and the Capitol up-to-date news balance this very fine program.

AT THE BELLE

"Dancing Lady"

With Joan Crawford and Clark Gable headlined, a smashing parade of sizzling song hits, an eye-thrilling cavalcade of polychromatic chorus ensembles, and a new Broadway drama as story motivation, "Dancing Lady," which opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre, lowers to new heights in screen musical entertainment.

Teamed once more with Gable, Joan plays her chorus role with all she's got. She wears the kind of costumes that men will gape at and women will try to copy, and when she dances—well, she dances!

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has reaped them all with this musical smash. The picture abounds with spectacles that stagger imagination and dazzle with a romance that alone would make the picture a grand evening's entertainment.

Robert Z. Leonard did a brilliant job of directing from the famous James Warner Bellah novel published serially in a national magazine. Joan plays the part of the burlesque chorine who is determined to make good on Broadway.

What a Cast!

The cast reads like an all-star screen, stage and radio aggregation —Franchot Tone, May Robson, Winnie Lightner, Fred Astaire, Robert Benchley, Ted Healy, Gloria Foy, Art Jarrett Grant Mitchell, Maynard Holmes, Nelson Eddy, Sterling Holloway and those devastating Ted Healy Stooges.

Sammy Lee and Eddie Prinz protect their skill in handling of the dance ensembles. These gorgeous numbers eclipse by far the most ambitious production spectacle ever placed upon the silver sheet.

Among the song hits are "Let's Go Bavarian," "Heigh Ho", "Everything I Have is Yours," "That's the Rhythm of the Day" and "Dancing Lady." You'll hear them plenty from now on.

Fleasing Shorts

A splendid array of short gems precede the feature offering and include Bert Lahr in a very funny comedy "His Honor," the latest Belle News with a review of important happenings during the year 1933 and other events, and a funny Popeye the Sailor Kartoine. The entire program will be repeated again this evening, and Thursday and Friday, matinee and evening, and should not be missed.

"Little Women" Next

Twenty million people are estimated to have read "Little Women," R.K.O. Radio Picture's latest screen bill, scheduled for presentation at the Belle for three days, commencing Saturday. The figure is based on the book sale since it was published in 1868, close to two million copies. Katharine Hepburn is the star, playing the impulsive and amusing Jo, Joan Bennett is Amy, Frances Dee is Meg and Jean Parker is Beth.

IS AT HOME TO TWEED FRIENDS

Tweed (Special)—On Thursday evening Mr. Laurason Newton entertained a number of young people at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Newton. The members of the party were taken out to Mr. Newton's and brought home again on a long sleigh and in spite of the inclement cold enjoyed the ride. Rev. R. R. Nicholson accompanied them. While there they spent some time tobogganing, after which lunch was served by the boys of the Tuxis group. Games concluded a pleasant evening.

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of Tweed Separate School was held on Wednesday, December 27th, at the school. The following trustees were elected: Very Rev. J. F. O'Riordan, chairman; Andrew Doran; Jos. Collins; Paul Rashotte; William Mcraw; Felix Rashotte; Dennis Courneyea. After serving efficiently as secretary-treasurer for the past eight year, Mr. Mitchell Lavare retired from office and Mr. Ray Quinn has been appointed as his successor. Mr. Chas. Tredeau was appointed janitor.

Miss Maria McGuire entertained a number of young people at an enjoyable bridge party on Friday evening.

Vast Expenditures in 1934 Roosevelt Plan Huge Deficit in 1934-35

Deficit Due Almost Entirely to Recovery Program Costs

NO NEW TAXES

U. S. President Asks One-Be Restored Third Salary Cuts

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—President Roosevelt frankly reported to Congress today a prospective $8,000,000,000 recovery campaign deficit for the next two years and asked that the lid be clamped down to put the United States government on a pay-as-you-go basis by 1936.

In his message transmitting the budget, he estimated expenditures chargeable entirely to the recovery effort at almost $7,500,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30. He asked for a $2,000,000,000 war chest to continue the drive for relief into the following year.

$6 Billion Borrowing

All of this, he said, involves governmental borrowing of $10,000,000,000 during the next six months, but he expressed no doubt of meeting this problem.

The $8,000,000,000 deficit, which would swell the public debt to the all-time high of $31,834,000 000 does not take into consideration the new taxes from liquor revenue and plunging of business prosperity.

There was no recommendation for new taxes.

The President did recommend restoration of one-third of the 15 per cent. cut in pay for Federal employees, effective July 1, and favored continuation of the three cents congressional mail rate.

Budget Speech

Governmental spending at more than $1,000,000,000 a month for the next two years was forecast by Roosevelt in the national debt was forecast today in the message of annual budget sent to the United States Congress.

The report was in the name of William H. Woodin as Secretary having been prepared before President-Elect Roosevelt on New Year's Day named Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to the cabinet post. It is estimated emergency recovery costs alone would be $6,337,436,700 during the fiscal year which ends June 30. The general expenses $3,533,891,767, for a total of $9,871,328,467, leaving $1,628,671,533 and an operating deficit of $6,631,328,700.

The treasury figures, prepared before the new administration of the budget did not include extra-budgetary request of President Roosevelt of $2,000,000,000 for the second year and $2,000,000,000 for 1935. These extraordinary expenditures embrace farm, debts and public works debts.

28 Billion Debt

Woodin predicted a public debt at the fiscal ending of $28,879,269,-728 as compared with $22,538,671,560 last June, leaving a deficit to begin, as a result of war costs, was $23 484,-000,000 in 1919. The gross debt now was $16,185,309,000 in 1930.

For the fiscal year of 1935, the treasury foresaw a return to a pay-as-you-go basis for both general and emergency expenditures of $3,-533,891,767 against $9,723,286,500. The estimated receipts for the year terminated at $511,897,021. A figure smaller than the $1,000,000 fund requirement and indicating consequent deficit of $13,477,706 reduction in the public debt.

It was estimated that the government would spend about $1,000,000 times as much in the six months from now to December 31 as in the first half the fiscal year. For emergency purposes alone the spending will be about five times as fast.

Biggest estimated spenders were the reconstruction corporation, the Public Works Administration, the Civil Works Administration and the Conservation programme.

Santa Claus Reaches Rodanthe N. C., to Bring Gifts Today

Rodanthe, N.C., Jan. 4 (AP)—Today is Christmas Eve in Rodanthe and tonight the Santa Claus of Old Christmas will fill stockings for the grown-ups and kiddies.

The residents of this isolated spot on the outer banks of North Carolina prepared to spend the day as a holiday just as outlanders celebrated Christmas on December 25.

It has been the custom here for generations in regard this as Little Christmas but there is no reference to such a day in church history. Christ was born on December 25th, 12th. night which is said to be the day the Three Wise Men reached Bethlehem to find the Christ Child in a manger but that date falls on January 6.

Even oldest residents here do not know how they came to observe January 5 as Christmas but it is an old Rodanthe custom handed down from generation to generation and so far as Rodanthe is concerned, tomorrow is Christmas.

DRIVE TO LEGALIZE HORSE RACE WAGERING

Sponsors Want Bill to Introduce "Totalisator"

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 4 (AP)—Renewal of the drive for legislation legalizing horse race wagering in New York State was already launched today with the 1934 Legislature only one day old.

A bill which would permit pari-mutuel betting, giving associations a "cut" in all money bet at tracks, and providing levying of an eight per cent. tax on the gross operating income of all tracks in the state introduced yesterday by Senator James Crawford and Assemblyman Wm. Hollenbeck, both Brooklyn Democrats.

SENATE ASKS DEBT DETAILS

Reports on War Debts From Foreign Nations to the United States

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—The United States Senate today called on the treasury to furnish a statement showing the war debts due from foreign nations to the United States.

In its first action of the session on a matter of foreign affairs, it adopted a resolution offered by Senator Borah, (R.-Idaho).

The resolution called on the Treasury to furnish a statement of the sums due from foreign governments and the amounting in default.

It was the first of the expected congressional reaction to war debt developments in the wake of the resolution unanimously without debate.

The report was in the name of William H. Woodin as Secretary having been prepared before President-Elect on New Year's Day named Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to the cabinet post. It is estimated emergency recovery costs alone would be $6,337,436,700 during the fiscal year which ends June 30. ACE ABSOLVES EDDIE SHORE

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP— Irvin "Ace" Bailey, Toronto Maple Leaf star who was injured in December, 1933, by Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins defense man, in a game for which Shore was fined and suspended, was absolved of criminal intent by the Boston defence player until January 15 by Frank Calder, president and President of the American League, Calder stated here today in commenting on the suspension of Eddie Shore for causing injuries to Ace Bailey in a game in Boston last month.

"With Bailey off the danger list," Dandurand declared, "there is no reason why Shore should not be in the game any longer than Frank Patrick has decided."

New York, Jan. 4.—(CP)—"That's fine. It quite lets much in heart," was the statement of Eddie Shore of Boston Bruins.

Simpson said he thought the collision between Shore and Ace Bailey of the Toronto team was purely accidental.

120 TRAPPED BY BLAST IN COAL MINE

Believe All Are Already Dead From Gas Fumes

SIXTEEN RECOVERED

Fire Breaking Out Handicaps the Rescue Work

DUCHOVY, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 4—(AP)—Fire and poisonous gas swept a dual threat of almost certain death today toward 120 men trapped by a blast in the "Nelson III" coal mine.

Rescue workers, beaten back by the flames, feared all were doomed if not already dead of gas.

One hundred and forty men were in the diggings when the terrific explosion cooped them there late yesterday.

The bodies of 16 were recovered and four managed to clamber the 1,000 feet to surface safely, arriving in a state of stupor from gas and exhaustion.

Another body was recovered later. It was that of a washer-woman who died as she toiled in the shafthead.

Then, early today, fire broke out and raced through the underground passageways to halt all rescue efforts and add to the growing fear that the 120 men were dead and all.

The cause of the explosion had not been definitely ascertained. Many believed it resulted from ignition of an underground store of dynamite.

An investigation was started immediately. The Ministers of the Interior and of Public Works rushed here from Praha, the capital.

Throughout the night, thousands of anxious relatives, wives and children of the imprisoned men—crowded tearfully about the scene of the disaster.

So terrific was the detonation that every house in this city of 13,000 persons—centre of Northeastern Czechoslovakia's rich coal fields—was shaken.

From the surface it appeared to those first to rush to the mine, that the whole diggings had caved in.

The "Nelson III" is the largest mine in the district. Normally 700 men are employed. Recently 400 have been working in shifts.

Dairy Commissioner Warns Factories Against Shipping or Exporting Immature Cheese

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP)— A warning that if cheese factories do not stop shipping very immature cheese to the markets some coercive steps may be taken, was given today by J. F. Singleton, Dairy Commissioner of Canada. He was addressing the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario.

Negotiations were being carried out, Mr. Singleton said between the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand to reduce the amount of cheese being transhipped from Canada to the U. K. market. Some success was being made and Canada would likely be asked to join in the arrangement.

The proposal that each box of cheese should bear the mark when its make was discussed by the Commissioner. New Zealand marks its cheese to indicate the date when it was manufactured and there was a demand from the United Kingdom, that Canada do the same. The Commissioner thought it would result in getting better prices for October cheese and if such were the case it would be worth while.

The Commissioner did not mince words when it came to discussing the matter of shipping immature cheese. He emphasized that the more mature the cheese was when it was graded, the better was the opportunity for the grader to fix the grade in accordance with what would be the final quality of the product and thereby satisfy the ultimate purchaser.

RAILWAYS IN WANTED MAN U. S. IMPROVE IS WOUNDED

Plans Made to Tighten the 1920 Transportation Act

Washington, Jan 4 (AP)— The railroads of the United States would be given the broadest powers the Interstate Commerce Commission in its annual report today to be in a better condition than a year ago.

In a document covering the year ending December 1 the commission found the carriers' business improving, with operating costs reduced and conditions in general on the upgrade.

One new recommendation for legislation was made. All others will be left until such time as Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation, completes his study of the railroads. Then, the commission said, it will publish its conclusions.

The lone recommendation was that the 1920 Transportation Act be amended to give railroads more latitude in consolidating shippers who send freight from one foreign country to another over United States railroads.

Prior to 1920 the commission could control such shipments while by the United States. By the wording of the 1920 Transportation Act, however, it is said that a shipper in Canada for instance—sending goods to Mexico across the United States, can be given favors without running afoul of the Hiking Anti-Rebate Act or similar laws.

Shot In Chest By Detective When He Resists Arrest

Wanted at Moose Jaw on a charge of false pretences, Nicholson was wounded in the chest in a scuffle with Detective W. Lasko when he resisted arrest in a local cafe last night, police said.

The shooting occurred after Detective Lasko had arrested Nicholson on the street. He had taken him into a cafe and was phoning headquarters. As the policeman began to phone, according to eye witnesses, Nicholson closed with Lasko and began to fight.

Lasko reached his gun, was knocked down and at once drew his bullie. Nicholson managed to grab the bullie and made another attack on Lasko who drew his gun. In the struggle the gun discharged, rounding Nicholson.

Nazi Church Crisis May Force von Hindenburg to be Neutral

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—The possibility that the venerable President Paul Von Hindenburg might be forced to mediate in the German Evangelical Church fight appeared likely today while Protestant Bishops from every part of the Reich were hurrying to Berlin for a meeting.

The Bishops decided to convene for what they called a decisive blow against Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller, head of the Nazi church.

They charged Mueller had shown unfitness for leadership and that German Christians Church Minister entrusted with the task of unifying the church had betrayed that trust and created dissension instead.

"Powerful Forces For Recovery Exist" Says President

HOPE IN FUTURE

Present Course Must Be Carried on, States Executive

"Powerful forces for recovery exist."

"It is by laying a foundation of confidence in the present and faith in the future that the upturn which we see so far can be made permanent."

"The cornerstone of this foundation is the credit of the government."

"If we maintain the course I have outlined, we can confidently look forward to continued improvement; we can only hope that Alderman Sale will be accorded the same support that has been given in the past."

Mayor Tice stressed the need for meetings of the same nature as the present one.

Better Understanding

"They are helpful and have done much to create harmony between the Board."

Alderman W. A. Woodley addressed the gathering briefly.

"We have found more co-operation from the various boards and organizations than was ever noted before in the history of City Council. Last year when the budget was passed the budgets appeared too large. We called the boards before us and requested a round table talk. From this evolved a saving of $20,000. We

HARMONY WILL RULE IN 1934 IN COUNCIL

Suggestion Made That Relief Office Be Moved

PUBLIC NEEDS

Economy and Work Needs of Present Age, Meeting Told

Two civic bodies, the local City Council and Chamber of Commerce met at noon Thursday in the office of the latter body Chambers to demonstrate, in more concrete fashion the unity which exists between the two civic units. It was the annual luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at which members of the City Council were invited guests. Following Mayor Tice and members of the City Council, Mr. Robert Aylesworth, of the Chamber remarked on the annual happy occasion of such a dinner.

"By this method of unifying our activities we have been able to surmount the most difficult and complex troubles," he said.

For the first time in which the City Council of last year had challenged their ability they were heartily applauded and congratulated by the President.

Unity

To the new council we can do no more than wish every success during the coming year, and assure every one that the unfettered support of every member," the speaker continued. Introducing the Mayor and Aldermen voiced an expression of the Chamber for a happy and prosperous New Year.

Mayor Tice in replying briefly thanked the speaker for the best wishes and assured them the attendance of the Council. Alderman Mr. Boyce was a welcome one.

Relief Office Move

The suggestion that Relief Office was referred to by Mayor Tice. "The suggestion of Alderman Sale in this position was a good one and we can only hope that Alderman Sale will be accorded the same support that has been given in the past."

Mayor Tice stressed the need for meetings of the same nature as the present one.

City and District News

PICTON ROAD IS VERY DANGEROUS

Icy and slippery conditions still prevail on all highways leading out of the city according to information given out by this Motorcycle Patrol of the Provincial Police this morning. The highways leading east and west out of the city have been sanded quite freely but owing to the wavy winds the sand has apparently been blown from the highways leaving them icy and slippery. The condition of Highway No. 2 has been reported as being in a better condition than earlier in the week, while Highway No. 14 from Belleville to Picton, is reported to be very dangerous and in an icy condition. Motorists are advised to drive with caution on this road. North bound highways are improving, however, following a light fall of snow.

DONATIONS FOR RELIEF NEEDED

Relief figures have kept fairly stationary during the past month, but with the colder weather during the past few weeks, added demands have been made on the Central Relief Bureau today.

Relief work which is caring for a large number of men in the city has done much in relieving considerable distress, but it has not directly relieved the situation, as very great numbers of dependents, it was stated.

Donations to the Central Bureau of clothing and other coal resources are needed as adequately care for the many who apply.

LOCAL MARKET NEARLY DESERTED

The local market square presented a rather deserted picture on Thursday morning, when but one vendor of farm produce was there offering his goods for sale. Two purveyors of meats also braved the icy blasts while a number of loads of coal and wood were displayed, ready for use, on the north side of the old market square. The absence of purchasers was also noticeable.

BREAKS LEG WHILE CRANKING CAR

Cranking his truck while it was in low gear resulted in the fracturing of Ross Hogle's right leg last evening. Mr. Hogle was in the act of cranking his truck not knowing that it was in gear, when the vehicle suddenly darted ahead running over Mr. Hogle as it gained speed. The truck came to a full stop how-

Two prized cows owned by Wellington Lockwood of Enterprise, who Judas-like, led their fellow creatures to the stock cars at Enterprise later to be shipped to Belleville, became mixed with the main herd being shipped and by mistake almost ended up at the butcher's block yesterday.

TAKING DOWN ELECTRIC LIGHTS

Workmen of the local hydro electric system were busy taking down the myriad of electric light bulbs, which twinkling and dancing above the streets during the Christmas and New Year's season. Approximately 1200 bulbs of all colors which lighted the main thoroughfare during the season will be carefully stored with the other equipment at the local office until they are again erected next season.

A. B. CREALOCK IS MADE COUNCILLOR

Mr. Archie B. Crealock, B.A., Sc., designer and engineer in charge of the construction of the new steel bridges in this city, who became well known while resident here during construction, has been named Councillor on the Civil Branch of the Association of Professional Engineers at the election of officers for 1934 for that body held in Toronto according to advice received today at the city hall.

280 CUBIC YARDS OF SAND DELIVERED

With a total of 450 calls being received at the office of the city engineer from residents throughout the city, the approximate total of 280 cubic yards of material delivered in answer to calls for sand by residents of the city during the month of December is a new high record for the city works department. Seventy-five loads were delivered at the office, numerous other verbal requests were also honored by the men in the Cold Weather and ice-glazed walks created the unprecedented demand. So far in the month of January an abnormal demand for sand is also being experienced. It is believed, that Belleville is one of the very few cities or towns in the province where sand is delivered free of charge to residents for the purpose of sanding their walks.

UNEMPLOYED RALLY AT THE S. A. CITADEL

The spirit of good-will and cheerfulness is the motive behind the announcement of a New Year Festival of music to be given by the Salvation Army band in the citadel this evening, for the express cheer of the city's unemployed and their families.

A fine class program has been arranged by Bandmaster D. Wartle Adjutant and Mrs. A. W. Martin, and Sergeant-Major and Mrs. Hillsgale in the service.

All citizens are cordially invited, and the presence of citizens, interested in the humanity's welfare, is also welcome.

LORD BADEN-POWELL STAYS IN HOSPITAL

BARBED HOOKS FOUND IN WOODS

Believe Those Responsible Are Engaged in Poaching

Ugly, barbed hooks, needle sharpened after they had apparently been fashioned on an anvil, and then baited with small pieces of meat and hung a few feet above the ground with four limbs of trees in nearby woods, present evidence of a new evidence of mysterious poaching activities in this district.

That the new, torture traps had been planned for the capture of carnivorous animals or other animals was apparent from the manner in which the hooks had been baited with dried pieces of meat, and then hung within easy hunting distance of the ground. Herbivorous animals including rabbits could not be induced to go for the bait and impale themselves on the hooks, it was pointed out, as the mystery has led to many theories among local sportsmen and hunters who are indignant over the discovery.

That the work is thus reported has been used in the past on a few occasions for the successful capture of nuisance animals, but the closeness in the woods marks a new step in callous animal trapping.

The hooks, barbed and sharp pointed and fashioned from heavy one-eighth inch wire, were strung by heavy cord and hung from three separate trees in the deepest part of the woods. The owner of the hooks had ignored the two trespassing signs in the woods to set them.

FLYING BOAT REACHES NATAL

Crosses 1970 Miles of Ocean in Less Than Nineteen Hours

Natal, Brazil, Jan. 4 (AP) — The great Italian flying boat "Southern Cross" arrived here early today completing an Atlantic crossing from Saint Louis, Senegal.

The plane landed at 8 o'clock local time (5.10 a.m., E.S.T.) for a flying time of 19 hours, 17 minutes, for the distance, 1970 miles.

Off on its first experimental flight the craft left its starting point at 3.53 p.m., G.M.T. (10.53 a.m. E.S.T.) yesterday.

The four-motored hydroplane is the largest ever in a race with Germany to set up the first transAtlantic air mail line between Europe and South America via Africa.

Within two months, the French government hopes to initiate daily service between Dakar, and Rio de Janeiro with a ten-day hop scheduled over the South Atlantic.

OBSERVE WEEK PRAYER HERE

Concentration of Efforts in World Call to Prayer

Under the direction of the Belleville Ministerial Association the Universal Week of Prayer will be observed in the city commencing Monday, January 8th to Friday January 12th. Instead of special services being held in the various churches, the Association has decided to concentrate its effort at one central place, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, St. Andrew's Church will be the centre and at Christ Church, on Thursday and Friday. These services will commence at 8 p.m. and will last only for one hour. The subject for the basis of the intercessions will be presented in two short addresses and will conform to the programme observed throughout the world viz:

Monday—The need of the world.
Tuesday—The Church Universal.
Wednesday — The Family' and Youth.
Thursday—National and International Life.
Friday—The World-Wide Christian Mission.

In a circular sent out by the World's Evangelical Alliance and signed by over eighty Church leaders a very significant picture of the troubles of the day is portrayed and concludes with the following appeal to awaken in the minds of men and women the necessity of a concerted effort of prayer.

. . . . We must recognize with shame and sorrow how utterly inadequate is the witness of the Church to the demands and needs of the present situation. The burden of our prayer must be for a revival of the spirituality and power of the Church on a scale greater than we have yet dared to envisage. But a revival in God's way, not ours in a way, that may, wholly contrary to our pre-conceived ideas and expectations. New spiritual life is the need of the hour. "Lord, teach us dare to face reality."

The needs of the world in this New Year, just begun, will indeed be fully answered if the church throughout the different congregations in the city to realize appropriations of the world call to Prayer at this time.

U. S. BUDGET FAVORS NAVY

53 Millions For New Vessels and Continued Work

Washington, Jan. 4—(AP)— The United States Navy was dealt with generously in the budget plan sent by President Roosevelt today in asking funds for the service in his annual message.

The President asked Congress to appropriate $53,843,000 for new vessels and continued work upon those already authorized, an increase of $1,627,627 over such authorizing obligations during the fiscal year.

In general this would permit continuance of work on 15 vessels now being constructed with regular appropriations and the laying down of the last of 32 vessels—19,000 ton eight inch gun cruisers next January 1st. Of the 32 ships, three are separate and apart from the 32 vessels to be constructed with the $238,000,000 of the PWA estate, including a restoration of the cuts of the 15 percent pay cut taken by the services, called for $388,000,000. This was $5,966,818 less than the authorized obligations for 1934.

It was estimated, however, that with accrued balances to be carried forward in the 1933 fiscal year and use of unexpended funds from continuing appropriations, there would be available, for expenditure by the navy $315,591,231.

MANUFACTURING PLANTS VISITED BY CLASS

Arthur Wilson, Teacher, In Charge of the Class.

Mr. Arthur Wilson of West Huntingdon brought his Sunday School class of boys into the city on Thursday to visit some of the manufacturing plants.

Among the firms visited who very kindly showed them some of the mysteries of the factories were: The American Hardware Company, The Deacon Shirt Factory, The Alemite Products Company.

Mr. O. H. Pannch also took the boys through the county jail. The plans of the Quinte Sanatorium was visited where the class was much interested in the production of a daily newspaper.

The boys and Mr. Wilson were most grateful to all who spared time to take them through the plants giving them an idea of production methods.

Some of the members of the class were, Elvin Carr, Delbirt McGurdy, Harry McGowan, and Cyril Thompson, all of West Huntingdon.

BATTLE OVER UNITARIAN

Preaching in Liverpool Cathedral Called "Affront"

London, Jan. 4 (C.P. Cable) — The Battle of Liverpool, started months ago when a Unitarian preacher was allowed to deliver an address in Liverpool Cathedral, still rages.

Lord Cecil has petitioned the Archbishop of York to take action against the Bishop of Liverpool, Rt. Rev. Albert Davis, for permitting the preacher to speak in the Cathedral, describing it as an affront to the Church of England.

Today the Liverpool Review, of which the Bishop of Liverpool is editor, stated the Dean had invited the Unitarian to preach before the lodges in custom-lary attend the Cathedral before the opening of the new season. The Bishop who had not been consulted, disapproved and the Dean understood that such an invitation would not be repeated.

Another Unitarian, however, the Review explains, with full approval of the Bishop gave a series of three addresses on Sunday evening non-liturgical services. The Bishop holds the view this was justified.

Another statement from a body of laymen closely concerned with Liverpool Cathedral is directly opposed to the attack from Lord Cecil. It is not merely a question of a Unitarian speaking in the Cathedral, said the statement. The Dean invites a man or men who bear in their life and work the marks of the spirit of Jesus. The charge brought against the Bishop and the Dean challenges not only a few specific acts but the whole concept of the pastoral and consequent character of the church.

SILVER COINAGE PROPOSAL

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP) — The proposal for free coinage of silver was laid before President Roosevelt today by United States Senators Wheeler of Montana and King of Utah, two ardent silver advocates very satisfied with the interview.

STAND ON ARMS PARLEY

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—Premier Mussolini was said today to be definitely opposed to resuming the world disarmament conference unless the France-German deadlock is cleared up first.

COUNTY NEWS

CREAM TRUCK CROSSES FIELDS TO MAKE TRIPS

Rawdon, Jan. 3.—Christmas week was the coldest on record with the thermometer registering thirty below and more. The weather was most severe with the snow piling the roads so that traffic was blocked. By the end of the week frost had crept in everywhere. The bus from Stirling to Campbellford was unable to make its daily trips after Tuesday and the cream truck had difficulty in reaching town Tuesday evening via the fields. The bread man made his Tuesday trip but after that the folks were obliged to bake bread. So several of the women resorted to their own baking. However by Saturday the storm broke and the glorious rain on Sunday was a welcome change from the severe cold.

On Sunday owing to the death of Mrs. Johnson, the fourth line was made passable for cars and on New Year's day several of the other roads were cleared for motors.

Throughout it all the mail carrier Mr. Fred McDonald, made his daily rounds and it was certainly very pleasant to get the mail each day, despite the terrible weather.

On Sunday morning the landscape presented a lovely picture as every tree and shrub was beautifully frosted and this lasted till late in the afternoon.

Miss Bessie MacMullen of Campbellford spent a few days with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Sharp.

Mr. and Mrs. James Thornton entertained Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Pauley, Hazel, Gladys and Cecil of Wellman's, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCartney of Hillcrest, Mr. and Mrs. Bell and George Stewart on Christmas Sunday.

The closing quarterly service of praise and thanksgiving for 1933 was held at Bethel church on Sunday morning, Dec. 31st. Owing to the terrible condition of the roads a smaller number than usual was able to attend.

Mr. Conger McConnell, Olive and Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clay at Ivanhoe.

The young folks at Mount Pleasant are busy practising their play, "Lighthouse Nan", which they hope to give early in February in aid of the hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson and family were Christmas guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Johnson, Mt. and Mrs. Remington Hoard.

THE BIG SWITCH

"The year of the big switch—from worse to better," is what professors who have been economists and have turned back to historians will call the year 1933 which passed without a murmur, comments Will Rogers.

"So, so long '33! Panics come every twenty years, so we will be seeing you in '53."

Probably Rogers has hit the nail on the head. Perhaps not. He has at least said the thing others would like to say, but could not say in so original a way.

There is now an optimism that early 1933 did not show. Things have changed greatly from the conditions of late February, when the United States banking condition cast a "blue" reflection on the world, though it is true while Britain was slowly advancing her way to recovery. The great gloom of last February is gone.

The financial outlook for the new year finds sober hopes looming fairly large. The year 1933 ended with a recovery, the first since 1928. The arguments for optimism are: (1) The natural upturn of business cycle has arrived after four years. (2) Confidence has returned. (3) Buying power has been visibly enhanced.

Recovery is simultaneous in most countries of the world. (5) Belief that trade and industry must respond to increased purchasing in Canada's week up 21 7-8 per cent. in 1933. (6) Belief that trade and industry must in the United States follow the prompting of the government's measures.

The counter-arguments are as follows: (1) The upturn was due to take place in 1933 and there is no evidence that the upturn is more than artificial. (2) Fears of currency inflation have impaired hopes in the United States. (3) While buying power has been enhanced through increased production, it has been stimulated by the large cash bonuses of the U. S. government. (4) While the world outside of the U. S. is in many points better off, the barriers to international trade continue, and the markets for world trade are disorganized and there are serious international problems unsettled. (5) There is no certainty of the future of the U.S. government plan.

Yet restrained hope seems to be the outlook and the dominant note for 1934.

It has been said that there are nine year cycles in business, which would mean the next peak about 1938. Today is nearly midway between October 1929 and October 1938, but then forecasts are never exactly met. That is clear enough to anyone who has tried to reach an advanced conclusion during the past four years.

Now in the religious world there is a body of feeling that those who look for the return of conditions as they were before 1929 must be disappointed. The old days would merely hinder recovery, is the view of Rev. Dr. Sockman, of New York City. The new year means a call for religion according to the Christian Commission and the finding is that "there is no enduring hope for business politics, internationalism and the common interests of the individual and the home except such hope be founded on the eternal truth of God and be directed by His Spirit." The commission sees unmistakeable signs of the change for better. "The supreme task of the church is this—the creation of a type of character that can bear the emotional as well as the mental strain of the present and yet have sufficient reserve power and insight to make a real new day."

A FINE RESOLUTION

That there should be resolutions for the New Year against passing judgment on others is the view of a New Yorker, in one of the finer art of personal relations. These are days when persons are sensitive, suspicious, fretful, and fearful that their humiliation may be discovered. Be careful in forgiving always and sometimes blind.

"Resolve to withhold judgment of any offense charged against your fellow man until you learn all of the provoking circumstances, and put yourself in his place. . . . We shall have a friendlier time of it when we can remember the best and forget the rest."

We are not to lead events, but follow them.—Epictetus.

The public is wiser than the wisest critic.—Bancroft.

The public wishes itself to be managed like a woman; one must say nothing to it except what it likes to hear.—Goethe.

Trust in God but keep your powder dry. —Cromwell.

Doubt whom you will but never doubt yourself.—Bovee.

ON CONSTRUCTION

(By JACK CADDEN, Construction Department, AMA.)

We're out upon Construction, so I'll sing a little song,
To while away the hours and pass the time along;
The Yard is dark and empty as the night-wind murmurs by,
And the moonlight drips like silver from the blue and starry sky.

We're out upon Construction, and we're certain work to do,
We come it to damnation — but we always see it through;
The yard is badly scrambled, but it's part of our career
To give substantial footing to the ardent Pioneer.

They're sent us on Construction far away from busy streets,
To lay the iron arteries where the blood of business beats;
We're fifty-seven mixtures from as many different lands,
But the passport of the worker is the hair upon his hands.

There's music on Construction, but the symphony is rough,
It's the dreary roar of iron as the gin-pole does its stuff;
It's the slithered purr of skidways as she's mounting to the peak,
Oh I know the kind of language that the rusty beggars speak!

I've cursed on Construction to the brake-shoe's noisy screech,
And the grumbling of the brake-beams, as they blathered each to each;
I've hammered senseless ditties to the clicking of the wheels,
As we beat it, Hell-for-leather—down the grade to foreign fields.

I've sweated on Construction as we strove with rod
Bringing Order out of Chaos in some unsurveyed domain;
And I've cursed through thorn and thicket, that the wilderness-line might stand.
Where the transit points lie muzzle o'er the wastes of Nb-Man's Land.

So we'll drink "To old Construction"—they may damn the best of us they like,
But they're mighty glad to ramble when we've built the blooming' pike;
And the lords of all Creation wouldn't travel on the dust,
If it wasn't for the ladies with the hair upon their chest!

TORONTO LIKE BELLEVILLE refused to change civic pilots for 1934 and Mayor Stewart was returned with an umpty-ump majority well up in the thousands (over fifty thousand to be more exact) over his several opponents. This is Mayor Stewart's fourth term and he is still going strong, having become more or less well known all over the Dominion since stepping into the spotlight of Toronto civic politics.

He is a pleasing speaker and created a very favorable impression when he spoke earlier at a gathering in Belleville some time ago.

MAYOR GEORGE TICE has been retained as skipper of the civic ship of state for another year, and is squaring away for a safe and successful voyage, the skipper can be seen fair weather ahead and good cargoes. The depression which has covered most of the trade routes of the world is falling in its opinion that there is fine weather and good times ahead—for its always fine weather when good fellows get together, etc.—sing as many verses as you like.

ALDERMAN WM. McCREARY has been appointed chairman of Waterworks in the City Council cabinet, a very important office. Alderman McCreary has given valuable service to the city in the past as a member of the City Council, and this year as head of this important department can be depended upon to give it his best attention and the benefit of his keen business ability. When you stop to think of it the waterworks system in this city constitutes a big business with practically every householder a customer. A pure and persistent supply of water for household purposes and for fighting fire is an absolute necessity—interruption of the water supply for even an hour being a hardship. Hence, the appointment of Alderman McCreary as Chairman of Waterworks meets the approval of all citizens.

ALD. JOHN B. HARKER takes over the light folio vacated by Ald. Armstrong of last year's City Council. This is also an important department and under Ald. Armstrong the lighting of the city was greatly improved. Let there be light and more light, there cannot be too much civic light, so Ald. Harker has no light job, but he has the ability to make his department a success. Alderman Harvey takes over the portfolio of Labor from Ald. Safe and the latter will devote his time and talents to Industries, while Ald. Cushing, a brand new member will show what he can do to promote tourist traffic with publicity.

Country at Crossroads—Opposing Parties' Views Explained

Prof. George Warren — Prof. Irving Fisher

Written for Central Press Canadian

By LESLIE GOULD

Noted New York Financial Writer

New York, Jan. 4.—For the third time in its history the United States is at a monetary crossroads. The path to the right leads back to a currency with a fixed value or content of gold.

The other leads down a highway never trod before—it is the path of the "commodity" or "flexible" dollar—a currency with a changing gold base or content aimed to give a fixed or constant purchasing power in terms of commodities.

In the other two times, the first after the Revolutionary War and the second after the Civil War, the way out has been rocky and the going hard at times, but it was a route known and tried before.

The Choice

Today, the choice has yet to be made, although the trend is toward the commodity path—the policy of the "commodity" dollar and managed currency.

Such a move the U.S. is bound to have representation in Canada. Its effects will be felt on commodity prices.

This is the brain child of a group of professors, who have had a big hand in shaping the course of the New Deal in the United States. Prof. George F. Warren of the Cornell agricultural faculty is the leading exponent of this part. Another is Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, remembered for his verbal defence of Wall Street before the fall of 1929 as against the warnings of Roger Babson.

Warren is a part of the administration crowd at Washington. Fisher is not, but both are in agreement on this money scheme. Prof. John Harvey Rogers of Yale is ranked earlier as one of the Washington professorial twins—Warren and Rogers—has passed the word out via his publicity agents that the "dollar is dead" and that 59 cents—the maximum allowed by law—is the gold price which would come the second part, the establishment of the commodity dollar.

Based on Price Index

Instead of the dollar always having a fixed weight or value in gold, it is proposed to base it on the price index for a general list of commodities. The index favored is the U. S. department of Labor's, based on the prices of 784 commodities.

300 HAMPERS DISTRIBUTED

W. C. A. Holds Regular Monthly Meeting on January 2

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Association was held in the Council Chambers of the City Hall on Tuesday, January 2, with the President, Mrs. R. J. Bell in the chair.

Mrs. C. A. Marshall was appointed lady-in-duty at the Home for the Aged for the month of January.

December 25th was a record of 300 hampers sent to the Unemployed through the Churches, Girl Guides, Rotary Club, Salvation Army and the Firemen. Fuel was sent to 72 families through the Corby Fund.

A very kind contribution was made by Mrs. J. W. Imlah of the receipts for the indigent burials, made by him during the year 1933.

Donations December 1933, to the Home for the Aged were:

Mr. E. Wallbridge, basket snow apples.

In this index, 100 represents the 1926 level of prices for those 784 commodities. This is the announdced goal of the administration's price raising plans, of which the gold buying program is an important part. The index number now stands just above 70. It still has 30 points to go to reach the goal. In February, just before the banking holiday this index stood at 59.8.

Under the Warren plan, the dollar would still have a gold backing, but this would be raised or lowered from time to time as the general level of prices rises or falls. For example, if the commodity index after the goal of 100 is reached rises above that level, then the value of gold in the dollar would be increased. If the commodity index falls below that level, the amount of gold in the dollar would be decreased.

How it Would Work

To put it another way, to bring a rise in commodity prices the amount of gold backing the "dollar" dollar would be reduced. That is the dollar would be cheapened. To bring a decline in commodity prices, the amount of gold in the dollar would be increased. That is the dollar would be made more valuable.

The governments is attempting this now. The R.F.C. is cheapening the dollar by its gold purchases at increasingly higher prices in an effort to bring a rise in commodity prices in terms of the dollar.

"The object, or hope, is to give the dollar a more stable purchasing power, so that if it will buy a bushel of wheat today, it will do that same thing a year from now or ten years from now. This is regardless whether there is an over supply of wheat one year or an undersupply the next.

Warren's Explanation

Prof. Warren in explaining this theory says:

"A scientific money is one with a stable buying power for all commodities, rather than a fixed weight of any one commodity. Our whole tax and debt structure rests on commodity prices. If this structure is to be kept sound either for creditor or debtor, it is commodity prices that we must keep stable, not the weight of gold for which a dollar will exchange.

"This theory is that if a man borrows a dollar when wheat is selling for that figure, then when it comes time to repay the loan, a dollar should still be worth a bushel of wheat. To insure this, the idea is to change from time to time the amount of gold backing in a dollar, so that it will always have the same economic law of supply and demand or of bumper crops and droughts.

At the arena last night the Belleville junior and intermediate teams had their first practice of the season, and most of them showed quite a bit of class. The intermediates had the ice first from six to seven o'clock and they were put through a hard workout. Belleville has a fine bunch of intermediates and they should be heard from in this group. The first intermediate game in Belleville will be on the twelfth of this month when Whitby will be Belleville's opponents. From seven to eight o'clock the juniors had the ice and quite a bunch turned out. Manager Gilbert was coaching the boys and they showed a stiff practice. The juniors seem to have good defence in those in goal and Penlock and Finkle. The forward line has five candidates who look pretty good. They are Elliott, Moore, Goyer, Blabop and Box. The last named was not out last night, but from all reports he must be pretty fast.

Cards addressed to the electorate appear in to-day's issue from the following as candidates for election as aldermen: A. C. McFee, S. H. Treverton, C. Wallbridge, Wm. Lott, E. O. Platt, James Duckworth, Daniel Ellis, Charles Mc-Ginty, R. P. White, E. D. O'Flynn, W. J. Smith.

CITIES SERVICE ON TOP OF KINGSTON LOOP

Oilmen Finish in First Place in Kingston Hockey Loop by Defeating North End 5-1

Will Meet Winners of Hemlocks-Brockville in the Finals

FIST FIGHT

"Maze" Rigby Scores Two Goals in First Appearance With Team

Cities Service finished in first place in the Kingston City League by virtue of their 5 to 1 victory over the North End Club of Kingston last evening and will now await the ultimate winners of the play-off between Kingston Hemlocks and the Brockville Magedomas for the league title.

Last night's tussle proved a rather spirited affair and saw plenty of action throughout with fistic encounters standing out. The final stanza when the North Enders were faced with practical elimination, as a loss sustained by them had already counted them out of the league picture, developed several hitting and lighting-like combinations plays participated in by the "oilmen" completely baffled the Kingstonians despite the fact that they managed to score the initial goal of the game. Their lead was short-lived, however, as Mac Rigby evened matters for the losers and the locals went on to win a clean-cut victory and the league leadership of the Kingston City League. Les Tice in the local nets turned in his usual steady game and was afforded excellent protection by Hanks and Rigby, with McGuire filling in relief roles. The second line of Macdonald, Nickol and Harry Morgan have never been seen at a better advantage this season carrying plenty of speed and perfect combination to score clever goals. Hughie Boyd in his initial game however, bagged two counters on solo efforts, as did Art Morgan and Carl Morgan also played good hockey. Bruce Hanks was one of the homeiers on the attack with many dangerous rushes while Mutchmore, Tommy Boyd and Lopez were themselves into exhaustion in a futile attempt to finish the season in a glorious blaze.

The Play.

Boyd scored the opening goal after some four minutes of play when he took a pass from St. Louis at the Belleville blue line. Rigby on the attempt evened the count only to have the local "kid line" of Morgan, Nickol and MacDonald stage the nicest combination play seen thus far this season in the Kingston City League with Morgan bulging the twine. The same trio combined some moments later with McDonald taking the puck on a solo beating Brooks with a nice snake shot. No score was registered in the second stanza, while Rigby operated the local cards with a lone rush that resulted in a pretty goal for Belleville. Art Morgan and Lewis came to blows at the finish with the entire roster of both teams taking part. Referee Stanfield cancelled the rest. Pats were flung quite freely and several penalties meted out before eventual peace and quietness was restored. With Art Morgan and Lewis taking a ten minute penalty to cool off. When they returned to the ice, however, he demonstrated his ability by giving Nickol a beautiful pass a goal that ended the game and gave Belleville first place in the 1933-34 edition of the Kingston City League. The play-off games have not as yet been announced.

Belleville — Goal, Tice; defence, Brand and Rigby; centre, Covert; wings, J. Morgan and P. Morgan; subs, Nickol, Lewis, Hanks, Boyd and McGuire.

Atlantic City, N.J., Jan. 4.—(CP)—Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia Athletics star and holder of the major league home run record for the past two seasons, leaves for Florida today to begin training for the 1934 baseball season, confident he will break his record held by Babe Ruth.

"All I want is a break in my own physical condition," Foxx said, "I was greatly handicapped at the start of last season by a leg injury, which had me in the hospital on the opening day. I am in shape now.

"If I can keep in shape I believe I can crack out about 45 homers next season," he added.

JUNIORS EARN 3-2 DECISION

Tweed Juniors Taken Into Camp By Newly-Formed Team.

Displaying mid-season form the Belleville Juniors downed the Tweed and Trenton Valley Leaguers by a 3 to 2 score in the Northern village last evening. The game saw the first appearance of the local kids together; this season and taking into consideration the fact, they had not been afforded a single practice session, victory only adds to their progress.

Under the new managership of Eddie Thomas, the local juniors were but drafted together yesterday in time for the game, however, when they faced Sam Curry's more seasoned and experienced outfit, the team play on the part of the Belleville aggregation proved the deciding factor. A number of new faces were seen in the Belleville uniform, when Bob Greer, of Wellington junior basketball fame, lined-up on the defence with Jim Rollins of last year's junior team. Terry, a forward was another new comer to junior hockey as was "Stew" McBrairh. The rest of the team's roster is made up from last year's team with the exception of "Shiner" Bowman, who guarded the nets for the locals and was the shining light for the Belleville cause. Greer and Rollins played well but the feature of the team was their forward combination. Ross Bowman the local front line stood out for the Belleville team with Mc-Guire, Howie, High and McBrairh also showing to an advantage. With other younger junior material in Belleville and the future of junior hockey in Belleville seems assured for coming season. R. McGuire, C. Bradshaw and McCutcheon looked the best for Sam Curry's pets from Tweed.

The Play

Only one goal was scored in the initial frame if coming after some seven minutes of play. When a beautiful solo effort, Don Lee split the defence and scored. Then a pass from Cutcheon to open the scoring. C. Rashotte, on a pass from R. McGuire evened the count in some seconds, while on a solo attempt Neville McGuire scored to give the lead just before the second stanza ended. Mc. McGuire netting the count for the homesters in the third period. Referee Stanfield travelled, when Geo High out-footed Tweed and Bradshaw, for what proved to be the final goal. Time was up as the game terminated.

The line-ups:—Belleville — goal, Stinfield, defence, Greer and Kokesh; centre, High; wings, Howie and McGuire; subs—Lee, McBrath and Terry. Tweed—goal, McCutcheon; defence, Leal, Lafountaine; centre R. Bradshaw; wings, Ross Bowman and Marsh; subs—Archer, Spanglo, Nantais and Simmons.

Referee—Quinn of Tweed.

EDDIE SHORE IS SUSPENDED FOR 16 GAMES

Eligible to Play Against Rangers on Jan. 28th

SIFTED EVIDENCE

Sentence Announced After Bailey Declared Out of Game

Montreal, Jan. 4 (CP) — Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins' defence star suspended for 16 games, will be eligible to play again on January 28 when Bruins play New York Rangers in New York, Frank Patrick, managing director of the National Hockey League, announced today.

Shore was suspended after "Ace" Bailey of Toronto Maple Leafs, had been knocked to the ice in a game at Boston, December 12, suffering a fractured skull.

Shore will have been suspended for 16 games in all. Reginald "Red" Horner, Toronto defence, who knocked Shore down after Bailey was injured, received suspension for six games and is now back at his regular position on the Leafs' defence.

Patrick received word from Boston surgeons yesterday that Bailey is definitely out of danger following a two and one-half hour operation and several lumber punctures to remove pressure from the brain. Bailey will remain in Boston hospital for two weeks, long enough strength to be taken home to Toronto.

His life was almost despaired of for days, and the entire hockey world eagerly scanned the doctors' bulletins for word of his progress.

Patrick's Statement

Announcing his decision in the Eddie Thomas, the local junior will be drafted together yesterday in time for the game, however, when they faced Sam Curry's more seasoned and experienced outfit, the team play on the part of the Belleville aggregation proved the deciding factor. TO MAROONS

DRAW EVANS

Montreal Maroons got Stew Evans and Detroit got Teddy Graham in a swap made in an effort to bolster up the Detroit defense, which was playing pro hockey for four years, two with Detroit in the N.H.L.

Ky's condition was, of course, of paramount importance, but Manager Ty of Boston, assures me that Bailey is now out of danger. This is most gratifying to everybody associated with hockey and to the countless thousands of fans all over America, who have earnestly prayed for his recovery since this most regrettable affair occurred in Boston on December 12.

Not Vicious Player

"Proper consideration has been given to the mental anguish Shore has undergone and to the fact his playing record does not class him as a vicious player. This is established by the fact he has participated in about 400 games in the National Hockey League and he has never been given a match penalty before. During the progress of these hearings Shore has been represented by counsel and has engaged to act for and on behalf of the National Hockey League both in Boston and Montreal. Fifty-one depositions were taken, which included all the players participating in the game on match on December 12 in Boston.

"A questionnaire was prepared so that the answers could be properly tabulated. Evidence under oath was taken from the Boston sports writers as well as sworn statements from the referees and linesmen.

"The idea being to make the investigation as thorough as possible so that a just decision could be arrived at. It developed that only five players of the thirty-four and four players of the Boston team actually saw the incident between Shore and Bailey. The attention of the players on the ice was more concentrated on the play which was at this time some distance away, sharp differences of opinion existed among the players as to whether Shore actually struck Bailey in a malicious manner.

"There is no doubt that he did contact Bailey with some considerable force, but this in itself would be an illegal play, hence Shore must accept the responsibility for his ill-advised action. The fact that he was in a dazed condition as a result of a fall has to be given consideration and indicate that at this time he was dazed, his judgment may be by the sudden realization of what he had accidentally injured. I cannot say. Players, critics and spectators, in fact, every one who gave evidence, state that Bailey and Shore had been between these players, and there were no indications in the game itself that would lead anyone to believe that something of a serious nature would inevitably occur.

No Malice

"We must assume then that what, ever did occur was of a spontaneous nature with no malice or intent. Mr. Shore claims that the contact was accidental, and many witnesses back his claim. I am free to admit that I do not know for there is some conflict of evidence on this point although the preponderance of the testimony is that the contact was accidental.

"I firmly believe Shore had no intention of injuring Bailey and in his playing, received an injury to his head which has been given a more major penalty, which means either a 10-minute or five-minute penalty.

"In arriving at this decision, Bail-

SKATING CLUB NEWLY FORMED

Dr. M. E. Branscombe Elected President For Year

Dr. M. E. Branscombe of this city was elected president of the Belleville Fancy and Figure Skating Club at their annual meeting held at the Belleville arena last evening. A large and representative gathering of the club members was on hand to usher in the fancy skating season when the club enjoyed a figure skating and practice previous to the electing of officers.

The annual report showed that at present there are seventy-five club members now enrolled, with new members seeking admittance to the club daily. The committee in charge announced the meeting date for a nominal fee the arena has been arranged for the season, with special rates for school children, while club and club members being set aside on Wednesday evenings and one afternoon over each week-end. The Belleville Fancy Skating Club is enthused over the progress of the organization which incidentally saw its inception but one year ago. It was pointed out to the public that all interested in skating are invited to join the organization regardless whether they were interested in fancy or figure skating or not.

Invited to Tweed.

Mr. Stan Wilbur announced that the club would be pleased to make public demonstration at a monster carnival in Tweed this winter when Dr. V. Blakiske proposed that later in the season the club stage an ice carnival in Belleville when the Belleville Skating Club would make initial appearance before a local audience. The motion was received with a favorable reception and it was also announced that all information regarding the carnival and new members could be obtained from any member of the executive committee. Correspondence was read to inform the club that outside-of-the-city participants would be welcomed this season as letters inquiring information concerning membership in the club had been received from Frankford, Trenton, Tweed and Picton. It was decided by the club, by paying the sum of $1.741.10 proceeds of the regular league match, has in effect paid a voluntary fine, and a sum in excess of any amount that I would have personally inclined to impose upon them as a fine."

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

(By the Canadian Press)

Montreal Canadiens, the only team able to humble Toronto Leafs twice this season, take another crack at the front-running National Hockey League champions' goals in the first quarter of the busiest hockey night in a long while.

Habitants, who have a 2-1 edge on the Leafs with the Leafs so far, although they are 12 points behind the Canadian division leaders in Montreal. Up in Ottawa Senators, with Howie Morenz Eddie Shore's fate, meet Senators; Maroons at the Americans; in New York and Rangers play Red Wings at the Garden.

With only a point separating the Rangers, Detroit and Boston and all of them in action, anything may happen to the American section standing. Similarly Ottawa and Maroons could very well change places as the Capital team are only a point ahead of the Montrealers in the Canadian division's third place.

Leafs go to Montreal without "Busher" Jackson, on the injured list, and "Headline" Hollett, their sensational rookie recruit, the confident young Torontonian will step into a new-style uniform tonight and add Clitter Conacher to an arrangement whereby he is sold to the Leafs for the season.

Stew Evans, who has picked up a lot of speed with Detroit's pick-up or and major league teams, will make his first appearance in a Maroon uniform in New York. Ted Graham, traded for him, will hold down a defence berth with Detroit's Jack Adams' Wings, with Ebbie Goodfellow, who has been moved back from centre to strengthen the rearguard.

Adams also has a new goalie for Leo Reise, marksmen to shoot at. Wilf Cude, moved up from Syracuse, will tend the nets for the Wings, replacing John Ross Roach who is being given a rest. Bolstering the Detroit lines are Gaetz Gaetz Leeman and Wilf Starr, promoted from Detroit Olympics.

TORONTOS TIE WITH TIGERS

Teddy Olliver Scores Winning Goal Against Kitchener

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 4—(CP) —A bullet-like drive from the stick of Teddy Olliver of the Tigers shot put a stop to the rejuvenated Kitchener Empires after the latter had fought their way from last to the same time placed the Toronto Tigers and Toronto Hamilton in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association race standings.

The steaming shot of Olliver's early in the final yet remained out of last night's game and although Tommy Benner in the Kitchener net stopped the drive, it was carried enough force to enable it to roll over and into the net, giving Toronto the game by a 2-1 score.

It was a heart-breaking reverse for the players, who have played an inspired style of hockey since Dutch Hauser, Honey Kunin, and Wilf Hamel, purged professionals, joined their ranks.

CURRENT SPORT

"Home again."

During our few days absence from this city, the world of sport and sporting gossip has taken root and became quite interesting, indeed. It looks as though Santa Claus left a bit share of goodies, in the stockings of the Belleville Nationals. Perhaps the most important sporting news lately was the reinstatement of Jack "Chief" Williams, who is now a resident of Belleville and will once more thrill the baseball fans at the local ball park next season, we hope. Vaughan Jack, of Madoc, another ex-professional baseller also was recommended for reinstatement, thus assuring the locals of a classy infielder.

The latest addition is local baseball circles is none other than Bob Greer of Wellington. Greer once was pressed into service to replace Jimmy Mills, when the latter was suffering from an injured finger. Mills, however, is confident Junior did himself justice that summer day and has been drafted by the local senior club ever since. Bob is the son-in-law of W. F. Bowsome, manager of the local Stewart-Warner Alemite Company. Greer is a resident of Belleville and will be found ever-ready to help any worthy cause. Another new diamond aspirant is Jim Rollins, who will also line-up with the locals. He hails from Tweed and has been last few seasons in the 1934 Belleville and district league. Jim should be a banner season, so much for baseball.

Thanks to the weatherman the Belleville rink is functioning day and night with skaters and aspirants of hockey and fancy skill to the vantage of the available hours. Predictions are that the rink will be the making towards the building of a fine hockey team for the coming opening game of the season scheduled for Monday night next, when the Kingston Frontenacs will be the room meet the local D.A.C. Interfactory squad. The latter, coached of Don Morton, in the nets along with Bellringer, Aker and Nicholson the Ingram-Davis-Whitton aggregation will be strengthened by the addition of another six players this season, which will make it possible to ice two teams. The latter, known as the senior "B" club, should add considerable strength to the Maroons.

Due to the untiring efforts of the majority of its members, the Belleville Figure and Fancy Skating Club has had a very busy, but pleasant and better season. With Dr. M. E. Branscombe as president, the club now boasts of 69 members with new applications coming in daily. Although the more active members have taken to fancy and figure skating, the majority of members are merely skake about in the rink for the healthful exercise and with the result, that a good time is had by all. Miss Mary Bell has been as graceful as a skater gliding over the ice. Last night in their every class when the local club is practising for the coming season, they will avail themselves of the opportunity to have the committee present, that has been accomplishing the work of the local skaters in one short season. Tonight the last night of the class the local Rangers downed the Victoria Harbor team 3 to 2 in a very close kind of an exhibition game of hockey.

Judging from the showing of the local juniors in their initial appearance last season, when they downed the Tweed kids 3 to 2 last evening, the efforts of the Ki-Y boys in staging a junior league for many years the Ki-Y loop has functioned for seniors only, is not until last season did they so much as think of forming a class for juveniles will add considerable strength to the local kids this season. We have seen the Ki-Y junior kids, under 18 years of age, who have been in the senior and junior hockey. Incidentally the various teams in the Ki-Y league meet this evening to draft their players.

In a most fitting manner the Belleville Cities Service finished the regular league schedule in the Kingston City League on top of the aforesaid the North End Club by a 5 to 1 score last evening, thus securing the "Oilmen" of first place in the loop. The Dudley-Leggat edition new meet the ultimate winners of the play-off between the Brockville Magedomas and the Kingston Hemlocks. The "oilmen" won nine of the 15 games played. They lost but one contest and that one, a creditable record for any club in any man's league.

We see where Syd Tyson of Oshawa and Joe Spring of Toronto, two well known baseball players of past years, have been reinstated.

"Tiger" St. Denis and Andy Knott Force Opponents to Limit

Six speedy bouts packed with thrills and knockdowns before a fairly large audience of local fight fans, marked the initial effort Wednesday evening of the fourth Rod Aitcheltic Club to hold their first series of bi-monthly boxing matches at their new club house on South Front street.

Every surprise boxers carried off amateur honors for the evening in the main event, when Andy Knott defeated by experience in both decisions managed to extend the former opponent, the fight was a hard one for Semain, but he managed to earn a hard won decision by his gameness and clearer hitting. Cook landed long clean punches and his heavier blows. Semain piled up points in each round to gain the judge's decision.

Midgets Draw

Pugh and Kellar, 65 pound class, fought to an even draw, although the bout presented was a hard one for both. Both youngsters were well marked at the finish of the fray, but throughout the whole fight the swift action was carried along.

Goyer and Aselstine, 80 pounds, in the certain miner, also fought like professionals throughout the whole three rounds, with little quarter to be given or asked. Aselstine emerged the winner, although a last minute rally by Goyer managed to party even the score and the punishment that had been received in the earlier rounds.

The position of referee was capably filled by Mr. "Chick" Folwell, former president of the city and now vacation for a few days from his home in Detroit.

Attorney W. Harvey and Archie Goyer were record and time keepers.

The bouts were the first of a series which are to be held every second Wednesday.

BULLDOG'S DEFENCE NOT SO RELIABLE

Cleveland Indians Score 3-2 Win in Border City

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 4.—(CP)—A usually reliable Windsor defence was blamed today for the Bulldogs' being handed a 3-2 setback in an International Hockey League fixture here last night.

All three Indian goals were scored when the puck-carrier made his way in on "jumping Jakie". Forbes without molestation. The loss was Windsor's sixth in eight games and their second on home ice this season. If the Canadians had been peaceful they would have advanced their point total over the Clevelands but the defeat leaves them seven points down to the Indians.

Window lad on two occasions but "Hap" Holmes kept his team playing and they always came back to tie it up.

Mr. and Mrs. R. McGee and Donna were week end guests at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. McKown.

Late Mrs. Wm. Johnson

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Johnson was held on Tuesday afternoon, January 3rd., it being the deceased's 70th. birthday, at Mount Pleasant (Rawdon) United Church.

Her pastor, Rev. P. C. Joblin, delivered a comforting message based on the text found in St. Matthew, 5: 4, "Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted." Favorite hymns of the deceased were sung, "Nearer My God to Thee," "Take My Life and Let it be" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Miss McConnell rendered an appropriate solo, "The Home Over There."

Deceased was converted early in life and came to her home here 49 years ago, and brought with her a quiet, Christian devotion to her new home, her family and her church. Just before Christmas she contributed several baskets of Christmas cheer to the needy in Stirling, and at that time she herself was very ill. One of the main characteristics of her heart was to help others.

The pall bearers were Messrs Jas. Sharp, Cooper McConnell, Edgar McKown, Fred Hulin, Will Potts and John Holmes.

Wreath—Husband and daughter.

Sprays—Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson and Carlyn; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson and family; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young and George.

Relatives and friends attending the service were: Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson and Carlyn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunham of Wellman; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, Thomas, Ray and Edna of Frankford; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dunham and Earl; Mrs. Milton Blakely of Seymour West.

HARMONY WILL RULE IN 1934

hope to have the Roxy cut down on expenditures as much this year.

Harbor Development

Ald W. Donaldson mentioned harbor development. "I hope we're going ahead in that."

Next year, intimated the chairman of Public Works a greater appropriation will be needed. But, every cent of money that is spent will be used usefully.

"Spending of public works department last year was the lowest in nearly thirty years" stated the chairman.

Alderman Donahue mentioned as also unlucky, the repairing, the repairing of streets next year. This brought a question from Mr. H. Ackerman.

"Doesn't this relief - work take care of fixing the streets, after?"

"The relief work hasn't a thing to do with the pavement."

Alderman Harker spoke of future activities as Chairman of Light.

"One of our first jobs will be to press for the lighting of Bridge street and Victoria Avenue properly lighted" also he was strongly in favour of a twelve months' residence rule clause for relief applicants.

Progress Made

President Parker—"We believe the Chamber is making some progress on this matter."

Alderman Marshall thanked members of the Chamber of Commerce for the hospitality extended.

The general system in council and I've always tried to do all I could on it," he said.

The speaker referred to the many improvements that had been effected at the city hall and the saving of $116.00 on the light bill last year.

"These repairs have been carried on upstairs in the building last year but this year we'll start scrubbing downstairs. I'm going to rim-rack the place from top to bottom."

The location of the relief office at the city hall was scored by the speaker. An office should also be provided for the city solicitor at the city hall and he should occupy it, stated Alderman Marshall.

New Police Station

Construction of a new police station is also another big question that must be considered by city council, during the coming year.

Alderman F. B. Ponder stated that in the "important chairmanships in council, members must work in unselfish harmony. "Mine is a light chairmanship, but I will attempt to fulfil it to the best of my ability."

Alderman Harry Hill stated that there was little need of rehearsing activities of his department.

A strong recommendation for the meeting of the fire halls, at the probable cost of $7,500 was also made by the Chairman of Fire, but this was a question which for the present must be laid over. "We are on an economy platform and it is the duty of aldermen to observe this. Every department will be benefitted by own department of Fire needs equipment but for the time being it is up to us to forego any added expense we can manage with, out."

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 4—(CP)—The Standard Mining Market weakened moderately in dull trading today, the senior gold shares again showing the widest movement, while other issues were less unsteady and more active. In the base metal group action was slow.

The market was apparently again waiting for news from Washington and traders were mainly on the side lines. In a few cases, however, sales Done weakened 25 cents to $33.75, McIntyre $1.05 to $38.75, Lake Shore 25 to $45.40, Pioneer 25 to $11.75 while Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves held unchanged. Hollinger gained 15 cents to $21.80, Nickel came out at a loss of 15 cents and Noranda off 5 cents to $33.50.

After moving sluggishly through the morning session, trading in the gold and base metal issues picked up in the afternoon and a general firming of prices followed, while senior Silver shares turned over actively throughout the day and recovered in the afternoon the recessions posted in the morning.

Dome, McIntyre, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves recovered on better buying in the afternoon to show some net gains. Nickel and Noranda firmed.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Jan. 4—The President's budget speech to the United States Congress was received with a fair degree of equanimity by financial markets today, although both stocks and staples showed some irregularity, while waiting interpretations of the document.

Equities were a bit heavy in the early hours in dull trading.

U. S. governmental securities were moderately firm, but other bonds were mixed.

Canadian mining shares steadied after early dips, McIntyre and Dome cancelled losses of around a point. Canadian Pacific was fairly steady while International Nickel sold a minor fraction lower. On the curb Hiram Walker eased about a point. Dominion government Es were unchanged and the 4s and 4½s traded ¼ and ⅛ higher bids respectively. The Canadian dollar was up 1-18 of a cent at 99.87½.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 4—(CP)—While the general tone was firm, buying was too light on the Toronto Stock Exchange today to carry prices very far from yesterday's close. Profits-taking kept the distillery shares slightly down, but this weakness was off-set by strength in the brewery shares and in the oils.

Canadian oils had a smart advance to $1.17-1.18 yesterday's day while British American and International Pete had small fractional gains.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 4—Early cattle trading was slow on the Toronto Live-stock Market today, but a few sales made in uneven prices. Butcher cattle dropped in early trading and were offered 75 cents lower for the week. The holdover from yesterday totalled 1,100 head. Calves and hogs opened steady. No sheep or lambs in sight.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 50, calves 150, hogs 300, sheep and lambs none

Butcher cattle ranged from $2.75 to $4.75, down 75 cents for the week Medium to good weights were brought $4.25 to $5.25. Good butcher cows sold steady at $2.75 to $3.25.

Calves sold steady at $7.00 to $7.50 for vealers, medium from $5.00 to $6.00.

Hogs were steady with prices unchanged at $5.50 to $5.60 f.o.b. for bacons, $4.85 to $5.00 for thick smooths and $4.00 for sows.

No quotations for sheep and lambs.

Cattle—no quotations.

VAST EXPENDITURES

treasury also noted:

"Of the emergency expenditures made up to and including the fiscal years 1935, it is roughly estimated that $2,500,000,000 represents loans that will be repaid to the government, during the fiscal years 1936 and subsequent years, which repayments will be available for reduction of the public debt.

"The estimates of expenditures of the PWA are contingent on the enactment of legislation extending the corporation's authority to incur obligations to June 30, 1934. If the authority is not extended, the estimated expenditures for 1934 will be reduced by $903,000,000 and the repayments for 1935 will be $1,000,000 will be reduced by $74,000,000."

In outlining general economic policy for the current year at $3,239,800,000 for 1935 at $3,075,000,000, the Treasury said:

"The re-statutes affecting the estimates of revenues are particularly important recommendations. Annual economic conditions.

"The Government's activities and its finances are affected to an important degree by Legislation enacted with a view to providing means for dealing with problems of the depression."

COUNTY NEWS

HILLIER ROADS ARE IN BAD CONDITION

HILLIER—The weather-man has been changing the weather pretty freely, thirty below, one day. In 36 hours, as above. The snow is gone from the roads, leaving them in a very icy condition, but not bad enough to keep the men folks home from elections on Monday. Mr. Vernon Smith is the Reeve, by three votes over Mr. Murney Parks of Allisonville.

The school meeting was held on Wednesday, December 27th. Mr. Charles Benway is the new trustee.

Miss Idly Paiting returned to her school at Bancroft on Monday. Master Ross Benway and Joyce spent Wednesday with their school friends Buddy and Greta Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Leavens spent New Year's at Trenton, with Mrs. Annie Kirk.

Miss Helen Pearsall returned to Winnipeg on Saturday, after spending the past two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benson Pearsall of Mount Pleasant.

Mr. Stanley Thompson and daughter, Marjorie, returned to Toronto on Tuesday, after spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Danford Trumpour and family.

Mrs. Clarence Spencer expects to soon return home, when the weather gets a little warmer.

School opened on Wednesday. Mrs. Clifford McPaul is the teacher.

AMATEUR PLAY IS WELL RECEIVED

Sixth Sidney, Jan. 3. — Mr. and Mrs. Claud Brown and daughters of Trenton spent their Christmas holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brunsdl.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bell entertained on Christmas Mr. and Mrs. Horace Taleman and son Ronald of Trenton, also Mr. William Taleman of Thurlow.

The young people of Wallbridge put on the play "Mother Mine" in Scott's church on Thursday night on behalf of the Ladies' Aid. It was one of the cleanest and most interesting plays one could wish to see. The characters all did justice to their parts in particular "Mother Mine" who through all the acts showed the loving mother heart gaining respect of old and love of the young. Scott's Ladies' Aid tendered them a very hearty vote of thanks.

Mr. M. B. Sine, wife and family spent Christmas day in Rawdon, at the home of the former's father, Mr. George Sine.

Mr. Guy Sickels and family, also Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sickels spent New Year's day with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fifth of Sidney.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sine and children, Mr. M. Sine and Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Kelchenon and Edna spent New Year's day at the home of Mr. Kenneth Paul.

Mr. H. W. Rose and family accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rose of Frankford were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Davis, Rose-bowo.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lott were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Badgley, Thurlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dafoe entertained Mr. and Mrs. Carman Dafoe on Friday in honor of their wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Scott and children of Point Anne, also Mr. Harry Scott of Foxboro were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Scott.

Miss Minnie Acker, nurse-in-training at the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, spent Christmas day under the parental roof.

Mr. Hugh Badgley and family spent Christmas day in Thurlow the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Casey.

Mr. and Mrs. William Moon and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moon spent Christmas day in Pinnacle, guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott entertained on Christmas Mr. and Mrs. E. Anderson and daughters of Picton, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bush, second concession of Sidney, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Campbell of Tweenrnto.

Mr. Everett Rutter spent a few days recently in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lott spent New Christmas day at Mr. Hugh Badgley's.

The popular school teacher, Miss Etta Ketchenon, deserves much credit in the way the children performed in their Christmas entertainment which was held on Dec. 21 at school section number 13 and 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Harnes and son, Douglas, were dinner hour guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Carnrite, Sunday.

Mr. Frank Harris of Wellington, was in this vicinity, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Harnes and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burkitt were dinner hour guests New Year's Day, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Burkitt, Mountain View.

Mr. and Mrs. George Huffman and Miss Margaret Huffman and Master Floyd, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McHenry's.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Doolittle were dinner hour guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burkitt, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McHenry of Rochester, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Howard and son, Barry of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hubbs, Pleasant Bay, spent the Christmas holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McHenry.

WEEKLY NOTES OF AMELIASBURG

3RD AMELIASBURG—Mr. and Mrs. Smith Brown, Harvey and Eva also Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Alyea, were guests of Mr. C. N. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Adams on New Year's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Maslin and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sager, Albury.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jose, Massassaga, spent Sunday night with Mr and Mrs. Gordon Boyle, returning home on Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Adams, Reggie and Shirley spent New Year's evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. Adams

Very few are travelling these roads at the present as they are in a very icy condition. Most of the men on this line responded to the call for help when Mr. F. Taylor's house was burned to the ground on Saturday night.

Master Delbert Boyle returned home on Sunday after enjoying his Christmas holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Jose, Massassaga.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dempsey and children spent Tyler and Mr. Hubble on Sunday afternoon.

School meeting passed off very quietly on Wednesday morning. The retiring Trustee Mr. R. Jackson, being re-elected.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills motored to Colborne on Sunday to spend New Year's with Mrs. Grills' sister, Mrs. Elmer Coyle and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Albert's and family have returned to their home after spending the holidays with relatives in Whitby.

Mr. George Lawrence spent the New Year week and with friends in the city of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Hubble and family spent New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. S. Wastover.

FIRE DESTROYS DRIVE HOUSE AND CONTENTS

West Lake, Jan. 4—On Sunday afternoon a drive house owned by Mr. George Hunter was completely destroyed by fire together with all the contents which included their winter's wood. Fortunately the wind was not blowing toward their dwelling which was very close and the roofs being wet from the rain no other serious damage was done.

The annual school meeting was held at the school house on Wednesday, Dec. 27th.

The Christmas entertainment here passed off successfully. A splendid programme was given, on the following night Dec. 22nd the Holcroft Club entertained, was also well attended. A number went out from here and report a fine time. Those who attended the Salmon Point concert which unfortunately was on the same date also thoroughly enjoyed the various numbers on the programme.

The choir of the Bloomfield United Church sang over on Christmas Sunday afternoon to assist with their service here, there was a good attendance at the service. Bloomfield has an excellent choir which was listened to with much pleasure, as was the Christmas message given by our pastor Rev. J. F. Blanchard.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yardley on the birth of a son on Saturday, Dec. 30th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Crawford and daughter Vera, were Sunday visitors at Roy Crawford's.

Miss Jillian Maitland has returned to Otesay after spending Christmas holidays at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Brown are receiving congratulations from Tweed. Mr. Herb Brown returned home with them on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hyatt, and Mrs. R. White were among those who entertained relatives on Christmas Day.

The roads have been in a very icy condition, making it dangerous for motorists and pedestrians alike.

Several residents are victims of injuries.

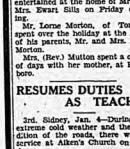
JANUARY
is a Month of Bargains



THE MAN (or perhaps it was a woman!) who invented the towel had a great idea! And an equally great benefactor was the man (or more likely a woman) who conceived the scheme of making towels as colorfully attractive as they are bathingly serviceable.

Along about this time of the year, towels also have their plan of moving from bargain counters to thrifty closets. Linens, handkerchiefs and blankets also beckon the eye and prices soothe the pocketbook. January is a glorious month for bargains!

The advertisements in your newspaper are important news of the shopping world and they tell an interesting story of quality and price—of things that are new.

Did you ever pause to consider how much time and expense these advertisements save you? You make your own decisions in your own home. You figure the cost to a penny. Then, with the help of these daily messages of economy in your newspaper, you go forth on an adventure of buying and return with exactly what you intended to get.

Stars of Filmland Reside In Luxurious Surroundings

Movie folk have abandoned their Malibu beach home for the winter. This shows how the Malibu homes are crowded together.

By ANDREW R. BOONE

Central Press Correspondent

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 4— The high-salaried actors and actresses have turned their backs on the chill Pacific breezes that swept Malibu beach, moviedom's summer home, and returned to their lavish apartments and town houses.

Each spring the exodus takes many film luminaries away from city surroundings and winter finds them back again.

A movie star is forever on parade and crowded Malibu gives him or her opportunity to rub elbows with producers (who hold the strings to fatter contracts) and many "important" visitors from the east and foreign lands.

Comfort and Luxury

It's not economy that brings the stars home. Far from that, rather, it's the love of comfort and luxury that elaborate estates bring.

At Malibu some of the homes high in the public's fancy, take placing at rentals varying from $750 to $3,000 a month. A few own their Malibu houses which stand on leased land.

In town and in Beverly Hills adjoining the Hollywood movie colony the players reside in gorgeously furnished apartments and individual homes, some of which rival palaces in splendor.

Many Parties

The stars' homes are the scenes of more entertainment than those of any other group in the world. This applies to both their city and country places.

Some of the more extravagant try to amaze even the silliest whims of guests. One host recently in search of novelty had each of 50 guests outfitted with pairs of riding boots—black and tan—at a cost of $1,800 each, so they could canter over the hills.

Many stars ride between home and studio in ordinary cars, but at night they bloom forth in limousines with liveried drivers. But it's all part of the show—cheaper advertising—and it comes from salaries ranging from $2,000 to $10,000 weekly.

PRESENT "SETH PARKER" CONCERT

Moira—On Thursday evening last the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ketcheson was opened to the people of Moira for another of a series of social evenings. A good crowd was in attendance the fact that the thermometer registered considerably below zero. The guests were received by Mr. Ketcheson and the receiving lines Bessie and Norma. Owing to the absence of the pianist, Mrs. Ed. Ketcheson, the chair was very ably filled by Mr. Henry Emerson. The entertainment was what is known as a "Seth Parker" program and was under the direction of Miss Helen Ketcheson. The opening number by Miss Ruth Zimmerman was an interesting and detailed account of the life and work of Seth Parker which gave the audience to know that was to follow.

"We Are Gathered with the Lord Today" was given, which when sang the first time didn't seem enough volume to suit the chairman and everybody was made to sing another verse, this time results being obtained. Mr. Chas. Ketcheson then led the people gathered in one of Seth Parker's prayers. Miss Leona Morden then favored the gathering with a solo. Following this number the old and familiar hymn, "Just the Roll is Called up Yonder" was sung in unison. Mr. W. Vanderwater favored the audience with a violin number in the usual pleasing manner.

A very pleasing number "Lord I Would Be Like Jesus" by "A Pure Heart," known better as a Negro Spiritual, was sung by the following: Mrs. J. Morton, soprano; Miss N. Ketcheson, alto; Mr. C. Ketcheson, tenor, and Mr. W. Vanderwater, bass. This number was considered the real treat of the evening and was by Mrs. Albert Clare which was much appreciated by all present.

Master Glenn Morton, a newcomer to the list of vocalists, rendered the solo entitled "A Pair in Our Family," taken from Seth Parker's book. Preceding this number, Miss Verna Foster read the story of the song. The gathering then joined in the good-old chorus "The Sweet Bye and Bye" with plenty of vim.

Another one of Seth Parker's numbers was ably rendered by Mr. Ross Ketcheson, entitled "Where You There When They Crucified My Lord."

A piano duet was beautifully played by Miss Lily Ketcheson and Mrs. Earl Morton, this number being thoroughly appreciated by all. Following this Mr. W. Vanderwater held his audience with another pleasing number on the violin. The quartette made their second appearance with another of Seth Parker's favorites "Standing in the Need of Prayer." Then the good old hymn "It Would Be Too Till We Meet Again," was sung in unison and brought to a close that part of the program.

The next interesting item of the evening was a surprise tendered to Mrs. Max Reynolds (nee Miss Helen Vanderwater) when the newlyweds were called to the front. An address was read by Miss Leona Morden and a purse of money was presented to the bride.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and a social hour spent before the guests departed.

JOHN MORELAND AT 97 CASTS HIS BALLOT

Moira, Jan. 4 (Special)—The little village of Moira takes it upon itself to claim the following items as a record. On Monday last, it being election day, Mr. John Moreland, who is 97 years of age, accompanied by his two sons, Charles and Murney, drove a considerable distance to mark his ballot along with the rest. To do this Mr. Moreland could tell of many unique happenings for the last 70 years, both on election day and in every day life. This old resident is enjoying very good health, it is reported, and all hope that he will be spared to visit the village again from time to time.

Another old gentleman of whom we make mention and who is a resident of the village of Moira, is Mr. Edward Harrison. He also is past the 90-year mark and is indeed enjoying the best of health. One good feature in his favor which was given the correspondent by Mr. Anthony Herity is the fact that he reads continually without the use of glasses which surely must be what is known as second sight. All with him continued health and strength. Mrs. Frank Vandervalker who has been ill for some time is not improving as rapidly as hoped for. The doctor had to be summoned yesterday, but hope that reports will be more encouraging in the near future.

Mr. Wilbur Hazzard has been fortunate in securing work at the airport near Trenton.

Mr. Frank Herity has been confined to the house for the last few days.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

"Fine Mumsie, I'll bring Jeff, Cherry and Sue's party dress. Now work, I mean. Jeff's not that way. He's just fond—Fine, Mumsie."

Sue, entering the Randall town house, One radio in as though grandeur were a heritage. One had never known else but grandeur.

"Any message, Parsons?" Sue stopped in the cathedral-like lower hall to ask a question and to discover if the twinkle she had suspected was really a twinkle.

"Yes, Madame." No twinkle in dour hale at this time of day. "Mr. Jeffrey called. He asked that you and Miss Fetherstone meet him at the Plaza Towers at the palm room at three o'clock."

"Thank you, Parsons."

Sue in the sunny south rooms. Those rooms belonged to Jeffrey's mother. They belonged to Jeffrey, Sue's husband. Sue's home consisted of the silver watch that had taken her to work at Henry Hume's office on the Avenue, for two years. She had left Matilda to carry on the great Powers tradition alone. Matilda didn't show up soon, within fifteen minutes, then was beginning to do but to go on to the Plaza Towers and meet with Perkins and that Matilda was to follow.

Meantime she'd have to do something about herself. She was a wreck, trying on tons of clothes, but she was hunting for her own wedding.

A hot bath. A cold shower. Her best lingerie. The rose dress. The rose dress in the closet. Hopelessly rumpled? No. Silkie. Some one had pressed everything in the closet while she was away.

Where were the Plaza Towers? Midtown. Time was ticking. She would have to leave now to be in the Plaza Towers at three. Taxi? No, her car. Sue's finger was on the bell.

"Please notify Parsons that I shall be using my car at once." Sue told the maid who answered the bell.

"The elevator is not running, Madame. It stopped about ten minutes ago." A regular man has been sent for. It will be necessary to use the stairs.

She shook out the beige coat with the fox fur. Coat of Destiny. Had it not been for fox-tail—perhaps she would have met Jeffrey, coat or no coat. What was to be would be. Or would it? She paused. Did Fate have to do with these amazing things that were happening to her? How much did human agency have to do with them? She and Jeffrey had undertaken to direct Fate. Now there were others, stirring the defrost for portions, and Jeffrey's. Would these others succeed? Hardly. Very hardly now she'd be moving directly. They'd be humming through the open country. To that rendezvous in a small town where she would be interested from a Shade by Cinderella into a Dollar Princess. She pulled on her hat. She couldn't wait another minute for Matilda. She stepped out into the hall. Twilight. Even at noon, twilight was dim and cool in the great central section of the house. Exactly there were lights, glowing like torches in the dark. The lights must have gone off with the elevator. She had difficulty in finding her way.

Here were the stairs, broad, tablet-padded, descending majestically into the well of lower darkness. She descended carefully, gliding herself by a hand on the carved mahogany rail. Downward. She stiffened, and the daytime dark.

A blond face, sideway of the stairs, was carried forward. She patched headlong into the dark well.

CHAPTER 19

Sue, opening her eyes, became aware of a world sickeningly distorted and out of alignment. There were, for example, two Matildas, two blurred and wavering Matildas at one side of her bed. On the other side were two Jeffreys who somehow blended into each other and receded when she tried to focus on them.

"Did I slumber?" she asked faintly, "or was it an earthquake?"

Matilda held a glass to Sue's lips. "The content was pungent in her nostrils.

"Don't think about it," Jeffrey said leaning over her. "Just be quiet and try to rest."

"Please tell me." Sue, insisting. "The blurs of faces were taking form." "I was hurrying down the stairs to meet you at the Plaza Towers, Jeff, when suddenly—" Nausea. The blur's cornish back. Minutes flattered by. Sue could almost hear their wings. Warmth began to flow through her. And strength. She raised herself, sat up in bed.

"I've got to know what happened," she said, waves of damp hair and a compress bandaged to the back of her head.

"You got a pretty bad blow." Jeffrey piled pillows behind her. "It must have been a dazzling blow or you'd be out yet. There's a wall niche near the top of the stairs. As long as I can remember there's been a marble bust of Uncle Grizzly in that niche. Something dislodged the bust. It toppled down and caught you. You were halfway down the stairs."

"I came along," said Matilda, "just in time to see you and Uncle Grizzly being carried upstairs. "You will have to learn to keep on your feet, my girl. This business of sprawling over decks and downstairs will not do. Here's your glass."

"Rest of funny, but on the need to see why one of you went out of Jeff. When did all this happen?"

"About two hours ago," Jeffrey consulted his watch. "Matilda phoned me at the Plaza Towers. Funny thing about that hand. Person! tells me he examined the bust and found that for a few days the cleaners were going over the house. It was true at that time. He dusted off Grizzly and anchored him in the depression for the base of the bust."

"Persons probably don't know what an old razed your much to do be called to give him enough anchorage," Matilda offered. "What's worrying me now is the wedding we were going to attend this afternoon. I suppose you both realize the deadline for that wedding is only a few hours away. Sue's birthday, Jeffrey's twenty-seventh birthday. There's nothing we can do about it." Jeffrey stroked Sue's hand. "We all must, or will be shortly. Nothing else matters."

Sue, looking slightly to Jeffrey's hand. Pale. Was Fate conspiring with those others to defeat her, to defeat Jeffrey?

"We're attending that wedding today," Sue said, withdrawing her hand from her brow so that the compress had to be set right. "You mentioned a back exit from the house. Our servants seldom use it. We'll use that exit. We'll wait until Rea's guests are requiring the attendance of the bride and then we'll slip out."

"I can't do it." Jeffrey shook his head. "The doctor ordered no excitement. That might be a slight concussion. I can't let you risk it," Firmly.

"We've got to risk it." Sue, coaxing. "We're gamblers, don't gamble with Fate, What's a little bump on the head?"

Jeffrey compromised reluctantly.

"Tomorrow, then, if you're up to it. Tomorrow will be time enough."

"Tomorrow might do, then again might not. Who knows what will happen in the meantime? Matilda, make Jeff understand we don't dare delay it."

Sue, crimsoning. She had heard, the insistence in her own voice. She was urging Jeffrey to marry her. Insisting that he marry her now, today.

"Of course," she stammered, "if you'd rather not— if you'd like to drop the whole plan—"

Jeffrey's hand, closing over hers.

"You know I haven't changed—by plans," he said. "It's been changed for me. If that bust had come you by his head, Darling, do you see how it is?"

Sue did. She shuddered again—to smooth the stubborn look at the crown of his head. More awry now than ever. She had seen it. The misery in his eyes was an active pain in her throat.

"After all," she insisted, "you couldn't help that bust falling—you didn't throw Uncle Grizzly at you."

Suddenly Sue stopped, breath suspended. Her eyes fled to Jeffrey's, then fled to hers. Fled and held. Actuated by the same damning thought. The same apprehension. Upon the bust had not fallen! It had been thrown from the top of the stairs.

"Sue, did you notice anyone in the hall?" Jeffrey's voice was thick with fear. "No. The hall was quite dark. The lights had gone out. I'd like to make sure, though, that accidents are not a habit in this house." She's lips twitching. "Please go into the other room, Jeff. Matilda will help me dress. I'll be ready in a few minutes."

"Do you think we can make it, Matilda?" he asked.

"I think we ought to try." Matilda said.

"Then I'll clear out. If you feel faint, or dizzy, doc, you're to call me. Meantime I'll prowl downstairs and see if the way is clear. I'll give Rea to understand the doctor has ordered you to remain in bed until further orders, and that I've rented a wing in the suite with you. That will call off the watchdogs for a few hours—long enough for us to make a clean getaway."

A little country town. A little clapboard house. White muffin curtains fluttered by summer night breeze. Behind those curtains——

——Forasmuch as Jeffrey and Sue also have consented together in holy wedlock, and have witnessed the same before God and His company, and thereto have given and pledged their troth, each to the other, and do declared the same by giving and receiving a ring, and by joining hands, I pronounce that they are man and wife.——

Sue saw a jewel flashing on the hand Jeffrey held. A great desktop trembling against her fingers. A dream. She must be dreaming—the old-fashioned parlor—the person with his shock of white hair and his ruddy cheeks, his booming bass voice—Jeffrey, grave, his color drained from his face so that the freckles stood out like splashes of copper, really polished.

The man with the shock of white hair was speaking—the person:

"I shall claim the privilege of my office."• He leaned down and touched his lips to Sue's brow.

Jeffrey said, "Why yes. Of course." The color had come back to his face now in a flood. He leaned forward. "Sue, my darling." Then abruptly he dropped to his knees and slipped his forward and slid it with an effort to steady his voice.

"That's all there is to it!"

The person observed Jeffrey sharply. Funny sort of bridegroom. Funny sort of bride, too, come to think of it. Businesslike, both of them. He hoped there was nothing unethical about the marriage. Nothing irregular. Probably not. Young folks nowadays were queer ones.

"That's all there is to it," the person said, checking to break the tension.

"I'm glad of that," Matilda bustled over to put an arm about Sue's waist. "The solemnity was going to my knees. My congratulations to you, Jeffrey, and to you, Sue, May you live long and happily together."

Sue thinking: It's ridiculous of Matty putting that emphasis on the "together", when she knows we're doing nothing of the sort.

The man of all work, who looked after the church and the parson's garden and who had been summoned from his broom and dustpan to act as a witness to the marriage, smiled a bashful hand between gnarled fingers.

"I'm wishin' you young 'uns you'll be happy as my Molly hare an' me," he said. "We got three fine boys agrowin' like weeds. It's the parson's helped us over the rough places, an' if he's done as good a job for you, then you've got nothing to worry about."

Very generally for the man of all work. He was embarrassed by his own generosity to the extent that he clamped his battered hat on his head before he reached the outdoors.

Sue, walking down the gravel path from the parsonage between sentinel lines of old-fashioned flowers. The spicy tang of marigolds. Early Shasta, chrysanthemums shaking their plumes. Sweet alyssum breathing perfume along the border. Nicotitia, the tobacco plant, frail fragrant stars, heavily awed like orange blossoms. Orange blossoms! Sue leaned over a cluster of the frail stars and breathed deep. As she did so, she unfastened the engagement gardenias from the fur on her coat and thrust them into the pocket of her coat.

"May I have a few of your stars, parson?" she asked. And was surprised that the request had all the intensity of a bid for crown jewels. "Certainly, my dear. As many as you like. "The person welcomed the opportunity for magnanimity. He banknote in his vest pocket was staggering. Fees like this came once in a—

Through the white picket gate. There was the car, lights gleaming yellow, back from the elm-arched street. Eyes peering out from behind the ruffled curtains of those yellow squares. Long lean limousines with uniformed chauffeurs were rare in such a street.

"Thank you, parson, for the stars."

The cars slid out into the elm arch.

Abruptly Sue was caught in a smothering embrace. She could not move. She could not breathe. Arms were about her, lighter, tighter. Lips covered her cheeks, her lips, her throat, almost roughly. She must struggle against those lips. She would. Another time. This was her wedding night.

The car slapped to a stop. Scream of breaks. Sue was thrown violently forward, as violently backward. The smothering embrace, the lips that burned were gone.

Conner, what's the big idea?" Jeffrey shouted through the speaking tube.

Conner slid back the glass panel that separated him from his passengers.

"Sorry, Mr. Randall. It's them two yoked horses. They don't put up any red lights at their crossings. Lucky I see them acted near at the track. We missed that train by a least a minute."

"Jeffrey," Matilda moved to the edge of the deep-cushioned seat. "Suppose you give me a cigarette."

"A cigarette! But, Matty, you don't smoke."

"I didn't. I'm taking it up." Matilda accepted a lighted cigarette from Jeffrey's fingers. "I've got to do something to steady my nerves. The way I've been going I'll be in an observation ward

BRINGING UP FATHER

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As Tarzan swarmed up the rope, the bear, almost at his heels and running swiftly, slid upon its haunches to stop its speed. It stopped directly beneath the ape-man just as an unforeseen accident occurred.

The granite projection over which Tarzan had cast the rope was so sharp that when his weight dragged upward on the rose the frail support was snapped in two and Tarzan fell upon the bear's back.

Whether he or the bear was the more surprised was a question! But both acted at once. The bear reared up and shook himself in an effort to dislodge the man-thing from its back. Tarzan slipped a bronzed arm about the shaggy neck and clung desperately to his hold while he dragged his hunting knife from its sheath. It was a dangerous place to stage a battle for life. On one side the cliff rose sheer and on the other dropped to dizzy depths below into which the struggle each moment threatened to plunge them both.

The roars of the quadruped fairly shook the mountains, but the ape-man battled silently. Repeatedly he drove his blade into the lunging beast. At last it found the animal cord. The creature stiffened with a jerk, and Tarzan slipped quickly from its back. He found safe footing upon the ledge as the mighty beast dropped and rolled over and over down the cliff to the brink into the gorge below, carrying with it four or the ape-man's arrows.

Gathering up his rope, Tarzan started back along the trail to search for his bow he had been forced to discard in his flight and find the boy whose life he had saved. Rounding the shoulder of a crag he came face to face with the youth. He had been carrying Tarzan's bow but in the sight of the ape-man he dropped it, the better to defend himself if the stranger attacked him. Tarzan scanned the face of his rare smiled and spoke in the language of the Apes. "I come as a friend and not to kill."

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE REGENT
"Dancing Lady"

Through complicated and mechanical ingenuity the motion picture screen becomes a gigantic kaleidoscope in the presenting of the spectacular musical ensembles in "Dancing Lady," that delighted local audiences at the Belle on Tuesday, Wednesday and continues to-night and Friday, matinee and evening with Joan Crawford and Clark Gable co-starred.

In one of the scenes each of the chorus beauties, revolving through a maze of mirrors can be seen 30 times at once; the effect created by the dancers' gowns is positively bewildering, though by magic, right before the eyes of the spectator, still other gowns whirl upon the screen in a different angle altogether, smoothly.

A thrilling scene.

The most thrilling scene of all, perhaps, is the finale in which Miss Crawford dances through an impressionistic number of modern tempo. This scene starts with thousands of tiny figures—if you could possibly count them—appear upon the screen. Although camera secrets are carefully guarded, it is declared that this scene was made possible by photographed by the camera as they appear on the screen to dissolve one in optical illusions scientifically computed by a corps of engineers, a hundred mirror units and nine. ten tons of fabricated steel were used in the staging of one of the gorgeous dance ensembles, it is said.

Next, it is declared, Director Robert Z. Leonard directed the spectacular finale from the James Farner Bellah novel. The dance numbers were staged by Sammy Lee and Eddie Prinz.

In several numbers, Miss Crawford becomes the dancing partner of Fred Astaire, noted New York revue star who, for the first time, is introduced with his sister, Adele. Nelson Eddy and Art Jarrett sing the songs written for the picture by Burton Lane and Harold Adamson and "Dancing Lady."

"Little Women" on Screen

Bringing back to life the characters that for 65 years, through the power of the written word, have been the delight of girlhood, R. K. O. Radio Pictures' dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's celebrated classic rolling up new box office records after being in production one year. Made strictly in accordance with the author's original story, and inducing an enormous amount of research work and the employment of a large cast of players, "Little Women," coming to the Belle Saturday stars Katharine As. Hepburn.

John Brown's sisters, are portrayed by Jean Bennett as Amy, Frances Dee as Meg and Jean Parker as Beth. Other authors, who supply the romance around which the beautiful story revolves, are portrayed by Paul Lukas as Prize Bhaer, Douglass Montgomery as Laurie and John Beal as Teddy.

Spring Byington as Marmee, the lovable, idealistic mother, is cast as Mrs. Amy Byington. The incomparable Edna May Oliver appears as grandmother Aunt March and Henry Stephenson enters the role of Mr. Laurence, the neighbor, whose bark is worse than his bite, and whose heart is as big as all outdoors.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop was starting to look comfortable and ma says, "Benny, you better get to bed a little earn early."

I didn't want hear the fire engine, pop said, and ma said, I'm getting about as deaf as my hairs, and another one today and that makes 3 this week. O dear I'm simply hurt broken.

You take life master-too seriously, for Pete sake, pop said. Spose you'd found a live rattle snake in your bath, that would be more in the nature of bad news, he said, and ma said, I'd rather have a snake in it instead I must say I dont feel refined.

Gwtch, blast it, there's something in my eye, pop said. And he started to rub it, saying, It feels like a unfounded cinder.

Why, all right big fuss about a little cinder, what's a cinder? ma said. Spose you got a nail in your eye? she said, and pop said, well it wouldn't be any worse than it made me laugh, ma said.

Pitch it out, and pop kept on rubbing his eye and shaking his head, saying, I'm to busy to get a cinder out of my eye.

Well take its matter so seriously, and what could be lighter than a cinder? ma said. Spose you had been a door nob? Spoose it had been a dictionary? pop said, and pop said, Ow, this is awful, take a look and see if you can see anything, will you?

And he held up his eye and ma asked in, saying, I dont see an thing.

Yee gods lay off the ruff stuff, pop hollered mad. How can you be hard hearted with me in my eye? ma shrewd he said, and ma said, Well it really hert, now hold it, and I'll take it rite out with the end of my hankerchief, you poor dear.

With she did, being such a little bit of a cinder you couldn't hardly see it, but making them both feel better.

AT THE CAPITOL
"Stan's Castle"

Loretta Young will soon observe her twenty-first birthday, has already lived a full and glowing life—an existence amazing in its scope. She has been acclaimed one of the screen's finest actresses and has known the meaning of wealth and renown; she has been in and out of love many times; she has been disillusioned by marriage and divorce—but to look at her, one sees only a young and vibrant girl thrilled with life and the varied riches it brings!

Loretta has retained that most important thing of all—the capacity for invigorating enthusiasm. One could never call her jaded—well, hardly. An exquisite nerve pattern lends her into rhapsodies, a new admirer is still a thrilling experience, while a new and significant picture role, offering an opportunity for a type of characterization as yet untried, represents the realization of Loretta's dearest dreams.

That is why Miss Young, when she reported for work in "Man's Castle", Columbia production opening at the Capitol Theatre today, was as excited as if she had been one of the green young debs whose knowns previously tested for the part of "Trina" by Director Frank Borzage. But there was a sureness in her dramatic technique, a subtle finesse apparent in her simplest gesture, a dreamy tenderness in her first love scenes with Spencer Tracy, her co-star, that established her as the only possible choice for this magnificent role. Do you wonder that, even before the first camera crank was turned, Loretta already knew that this part was to be her greatest achievement?

For "Trina" is a shabby youngster who falls deeply in love with the braggart Spencer Tracy. She is content to wash his clothes, cook his meals, live with him in a shanty built in a New York's Depression Camp, listen to his boasts and glory in his appreciation and regard for her. When she finds herself about to bear his child there is no regret, only a great happiness at the thought that he has given her something of himself that she can treasure forever!

Loretta Young was born on January 6, 1913, in Salt Lake City, Utah. Her first ambition was to be a nun and she was educated in a convent at her own request. She had no thought of motion picture work even after the family moved to Hollywood.

A very laughable comedy entitled "Close Relations", "Movie Struck", an exceptionally good cartoon and the Capitol News and up-to-date events conclude our program for the last half of the week. Third chapter of "The Whispering Shadow" will be seen on Saturday.

By all means you must see this picture—so amazing in its frankness and even greater than "It Happened One Night."

Colds Seemed to Affect Her Kidneys

Toronto Lady Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Harris Recommends Dodd's To All Suffering From Kidney Trouble.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 4 (Special)—"I am sixty-seven years old and every little cold I got seemed to affect my Kidneys," writes Mrs. Harris, a well known and respected resident of 273 College Street, Toronto, "I had Kidney trouble for a long time, but have been free from it ever since taking seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I sure recommend them to anyone with Kidney trouble for they soon put you all right again. Before using Dodd's Kidney Pills I have not been bothered by my men and to keep them on hand at all times."

Thousands of others tell the same story. They have tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and found them good, for Dodd's Kidney Pills as a tonic and Kidney remedy are without an equal.

When you feel worn out, run down, the chances are ten to one that your kidneys are at fault. Dodd's Kidney Pills have built up their reputation as a kidney medicine by the relief they give.

Don't delay, let Dodd's keep you fit.

MADOC OPENS WITH A WIN

Defeats Stirling in First Game in Junior Loop 3-0

Madoc, Jan. 4 (Special) — The Junior Hastings Valley League officially opened for this season on Tuesday night when Stirling and Madoc met for the first time in a Junior contest. Madoc easily outplayed the visitors, scoring two goals in the first period and one in the second. Hickle in the Madoc nets while not having as many stops as the Stirling goalie, handled all that came his way in a masterly fashion. Madoc notched the first counter when after 3 minutes of play West scored on a long shot after a fine rush from his own goal. While Stirling were short handed Madoc took advantage of the opportunity to increase their lead when West scored, rushing the puck to the Stirling defence and gave a pass to Ross who carried the rubber in and scored the final tender as no opportunity to save. This was the nicest goal of the game. The third and last score of the game was also engineered by West who carried the puck past the defence while Alkey batted it in after a scramble in front of the Stirling net.

In the third period the play was featured by many fouls owing to the lack of condition. There was no cooperation between the players and all concentrated on individual efforts resulting in some nice rushes but very sloppy playing. Both teams had little to do in this period. The game while not very rough was only kept so because 18 penalties were handed out with Madoc getting the majority. Lack of condition on the Stirling players at this as most of the penalties were for tripping and others executed body-checks.

Referee—Ben and West were the two best men for Madoc with West being the most effective man on the ice. Starting all the plays that resulted in goals. Everett Alexander, probably the foremost player in the game, was the surprise package of the evening, besides being one of the scoring column, he was a constant worry to the visitors and his back-checking was outstanding. Ham a place on the intermediate team. Hill, Ross and Embury, while not as fast as the first line were certainly a force effective, being on the ice when the first two counters were scored.

Madoc—Goal, C. Nickle; defence, C. West, D. Alkey; centre, R. Alexander; wings, F. Armstrong, F. Alexander, Ross, Hill and Embury.

Referee—Don Whytock.

GRILLS WIN IN MARMORA

Score is 5-1 and Game Witnessed By a Large Number

Capitalizing to the fullest measure on their speed and tricky combination play, the Grills' Garage hockey sextette from Belleville downed the Marmora fans and was 5 to 1 score at the Northern village last evening in a wide open contest.

Led by Canning twins Henry and Jack, the Grills' team starred in every period with the Cannings tagging for three goals between five counters. The game, despite the fact that it was but an exhibition nature, attracted a large following from the Marmora and was played in the newly constructed community rink there.

The "Mechanics" went well both offensively and defensively outplaying their northern rivals and taking full advantage of the new rules in the matter of offensive play. Day scored the fifth local goal, while McWilliams bagged the only home town counter.

The line-ups:

Grills — goal Davies; defence, Henn and Baker; centre H. Canning; wings J. Canning and Day. Marmora — Goal Augee; defence, Mercer; centre, Stewart; wings Clemens and Burns, subs, McWilliams, Hewitt and D. Augee.

Referee—J. Brady of Marmora.

Summary

1st period—
Grills—J. Canning 7.00
Grills—H. Canning 6.45
2nd. period—
Marmora—McWilliams 5.00
Grills—Day 6.45
3rd period—
Grills—J. Canning 5.50
Grills—J. Canning 9.50

Service was conducted in the United Church by the pastor, Rev. H. B. Herrington, assisted by Rev. D. C. Hill of the Presbyterian Church and Rev. P. G. Reager of the Anglican Church. Interment was made in Thomasburg cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Sidney Poulter, Clifford Welsh, L. Ketcheson, James Brown, Edward Good and Wesley Martin.

Owing to the inclement weather and unfavorable road conditions service in the Anglican Church on Sunday afternoon was very poorly attended while the service held with in the United Church was withdrawn.

A large number of friends from here attended the funeral of the late Mr. John M. Grills at Bethel on Thursday afternoon.

Miss Olive Carter has returned to Toronto after spending the Christmas holidays with relatives here.

Relatives from here attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Henry Hanson in Belleville on Saturday.

Misses May Lee, Esther Innes, Florence and Isabel Beatty and Messrs. Harry Geen and Norman Holroyd were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter on Wednesday evening.

Belief Sankey May Be In Lindy Picture

St. Paul, Jan. 4 (AP)—County Attorney M. F. Kinkead expressed the belief that Verne Sankey, fugitive oculist sought for the abduction of Haskell Bohn here in June, 1932, "may have had connection" with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping plot.

From evidence found on Sankey's branch at Gann Valley, S.D., Kinkead said he deduced that the desperado, who once lived in Saskatchewan, intended to kidnap Jack Dempsey, former's world's heavyweight champion, and Babe Ruth, the baseball player.

"My personal opinion is that Sankey is not out of the Lindbergh picture," the County Attorney said.

Toronto's Name an Evolution

Half Century Year, to which we've been long looking forward:—
A full hundred years since Toronto was laid made a city—
Well might we trace the events which led up to its naming.
As we peer through the mists of centuries long since departed.
There leaps into view a name which in sound and in spelling
Gives warrant to claim that the secret at last is unfolded.

In the year sixteen-fifteen Champlain journeyed west to the Mer Douce
To visit the Indians who dwelt in the land of Huronia.
"Mer Douce" meant "fresh sea"—the name of that fresh water ocean,
Named later Lake Huron, so named from the tribe of Indians.
Huronia included that district now County of Simcoe,
Which in its borders extended far north to the waters of the Severn.

A Chief of the Hurons, then known by the name of D'Arontal
Acted host to the Frenchman throughout all the time of his visit;
During nine months or more these two men were constant companions;
Both wonder Champlain's health this season much attached to the Indians.

In course of the years succeeding this momentous visit
The explorer was busied in tracing the trail of his travels.
And in fashioning maps of the country through which he had journeyed;
The choosing of place-names, of course, became one of his problems,
But what evil-spirit was natural he than, Champlain reasoned.
Would honour the Chief by adopting his name for such purpose?
Not exactly as spelled in the tale that he grew of his travels,
But a near-approximation, and so he very closely resembling.
Thus find we "Taronta", a name writ on land, lake and river,
Through much of the region traversed on the fateful journey.

How close in its sound is this word to the name of "D'Arontal"!
A Frenchman pronouncing would naturally leave the "l" silent,
With short is the step from the "T" to the "r", it's granted,
'Twas thus the explorer desiring to honour D'Arontal
Adopted his name, not as spelled, but as actually sounded.

Many years after Champlain had passed from the scene of his labours,
A hamlet grew up near what now is the mouth of the Humber;
At stated above all the country about was "Taronta".
But this village took on the name which belonged to the district,
Though frequently spelled "Toronto" instead of "Taronta".

When organized law came in force in the seventeen nineties,
And Simcoe was sent as the first Upper Canada ruler,
Toronto it then was at Newark at mouth of Niagara,
But soon was it seen that the site at Newark was unsuitable,
And Simcoe ordained that a shift should be made to Toronto,
Though he named the place "York", the King's younger son thus to honor.

Some forty years later the town seeking rank as a city
Goes in search of a name to give to the newly created borough,
And week after week do the men of the Council debate it;
At last they decide to revert to the name of "Toronto",
Which had many long years given name to the county adjacent.

A century passes, plans are made for a great celebration,
What form it may take is, of course, of no trifling importance;
But it is remembered, whatever the meaning,
Attached by the Hurons to the name of the young Chief D'Arontal,
'Twas much may be said, with considerable truth and no sham-pan,
'Twas in tribute to one whose friendship in many he cherished,
And thus come to pass, by credit,—D'Arontal,—Taronta,—Toronto.

—George Allen Kingston.

Belleville Shows the Way to Other Cities

Mail and Empire Editorial

The Belleville Commerce Crusaders, who are engaged in fostering reciprocal trade between the Belleville district and the United Kingdom, send out the following New Year's message:

"A checking up many parts of the province reveals the fact that British coal has stood the acid test of the most prolonged and severe cold weather that Ontario has ever experienced. That this luxury coal will continue to grow in popular favor is certain. It is equally certain that Ontario's shipments of cheese and other dairy products to the United Kingdom will reach their highest points in 1934 over a period of many years. Trade is exchange. Our two-way plan has taken hold. Definite assurances of cooperation have reached us by letter and cable from the great commercial interests of the United Kingdom.

"This message justifies the suggestion already put forward by The Mail and Empire that local communities can, by local effort, do much to take advantage of the tariff preferences secured in the United Kingdom market for Canadian farm products and other exportable Canadian products. In each case, as in Belleville, the local newspaper may well take the lead in organizing effort and in its reading the results to date of the Empire treaties and by pointing out how local benefits can be derived from the Anglo-Canadian agreement in particular.

CONSERVATIVE NOT NAMED IN EAST KENT

Douglas Campbell, Liberal Receives Seat By Acclamation

CONTEST POINTLESS

Premier Henry Issues Statement on Situation From Pembroke

Bridgetown, Jan. 4.—The government today permitted the East Kent seat in the Ontario Legislature to go by default to Douglas Munroe Campbell, Liberal-Progressive nominee, who was the only candidate nominated for the January 10 by-election.

Candidate Expected.

Until Returning Officer Frank Manvers declared nominations closed at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon it had been expected that Conservatives would enter a candidate.

But Mr. Campbell's nomination was the only one filed, and he will take his seat at the January session of the legislature.

Until the last minutes of the nomination period it was the opinion by anxious party followers that a surprise candidate would be entered by the Ontario Conservatives. Their withholding of any nominee, however, came as a sufficient surprise.

Prominently mentioned as a possible Tory candidate was Frank Oke of Bridgetown.

Mr. Campbell, Deputy Reeve of Harwich Township, was nominated at a party convention last Dec. 8. He filed his official nomination papers with Returning Officer Manvers last Monday.

Offer to Hepburn.

The political situation in East Kent has been fraught with uncertainty ever since the death, during the summer of Philip J. Henry, Conservative member. The seat was offered to Mitchell F. Hepburn, the leader of the Liberal party in Ontario, and refused.

Mr. Campbell was nominated recently at a convention, and his candidature has never been in doubt. After Mr. Drew's refusal of Premier-George S. Henry's offer of an acclamation, it was believed in many quarters that the Conservatives would attempt to retain the riding.

Mr. Campbell will sit in the legislature for the single session remaining before this year's general election.

Premier Explains.

Pembroke, Jan. 4.—There would have been no point to the government contesting the East Kent by-election, Premier George S. Henry explained in a statement issued after he had learned word that Douglas Munroe Campbell, Liberal-Progressive, had been elected by acclamation at Ridgetown.

The Premier's statement follows:

"Thinking it was desirable to have the Opposition Leader, Mr. Hepburn, in the House, the government, as far as the Conservative Party was concerned, offered him an acclamation in East Kent. That offer has been refused, hereby indicating under consideration the possibility of a by-election.

"There is a very well-defined feeling in the constituency that, as the sitting at present constituted proposes out of existence at dissolution, and the view for the time contemplated to the province and to the candidates for the session of the House, and the imminence of a general election, when the full record of the government, as well as its policies for the future, will be before the electorate. In this view the government concurs.

"The by-election itself is absolutely without point, is of no benefit to the constituency nor to the province. The government, while it desires to carry out the spirit of the law, does not desire to participate in a by-election which will not alter materially the standing of the parties in the House. The government proposes to submit the new riding of East Kent in the general election, when all issues and policies can be fully discussed."

COMMENTS OF LEADERS ON ACCLAMATION IN EAST KENT

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—(CP)—Ontario's electors sat back today and listened to a leader's argument arising from the province's second-Douglas M. Campbell, Liberal-Progressive, in the East Kent by-election yesterday.

"In his," said Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal leader, "an example of the lack of political courage and inconsistency of Premier Henry," in referring to the fact a Conservative had not been nominated. "A week ago the Premier of Ontario definitely stated there would be a Conservative candidate to contest the riding . . . and defend the policies of his government."

"The by-election itself is absolutely without point," declared Premier George S. Henry from Pembroke, where he was attending the funeral of Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, is of no benefit to the constituency nor to the province. The Government, while it desires to carry out the spirit of the law, does not desire to participate in a by-election that will not alter appreciably the standing of the parties in the House. The Government proposes to contest the new riding of East Kent in the general election when all issues and policies can be fully discussed."

Riding Will Be Broken

The riding passes out of existence under the Redistribution Act as dissolution, the Premier said, and in view of the expense occasioned to the province by the candidates at one session of the House, "and the imminence of a general election, where the full record of the government as well as its policies for the future will be before the electorate, there should have been no by-election. In this view the Government concurs.

"They put forth every effort to make a three-cornered contest a certainty," said the Liberal head. "Those efforts failed to find anybody to go in as third-party candidate, or a Conservative candidate to defend Mr. Henry and his Government Record". His stated two Conservatives organizers were sent to Ridgetown and had combed the riding for a candidate, condemned, "offering every inducement."

Both Mr. Hepburn and his Chief Lieutenant, Harry C. Nixon, Progressive leader, addressed a gathering at Thamesville last night. Referring to the case of Magistrate McCaughtrie, who has charged Attorney General W. H. Price and Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, with attempting to "buy" his office as Magistrate Howard Gover could take the position, Mr. Hepburn declared he was "rather amazed at Mr. Gover wanting to pay $3,000 for an appointment for only six months." He also referred to the East Kent acclamation. "Imagine the embarrassment of Mr. Henry, who said a week ago there would be an election in East Kent," he said.

Mr. Nixon charged there was "no uniformity or continuity in the Government's book-keeping methods," with reference to the recently-announced surplus of $470,000 in the Provincial accounts, instead of the estimated deficit of $3,000,000. The pre-nominal financial statement, he said, was "one of the most misleading in the history of the province."

Relief Money in Capital Account

The sum of $13,200,000, expended on unemployment relief, had been placed in the capital account "so it is not considered at all in arriving at the alleged surplus, but the money for it is simply borrowed and added to the debt." Last year, he continued, a percentage of relief had been styled capital expenditure. "This year all relief expenditure is styled capital," so there is absolute uniformity or continuity to the Government's book-keeping methods, Mr. Nixon declared, and without value in comparing records of different years."

Conservatives: 86; Liberals 15; Progressives 5; Labor 1, United Farmers of Ontario 1, vacant 4. Total 112.

The vacancies are North Bruce, filled by Elliott, died; North Renfrew, formerly held by the late Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Lewis, former seat of Fred Skinner, Conservative; Ottawa East, vacated by the election of Louis Coté to the Senate.

PAY NOW OR GO TO JAIL, YOUTH IS TOLD

Youth Gets Leniency But Must Pay Costs at Once

London, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP)—Because he couldn't persuade Magistrate Hawkshaw to wait a month for $14.50, Joseph Kaminski, 21, of Metcalfe Township, went to jail today. If he doesn't pay the money he will spend ten days in jail.

Kaminski was arrested for contempt of court. He failed to obey a summons for not producing a driver's permit while in charge of a car, so a warrant was sworn out for his arrest. He told Magistrate the court that he had no way of getting into London so he didn't come.

Magistrate Hawkshaw gave him suspended sentence on both the contempt of court charge and the license charge. However costs of the court totalled $14.50 and Kaminski was told he would have to pay them.

"How would you like it if I paid fines monthly?" the accused asked.

"I wouldn't like it at all," replied the magistrate. "You will have to pay now or go to jail."

PREPARE DATA FOR PARLEY

Western Premiers to Meet Dominion Cabinet on January 17

Winnipeg, Jan. 4 (CP)—Western Canada's Provincial governments today prepared their submissions for consideration at the Federal-Provincial conference in Ottawa, January 17.

Preparation of data for discussion at the conference was under way and each administration was selecting its representatives to attend the meetings, likely to extend over a week.

Manitoba will be represented by Premier John Bracken and Hon. E. A. McPherson, Provincial Treasurer. Premier J. T. M. Anderson and Hon. W. J. MacPherson, Attorney General, will represent Saskatchewan.

Premier John E. Brownlee of Alberta, will be unable to attend, being scheduled to speak at the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta in Edmonton while the Ottawa Conference is in session. Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer and another Cabinet member will represent the Foothills Province.

Premier T. D. Pattullo, of British Columbia, ill with a nasal infection at Prince Rupert, will attend the conference, although his departure will be delayed. Four other cabinet members will be sent to the meeting by British Columbia.

They are: Hon. George M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, and Minister of Labor; John Hart, Minister of Finance; Hon. Gordon Sloan, Attorney General, and Hon. Dean Pearson, Minister of Mines and Education.

BUS DRIVER SAVES TWO AT RISK OF HIS LIFE

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP)—While his condition remained unchanged today, Hon. J. D. Monteith, speaker of the house, according to attending physicians, Dr. Monteith suffered a slight relapse on Wednesday night after having been apparently on the road to recovery. He suffered a severe attack of influenza following the funeral in Listowel a little more than a week ago.

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP)—Mrs. E. E. Jamieson not only held a perfect bridge hand of 13 spades here last night—she bested her bid of seven doubled, she redoubled and her partner in the game, contract totalled, in all, a score on the hand of 2,490 points.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 5—(CP)—It interest may be in the rudiments cited, but in seeking a divorce Mrs. Marie Loretti disclosed that she apparently didn't want to read. She charged that John A. Loretti, her husband, didn't give her enough to eat—the menu was usually soup and spaghetti, she said—and caused her to drop in weight from 168 pounds to 125.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 5—(CP) —Yesterday, R. B. Jackson, 60, and James North, 52, carpenters, had been unemployed.

They began work yesterday as civil works administration employees on a new stadium at the University of Pittsburgh's skyscraping cathedral of learning.

Several hours after they started an accident occurred. Jackson's both sons to the ground, injuring them fatally.

Seattle, Jan. 5—(CP)—A hobtop pink, described by R. A. Elder, 25, Elder handed over a $50 bill, a five and two dimes—complaining it was all he had on him.

"We aren't the kind of guys that would take a man's last dollar," one of the robbers said. "Here, keep it."

He handed Elder one of the bills, Elder thinks it is then he got home, it was the $20.

Chicago, Jan. 5—(CP)—The illegalities was made in a divorce petition filed here today by Mrs. Phil wife, Mary, 41 times since they were married in 1925. She said that each time she permitted him to cease back and be reconciled.

Mrs. Hilbert's answer to the plaintiff, it was Patrick who used the cleaned words.

Sarnia, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP) Hard work and cool rational porridge are the secrets of longevity given by William Watson, of Warwick township, who has just celebrated his 104th birthday. Hale and hearty still the old gentleman eats what he likes, protests that he has never worried about his digestion in his life.

Mr. Watson has a theory about the depression too. He thinks it is to be blamed on human selfishness.

Toronto, Jan. 5—(CP)— Fire losses in Canada during the week ending Jan. 5 were estimated by the Mercantile Times at $1,340,650 compared with $145,325 for the preceding week and $1,252,200 for the same week last year.

PREPARATION FOR OPENING HOUSE MADE

Little Contentious Legislation in Sight For Session

AIR CHARGES

Budget Likely to Go Through Without Heavy Opposition

Toronto, Jan. 5 (CP)—The final session of the 19th Legislature of Ontario draws near. On Jan. 27, Hon. Herbert A. Bruce, lieutenant-governor will be in attendance to read the speech from the Throne for the second time since he assumed the office. This formality over, Premier Bruce will walk from the Chamber of the historic Parliament Buildings to the Chamber of the Legislative Assembly and the session will begin.

Little contentious legislation is in sight. The special committee, which is to sit over the Christmas recess, Magistrate Daniel McCaughrin of Orillia will provide chairman and statement, it is believed, since the government has announced its intention of not proceeding further. Magistrate McCaughrin charged Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General, with having tried to "buy him out of office" as Magistrate Howard Conyer of Coldwater could take the position.

The Budget, usually the target for Opposition attacks, may be less in this year's session. Instead of deficits of nearly $3,000,000 has been turned into a surplus of $1,000,000. And the death of Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Secretary, in the Ferguson government and Opposition alike, will also lessen the fire. Opposition hearts, since the coming Budget was partly compiled by him.

Strangely enough, the Liberal financial critic died shortly before Mr. Dunlop. Hon. Peter Heenan, North Bruce, also speaker and minister without portfolio in the Ferguson and his loss will be sorely felt by the Liberals. Other Government members have died since last session. They were the Duchess of Kent Henry of East Kent and Fred Glover of Lincoln. Dr. J. D. Monteith, Minister of Labor, is seriously ill and may not get back to the House this session. Louis Orsini, another Conservative, has been elevated to the Senate.

Tenure Short One

The present standing of the House, since the acclamation for Edward M. Campbell in East Kent, follows: Conservatives 56, Liberals 41, Progressive Labor 1, United Farmers of Ontario 1, Vacant 4. Conservatives elected by acclamation, North Renfrew and Leeds, and in Kent East and Lincoln. Mr. Campbell's tenure of Dunlop's seat will be runs in another riding—will be a short one. Under the redistribution act of last year, the number of seats will be cut to 90 from 112 to 90 and East Kent is one of the seats, which will be eliminated after the coming session.

Whether or not date has been set for the election, although political observers point to June as the likeliest month. The Legislature opens two weeks earlier than usual this year, and it seems probable the session will be a short one, with dissolution then coming in May or June instead of the Good Friday adjournment. French River's by-election, the vexed beer-by-the glass problem and the Hydro-Electric Power Act as the public is concerned. Premier Henry and other cabinet ministers have stated only that there will be no change in the personnel of the Ontario Liquor Control Act. Whether the "loosening up" means the sale of beer by the glass will be requested by hotelmen the province is a question yet to be answered.

Mr. Henry, it is expected, will make over the vacant treasurership at least for this session. During Mr. Dunlop's lengthy illness the Premier has been acting treasurer. In this event, it is regarded as likely Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Minister of Highways, will be asked to take over the Department of Education, a post he held for a considerable experience as acting-minister of that department.

INFORMATION REGARDING OLD RESIDENTS IS BEING SOUGHT

Listed among the more human documents, which are received by the secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, the following communication received by Mr. J. O. Herity, secretary, from a resident of Minneapolis on Friday morning, is interesting one of the kind past in this city. The letter which is self explanatory, is reproduced below:

413 Willow Street,
Minneapolis.

"My Dear Sir—In looking over some family papers, I've seen for the first time a booklet of Belleville, printed in 1920.

"Whom shall I address to find out the birth date of Josephine Belden, who married Dr. Gould, son of Laura Belden and Dr. G. V. N. Belden?

My great grandfather lived in Belleville, and several of his children were born there. "Belleville" and "John Street" are names I've heard all my childhood.

My great grandfather was Peniel Coleman, who is buried in the cemetery of St. Thomas' Church in 1883. How do I find out what other members of the family are buried there? How can I get any list of the names of the church and the church yard, if there is such a cemetery?

P. G. Selden's first child was born in Belleville in 1816—so says in an old record. Is there a Belden listed in the Belleville directory. And where is "Napanee"? No map we have shows such a place.

I know secretaries like you, or secretaries of such organizations are often asked the impossible, but I hope I've not going too far.

I'm looking up family records not to join anything, but for the last baby of the family, born this month, who has been given 'Selden' as a name.

Ask me anything about St. Paul Minneapolis, and I'll find out for you.

Sincerely (Miss) Ina L. Goodale.

P.S. Old family records. P. G. Selden and Laura Stone. Laura Selden, married Dr. G. V. N. Belden, Belleville, November 3, 1835. Laura Selden was married to Dr. G. V. N. Belden yes, Oct. 15, 1844 (Old Laura Selden die in May 18, 1867.

And when was the daughter of these parents, Josephine Relyea born?

She died as Mrs. W. H. Scott, at Orangeville, Ontario, Jan. 1, 1918, aged 74 years, but no months and no day is given.

Has a history of Belleville ever been written?

Any information from local residents regarding the above queries would be greatly appreciated by the writer.

Buck Snorts in Contempt as He Breaks Antlers Against Wall

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP)—A buck deer, with fine branched eyed and gentle. From Long Beach where Farmer John Koerner lives.

The animal came out one as ferocious as a Pampas bull.

Frightened, the buck fled into the orchard among the cattle, but this took an instant dislike to his plaid coat and attacked him with his antlers. The cattle took shelter in the barn and Farmer Koerner, according to his story, quickly shut the door.

Deprived of his prey, the buck then launched a new attack, this time on Mr. Koerner, who managed to side-step the rush and let the animal crash past into the barn wall, breaking off a branch from three of his antlers. Mr. Koerner has the prongs on display at his home.

The deer is then reported to have snorted contemptuously at the barn as he turned off across the pastures. He was last seen on the fringe of the Long-wood.

MILL WORKERS ORDERED OUT

Anthrax Disease Baks Out And Families Ordered to Vacate

Medix, Pa., Jan. 5 (AP)—Get out! That notice has been served on every family in the village of Sackville, Pa., 15 miles from here. The 1930 year-old wool mill community have been ordered abandoned because of an outbreak of a dangerous disease there.

The order was given yesterday by Dr. Ralph Hall, who personally owns the dwellings and the mill, which is in Sackville Mills Company, on which the inhabitants rely for their livelihood.

It is to protect the 100 children from the disease that he has ordered the settlement vacated Sack said. He added that a "reasonable time" will be given the residents in which to move.

But fathers and mothers are shaking their heads. They say they can't live in a village without sewers, electricity and water systems and can't afford to transplant their families to another town.

"We're afraid of an epidemic," Sack asserted. "There has been no trouble from the disease but a number made ill. Wool workers do not fear the disease, but it is very serious if treated promptly."

The anthrax first was contracted in the wool sorters are believed to have come from the mill, where sorters are believed to have contracted the disease from imported wool. "Woolsorters' Disease" is another name for the disease, caused by bacteria.

Mill owners are wearing masks and gloves to prevent infection, Sack said.

WILL REPRESENT ONTARIO

OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—(CP)—Ontario will be represented in the annual Federal-Provincial Conference which opens here on January 15 by Premier George S. Henry and Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General.

MORE ACCIDENTS AS SLUMP WANES

Chicago, Jan. 5.—A sharp increase in automobile fatalities in the last six months was revealed today by the National Safety Council to a return of prosperity.

Figures compiled by the council showed that approximately 19,500 deaths were caused by motor vehicle accidents in the last six months, a 2.2 per cent over the preceding year. The increase was caused entirely by fatalities in the last six months, which were increased 12 per cent. over the similar period of 1932. The first half of last year had brought a ten per cent. decrease.

"Increased automobile traffic during recent months was largely responsible for the increase in deaths in the closing half of 1933," said the council's report.

RETALIATION THREATENED TO GERMANY

Britain Says Germany Must Give Debt Reply

PROTESTS IGNORED

Nature of Possible Retaliation Is Not Disclosed

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP) — The British Government has intimated to Germany that it may have to consider retaliatory measures if a satisfactory answer is not received concerning Germany debt payments, it was learned in informed quarters today.

Great Britain is still awaiting reply to protests sent to Berlin Nov. 7 and Dec. 22.

Announcement of a reduction in the percentage of interest payments on long and medium term debts brought immediate protest. The first was directed against what was described as discrimination against British creditors.

The nature of the possible retaliation was undisclosed.

F.G. SANDY IS FOUND DEAD

Former Progressive Member for Lindsay Well Known

Lindsay, Jan. 5.—(CP)—Thought to have succumbed to a heart attack, F. G. (Sandy) Sandy, former progressive member of the Ontario Legislature, is dead at his home, near Lindsay, and fell on the floor. A neighbor who entered the house to-day found the body. Coroner Dr. Hall had occurred two days ago.

When Mrs. Sandy left Lindsay last Tuesday he complained to Dr. Hall that he was not feeling well and advised him not to return to his home. He left Lindsay that day, however, and Mrs. Sandy had not heard from him since. Mr. Sandy was living alone at the time of his death. Mrs. Sandy having gone to Toronto to visit friends.

The former Legislature member is survived by his widow and four daughters, Mrs. Gemmell, wife of the Port Perry High School principal, and Misses Jean, Dorothy and Marjorie.

Mr. Sandy was most widely known as a temperance worker. He was signed to make prohibition more effective. The bill, approved by public vote, made it illegal to ship liquor into Ontario through the mail order system.

Born in Clarence, Victoria County, in 1875, Mr. Sandy was educated in public and high schools in Omemee. He took up farming and took an active interest in farmers' organizations.

Poll Tax Delinquent Does Not Want Father to Pay It

Twelve Young Men Face Cadi, Three Having Paid

CASES ENLARGED

Twelve local youths were summoned into police court held before Police Magistrate Ketchum this morning, charged with the non-payment of their 1933 poll tax. Seven pleaded guilty and after explaining their inability to pay the tax imposed et their cases were enlarged for one week by the request of the City Solicitor, A. B. Collins, to state the case of the prosecution.

Three managed to pay the tax imposed of five dollars before court opened and their cases were dismissed. One failed to answer to his name when called by the magistrate he was working at the Trenton Airport, and still another was excused to bed through illness. He is a disabled returned soldier. All the remaining seven defendants have been heard next Friday in the police court.

"We do not wish to be harsh but, you young men must remember that you get police and fire protection from the city as well as the county and other city facilities and these have to be paid for through taxes and it is necessarily follows that all taxes must be collected," pointed out Magistrate Millet as he explained that it was only through the medium of taxation that a city could exist.

The majority of the young men summoned assured the court they were unable to pay the tax owing to the fact they had not been able to procure employment during the year 1933. One young man assured the court that he had been out of work and a half of employment in the whole of the year. Another stated he was willing to work for his keep if could get employment but, refused to pay the $5 demanded. Still another stated in the matter was commented upon by Chief Reid. The young men were asked to endeavour to find the money by next Friday, stating as if it is not forthcoming the court naturally would have to take a drastic move.

Ziegfeld Follies Presented in All Glory by Widow of Once Producer

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—Broadway was stirred by pleasant memories last night when the Ziegfeld Follies were presented by the person who has the best right to their title—the lifting past—Miss Billie Burke, widow of Florenz Ziegfeld.

It was a "big" night—in the sense that there was much scrambling for the best seats and much interest in the audience (especially Douglas Montgomery) over the final, there was a great jam outside the Winter Garden theatre where the flood of up-to-the-minute topcoats and tiaras, and there was a complete outpouring of theatre enthusiasts enjoying the annual theatre eminent's night.

In one respect tradition was given the thumb. Nowhere in the expert, well-groomed throng was there the usual Ziegfeld grand staircase for the entrances of glorified damsels, each trailing a long train and supporting a headdress like a fabulous palace decked out for the Chinese New Years.

She presented a beautifully, trained chorus of girls who did not look the gladdest of glad rags, and showed them against stately settings. The girls were hired by a good producer.

Fashion note (masculine)— Dinner jackets still much more common than tails.

Cheerful note—Fanny Brice's fan dance.

Traffic note—Terrible.

Dempseys Expect Heir and Ex-Champ Hopes Happy Event Will be Twins

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 5—(AP)

The Jack Dempseys are expecting an heir.

The ex-champion of heavyweight fighters just couldn't retain the secret any longer, so he broke the news during a 30-minute stop in his old home town as he and Mrs. Dempsey, the former Hannah Williams, of musical comedy, detained from a transcontinental limited here yesterday.

"I always wanted one," he con, fessed. "We hope it'll be twins."

Mrs. Dempsey, "The cheerful little earful" of Broadway, was a delightful audior as Jack broke the news.

They will stop in Chicago for a day, Dempsey said, and will continue on to New York city where the former champion hopes to get Primo Carnera, the present world's heavyweight champion, for a fistic melee.

Unable to Stop on Icy Road on Which Two Fall Prone, Driver Hits Truck

Automobile Stalls as it is Passing Transport, Occupants Jump

INSTANT DECISION

Thos. L. Northy Has Not Chance to Stop on Ice And Takes Risk

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP)— Rather than run down two persons who were prone on the icy pavement in front of his heavy machine, Thos. L. Northey of Toronto, driver of the Bee Line Liner, is said to have swerved his bus into a heavy transport truck on the Kitchener Stratford highway, and one half miles from this city, this morning.

No one was injured although the truck, owned by the Leonard Transport Company of Hamilton, and driven by Clarence Sett, Queen St., Kitchener, was badly smashed. The bus was damaged, and both vehicles took to the ditch.

Witnesses of the affair, that James Cole, Rib Street, Waterloo, and Miss Dorothy Strickland, said that he was attempting to pass the Leonard transport truck, which was proceeding in the same direction in low gear on account of the icy roadway. As Cole's car drew alongside the truck, it stalled, police say, at that moment the Arrow driver, in view of over a hill approaching, swerved into the left hand stalled car.

Fearing the danger, Mrs. Cole, who was in the front seat with her husband leaped out of the car, but Miss Strickland fell on the glazed highway. Her husband leaped to her aid, but the bus was upon them.

Northey, the bus driver, had no chance to stop on the ice, police said, and swerved into the left for an instant to risk striking the heavy truck instead of the car and the two people on the highway.

Bus service has been discontinued on the run.

Tame Deer is Found In Grey Township

Listowel, Jan. 5.—Dr. E. A. McMaster of Elma was motoring between Molesworth and Atwood when he saw a deer on the road in the approaching him. Dazzled by the headlights of the car, they seemed unusually tame before they turned off the road. He left his car, and with his flashlight approached the deer and was able to lay his hand on one of them. He returned before they bounded over the fence and away. Dr. McMaster says he often comes across the deer on the roads of Grey township.

IMPRACTICABLE ARMS PROPOSAL SCRAPPED

Agreement Made by Mussolini and Sir John Simon

NEVERS, France, Jan. 5.—(AP) —Evelyn Frost, the American aviatrix, was burned to death today in the crash of an aeroplane in which she was piloting the plane, en route to Egypt, collided with high tension wires in a fog.

The plane burst into flames immediately and the flyer was trapped in the flaming mass of wreckage.

The British flyer, Rutted, who accompanied her, was slightly injured.

The accident occurred several miles north of Nevers along the route to the Egyptian city.

The plane had been purchased only recently and was a tourist model.

COUNCIL MAY ASK FOR LONG-RESIDENCE RULE

Believes Man Should Be Resident 12 Months Before Relief Given

Public announcement that members of the city council as a future resolution, will ask for a twelve months residence rule for relief applicants of this city was received at the office of the Central Relief Bureau today with expressions of complete accord in the action.

"It would greatly assist in cutting down the expenditures of those, who enter the city at the fall of the year, long under cover of the snow months, as now stipulated, and then apply for relief," relief officials said. As it is now, it was intimated, large numbers of men enter the city from the city are composed of residents, who have been here hardly a year before they apply for relief.

"Often it was stated "many of these men have a regular practice of living in the country during the summer, and then enter the city at the start of cold weather with the expectation of being kept by the city during the winter."

"Legislation of the twelve months' rule would make this impossible," it was pointed out.

GANGSTERS PARADED

ICY PAVEMENTS ACCIDENT CAUSE

Icy pavements are alleged to have been the cause of a slight automobile accident near the corner of Church Street and Bell Block Streets about 8 p.m. last evening, when Hayley delivery truck driven by Lorne Hayley collided with a motor car driven by Mrs. B. L. Hyman. Constable Evans investigated and found that the truck was proceeding eastward and in some unknown manner skidded to the north just as Mrs. Hyman was approaching from the opposite direction. The matter was amicably settled. Fender and side damage was sustained by the Hyman car.

SINGLE MEN FOR AIRPORT

Between 50 and 75 Will Be Dispatched at Once

An estimated number of between fifty and seventy-five single men employed men of the city will be dispatched from the city this week to the Air Camp on the Trent Road, where the men will be quartered for the winter.

Mayor George O. Tice on Thursday received word from the camp that all available men of the above category could be accommodated at the barracks.

Those men who were being sent by Mayor Tice to the Employment Service Office of Canada where registration will be taken of the men by Superintendent Lorne P. Green. On Friday and Saturday, medical examination of the above mentioned single men will be made and transfers to the camp will immediately take place. Other small detachments under this quota have already been sent.

It is the request of Mayor Tice and Superintendent Lorne Green that single men who have been there in the employ of the Government of Canada, they will be followed by the same group so be taken from throughout the country, as soon as complete accommodation can be arranged at the Airport."

REPAIR MAIN AT AIRPORT

Engine Pumps Water From Bay to Supply Needs of Camp

With a fire engine, loaned from the Belleville Fire Department, jacked up on the ice of the bay and connected to an auxiliary water main through which water is being steadily pumped to the Royal Air Force Camp on the Trent Road, the water shortage of serious proportions caused by a break sometime in the 1800 foot 10-inch main leading from the camp to the bay will be relieved today. In the meantime all available men at the barracks are employed in tracing the water and digging up the pipe to repair it. Natives state that the pipe broke and the soil was given as the cause of the break. Water was not laid to frost as at first thought.

Officials at the camp when questioned today stated that the emergency was not serious and that the water in the barracks served for the steadily working fire engine forcing water through the 10-inch main. There is sufficient water in the tanks at the camp, to care for all demands, even, it is said, a fire.

Although the entire job of repairing the break is expected to be done by the men at the camp, Mr. E. T. Austin, manager of the water works department of this city, at the request of the engineering officials on Friday morning journeyed to the camp to make a survey of the situation and render assistance in any manner in which to carry out repairs.

ROADS JUST SHEET OF ICE

Coach And Bus Line Schedules Disrupted by Condition

A drizzling rain, which covered roads and highways throughout the district with a thin film of water on Friday evening and the first break in zero weather for residents of the district, but gave rise to worried motor drivers of various stage, bus and transport companies who were forced to travel warily over the slippery surface.

In some instances schedules of coach and bus lines were disrupted during the early part of the day, but by noon a return almost to normal traffic conditions was noted. One east-bound bus was forced to wait in the city until accurate report of road conditions ahead could be obtained It left the city two hours late.

Highways were slippery and traffic was being directed by Traffic Officer Byles. No accidents, however, were reported.

Buses and stages were on schedule, according to Saturday time, with the added statement, that roads north of the city were not very much worse than they had been last week.

Fenton stage was making its daily trips, and Madoc and Bancroft stages were also running.

Martin Transport Company reported no trouble, although drivers of the company reported that care was necessary to make the trips.

A flood of enquiries had been received at the office of the local Chamber of Commerce during the morning regarding road conditions throughout the district.

HORSES DIE OF POISONING

Believed Animals Poisoned From Hay Eaten in Barn

Carrying Place, Jan. 5—(Special) Misfortune came very heavily again at Mr. Harry LaTour, when the third of his four valuable horses died shortly before that it as the result of poisoning from some unknown source. The animal was apparently in a few days before Christmas, the 21st to be exact, and horses died within ten hours of each other. Almost a dozen cattle are being stricken, and despite every treatment, they, too, are dying very gradually, and now only one of the four remain. The condition of the surviving horse does not look too hopeful. Veterinarians have attended the horses without success. Government investigators have also been called in to determine the cause of the sickness, but beyond ascertaining that it is the result of poisoning, presumably from the hay eaten, little else has been discovered.

YOUNG CONSERVATIVES OF SIDNEY ORGANIZE

Jack W. Sargent to be First President of New Club

The Sidney Young Canada Conservative Club, which has been quietly organizing throughout the township for some time, held its first large attendance political election of officers in the Town Hall, Wallbridge, on Friday night, which enthusiasm was shown at the meeting and evidently the new club is going to be a live association under direction of the popular young officials chosen.

To fill offices the following were elected President, Jack W. Sargent, Sr., Wallbridge; 1st Vice President, Miss Ruth Bush, R. R. 3, Bellevile, and George M. Ketcheson, Foxboro; Secretary, Miss Kathleen Ketcheson, Foxboro; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Florence Reid, Trenton; Treasurer, Maxwell Bush, R. R. 3, Belleville.

The first effort of the new Club of a public nature will be a meeting in the Town Hall, Wallbridge, Tuesday evening next, to which the young and the more mature of the township and adjoining communities are invited to attend. George Henry, Jr., son of the Premier of Ontario, and farm manager of his father's farm near Philpott, president of the Toronto Young Canada Conservative Club are to be present and address the meeting with W. B. Thompson, M.P., and W. H. Ireland, M.P.P.

"We got a terrible buzz in our radio lately, but, it only comes on in the evening. What do you think might cause it?"
CARL SILLS
Sounds to me like you might have some trouble in your own home Carl, in your electric light system.
After supper tonight, tune your radio in so that it is operating at ordinary room volume, then turn all the lights out except the one in the room where the set is. Examine this light to see if it is loose in the socket, also be the socket, see that it is a loose wire in the socket, or the bulb may not be tight. After you have satisfied yourself that everything is O.K. here, go to the next light and try it the same way. Continue until you have gone over all is well with the sockets and bulbs.
Now make darn sure about that plane lamp cord and wall outlet. We had plenty of trouble from this source. When you find the plane lamp lighted, shake the cord hanging from the wall outlet. Quite often this cord gets broken in such a way as to make only an intermittent contact.
Now last but not least are the fuses in the switch boxes. Here is a source of interference on the East hill that took hours to locate and just a few minutes to repair after it requires to tighten a fuse. Incidentally this interference was giving the neighbours plenty of annoyance too.
The point I want to bring out in her 1933 issue is that electric connection may cause you plenty of trouble as well as your neighbours.
If you can't find the source of trouble, give us a phone call and let us send one of the boys out. It won't cost you a fortune.

IMPROVEMENT IN LABOR CONDITIONS

Heads of Families Now Finding Employment

A decided uptrend in employment conditions, and a steady improvement in labor conditions throughout the district during the past month or so has been noted at the office of the Employment Service of Canada, stated Superintendent Lorne P. Green today.

"This particularly applies to the drop in the number of single men who have been given work at the office," stated Mr. Green.

"Heads of families in the city have also found employment and during the city to a much greater degree than for the past year or so, and the various work projects now being carried out have done much to alleviate conditions"

Under the new system of city relief there has been considerable among the workers, noted Mr. Green and according to the office there has been little actual distress among this classification.

"Just now the demand for farm help is at its lowest, with very few applicants offering themselves for the work," stated Mr. Green.

REID RE-ELECTED

Peterboro, Jan. 5 (CP)—Ernest F. Reid, Deputy Grand Master for Ontario East of the Orangemen today was re-elected chairman of the Peterboro Board of Education.

GREENHOUSE IS TAKEN OVER

Property Most Likely Will Be Disposed of Later

Picton, Jan. 5 (Special)—Mr. Norman Mesecar, K.C., and Mr. Gordon have left Picton. Mr. Harry Rose of Toronto, K.C., in charge until some arrangement regarding the property can be made.

Mr. Gordon, a precedent in Picton, Mrs Harvey Starks (nee Miss Leslie Thrasell, B.A.) was elected as the new member of the Collegiate Board of Education, the retiring member, Dr. J. H. Walmsley.

Mr. Wm. Kemp has received the appointment of assessor for 1934.

The Misses Bond have moved into the home of the apartments in the Newman Block, Main Street.

Mr. Orville Selman was sentenced by Magistrate A. E. Calnan to six months in Guelph Reformatory. He was found guilty of stampeded cattle on Thursday last, and was remanded for sentence. Sentence dates from December 23rd when the accident occurred. He was taken to hospital to Picton Jail. Mr. Selman leaves ten dependents here—a wife and eight children, the eldest aged twelve years.

ALTON S. ROBINSON

Following a lengthy illness, the death occurred early this (Friday) morning at the residence of Grenfell in the 6th concession of Tyendinaga, Alton S. Robinson, beloved 18-year-old son of Fred A. and Claudia Robinson. Alton was born in the township where he died, took place and had attended the Blessington public school and Trinity School of the Salem United Church. He was a member of the Young People's League he had lived and much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family in his early passing.

Surviving besides the parents are two brothers, Merle at home, Ormond and a sister, Bernice, all at home.

MRS. ELLEN CHRISTIE

Marmora, Jan. 5 (Special)—The death occurred here on Wednesday, Dec. 30, at Toronto, of Mrs. Ellen Christie, in the 89th year of her age. She had been in very poor health for the last number of years. She had been a resident of Marmora for a number of years before going to Toronto to live with her family. She was well known and respected by all who knew her.

The funeral left Bonarlaw Station on the arrival of the 10.30 a.m. train on Wednesday, Jan. 3, and proceeded to Marmora Free Methodist Church for service, and thence to Marmora Protestant Cemetery for interment.

MRS. JAMES O'SULLIVAN

Cobourg, Jan. 5.—(Special)—The funeral will take place here with Mrs. James O'Sullivan, wife of the Marmora merchant, Mrs. Mrs. O'Sullivan, formerly Mabel Hall, Cobourg, was born at Tweed, and resided at Madoc for a few years before coming to Cobourg with her husband about 30 years ago. Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Mary, and a son, Ormond.

MRS. WILLIAM E. BIRD

In her seventieth year, Mrs. Matilda Bird, beloved wife of William E. Bird, passed away on Friday (to-day) morning at her late residence in Foxboro, following an illness which had lasted for some time. The deceased lady was formerly Miss Matilda Hall, and was born in Rawdon township. For a number of years she lived in Sidney, previous to taking up residence in Foxboro, where she spent years ago. The late Mrs. Bird was a faithful and consistent member of the Foxboro United Church and a member of its Women's Association and its Women's Missionary Society. She will be remembered in the church work of Foxboro as well as from the village's other activities, with those of the community being the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement. Funeral is intended.

Immediately surviving are the husband; a son, Earl L. of Foxboro; two daughters, Mrs. Frank Mower at Carmel and Mrs. Clifford Wilson, Foxboro; two brothers, Samuel J. Hall, Foxboro, and William Kelly at Foxboro; and four sisters, Mrs. Sarah Bonter, Mrs. H. G. Morgan, Mrs. J. S. Rose and Mrs. Annie Lowery, all at Hallowy.

POLICE COURT

Activities were in no way rushing in and about the police court circles during the past twenty-four hours, George Clark, Great St. James St., was fined $5.00 without costs after being found guilty of using gross insulting and abusive language to a neighbour. Christopher Deline, who admitted striking Thomas Deline but denied calling him any profane names. His Worship gave his conclusions from the corroborative evidence given by a number of neighbours who gave testimony. "I do not believe, that you quarrelled with Deline and became abusive and angry, not knowing exactly what you did say," said His Worship to Clarke as he went on to explain the by-law regarding the use of abusive language, which was incorporated for the protection of the citizens as a whole, he thought. "You did not help yourself nor did you harm Deline by striking him," pointed out His Worship after finding the accused guilty.

OPEN THE GATEWAY TO HEALTH
By having the partial displacement of the spine replaced to normal. There is nothing mysterious about disease. Disease is simply the result of some part of one's body not receiving its normal supply of life from the nerves. A free flow of mental impulses from the brain to all parts of the body is all that is required to be healthy. To get permanent results in diseased conditions it is necessary to remove the cause of that condition. Treating the effect of disease is like watering with the hose or nozzle to get a supply of water when the water main is shut off. Chiropractors remove the cause of disease.

FAMOUS CLOTH SHOWN HERE

Ideal Fabric Used in Severe Weather is on View

It may be of great interest to the citizens of Belleville and community to see the Grenfell Cloth that is in use by The Canadian Department Store window.

This display has been brought here by The Deacon Shirt Co., who are the distributors of Grenfell Cloth in Canada.

Words can add little to the work done by Sir Wilfred Grenfell in Labrador; work for which he forsook a great medical practice in London, Belgium and work for which he was knighted by His Majesty the King.

Grenfell Cloth is manufactured in Burnley, England. Mr. Brainbourn, waite, a mill owner of that town, has given his time to help Sir Wilfred Grenfell on his work in Labrador of the need for proper clothing in this weather-beaten land.

Sir Wilfred Grenfell painted a picture of sweating miles behind his dog, blizzard, cold, snow and ice, with relentless grip to the clothing too heavy for the task to wear.

While he spoke Grenfell's spirit kindled a flame in the heart of the mill owner who listened to him until he had formulated the grey tweed cloth would be woven to suit all the conditions found in Labrador. At the close of his lecture Sir Wilfred was quite confident that he left with the cloth manufacturer. The fabric, he said, must be so light in weight that it will not be a complete freedom of motion. It must be worn in the face of Arctic blasts. It must be moisture proof yet allow the pores of the body to breathe. Snow must not cling to it. It must not fade even in the Arctic sunlight. It must shed water and hold its shape. It must be durable because the wearer may be days and days on end without changing his clothes.

After long experiments, a fabric which Sir Wilfred Grenfell said was "ideal" was produced. Thoroughly tested and finally approved after service in Labrador, this material was christened "Grenfell Cloth" and comparable to no other cloth or fabric because no other material has all properties which have brought praise to Grenfell Cloth from all over the world.

"It has been a boon to us all," said Mr. Deacon, "and everybody know of it. They will be grateful, I know."

So, today Grenfell Cloth can be had in the piece of the necessary for summer sports wear, windproof, moistureproof, showerproof, yet allowing the body perspiration to escape. Good-looking, durable and tailored in comfortable garments.

This display shows a climbing party on the face of the mountain of the Mount Everest Expedition, which scaled the highest mountain in the world, 29,002 feet. The radiogram received from the highest point this expedition attained.

There is also a tent which is windproof, showerproof, with a rotproof floor which may be tightly closed from the inside and which was carried on the back of one of the men in the Mount Everest expedition.

Members of Admiral Byrd's expedition at present en route to the Antarctic are all equipped with Grenfell garments.

The firm kits which were manufactured here in Belleville for Capt. and Amy Mollison, for their proposed flight from Wales to Beach, Ont., to Bagdad, are on display. Even the parachute which is to be worn was manufactured by Delaney The Furrier, of Belleville.

Inspired by Grenfell—made in Belleville—grown in Labrador—taken to the Antarctic by Admiral Byrd —scaling Mount Everest—in the air with the Mollison Aircraft, Cloth may be had in shirts, shorts, jackets, hats, caps, mitts, sleeping bags and other sport garments—made in Canada by the Deacon Shirt Company, and sold by the leading stores in Belleville as well as across Canada.

COAL MAN LANDS IN CELLAR WITH COAL

Lad Balance, While Pulling Tail Board Out and Went Down Chute

A local coal man is in the market for a position as a coal and oil salesman, and even equipped with the necessary knowledge to be sold in the future how he unloads the coal.

On Friday morning, reports a resident on Pinnacle Street, he was called with two tons of that winter necessity, and after removing the cellar window and completing all arrangements opened the tail board of the truck, placed a coal chute in place and then made the first trip with the load.

The load shifted, but so did the coal man, and he was buried alive, slid down the slippery chute and ended up in the cellar under a load of two tons of hard coal covering him.

Loud cries advised the household of the accident and it required the time to assist in uncovering the coal man.

For fear of too much kidding among his mates the driver of the truck asking the householder to withhold his name after the rest of the load had been emptied without further incident.

NATION WIDE YOUTH DRIVE

Albert College Student Stirs Older Boys' Conference

Aurora—"Selfish desires and personal greed are responsible for a great deal of the world's ills today," declared Jack McDonald, youthful provincial secretary of the Older Boys' Parliament, of Belleville, in an address before the banquet at the formal opening of the thirteenth Older Boys' Conference now in session at St. Andrew's College.

"Until politicians have a real burning desire for the betterment of humanity, the economic chaos of the world will continue," he said, "and radical must not be too ready to break down the capitalistic system without setting up a workable solution in its place.

"We must back up the number of grains of gold behind the dollar bill," continued the young orator, he declared.

Secretary for the Union Jack just as long as those who control the Union Jack stand for justice, charity, liberty, and brotherly love, but just as soon as they begin to send out men to fight for money, I part company with the Union Jack."

"Our task of humanity has absolutely stolen the wealth belonging to the other half," said Jack McDonald. He suggested a scheme for backing the currency in Canada with gold according to the amount of employment in the country "to stabilize big back accounts."

"I would count it just as much of a disgrace to have a gold slug I belonged to any particularly religious organization as to have a gold slug I belonged to either of the major political parties," Mr. McDonald said.

"The business of armament firms is built on fear," said Ramsay Morgan, Carleton, minister for world fellowship, in opening statement from with propaganda to cause international discord.

"Teachers in schools where there are cadets say they are not foster-ing the military spirit, but are teaching obedience and discipline — but the real purpose of cadet corps is to create interest in military matters. The purpose of cadet corps is to bolster

PIRACY PLOT COSTS LIVES

Black-Hulled Motor Launch Strikes Reef and Sinks

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Jan. 5.—(CP Cable)—A reported attempt at piracy that sent four men to their death off the Venezuelan coast was under investigation by authorities today.

The investigation was brought on the suspicious circumstances about the sinking of a black-hulled motor launch which struck a reef near the River Orinoco mouth and carried four men to their doom in the bottom.

Information reaching the police was that the launch," the Blanche, carried a party of Venezuelan rebels who were on their way to intercept the coastal steamer Delia. They were near the path of the Delia, bound for Trinidad, when their craft foundered.

A cruising Venezuelan Patrol boat picked up four survivors, who were found clinging to bits of wreckage floating from their ship. Three rebel "generals" were said to have been among those lost.

According to a report reaching here, the little group of dissident Venezuelans, Declarations that Venezuela hoped to use the captured ship as a means of furthering the plan for overthrow of the Govern ment.

The purported plan was that the should use the Delta to carry the rebel army from one coastal town to another, robbing banks in order to obtain money to buy the arms and ammunition that would enable them to make a strong attempt at overthrow.

The Blanca, a speedy craft, left in Port of Spain Harbor last week her crew posing as peaceful coast fishermen. But after being overhauled here she slipped out of port in the darkness. Thursday night without clearance papers.

SHIPPED BY EXPRESS

London, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP)—Another new record for 1934 which will be hard to beat was chalked up on the London division of the C.N.R. Thursday.

A special express trainload of motor cars was handled over the division from Niagara to Niagara Falls. The automobiles were from Flint to cities in the eastern United States. Freight trains of motor cars have been known for many months and an express train is certainly a record.

VOLUME INCREASED

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP)—W. H. Childs, General Manager of the Hamilton Hydro-Electric System, has announced that the end of 1933 showed the volume of horsepower used during the 12-month period equalled that of 1931. At the end of December 90,000 horsepower was being delivered with 78,000 H.P. consumed to the end of December 1932.

MUNICIPAL POLICY, BUDGETING

Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce are taking no small part in bringing before the taxpayers and municipal councils the problem of taxation and the absolute need of local budgeting as well as the establishment by chambers of local committees for the study of municipal and school finances with special reference to the problem of tax arrears and methods of controlling and financing unemployment relief measures and of establishing relations with the local spending bodies.

Today in Belleville there is fortunately just this co-operation. Last year chamber, council and board of education looked into the question of revenue and expenditure for the purpose of economy. The result was a lowered tax rate.

Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., a member of the Executive of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce has received from this body a copy of an address delivered by Dr. R. A. Britain, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research on the subject of municipal management.

Dr. Britain suggests management and management means a plan, but unfortunately, says Dr. Britain, few municipalities see it that way. He draws the distinction between the originator of the policy and the agency for carrying it out and says "Boards of Control and Councils throughout the country do not realize the distinction between their duties as framers of policy and the duties of the people who carry out the policies they formulate." The result is that much of council's time is waste time and this fact keeps many good men out of civic bodies. Dr. Britain says that control of boards can be established with the work accomplished by a proper system of reports, and by seeing to it that the officials stick to their functions.

Councils and Boards have enough to do without the actual carrying out of the work. Dr. Britain shows that they have a right to demand the revenue and the expense account. He suggests that they pass it before the year begins so that the year may not be without a plan for many months as in some cities where the budget is not passed until April or May with the result that the municipality is run without a plan. He sees no reason why such should not be ready in draft form at least at the first of January. "The budget should be a chart of activities of the city during the year. It is the most important public document. I think the time is coming when instead of departments of economics in universities and high schools studying government from text books, they will take such documents as civic budgets and regard them as the most valuable text books and will have teachers able to interpret budgets and make them interesting to young people."

Dr. Britain further says that councils and boards should adhere to budget appropriations themselves when asking for officials to do so. "Many councils unfortunately look to the Legislature to validate supplementary expenditures. Budgets should be such that there is no need of revising them.

Another duty of the council is the appointing of officials and in the appointment, promotion, demotion and separation from the service on the basis of merit is set up. I think that is one of the weakest points in our municipal administration in Canada, that appointments are not based on any particular system, but vacancies are filled without any real study whether the man to be appointed is the most meritorious who could be appointed." The backbone of our government undoubtedly consists of the permanent heads of departments, this system being preferable to the U.S. system wherein a man knows he may be out of a job in four years' time.

"I have an idea that if all appointments to municipal office in Ontario were made on the basis of merit, and all promotions also, the expense of municipal government might be greatly reduced," is another conclusion of the expert.

In coins of many kinds life pays
The wages mortals earn,
For all their toiling hours and days
She makes a sure return.

There is her shining coin of fame,
Her glittering coin of wealth,
Her priceless coin of honored name,
Her precious coin of health.

Men grasp at these with eager clutch
They seek and never tire,
For years they labor overmuch
For coins of their desire.

Most blest by far is he who gains
One coin of changeless worth,
The currency time never stains.
The rarest wage on earth!

Who holds this coin alone is wise,
Though all the rest be spent.
For no rewards man's hopes devise
Are equal to content!

KIWANIS SERVICE CLUB starts the New Year with a new president, Eddie Rikley, a live-getter, who with any kind of real support will keep the club functioning one hundred per cent. Past President Jack Morden, who served one term and finished another for a departed president, handed over the Kiwanis seal of office at the regular meeting Tuesday and with a new president and new vigor and confidence the Kiwanians face the new year full of confidence and courage, believing that there is plenty of scope in Belleville for doing good, carrying on their present philanthropic programs and always keeping an eye out for new avenues of doing good.

RETURN OF LEGAL SALE of liquor in the United States has been accompanied with some strange events. Much confusion as to the way of handling the sale has resulted from unpreparedness. Mostly anybody could apply for a license and get it. Mostly anybody did. One of the biggest departmental stores in New York City advertises a liquor department where bottles can be purchased. A large gent's furnishing store in that city also put in a liquor department. They store sell by the bottle and the drink. About the only line of business that did not apply for a license to sell liquor was the undertaker, and no doubt he figures he'll get them sooner or later if they dally too long with the cup that cheers, inebriates, and raises Cain generally.

MIAMI IS CALLING and the cold and stormy weather has undoubtedly centralized in the minds of many Canadians to flit southward where the swallows preceded them in the fall. Belleville will be well represented in Florida before the winter is much older, and while some of us may be fighting snowdrifts and sleet storms up here we will be enjoying deep sea fishing, daily sea bathing, watching the big baseball leaguers get supplied up for next season in spring practice, all the while living, daily sea bathing, watching the big enjoying a salubrious climate and a people who know how to entertain. However, it's up to us to—carry on, Sergeant.

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS are still holding out although considerably weakened by strong attacks of the enemy. Whoever said that good resolutions were made to be broken said a mouthful as anyone who formulates any elaborate set of New Year resolutions can testify. However, it is best to count our New Year resolutions one by one, lovingly, carefully, now, for one by one they may be shattered ere the year grows much older.

Well, dash it all," said the youth, a little taken aback, "you're the first girl who ever doubted it."

A Scotsman was strolling along the quay one day when his dog stopped beside a basketful of live lobsters. Instantly one snapped its claws on the dog's tail. The surprised collie dashed off down the street yelping with pain.

The fishmonger was indignant. Turning to his prospective customer, he bawled: "Mon, mon, whustle to yer dog! Whustle to yer dog."

"Hoots, mon," returned the other, complacently; "whustle to your lobster!"

CONQUER THE WORRY HABIT AT ALL COST

Every Individual Creates His Own Particulary Worry Bugaboo

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Worry is the universal besetting sin of present-day civilization. The person who does not worry is practically non-existent.

Everybody worries. Even children get upset over their toys and playmates. The curious thing about worry is the fact that most people believe if they were in somebody else's shoes they wouldn't have to worry any more.

The poor who worry about obtaining the barest necessities of life picture in their imagination how happy they were rich. The middle classes, who so often live beyond their means and worry about paying bills, feel certain that some day, when fortune smiles on them, they will live a serene and contented life.

But the rich, whom so many envy, whom the poor think must possibly have any worries so amount to anything, are very poor rich frequently worry just because of their riches. They worry about the stock market, the value of their real values, or that some individual might cleverly relieve them of the money away from them.

And it is worry, more than all that they suffer from is the constant fear that someone is going to steal from to them, or that people like them, simply because of very poor rich but merely because they are rich.

There are so many varieties of worry that it would be impossible to set them all down. Every individual's worry bugaboo—but particular worry bugaboo—buttons worries, family troubles, love worries, all kinds. But whatever your own particular worry may be, it has got to be emphasized is that you ought to do something in your power to rid yourself of it.

A constant apprehension of the future—what may happen—is perhaps the most serious drag to a person's advancement that exists. It is the most dangerously undermining influence the mind could possibly have.

When a person worries, his thoughts, first and foremost, are confused. He cannot think clearly out of the difficulty that confronts him. If he could, worry would never be started.

Worry is really an exaggeration of real difficulties. The worry of imagination runs wild. People have an idea that worry can be controlled through will-power. But that is not true. You cannot control worry out of your thoughts through force or even by means of concentration diversion and a shifting of attention. You may succeed for a time, perhaps, but worry will invariably the worry will slip back into your mind in some other thing.

If you have fallen into the habit of worry it is important to remember that worry is a habit only psychic vitality will make worries worse. Not only must you stop worrying but stop your indecision. Arrive at a conclusion, when once that conclusion is reached, stick to it.

NINE TRAPPED AND DROWNED

Sheet of Water Tumbles Down From Mountain Lake

Colmar, France, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Inhabitants of the Orbey Valley, 15 miles west of Colmar, were forced to flee from their homes last night and early today to escape a sheet of water which tumbled down from a mountain lake, trapping and drowning all-nine employees of an electric plant.

The water of Lake Blanc spilled into Lake Noir by a sudden break in a pipe supplying the waters of an electric power project, poured through the Noir Lake Power plant and threatened to sweep the valley.

Rescuers said today, however, the flow had subsided somewhat and the water would subside soon.

Troops were called out to aid in rescue work. Among the guard in the valley.

Among the nine men killed at Lake Noir, which is 2,000 feet up in the mountains, Director Pierre Lalle and Engineer Marcel Paillard were the manager and an engineer.

BARRACKS DESTROYED AT CAMP BORDEN

Some Technical Equipment Lost in the Blaze

Camp Borden, Jan. 5. —Fire of undetermined origin Thursday destroyed a frame barracks building occupied by sixty-one men and a quartermasters' stored building containing a quantity of technical equipment.

An officer from Toronto headquarters will conduct a court inquiry into the cause of the fire here this morning.

The blaze was thought to have started in the roof of the large building and spread very rapidly by a stiff east wind. The flames were detected, however, by the prompt action of the Camp Borden Fire Brigade, which prevented damage being done to any adjacent buildings.

Damage was tentatively estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000. There were no casualties.

U.S. GOVERNMENT MAY BUY CANADIAN ALFALFA

That Grown in Dominion Superior to U.S. Brand

BRAMPTON, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP) —J. E. Brandt, of the U.S. Bureau of United States Government representatives, are conducting inquiries here regarding the available supply of alfalfa from Peel and Haldimand counties. The Ontario product is considered superior to the United States alfalfa for general weather conditions.

Agriculturists here believed the visit of the two officials may mean reduction in United States tariffs or that the tariff at present is $4.50 a bushel.

STEAMER SINKS AFTER COLLISION IN FOG

One Man Drowned But Rest of Crew Are Rescued

Amsterdam, Jan. 5 —One man was drowned early today when the German Steamer Ceres, a 660-ton vessel, sank off the hook of Holland after a collision in fog with the British vessel Charges.

The British ship, apparently unaware of the seriousness of the collision, proceeded toward England.

With the exception of the one man, all of the Ceres's crew were rescued in lifeboats.

WELDER ALMOST KILLED

Windsor, Jan. 5.—E. Gregory, of Cleveland, an expert welder, had a narrow escape from death when molten iron from an acetylene torch overcame him as he was fixing the inside of a tank in the tunnel in a Windsor brewery. For three hours members of the fire department rescue squad worked over the unconscious man. Dr. Bruce Scott, hospital where Gregory was taken said he would recover unless unexpected complications set in.

HIS CRUTCHES BOILED KETTLE

Once-Crippled with Rheumatism

Do you realize what causes rheumatism? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted upon to clear those painful crystals from the system. Physicians say: "They cause much perfect internal regularity which is so essential to please as uric acid are ever able to accumulate again." Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

NOW BACK AT WORK

He was not wrong, either—this man who concluded that he would never need his crutches again. For it is now six years since he threw them away, and he is still quite active. Writing of his experience, he says:—

For five years I was a cripple, due to rheumatism, and was given up as a hopeless case. I could hold a book, stomach, and I could not enjoy a meal without my food repeating on me. One day an old friend of mine told me to try Kruschen Salts. So I bought a bottle and gave it a trial. "After taking two bottles I was able to sit down and enjoy a good steak, and also have a good stand sleeping—a thing I had not done for years. I was getting about more freely. One morning I got up and lit the fire, and put the coffee on. My mother thought I was crazy, because I always used to put the crutches on the kettle with them.

"That was six years ago, and I am now back at my old job as a chef—and a chef puts in some long hours on his feet."—H. A. B.

IS ADMIRED AT CHICAGO

Lauds Doug But Reconciliation is Not Likely

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Twenty years after her last footlight appearance here, Mary Pickford was almost mobbed by a crowd of admirers who waited all over a station platform for a flower from her bouquet.

America's Sweetheart, who has parently retains the title today, is here for a week on a "five a day" vaudeville appearances at a loop theatre.

She has come here twice so far, but, "I have had"—and she corrected the tense quickly—"have a brief visit with my family and intend to have a future even more brief."

The Toronto girl discussed cautiously Douglas Fairbanks, other half of Hollywood's "ideal marriage" from whom she has petitioned for a divorce.

"Yes, I heard from him Christmas. A cable."—"Fairbanks is in Europe?—"And a very lovely one, for Douglas is a most lovely person.

"Yes, I sent him one too. It may sound, well, bromidic to say it, but we are friends."

But as for the possibility of a reconciliation—"No, I don't think there is any possibility of it."

Would she ever marry again?

"Well, who knows?" She was gay once more. "I have learned not to plan, at all. I'm like the girl who somehow those are the things I wind up by doing."

FOUR VACANCIES NOT FILLED FOR SOME TIME

Ottawa, Jan. 5—(CP)—The four legislative vacancies in Ontario will not be filled for some time, Premier George S. Henry said here Thursday, intimating the election may not be held until the general election in the autumn next summer. At the same time the Premier said he was unable to name a successor for Hon. W. H. Price, provincial Treasurer, whose funeral was held Wednesday in Quebec. The vacancies are in Leeds, North Bruce, East Ottawa and North Renfrew.

ROADS NOT OPEN

The Ontario Department of Highways reported yesterday that only two stretches of provincial highways system are not open to motor traffic. Many others are icy but motorists will find "rough going" on the system.

Highway No. 39, between Almonte and Arnprior, and No. 7, between Arnprior and Pembroke, are not open.

LORNE CHABOT BEATS LEAFS FOR THIRD TIME

Goals, Thrills, Upsets and New Stars Produce Fine Sport for the N. H. L. Fans

Ottawa Equals Scoring Record by Downing Bruins 9-2

LEAFS LOSE

Chabot Holds Old Team Mates in Check While Team Wins 4-1

(By the Canadian Press)

"Pro got everything." Old Man N.H.L. shouted yesterday, "goals, thrills, upsets, new stars, everything." And he had. Eight teams determined to produce spectacular, goal-packed hockey that would make fans forget the Shore case, just about succeeded last night.

The public was given something other than the Boston incident to think about in a night of thrilling hockey that included Ottawa's 9-2 win over Bruins, equalling the season's scoring record, and Montreal Canadiens' tumbling of Toronto Leafs, 4-1, for the third time this season.

And the N.H.L. produced clean hockey too. Montreal Maroons, a rugged team, beat Americans 5-4 in a 70-minute game in New York that was played without one penalty.

New Stars

New stars? At Ottawa Jerry Shannon and Max Kaminsky, former Niagara Falls amateur gathered nine goals between them, scoring four for the Senators. At Detroit, Wilf Cude, substituting for John Ross Roach, held New York Rangers to one goal, while his team-mates scored three.

Ottawa's rout of the bumping Bruins brought Eddie Gerard and Kaminsky, who have been lingering around the fringe, right out in the limelight. The line made up of the pair of late amateurs and Frankie Finnigan, veteran wing, scored five goals. In three of which two of them were given assists. Finnigan was credited with a goal and two assists.

Art Jim met, obviously helped little by the announcement yesterday that Eddie Shore would not be available until January 26, were also played from the first face-off. The Senators scored a goal in the first period and four in the second and third. Art Chapman and Nels Stewart got Boston's goals in the last frame.

The 11-goal game equalled a season record Leafs set in beating Montreal Maroons 8-3 at Toronto December 9 and enabled Senators to hold third place in the Canadian section by a one-point margin over Maroons.

Chabot Holds Jinx

If Leafs had an idea their old team-mate Lorne Chabot was through letting them they probably felt it was confirmed last night. The goalie Toronto traded for George Hainsworth kicked out difficult shots from all angles and showed he reached his peak performance against them.

In four games he has shut them out twice and beaten them three times. Three of the four were by one game apart from those Canadiens got too—an engagement with the Senators.

Habitants got a goal in each of the first two periods and two in the third. Leo Bourgault scored half way through the opening frame and George Mantha beat Hainsworth near the end of the second and Aurele Joliat with half way through the third. Charlie Conacher got the Leafs' only goal. They had only three minutes to play and Jerry Shannon made it 4-1 with only seconds to go.

Two fresh goals in overtime brought Maroons their win from the Americs. After only nine seconds of the extra time Earl Robinson's shot hit Roy Worters' pads and then took an extra twist to put the Maroons ahead. Eddie Burke evened it up again less than two minutes later but Worters was beaten for the winning goal when Hooley Smith's shot bounced off Dave Trottier's stick into the net.

Baldy Northcott got two of Maroons' goals and Ronny Martin two of the Americans'. Jimmy Ward, Maroons, and Lloyd Gross, Americans, were credited with the others.

Brilliant Goal Tending

Wilf Cude's brilliance overshadowed everything else at Detroit. He stopped 24 Ranger shots and turned in an exhibition of polished netTending that was pleasing indeed to Jack Adams.

Another newcomer, Wilf Starr, of Detroit Olympics, scored Wings' first goal in the opening period and Cooney Weiland made it 2-0 before Scott Dillon tallied for the New Yorkers. Gordon Young grabbed a loose puck at mid-Ke in the third period and raced Dillon to the net for Detroit's third goal.

TO DETROIT

TEDDY GRAHAM

In an effort to bolster up Detroit's defence, Jack Adams has traded Stew Evans for Teddy Graham, of Montreal Maroons, last year with Chicago. Teddy will team up with Ebbie Goodfellow on the defense in front of a new goalie in Wilfred Cude, Roach being on the injured list.

ED THOMAS TO MANAGE JRS.

Grouped With Trenton and Hastings And Schedule Drawn

After negotiating for over ten days the application of the Belleville juniors was finally accepted in Section B of Group No. 1. of the Junior O.H.A. for the current year yesterday when Manager Eddie Thomas received official word of the acceptance from Convener Bill House of Trenton. The final change will be grouped in with Hastings and Trenton Bisleys, Trenton three teamed league.

Delegates from each team convened in Trenton yesterday afternoon, where a schedule was drawn adopting the local entry. After some discussion it was decided to play a home and home game with each team in the first and second place teams at the conclusion of the league schedule playing a home and home game series with the winner being declared by the total goals in the two play-off games.

Manager Thomas completed arrangements with the Belleville Arena last evening, and undoubtedly will call a practice for early next week at which all aspiring hockey players residing in this district, and being under 20 years of age on January 1st will be invited. In the meantime, however, the practice hours will be allotted to the Doherty A.C. team in preparation for their opening game versus the Campbellford team Coons here on Monday night next.

The junior schedule drafted is as follows:

Jan. 10th—Trenton at Hastings.
Jan. 12th—Hastings at Belleville
Jan. 24th—Belleville at Trenton.
Jan. 30th—Trenton at Belleville.
Feb. 5th—Belleville at Hastings.
Feb. 8th—Hastings at Trenton.

The play-offs dates will be announced at the conclusion of the regular schedule.

N. H. L. STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Baldy Northcott and Ronny Martin, Maroons, scored two goals each against Americans.

Lorne Chabot, Canadiens, aided in beating his old Toronto teammates for the third time this season.

KINGSTON CITY LEAGUE FINAL STANDING

The third place club plays the second place club a sudden death game, with the winner meeting the local Cities Service entry in a two-game series, goals to count, for the league championship.

KI-Y LEAGUE IS FORMED

Seven Teams Ready For Bell in The Junior Section

Fifteen teams were officially entered in the four sections of the local Ki-Y League at their annual meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. last evening with representatives of other clubs signifying their intentions of competing in the younger groups before the entries close tomorrow.

Six junior teams, under the age of 20 years, led the organization in numbers with five juvenile teams ready to face the battle. Three midget teams officially entered last night, while no entries have been received in the bantam section, although authentic information has at least three bantam teams unofficially ready for action.

The election of officers for this year's Ki-Y League resulted in the following taking the helm and interest in the fostering of hockey among the teen age boys of Belleville. President—W. Rankin; Secretary— J. E. Sheetz; chairmen of the various groups—Junior Geo. Lee; Juvenile—Bert Bantam; Midget—Clyde Smith and Midget—Ed. Shapiro. The league is sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club in conjunction with the Y.M.C.A. and giving good wholesome sport to many local youths otherwise unable to participate in Canada's national out-door sport.

Certificates Issued

Secretary Sheetz issued playing certificates to the various teams represented last evening and assured the team managers that the league was now pending arrangements with the Belleville Arena for playing dates following the completion of which the group schedules would be released. Secretary Sheetz also issued a call for competent referees for these Ki-Y League games.

The teams represented last evening were: Juniors—Rotary Centennials, Red Wings, St. Michaels, Q.V.S. Juvenils — Rotary Blue Birds; Juvenils — Rotary Reds; Black Hawks, Red Wings, Rangers, Holy Redeemer C.O.D.; Midget—Red Wings, Nationals and "Y" Juniors. No official entries have been received in the Bantam group as yet. All teams who are interested in playing hockey or entering a team in the Ki-Y League should immediately get in communication with Secretary Sheetz for further information.

CURRENT SPORT

Baseball has received more than its usual amount of pre-season ballyhoo this the first year league this winter but the story to top 'em all was the recent press dispatch announcing Jimmy Georges "Babe" Ruth's launching upon a period of training to prepare for the coming season. Despite the fact that Ruth played in 127 games last season and was on the well known shilds, some of the boys in on the know seem to think that Ruth will stage a come-back that will startle the whole baseball world while others are definitely sure that the "Sultan of Swat" is through, once and for all. It must be remembered that Ruth will turn his fortieth milestone in this year's calendar and from comparison there is a veteran ball player right in our midst who is but a few years younger than the Babe and its our guess that he'll be in better condition to play baseball next summer than he has enjoyed for the past three odd seasons. "Yes, we're referring to W. J. "Tweeny" Miller. About nine months ago "Tweeny" Mills underwent a serious operation that militated considerably his effectiveness on the diamond last summer. The season previous he was suffering the ailment but here's one to paste in your hat that he will head about the twelfth of July next summer —"Mills will be batting over the .330 clip on that date."

Wilmer Hillock, teamster for the Quinte Stables and owner of Vermont McKinney Jr. has returned to this city after campaigning his charges at the Toronto fairs during the fall and winter meet. It is expected that Mr. McKinney will continue his residence in this city and will train again next spring. He had fair success at the Toronto fairs and the horses will now be given a needed rest until the fall both Catharine Grattan and Vermont McKinney have had a very successful campaign this past summer. While in Toronto, Mr. McKinney made a purchase, which will add greatly to his stable. Arnie Grattan, winner of three races at the Dufferin and owned by Robert Trench of Tweedsmuir, is the property of Wilmer. This mare comes from the famous Grattan strain and will no doubt be heard from over the fall fairs this part of the province next season.

Every evening this week the local Doherty will work out from 7 until 8 p.m. in preparation for the opening O.H.A. game on Monday versus the Campbellford Braves. Already such players as Rube Bustard, Jim and Gerald Elliott, Ernie Rigby, Alex Weir, Jack Connors, Pete, Jack and Bill Cassidy, Mac Covert, St. Denis, Jimmie Kelly, Gaire along with the Canning brothers, Art and Ken, will be working under the watchful eye of Coach Ed O'Hearn. Some real scrapping puckers are expected to turn out on the ice for the local entry at the end of the week, assuring them of a real classy aggregation.

To demonstrate the popularity of the local rink it might be said there were no less than fifteen teams represented at the meeting of group groups when a call for prospective teams was made. Secretary Sheetz feels assured that there will at least be fifteen more of 'teen age boys entered in the Ki-Y League before the organization opens activities and that a referee is needed most of all during these games is the plea of the convened referees, thus assuring the league that the referees will be on hand at minute officiating. A call for young aspiring referees will be issued last night by the league and any interested in the work should once in a while should get into communicate with Mr. Sheetz. It is expected that there will as good wholesome exercise entre so, why not get into the Ki-Y League a helping hand.

The Belleville juniors were officially placed in the group consisting, one, section "B", of the O.H.A. Junior series. Cube" are grouped with Hastings, Trenton and Belleville with a single schedule starting the first of November with House at Trenton last night. Manager Thomas will undoubtedly call a practice early next week at which time a large number of junior hockey aspirants are expected to turn out.

Judging from the trimmins the Canadians gave the Maple Leafs last evening Eddie Allan's Maple Leaf Gardens will be the centre of Toronto Mail and Empire this evening, most have already gone into an open switch or the engine has been changed with enough goals as fuel, or sumpin'.

THE BIG SEVEN

Charlie Conacher, clever right-winger of the Toronto Maple Leafs, was in the top point-getting position of the National Hockey League today, with 21 points to his credit. Conacher's one goal effort last night when his Leafs defeated the Montreal Canadiens, was the city's pawn, the dangerous counter, Serge Slavitsky.

MAN'S CASTLE

The matchless craftsmanship of Director Frank Borzage has wrought of the simple, beautiful love story in "Man's Castle," the most glorious romance since "Ih Heaven." A love born of the fragile dream of two hungry hearts is unfolded in the contrasting setting of a sombre, poverty-ridden depression community . . . and portrayed by some of the screen's most popular and appealing players, Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young.

Spencer Tracy, fresh from his triumphs in "The Power and the Glory," plays the role of "Bill," an irresponsible, gruff, kind, but charming fellow. Loretta Young is "Trina," a hungry, homeless, helpless girl, who is befriended by "Bill"—and taken into his miserable shanty home in the squatter community on the riverfront. Ensatic love of these two young people is the story of "Man's Castle."

Others in the cast are Glenda Farrell, who plays a role singular to the one she had in "Gold Dust Of Day," that of a musical comedy star. During the course of the film she sings several stirring numbers. Hobi, well-known character actor, is cast as the Bangart, "Brag," a powerful and vivid character; Walter Connolly as a broken-down man and Dickie Moore as a lovable and appealing crippled boy.

"Man's Castle" is the love story that will make your happiest dreams come true. One of the most appealing of love stories you've ever seen.

With the same programme we offer the last comedy number in the well known comedian, Patsy Arbuckle, entitled quite recently, entitled "Close Relations;" Scrappy in one of his best cartoons and Capitol up-to-date news of current events. Starting Monday we include the third chapter of the mystery serial "The Whispering Shadow."

HUGE FRAUDS CHARGED

Paris, Jan. 5.—(AP) — France was shaken today by charges that $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 frauds have been revealed by the collapse of the Credit Municipal Bank of Bayonne, which was the city's pawn, shop, and the disappearance of the mysterious founder, Serge Stavisky.

AT THE REGENT

"Little Women"

Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" comes to the Regent picture screen in an elaborate production designed to animate this classic of wholesome romance with all its native thrill, sweetness and power.

The version is said to adequately encompass all the adventures of "Little Women" that brought the book recognition as a classic and took even now, 65 years after its publication and 10 by Samuel a brisk sale.

The film story, as produced by R.K.O. Radio opens when the four girl heroines are entering young womanhood and have just begun to take themselves seriously. It tells the strange story of Death, her beautiful life and more beautiful death. It carries the complete moulding of Jo from the advanced miss of her teens who hated marriage through her romance with Laurie and later with Prof. Bhaer, whom she marries in the end.

When the book was first published its sanctimony, tenderness and deep simplicity poured itself boldly into a sea of callous novels and perverted plays of which could not have been sent through the mails today.

According to research covering the years the publication of "Little Women" established Louisa May Alcott on a pedestal of fame, the book through United States, Canada and Great Britain like a wave of living fiction, incorporating the ideals of young humanity from the sublime and reckless morals brought about by the civil war.

The story of four lovely girls and their growth into a fine strength of womanhood in its full beauty gripped the world in 1870's. Ranging the world. It is said to have marked a definite turning in the end of loosely written literature which preceded it, more or less, to make its reappearance today a thing of horror.

The story has been produced with absolute fidelity to the letter and spirit of the critical book, and is creating a sensation in the theatrical world receiving the acclaim of millions of people, young and old, who ordinarily do not patronize a film theatre.

From "Little Women," the "bible of girlhood," coming to the Belle Theatre Saturday for a four-day engagement stars one of the most outstanding of Hollywood's personalities, Katharine Hepburn. Miss Hepburn, on the screen, for she flashes from glamour to comedy to tragedy to the realms in the firmament, plays Jo. Amy is played by Joan Bennett; Paul Lukas plays Prof. Fritz Bhaer; Meg is played by Frances Dee; Edna May Oliver is Aunt March; Douglass Montgomery is the grandson of Mr. Laurie, the latter character also played by Henry Stephenson. So here is the story of four girls growing that more majestically across the pages of history—the truths of the eyes of New England, stirring the world of today's living pictures of an age that will live forever in tradition.

"Dancing Lady" Leaving

"Dancing Lady," the gorgeous musical picture co-starring Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, closes a highly successful engagement at the Belle tonight. It is worth seeing.

FOXBORO W. M. S.

The W.M.S. held their first meeting of the year on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Embury with an attendance of seventeen. The new President, Mrs. John Gowsell was in charge and after giving the call to worship Hymn 318 was sung, after which Mrs. Everett Sills led in prayer, especially remembering the missionaries who have sacrificed so much by gain gained. The minutes were read and approved and the business of the year was discussed and the appointing of the Watch Tower Members were:

Canada, Mrs. J. G. Sills; Japan, Mrs. Ewart Sills; China and Honan, Miss A. Clarke; India, Mrs. Embury; India, Mrs. Daniels; Africa, Mrs. Bevers; Bible, Trinidad, Mrs. Priest. "There is work to do for Jesus" was sung and Mrs. Bell followed the annual report of the different officers. These reports were filled with greater determination for better service in the coming year and Mrs. Embury led in a prayer of thankfulness for past guidance and petitioning for needed strength. Rev. Mutton conducted a service of installation of officers and Mrs. R. Spencer read the scripture lesson. Hymn 150 was read in unison as a prayer and some papers on the Study Book prepared by Mrs. M. E. Adams, were read by Mrs. Ewart Sills, Mrs. W. Hodges, Mrs. Embury and Mrs. Everett Sills and Mrs. J. G. Sills. Mrs. J. W. Daniels led in prayer, emphasizing the power of intercessory prayer and our use of it and the meeting closed by the Presidency reading a prayer in poem form: "Be with me Lord."

Care of a Nervous Child

By LISA GRENELLE

ARE "NERVES" a necessary curse of this machine-made age, and an especially potent curse of certain children handed down from father to son?

"Little Lucy is such a nervous child!"

"Of course; look at her mother."

How often we have all heard dogmatic ills that.

But unless diseased or allowed to grow wild, nerves are not a curse. They are a gift, given us as protection against our enemies, against all manner of danger, as a force with which to cope with the emergency when extra speed and strength are required.

The child born with "nerves" therefore is not the inferior child but always the superior. Lucky in having an added sensitivity; lucky in having also another faculty—the child with the greater potentialities. But nervous energy is also a force, and like all forces—fire and love, for instance—it can help well or ill, may turn from a benefactor into the most deadly of foes; it can turn and destroy its possessor.

Without this nervous energy, which forced man out to achievement, and which developed his every immediate physical needs, there would have been no progress. Men would have been content to go on living in caves going out to kill only when hungry. But having more nervous energy than the lower animals, man ventured forth not only for food and a mate, but to explore, to invent, to experiment and to conquer.

Dangerous Gift

Just as the most valuable and carefully bred horse is a nervous horse, the child born of talented, superior parents has a high degree of nervous energy—a dangerous gift, which must be watched and controlled from the beginning. And it is up to his parents to determine whether they will let him grow into a neurotic, or into a man equipped to travel farther and jump higher than his brother.

Take care of your child's nerves. Never allow your voice to a nervous child. Don't stimulate or excite him. He will do that himself. Reassure him, and if he needs punishment, send him off to his room, not to a dark closet. Send him to bed if you like—sure not only to prove an excellent punishment, but to do him real good. But never strike him. Never yell at him. And never, never frighten him, either by stories of "bugaboos" or threats of policemen.

For the nervous child is imaginative and subject to fear. He is always supersensitive, especially to sound, to any physical sensation, to all external as well as internal stimuli.

Remember that the sensitive and supersensitive "nervous child" may grow up into a charming, talented woman, a brilliant, successful man, or into a hopeless neurotic. It is up to you.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

The January meeting of Holloway Street W.M.S. was held in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Denton in the chair and Mrs. Hubbs at the piano.

There was a splendid attendance and the meeting was most inspiring and instructive. The meeting opened with hymn 378 "Holy, Holy, Holy, Thou Great Jehovah". The president then vacated the chair and Rev. R. L. Neal conducted the installation of the officers for 1934.

Those holding office are as follows: Hon. president, Mrs. L. M. Hall; president, Mrs. M. D. Denton; first vice-president, Mrs. James Bailey; second vice-president, Mrs. H. B. Neal; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Bush; treasurer, Mrs. J. McCarthy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. F. Reid; strangers secretary, Mrs. Wickett, Mrs. Waddell, Mrs. Sweetman. Mrs. S. P. Hagerman; peace secretary, Mrs. S. Mason; temperance secretary, Mrs. A. Leaven; baby band, Mrs. H. Woodley, Mrs. W. Oliphant; Mission Band, Miss Sweetman; Christian stewardship, Mrs. L. M. Hall; press secretary, Mrs. L. F. Reid; supply secretary, Mrs. J. Hogle; literary secretary, Mrs. S. P. Hagerman; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. E. Neal; finance committee, Mrs. J. McCarthy, Mrs. J. Hogle, Mrs. Denton, Mrs. H. B. Neal, Mrs. L. M. Hall.

This was concluded with hymn 146 "Breathe On Me Breath of God" and prayer by Rev. R. B. Neal.

Mrs. Denton then resumed the chair and spoke briefly of the support and co-operation of the members during the past year. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and the financial report for the year was given by Mrs. J. McCarthy, treasurer. The returns from this report were most gratifying.

Mrs. L. M. Hall read a letter from the secretary of Christian stewardship and finance, pertaining to a request that the allocation may be divided and sent quarterly instead of once a year as formerly. Other items of business were disposed of, then Mrs. Mott, leader of group one, took charge of the devotional program. Hymn 402 "Lead On O King Eternal" was sung, followed by Mrs. Scripture reading by Mrs. Mott from Psalm 65:1-2, and Romans 8:16-18. The devotional leaflet was given by Mrs. Denton. A solo "O Lord Forgiver was rendered by Mrs. T. Hall in her usual pleasing manner. A short temperance talk by Mrs. Leaven, and Mrs. Hubbs spoke on "World Peace". Prayer by Mrs. Mott. Mrs. Sweetman read a most interesting letter from Miss Horke, a missionary now in Japan. While at Alcott College some years ago, she attended Holloway Street Church and had active interest in the W.M.S. Miss Horke's letters are always a source of inspiration, and are greatly appreciated, members are saddened by news of her mother's recent death, and join in extending to her heartfelt sympathy.

The meeting closed with hymn 378 "Tell Out My Soul" and the Benediction.

Members of group one served refreshments during the social half-hour which followed.

SHANNONVILLE A.Y.P.A.

On Tuesday evening, January 2nd, the A.Y.P.A of Trinity Church, Shannonville, met at the home of their president, Bruce Pontt.

The meeting opened with singing hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Pepper.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Owing to the state of the roads a number did not answer to the roll call.

Four new members enrolled and were introduced to the other members by Jack Grady.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. The music was furnished by Wallace Robertson, violin; Kerry Burtt, guitar; Bill Houston, harmonica.

A dainty lunch of sandwiches, cakes and coffee was served.

On behalf of the A.Y.P.A. Rev. Mr. Pepper and Jack Craig extended a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Pontt and Bruce for the happy time spent at their home to which Mr. Pontt replied that it was a pleasure to have the young people with them and hoped they would visit them again.

Let Child Share In the Home

By LISA GRINNELL

Do your children belong in your home? Of course they do! They're your children, aren't they? Yes, and it's your home, your house. You and your husband bought it, chose and arranged draperies, furniture, pictures, according to your taste. Certainly, it's your home.

But it isn't the children's. Oh, they live there; happily, too, no doubt; probably in the best room in the house, the biggest and the sunniest. But it isn't their home, it's yours. They had no part in choosing or buying it. They may have the best room, but I'll be betting they were not consulted when the rooms were being passed around.

They have free access to the living room — can entertain their friends there, perhaps. Oh, you and father are pretty indulgent with them! But is there one picture in the living room that they have chosen? One cushion that they bought with their own money and placed there?

Their Home, Too

Do you have difficulty getting your children to help you with the dishes? Not much help around the house, are they? Well, children will be children you resign yourself to thinking. We can't expect too much of them—old heads on young shoulders.

Jimmie works plenty hard in shining up his new engine, though doesn't he? And Sally is forever cooking some concoction on that little toy stove Aunt Mamie gave her last Christmas. Certainly the gun belongs to Jimmie, and to you and father; and the stove belongs to Sally.

Give your children a share in your home. Make it theirs as well as yours. Remember, when you choose new curtains or a new rug, perhaps they don't know much about rugs and curtains, but I'll wager they know what they like. And if their taste is more than you can bear, argue them out of it, fairly and with equity.

Choosing the Furnishings

And if finally you must have your way as to the curtains, let them choose some of the pictures; yes, even if they aren't just what you'd like.

It will prove worth while. The whole attitude of the children will change. Even careless Jimmie will not be so careless about how he's been allowed his say. No spots made by Jimmie on the new rug, because the rug is now partly Jimmie's. No footprints on the slip covers by Sally. Sally wouldn't mar their beauty. Didn't she help to choose them?

Take the whole family when you shop for the house. It may be a nuisance; it may delay things. But I will guarantee that it will pay you; that it will bring you a richer, more helpful relationship with your children than you ever dreamed was possible.

BRIGHT IDEAS FOR BREAKFAST

In these days of limited menus, it's well to know a few ways to brighten up the good old standbys we always have for breakfast. Breakfast is a meal none of us pay much attention to. Yet—there are certain of ways to vary the eggs, the cereal, the bread—ideas right under our very noses.

Here, for instance, is a recipe for prune muffins, made with Shredded Wheat crumbs. Would you ever have thought of that? Yet it's a perfectly delightful way to bring to the breakfast the combined benefits of cereal, fruit, eggs, and 100 per cent. whole wheat. For Shredded Wheat is whole wheat, you know—with nothing added and nothing taken away.

Prune Muffins.

4 Shredded Wheat biscuits, rolled fine.
1 cup flour.
2 tsps. baking powder.
½ tsp. salt.
1 tbsp. sugar.
1½ cups milk.
1 egg.
½ cup chopped dry prunes.

Into Shredded Wheat crumbs sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add milk and well-beaten egg. Fold in the prunes. Bake in greased muffin pans and bake 20 to 25 minutes in hot oven (425°F.).

Makes twelve muffins.

Eggs, too, can be made more tasty for breakfast by the addition of Shredded Wheat crumbs. Did you know that half a cup of shredded Wheat crumbs and a little milk, added to omelet or a scramble, will make three eggs serve six people?

When it comes to serving cereal—Wheat straight, there are infinite possibilities for variety. You can combine it with fruit, for instance, in a bowl of milk or cream or half-and-half. Shredded Wheat soaks quickly in the oven and serve them with a big pitcher of cream at the table. You can serve them crumbled, with fresh fruit, canned fruit, any kind of fruit you happen to have. Or you can serve them with just plain salt—and enjoy for the first time the benefits of sun-ripened wheat.

There seems to be no end to the accomplishments of Shredded Wheat. It does duty as a breakfast cereal, as a cooking ingredient, and as a basis for creamed dishes of all sorts. Crumbled — in bits, chipped beef, hash, even fruit abericakes. You must try it yourself. Try something yourself. Any dish that brings to you the protein, mineral and vitamin benefits of 100 per cent. whole wheat is well worth discovering.

A New Course of 12 EASY LESSONS

COMMENCING January 15th

ONE of the tragedies of the age is the household wherein there is not a good cook—one who really knows food, for in that household there is sure to be waste which works against the family finances, just as improperly prepared and improperly combined foods work against the family health, causing unhappiness and no end of trouble. To those who do not consider the subject seriously it may not seem so important at the first glance. But it is the unmistakable truth that there is no accompaniment known to women which can compare with that of being a good cook. It does not matter whether the woman in question is to do her own work or to have a staff of servants—these are the reasons for this new cookery course.

After five years of preparation, Anna Lee Scott is offering to all readers of this paper, her new 12 Lesson Course in the Art of Cookery, making it possible for everyone, regardless of their income, to find a new thrill in the preparation of food. These new easy ways are without a doubt the most interesting economical ways.

The first lesson will appear on Jan. 15 The other eleven lessons in the course will appear on this same day each week for eleven weeks. Read and study every paragraph. You will find the lessons decidedly helpful in the future as well as the present.

Simple Rules Prevent WEARINESS

Do you know that there is a simple, healthful way to rest? Just relax! Relax and you will be ready to meet the duties of your busy life and begin your original and hurry? Then it, and if you have acquired the habit of worry, you are not unusually subject to nervous fatigue.

Rest mechanically. Don't depend on chance. Don't wait for fatigue and exhaustion. Don't wait until you have used up your energy. Don't wait until you have made yourself nervous and irritable by taking a strenuous, pleasure-loving attitude toward your life and some of your work.

Do not make the mistake of supposing that you can rest by lying down. Lying down is not resting unless you relax. Lie between the sheets and relax. Relax and something tells that you are resting. Get out of bed and relax. Relax in a chair. Relax on the floor. Relax anywhere, anyhow, but relax. Relax completely. Relax mentally, physically, nervously. Relax and you will be rested. Relax and you will be refreshed. Relax and you will be ready to begin your original and hurry? Then it, and if you have acquired the habit of worry, you are not unusually subject to nervous fatigue.

Large Factories Operating Cheaper Than Smaller Ones

Based on Study of 125 Factories in Ontario

Large and efficiently operated factories are producing more than half the cost of the smaller units, according to the findings published by Agricultural Economics Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture. Professor H. Michell, Queen's University Dairy Department and Mr. Hamilton Dingwall, Secretary of the Ontario Agricultural College, and presented before the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association convention on Wednesday afternoon by C. V. Parker.

Mr. Parker explained that the information was based on the study of 125 cheese factories in Ontario and dealt only with manufacturing costs. Manufacture of cheese in Ontario declined 20 per cent. from that date until 1934 there had been a rapid development. In 1900 there were 1,328 factories in Canada with a production of 131,867,813 pounds of cheese; in 1931 there were 778 factories with a production of 94,-478,168 pounds. The greater production for the decrease by reference to the growth of large urban centres with their large demand for milk for fluid consumption.

There were two methods for figuring the cost of manufacture; the first dealt with the actual cost of the picked expense. By this method the average cost of manufacturing a pound of cheese in the factories studied was calculated to be 1.94 in 1931, 1.5 cents in 1932 and the same factories to 1.05 in the largest factories.

The second method took all charges into consideration and by it the average cost per pound for manufacturing was fixed at 2.18 cents. The lowest cost of cheese manufacture for 1.83 while the cost in the smallest was 2.53.

First Grade Cheese Increased

Joseph Burrows, chief cheese grader of the Department of Agriculture, gave another interesting figure showing the production and grading of cheese and butter in Canada. These figures, he stated, are the information that No. 1, cheese graded in Canada was the highest record. during 1933, an increase of 9.35 per cent. over 1932. There was loss remaining in first place among all the provinces of the Dominion.

The report of the Dairy Industry showed that Victoria County led in first grade cheese, with 98.2 followed by:—Addington, 98.4; Hastings, 98.2; Prince Edward, 98.2; Lennox 98.2; Carleton 97.9; Northumberland 97.7; Frontenac 97.6; Glengarry 97.5; Prince Edward 96.4; Grenville 96.4; Lanark 96.4; Stormont 96.3; Russell 96.3; Renfrew 96.2; Leeds, 94.2; Dundas 93.7; Renfrew 93.4.

Mr. Parr had a report showing the total cheese manufactured in Canada in cheese and pointed out that in 800 cases, he had received reports of cheese before grading. One of the most outstanding improvements however, was the standardizing of the manufacture of mealy cheese, only 0.3 per cent. mealy cheese, or 0.39 per cent. as against 7.55 per cent. in 1931.

"The trend in Ontario," said Mr. Parr, seems to be towards the manufacture of cheese of a mild cast in question whether this is a good thing for the industry."

1934 Directors Named

The only business of the afternoon besides the address was the acceptance of the slate presented by the nominating committee of the board directors, which is as follows: Charles Thompson, Bloomfield; A. E. Newman, M.L.A., Lorneville; J. N. Truscott, Belleville; W. J. Hepditch, Stead, Leonard; Alex. McCruer, Bridgewater; Wm. Hall, R.R. 3 Stirling; Alfred Merrell, Campbellford; W. J. Edwards, Auburtvile; J. P. Murphy, Madoc; Wm. A. Donaldson, M.L.A., Oxford Station; R. Dalman, Consecon; J. Mason, Picton; Neil Lancaster; Glen H. Ketcheson, Bethesda; Wm. Hepditch; James Hawthorne, Peterboro; W. J. Cooper, Sunbury; H. Bennett and J. Cooper.

Page of Story Book Sets Dress Afire

TORONTO, Jan 5—A three-year-old girl, Lenore Marshall, tearing pages from a little "Chester Gump" story book and throwing them in the opened door of a woodstove in the kitchen of her home in the suburban Count Road yesterday screamed with fright when flames from the stove leapt and fell back against her dress.

Mrs. Marshall who was in the backyard at the time hanging out washing, ran to the kitchen. She found dress of the child ablaze in flames and immediately ripped the child's clothing off.

A neighbour telephoned the police and an ambulance was summoned to take Lenore to the Hospital for Sick children. The girl suffered burns to arm and face had been badly burned. Last night the hospital physician was described as "fair".

Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young in "Man's Castle", now at the Capitol.

CONSERVATIVES MEET IN CAUCUS IN REGINA

Regina, Jan. 5—(CP)— Faced with the problem of making definite plans for the coming general Saskatchewan election, Conservative party stalwarts and supporters of the Bracken administration government were gathering in Regina today.

The caucus, called for the dual purpose of drafting a programme of action for the election and to discuss legislation to be brought along at the opening session of the legislature, will start today.

Neither the date of the coming session nor of the election has been announced yet.

Political items on the caucus agenda will be a discussion of Premier Bracken's stand-pat policy, been by the glass, government control of power, education, debt adjustment legislation, and the implementation of the international wheat agreement.

Premier J. T. M. Anderson and Hon. M. A. MacPherson, Attorney-General and Saskatchewan treasurer, will address the caucus today to take part in the inter-provincial conference on January 17.

JAIL PROBE IS HALTED

Stated Jailer Hyndman Takes Poison Before Called to Testify

Walkerton, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP)— The Ontario government probe into the treatment of prisoners at Walkerton was temporarily halted today, due to the illness of William Hyndman, governor of the jail, who nearly lost his life when poisoned yesterday.

Hyndman became violently ill shortly before he was called to testify before the inquiry, which is being conducted by Inspector William Norris, of the Provincial Secretary's department, assisted by Mr. Clarke of the Provincial Department of Health.

For more than two hours, five doctors worked furiously on the sick man, and late last night it was stated he would probably recover. Hyndman was at his residence in the jail building when he became sick.

The inquiry was instituted following allegations by a prisoner in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph that while detained in Walkerton Jail awaiting his removal to the reformatory, he had not received the proper medical care in regard to his state of health.

Hyndman was facing no charge in connection with the probe. Crew Attorney Freeborn stated last night.

CHURCH FACES REAL CRISIS

Message Brought to W.M.S. of John St. United Church by Pastor

The regular monthly meeting and the annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of John Street Church was held on Wednesday, January 3rd at 3.30 p.m. with the president, Mrs. Moore, in the chair. The president opened the meeting with a short New Year message and Hymn. 69 the Race That Long In Darkness Pined."

Rev. Robert Hall, in charge of the devotional part chose for his Scripture reading John 1:1-9 and said "the church is facing a crisis this coming year. The outlook is bleak and discouraging and there is need for more consecrated effort on the part of the members. There seems to not only challenges in the present state of affairs but also to the genuine which God made to Joshua, in the first time of discouragement: "Be strong and of good courage".

"Why are the young people drifting away from the church? They are grasping for diversion to fill their needs and are not very certain just what it is that they want. They have a craving for something which apparently, they cannot find in the church. There seems to be a general indifference on the part of the older, as well as young people, to the church and its teachings.

"On the last Sunday of the old year even though it was the eve of the new year, when one would expect the people to flock to church, there were very poor congregations, and the midnight service which had been so carefully prepared for were almost neglected. But both theatres and the church were overcrowded.

"This is a very serious condition and tends to discouragement on the part of those interested and one wonders what the outcome is going to be and what should be done. But we still have the promise which was made to Joshua and which should give forth a ray of good cheer, I will not fail thee nor forsake thee".

Mr. Hall then led in prayer. -

Reports Given

The treasurer and secretaries were asked for their monthly and annual reports and the following, including the Portal of the Coming Year" and the Prayer Cross and Crown Service" were sung.

Miss Bird kindly inducted the members of the new executive.

The program was furnished by the members of the Mission Band under the leadership of the Misses Ruth Pringle and Mary Ann Bird.

The program which took the form of a dramatization of the story of how the birth of Jesus, was most attractively and effectively staged and the clever work done by the Mission Band leaders.

Wilma Judge read the story and those taking part in the dramatization were: Mary, Ruth Pringle; Joseph, Caldwell, Helen Miller, Margaret Graham, Ardyth Graham, June Buck and Marjorie Jackson; Wise Men, Hugh Graham, Fred Merrell, Garnath and Irene Singer; Mary and Joseph, Charlotte McCle and June Buck.

During the dramatization Wilma Judge read the story of the birth in Luke 2:8-20, St. Luke 2:1-7 and St. Matthew 2:1-11, also the hymns "All Night, Holy Night", "The First Noel", "Away in a Manger", "Hark The Three Kings of Orient" were sung by the members of the band. The meeting was closed with the hymn ct. "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" and the Mizpah was sung.

Those who failed to attend this meeting missed a treat indeed and did not see this dramatization by the Mission Band.

POPULATION OF JAIL DOWN

55 Per Cent Fall in Prisoners' Total in Three Years

Statistics have been established that show a 55 per cent. fall in the County Gaol welcome the New Year by Sheriff Ponton. Taking the past four years into consideration Gaoler C. H. Pruyn recently released figures to show that steady decline of inmates have seen one gaol pass and welcome another behind the cold gray walls of the local jail. At midnight on December 31st 1933 there were but 15 prisoners in the local "Jail Hotel". There on night in 1932 saw 15 inmates; 1931 saw 30 while 1930 saws as many as 47, two at that time being female inmates. The above figures show a marked decrease yearly at New Year's time in regards to inmates lodged in the County Gaol although when gauged back as far as 1929 there were but 10 registered at the "house gow" to welcome in a New Year. Since 1930 the decline has been over 50 per cent.

Toronto, Jan. 5 (CP)—The Toronto exchange again today presented bullish tendencies despite sluggishness on the New York board and other markets. Distillery and brewery shares turned over heavily in firm to strong prices and oil leaders came to the front with good buying and advancing of prices.

Prince Will Not Go on Bahamas Voyage

London, Jan. 5—(CP Cable) — The Prince of Wales, it was learned Thursday, had decided not to make his proposed visit to the Bahamas, British West Indies, this winter.

It had been stated last month the prince contemplated making a visit to the islands, to start shortly after his return to London from Norfolk following the Christmas holidays, but it was pointed authoritatively that the visit will not be made.

It is possible the Prince will make the journey at some future time.

QUARTER LESS JAIL INMATES

Twenty-Five Per Cent. Drop in Three Years

Toronto, Jan. 5.—(CP)—Ontario's prison population dropped more than 25 per cent. during the last three years, it was announced by the Ontario government today. At the end of the 1933 fiscal year in September, there were 2,000 persons in reformatories and penitentiaries held 14,538, compared with 20,400 in 1930.

The September reformatory population was distributed as follows: Burwash 500, Guelph 620, Mimico 130, Port Arthur 200, Toronto 200, Langstaff jail farm 159, women's farm 51. It was emphasized that the figure for Mr. William was temporarily high on account of 400 striking miners who were given short terms.

Total population of mental hospitals was between 11,00 and 12,000.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Butter and cheese markets were firmer at the week-end, selective touching new highs for the winter season to date, while eggs were to be a little easier. Potatoes held firm at the recent substantial advance. Poultry prices remained steady.

The butter market ranged during the day from 30½ to 31c per lb., with an increasing tendency toward the higher level. No. 1 was mostly quoted for carlots or l.c.l. lots of No. 1 pasteurized regraded. Receipts were heavy.

The cheese market was mostly quoted 1-c-lot to 10 1-2c per lb. for current make Ontario cheese, with numbers one cent higher. Receipts were only four boxes.

The egg market was inclined to ease owing to larger receipts, which aggregated 6,000 cases yesterday. Graded shipments were quoted 34-35c for grade A-large, 31-32c for A-medium, and 28-29c for grade B.

The potato market was quoted as follows: Quebec cobblers at $1.75 including broken, 13. Supplies light, demand good, market firm. In Nt. Mountains 80 lbs., No. 1, $1.15 to $1.25; 15 lbs., No. 1, $1.10 to $1.15. Whites 80 lbs., No. 1, $1.10 to $1.15.

Dressed poultry prices to the retail trade, or delivered to hotels and by wholesale jobbing houses per lb., as follows, 2 cents generally higher in two cents under the A grade prices.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Augusta Thompson who passed away Jan. 5th, 1933.

When shades of night are falling,
And we are all alone,
There always comes a longing,
If you could just come home.
So suddenly you were taken,
The blow was hard to bear,
But still we know you are sleeping
In God's own loving care.
—Sadly missed by husband, Son and Family, and Sisters. J5-1t

HELEN STARTS ON COMEBACK TRAIL

An indomitable will and rigid adherence to doctor's orders have enabled Helen Wills Moody to declare that she is ready to sally forth to regain her lost world tennis crown in 1934. She is swimming every day in order to regain her lost strength and hopes to resume tennis practice soon. Queen Helen is shown here with her two Sepulbam terriers at San Francisco, Cal.

TORONTO LEAFS APPROACHING BOSTON'S 1930 RECORD

CLANCY JACKSON HAINSWORTH PRIMEAU CONACHER

Despite a series of injuries that would ordinarily cripple a team, the Toronto Maple Leafs, who are so far ahead in the N.H.L. that they are only a myth in the league have compiled a record so far this season that takes some beating. Boston Bruins, deadly rivals of the Leafs, are the only team in recent years to hang up a similar record, and if Toronto keeps up their present pace, Boston's record won't stand much longer. This season the Leafs scored 74 goals in the first twenty games, for a game average of 3.7. Boston's average for 44 games in 1930 was 4.07. In twenty games the Leaf's were only defeated three times, and tied the same number. Boston lost five games in 1930 and tied six for an amazing point total of 77. This season, of course, there will be 44 games so that the Leafs can lose a game or so more, and still best Boston's record. The players responsible for Toronto's rush would include every member of the team, but those who stand out are Joe Primeau, Charles Conacher and Harvey Jackson of the once "kid-line"; King Clancy, who is leading the league with Joe Primeau in number of assists, and George Hainsworth in the nets, who next to Chuck Gardiner, of Chicago, is the league's best goalie, so far this season. Primeau, who has no penalties in twenty games, is right in line again for the Lady Byng trophy, despite the fact that Toronto leads the league by far in penalties.

ADELE RONSON

The peaceful look in the eyes of Adele Ronson, actress in an adventure series over the radio, probably is due to the fact that this photo was snapped in the living room of her New York apartment.

MAY SOON BE EMPEROR AND EMPRESS

Cable reports received from London state that at Hsinching, which is the capital of Manchukuo, on March 1, there will be a pontifical ceremony at which, Henry Pu Yi —shown with Mme. Pu Yi—will be elevated to the post of emperor of this Japanese-made state. At present he is ruling the state, with the title of administrator, and he has even now dictatorial powers. Five grades of peers have been decided on in connection with the founding of the new dynasty of Manchoukuo, and it is said that the Japanese influence in the Asian state will be conspicuously absent from the moment that Pu Yi is crowned emperor. Ceremonies will be held at Hsinching.

IS JOHN ROSS ROACH SLIPPING

Is it curtains for John Ross Roach, veteran 33-year-old goalie with Detroit's Red Wings? When Toronto Maple Leafs showed the puck behind him eight times in a recent game in Toronto, it was too much for Jack Adams, Detroit manager, and he decided to give Roach a rest for two weeks and replace him in the nets with Wilfrid Cude, young Syracuse star. Adams states, however, that Roach is by no means through; that Perry chicken farmer is still suffering from an injury received in Chicago when seven stitches were required to close a wound in his face. It will be remembered, on the other hand, that Detroit secured Roach after the former Toronto goalie was made the "goat" of the Toronto-New York Stanley cup finals two years ago, when Toronto won in three straight games. Last year, however, Roach was one of the stars of the N.H.L. This year, it is admitted that he has had a mighty poor defence in front of him, and Adams is making every effort to strengthen it.

NO, HE DIDN'T CRACK HIM ON THE HEAD

Bee Star

Bee Star may be a star circus but she is only a thorn in the side of Maxie Baer, contender for the world's heavyweight championship. Her, shown above, has brought a $250,000 breach of promise suit against the fighter, declaring that he proposed to her in California. Both are now in New York, where Bee says she has been unable to meet him.

SUES MAX BAER

BIDS CODSPEED TO EXPLORER-HUSBAND

Standing on the deck at Dunedin, New Zealand, amidst the moored Wyatt Earp, ship of his transantarctic flight expedition, Lincoln Ellsworth is seen taking leave of Mrs. Ellsworth, a few moments before the Ellsworth ship turned its prow out of harbor here, and southward toward the ice packed waters of the Antarctic. It will be many months before the Ellsworths will be re-united and in the interim, the intrepid explorer will probably add a flight over the South Pole to the surrounding regions of aridity and frigidity to his record.

POWERFUL INSTRUMENT OF WAR

A new machine gun, invented by a Japanese, which will fire 9,000 shots a minute, is believed by experts to be similar to the machine gun, capable of firing 33,000 times a minute, which was perfected by Lieut. W. Lombard, left, of Boston, with Lombard on the invention operating on the principle of centrifugal force with a disc.

DORIS DUKE POSES (?) AT LAST

An informal photograph of the sixteen photographed Miss Doris Duke, was taken as she was celebrating the advent of the New Year in New York, with a girl companion at the exclusive Mayfair Club, in the Ritz Carlton hotel. Miss Duke, who is the despair of the photographer, usually, showed her usual reticence when she spied the cameramen. She was hiding her face effectually, when one of the knights of the lens appealed to her sportsmanship, and she responded to give them a brief moment in which to record her features. The ladies will be interested to know that Miss Duke was attired in a gown of shimmering gold cloth, featuring a small waves design and made in Peter Pan fashion, and, as usual, she wore no jewels.

WILF CUDE GETS ANOTHER BIG CHANCE

Once again young Wilfrid Cude comes up to major league hockey. One of these fine days, this lad is going to "come up sometime" and stay up. This time, Cude is up with Detroit Red Wings to replace the injured Hutch. Cude came up from Syracuse in the International league where he has been starring all season. Cude has had the distinction of playing with nearly every team in the N.H.L. at one time or another and last year was the league's official sub-goalie, to be rushed into action whenever a team's regular last man was injured. This year he is the property of Montreal Canadiens.

WIDOW OF SLAIN WANDERELL WEDS

Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, widow of Captain Walter Wanderwell, who was mysteriously slain on the yacht which he was fitting out for a world cruise at Long Beach, Calif., eloped from New Orleans, La., with Walter Baker, 21, a member of her travelling theatrical troupe. They were secretly married at Gretna, La., on Dec. 26, and as soon as they have completed their present theatrical engagements will leave on a world tour, said happy Aloha. "I had given up I could never marry again, but I love Walter, and the future looks bright."

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

CHAPTER 20

After midnight. The long lean car turned toward Fifth avenue.

Where's the idea, Sue," Jeffrey said. "You've had a rather hard ordeal. A sling on the head. You look terrifying as well. Just lean my arm and I'll take care of the rest."

Poof Jeff. I'm feeling marvelous. Could take the Empire building one bound." Sue leaning on Jeffrey's arm, despite her protests.

That's because the hint of Uncle Andy put out of bounds." Jeff passed the leaning head. "You've very sleepy, Sue. Better not think."

Sue crushed her third cigarette into a silver gadget at the side of the car.

Let me finger. Better hide the cause," she asked.

Let me see your pocketbook. Good. It isn't a pocketbook. It's a handbag. Great Master, I love 'em. Full of restoratives. Sue is just to pass out at any minute now. That bag was full of things that will keep her from passing out."

Jeffrey," Mathilda fluffed at her bag as a good housewife fluffs a pillow." But you've both forgotten one thing—Sue's wedding ring. You did a two by one, Jeffrey."

Looks as if it's been turned in night club," Jeffrey said, and smiled frittered from the windows of the racing pile. "Steer we remember, Sue, you are invalided back from the front, Mathilda and I are your stretcher-bearers."

Through the wrought iron doors, across an deck. Sue from like beams were always on deck—come to some may. The elevator. Was to Jeffrey? It was running.

Now terrifying!" Beatrice Randall had beaten the elevator. Beatrice was continuing Jeffrey of his chivalrous attentions. Sue—I've been distracted. Everyone has been asking for you. I told them about the accident and—After all, she's no responsible for you should not appear, considering it an affair for you, and not your very best and oldest friends are gathered here in your honor."

Of your pardon, Miss Randall. Some other time." Mathilda indicated herself between Beatrice and the elevator. The elevator door opened. Sue's head was against Jeffrey's shoulder.

Present my apologies, Bea." Jeffrey said, breezily. "The doctor brought Sue should have some air. We've been around the park. The air on the back of front. Ortsky's not stunned her, but it hasn't stop, her thinking."

Safe behind the doors of the suite had been Jeffrey's mother's in beleaguered wedding party re-

Fortune's saved." Mathilda pulled of her hat, plumped herself against a chair. "With time to spare."

I think it is, thanks to Sue, and you." Jeffrey helped Sue with her coat. Her game on his lips turned.

What do you mean, you think it is?" Mathilda demanded, catching a shade of doubt in his show of relief.

Jeffrey laughed. "Nothing—except you see there was a time in Sue's family's will. A codicil. However it isn't effective, now that Sue is safe in life. The clause stipulates that Gilbert, as executor, must approve of the woman I marry."

Mr. Gilford must approve—Oh, Jeff! Why didn't you tell me?" Mathilda reproached.

I didn't know until today. Grisby had to have his little joke. It was his idea to allow me to marry Sue and then be cheered or damned as the necessity stood it. He named a half dozen executors, in rotation, in Gilford passed away. A likely Mr. Gilford's the best of them."

Your uncle was a gentle soul Sue," Mathilda remarked. Many's the fly he must have declined as a boy."

We're safe enough now, codicil or codicil. Gilford can't possibly turn thumbs down on Sue."

Thanks for the lift." Sue pushed back her hair from a throbbing head. "Mr. Gilford will be fine thing. He'll hunt until he does. I'm designing woman, perhaps. A keeper of the Hills of Hollywood, one. Miss Nobody of the Great Unwashed on the Beach of the Mighty." The old bitterness was back again, overlaying gratitude. They safeguarded—their sons. Sue shower few—And she had thought to seek such walls.

That blow on the head must have taken Sue loose from her moorings," Mathilda said, rid'or, gather, "Get her hat and bag. "I'm going up to my room. It's hours past my bedtime."

Mathy, no!" Sue swooping down on Mathilda, dragging her back, pushing her violently into a chair. "Your staying here, with me. You can't go. Don't you understand—you have to take Sue's place tonight. In these rooms with—HIM!"

Sue—Jeff—" But once Mathilda's confusion, outstripped her words.

Mathy, you can't—I'll follow you back! Don't forget—I'm not through with you!" Sue's fingers a vise upon Mathilda's arm.

Look here, my girl," Mathilda said acidly, "you've got to take a hitch in your courage. No one's going to hurt you. Not as you tonight. If they do, Jeffrey will be here to see you aren't bothered over much."

Jeff will not be here." Sue's lips, tight with protest, "If he is, you and are leaving. We can go to a hotel. Mathy, there is a room for you in this house Jeff can occupy. I refuse to prolong this farce. There's no sense in it. Jeff's wife—Jeff's married."

Mathilda in Mathilda wanted to laugh. She submerged Puck.

Sue, you've been overwrought," she said, "there's a very good reason for Jeffrey's staying."

There's no reason." Sue turning the whole passion of her protest toward Jeffrey. "I'm not married—really. We went through some ceremony, but I'm not hurting myself into the arms of any man, not even Jeffrey, for the sake of my mother's rest for—Oh, God! What's the use, the whole thing is a jest. A horrible, revolting joke."

Jeffrey stood still for a moment. In his feet apart as though he braced himself against a blow. Danger signals flared behind the mirth that was his face, rough-hewn, pitiless.

Better turn in, Sue," he said. "If you should need me, I'll be in Mathilda's room. For the benefit of the servants or anyone who might be curious, your bed is trembling you. Mathilda's looking after you."

Sue, wither-hers." Don't bother about my head. I'll take care of it, or what's left of it. Long after your relatives stop trying to knock it off their shoulders. As for the marriage joke, it ceases to amuse me. The sooner it is ended, the sooner I shall be able to enjoy a real laugh."

What was she saying? Why was she flagellating herself with bitter words, hurling them at Jeffrey?

Ring for the maid," Jeffrey rapped out the order. "Ask her to bring tea and consommé. If you don't need them, they'll make convincing props. I'll arrange to be called to the telephone."

The butler door closed. Not too

Dawn coding through the windows damp and chill. Sue, moving cautiously, in the room did not disturb Mathilda. Out of bed, across the white pile of the carpet as softly as a cat stalking a bird, and she was in the living room of the suite.

The night had been interminable, without the healing balm of a match of sleep. Jeffrey had fallen, while her mind spun crazily, had cramped her body and legs, and had insisted that Mathilda share her bed. Mathilda's contact's bulk close beside her was tangible. All else, illusion!

Jeffrey was leaving her. Jeffrey was going to Mexico. To those mines he had told her about on the ship. Tomorrow, the next day, maybe today, Jeffrey would be gone. Inexorably.

Well, why not? Wasn't that the bargain? He did not contract to remain with her once they were married. A month, two months, three months some place or other, some resort nearby a Randall, no doubt, and she'd be free. Free and independent. Free to come and go as she chose. Paris. The Riviera. Egypt. She had always imagined Spain must be the most romantic country in the world—Moorish Spain. She'd take Tommy with her.

But she couldn't be hanging Tommy to the four corners of the earth. Tommy would be in school, preparing to be a lawyer like his father. Preparing to do things. Big things. Honorable things.

She'd have to travel the gilded road alone, or choose with strangers. Oh, she'd meet plenty of fascinating strangers. She'd gay and reckless and extravagant and—a little wild. The enigmatic but, oh so blithe Mrs. Sanitry Randall. No, Mrs. Sue Sanitry. The Randall must be dropped. Wiped out so that not even an imprint of the pencil on this page of her life remained.

Trunks. Three of them. Over by the windows. She hadn't noticed them before. Why had they been left out here? Three trunks filled with beautiful expensive clothes. The kind of clothes she had crowded before shop windows coveting ever since she had come to work in the city.

Her mind raced again. Alarming, ly. She'd have to stop it. Stop mind. You're trying to cheat me. You don't cheat her. She'll have a right to those trunks, to everything in them. Isn't she paying, I'll go where—Oh, what have I done—you've got to stop torturing me.

Sue, shuddering hiding her face in the pillows of the couch. Conviction stared at her across her shoulder. Laughed in her face. Shrieked with insolence. Mocked her body, her ears against those shrieks: "You don't want the children in the trunks. Now that you have them, you don't want them. They're so many rags. Paris, Egypt, Spain? You don't want to go. You want to stay here. You can't. Here is not the bargain. Fool! Thought you could buy happiness, did you. It's not for sale. You with it, you earn it. It's in your heart. Your heart goes with you, no matter what you wear, no matter how far you go. Stronger than Fate, stronger in these rooms with—HIM!"

Jeffrey's gone. About an hour ago."

You mean he's—he's—not coming back?" Lips could be paler than chalk. Pale and numb.

He didn't say."

But Mathy. He can't go—not this way!" Sue imploring.

What do you mean, he can't? You want him to go, don't you? The way you carried on last night you'd think he was trying to kidnap you or something. His own wife!" Mathilda snorted disapproval.

You don't know. Can't you see I was being forced on him, here in these rooms, closed in together. It was—shameful. I couldn't bear it. He's gone. I tell you. He left word about your mother. Said you'd probably want to see her today. You're to take a car, if you like. Conner is to drive. Conner is Jeffrey's man and won't talk."

Mathy." Sue started up in bed her eyes wide and haunted. "Mathy, where's Jeff?" Mathilda thought Sue's face against the pillow could not be whiter, but now she knew she had been mistaken.

That will be best," Mathilda agreed. Then you can stay as long as you want and you won't have a chauffeur to worry about. While you're gone I'll attend to a few of your own affairs that need weeding out."

Twenty minutes later when Sue emerged into the living room Mathilda, you can her paper to exclaim. "What's the idea of the old rose sports wear? I trung us all the new arrivals. Try this. Those in closets off the bedroom."

Twenty-five. The heire coat with the white stars from the pavement, and the cutterpie to adorn it, the fur, was across her arm.

Well your folks will certainly be glad to see you all rumpled and forlorn," Mathilda said.

Mathilda, we've just outside the elevator, consultire with Per-sons, the butler when Sue and Mathilda stepped out.

Oh, my dear!" Beatrice was a flutter of concern. Ffiam you are quite all right. We've been terribly concerned. I was fool of Grizzly, falling on you that way. Our parties are disappointed. I've told them all about you and the unfortunate accident."

I had rather a restless night," Sue answered, shaking the sister's onlens she felt for this dark intimating cousin of Jeffrey's under a show of solicitude. "I'm sorry to have disacconted your guests."

Oh, it's quite all right. Quite. They perfectly understood. Only I can't see how that bust—It's weird, isn't it?"

Persons stood rigid, with the proprietary position. And yet his eyes—behind the inscrutable mask—his eyes were trying to convey a message. Sue groped for the message. No, she could not catch it. It eluded her.

stand why Tarzan had saved his life. "You are not The boy, whose name was Ovan, could not understand. But the men of my tribe will of my tribe," he said; "yet you attacked his terrible pet and slew it. No enemy would have done that. "I am not your enemy," replied the ape-man. "I am a stranger from another world, who is lost." Ovan looked long and steadily at the handsome giant before him. "I believe you," he said presently. "though I do not understand. But the men of my tribe will not believe."

"Take me to your village," said Tarzan. "I will talk to your chief." "He is my father," said Ovan, "if he decides to kill you, I will try to help you." As they walked along the trail the boy related how he had come but of his people caves, alone, to make his first kill. "For this only may a man hope to become a warrior," he explained. "Then I met the ryth, and though it would have killed me, I would have fought it." Inwardly Tarzan smiled at the boy's talk as he told how mighty was his father and the warriors of his tribe.

As the two made their way toward Clovt, the boys village, he gradually abandoned his suspicious attitude toward Tarzan. Soon he seemed to accept him as he would have a member of his own tribe. He noticed the wonder made by the talons of the lion-man's back and shoulders. Many questions did Tarzan's knife when the ape-man fashioned a new spear and more arrows. "We are almost there," announced Ovan, halting at the brink of a canyon. "Below lies Clovis. Perhaps you had better go your way. I do not want you to be killed."

The boy knew this caused intense pain. But not by a tremor of a muscle did Tarzan show it and the lad's admiration for his new found companion was increased. The little Clovtan was a lad after the heart of the ape-man and the two were fast becoming friends. The boy was much interested in Tarzan's knife when the ape-man fashioned a new spear and more arrows. "We are almost there," announced Ovan, halting at the brink of a canyon. "Below lies Clovis. Perhaps you had better go your way. I do not want you to be killed."

KING'S GIFT OFFERED AT CHAPEL ROYAL

Feast of Epiphany is Celebrated by King George

GIFTS TO POOR

Monarchs Centuries Ago Established Yearly Offering

(By Thomas T. Champion.)
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(Can. Cable. Today being the Feast of Epiphany the King's gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh, was ceremoniously offered in the Chapel Royal at St. James. This yearly offering commemorating the opening of their treasures by the wise men before the Holy Child at Bethlehem was made by the British Sovereign here before the historic pile of mellowed brick including the Chapel Royal was built on the site of a leper hospital in the days of Henry the Eighth.

Since these days the chapel has been much altered, although the wonderful ceiling attributed to Holbein is kept as it was 500 years ago. Not since the middle of the 18th century in the reign of George the Second, has the offering been made by the Sovereign in person. Nowadays to the Bishop of London (early Officiating at this place being taken to day by Prebendary Percival, deputy clerk of the Closet and Precenter of the Chapel Royal.

The liturgy and ceremonial were on those lines followed by usage at many centuries. Music was rendered by quaintly garbed "children of the Chapels Royal" and the offering presented by two "gentlemen-ushers in-waiting."

The gold consisted of 25 pounds delivered to be distributed among the poor of the district. This Chapel Royal is filled with memories, perhaps the most memorable of comparatively recent events in the Chapel was the marriage of King George and Queen Mary, then Duke and Duchess of Kalen's father, Emperor Frederick of Germany and wife Princess Victoria Royal of England, Queen Victoria's daughter in 1858. Queen Victoria herself was married there in 1840.

GOD ON HIS THRONE BEFORE HITLER SAYS "BILL SUNDAY"

Famous Evangelist Back in New York After 14 Year Absence

New York, Jan. 6.—Billy Sunday was back in New York today for a fourteen days' visit with sin, ready to save the souls of those who fear perdition.

Fourteen years have gone the way of all time since the slang-using Tiger-sold Rev. William Ashley Sunday, last appeared in "the big, bad city". The blue eyes of the former major league baseball player, now an evangelist of world-wide repute, were a shade dimmer. There was gray in his short cropped hair.

But his beliefs and his condemnation of those things running against the grain of his beliefs still were expressed with a seasoning.

The man at the helm of Germany was a "nutty duck"—the NRA, the blue eagle had "only one wing"—the now dead United States prohibition amendment was "the greatest piece of legislation ever enacted"—and his favorite expression was "give 'em hell."

Bad times, in the opinion of Rev. Sunday, were due to dissipation, low religious ideals and extravagance.

The blue eagle which President Roosevelt hopes will again be prosperity aloft in the United States was "all right. It's not a material wing. It ought to have a spiritual wing as well."

Roosevelt, he said, is working hard and "I'm not going to criticize him. He's doing better than I could do with the job."

Hitler, he believed, might as well realize the Jews cannot be torn from their religion.

"God," he chanted, "was on the throne long before Hitler was."

Prohibition will be "back in the United States" before long, he said, he shouted at the member of the newspaper group who posed the question. Then he offered his remedy for the present ills of the world.

If the world would turn back to religion it would find a way out of suffering. Of that he was certain. He quoted from the Second Chronicles to prove it:

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

He finished: "That's what God told the Jews. He'll do it for us."

SEARCH FOR LOST HUSBAND

Man Whom She Claims Proves to Court He Isn't Husband

Vancouver, Jan. 6. — Mrs. Mary Later today was still looking for her husband because a court proved the man she said was her's really wasn't. And Mrs. Later's children called him "daddy".

A charge of desertion laid against the man under the name of Alexander Later was dismissed yesterday after Magistrate George Alexander heard all the evidence and ruled the woman and her children were mistaken.

"His hair and eyes are the same color, his features are the same; he even walks the same and is the same build and complexion; certainly he is my husband," declared Mrs. Later.

But Canadian Pacific Railway officials testified the man had been continually in their employ here since 1916, whereas the woman claimed her husband had left her in Montredoa, Man., in 1928, after they had been married fourteen years before in Winnipeg. There were eight children to the marriage.

Her husband had not been overseas, but he had possessed produced a discharge from the army and showed it to the judge strapped to the back of his head.

Her husband had a scar on one of his hands and when he accused rolled up his sleeves in court to show he had none.

The woman first spoke to the man on the street in Vancouver last spring and met him a second time, and when he continued to deny that he was her husband she took the matter to court.

Two teen-age boys of the family had also seen the man on the street and addressed him as "dad".

YENPING TAKEN FROM REBELS IN FUKIEN

Nationalist Government Infantry Reported Victorious

Shanghai, Jan. 6.—(AP) — The 36th Division of Nationalist Government Infantry was reported in dispatches from Foochow today to have captured Yenping from Fukien Province Rebels.

Earlier, Nationalist Government sources had announced that Nanping, 30 miles south of Yenping had been taken by the government forces in Fukien along a wide front.

Nanking troops were understood here to have broken through the rebel lines in the northern part of the Province and to have swept rapidly southward to Yenping.

Meanwhile, representatives of the British Government reiterated their request that British missionaries evacuate their posts in the interior of Fukien.

5 YEAR PLAN IN FLOOD AREA

Project Set on Foot in Stricken California District

Los Angeles, Jan. 6.—A five-fold plan for rehabilitation of the flood-swept areas of the metropolitan district was set in movement today.

Under the management, the state and county highway departments will construct 50 miles of roads, thousands of debris deposited on public property by the flood will be removed down Pickens Canyon New Year's day, taking thirty-nine lives. A score of persons was still reported missing.

Meantime the coroner's office had decided, after investigation, that no need for an official inquiry existed. No doctor's note report had been made dynamiting of check dams might have contributed to the ramage of waters,

N. Y. Governor's Attack On Dictatorial Step

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 6.—(AP) — Governor Lehman awaited today a reply from Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, whose proposed "fiscal dictatorship" was attacked by the governor last night as a move toward power such as "no man in this country has ever asked for or received".

The governor's 2,000 word letter to the Mayor was as sharp a rebuke as has come from the pen of any New York Governor in recent years.

"Unbelievable" was the Mayor's only comment when he was handed the Governor's letter in New York.

Who are Indigents? Asks Board at Windsor of Provincial Officials

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP) —Clarification of the term "indigent" under the Public Hospitals Act is sought by the Essex Border Utilities Commission, operators of Metropolitan General Hospital, from Ontario Provincial authorities.

It is claimed that several municipalities have refused to recognize as indigents persons who have been working one or two days per week and as a result will not pay hospital bills for them throwing an added burden on the hospital. Payment for special services such as X-ray and operating room charges are also being evaded it is claimed and an amendment to the Act, covering this situation, is to be sought.

McHUGH PLANS TO QUIT POST OF $100,000

Former Belleville Man Said to Be Leaving Chase Bank

EARLY HISTORY

Continues Interest in Financial District, He Says

This should be a success story headed: 'Belleville Boy Makes Good.' A story of a native adl who rose from the position of a bookkeeper's seat and telegrapher's key in this city and at a small railway station in the town of Lindsay to the position of trust as chairman of one of the largest banks in the United States, with a salary equal to the fabled rewards of Croesus.

John McHugh, chairman of the executive committee of the Chase National Bank of New York city, with an annual salary of $100,000, who has announced, according to a news despatch in the New York Herald and Tribune that even that salary is not sufficient to retain him, and that he will retire this year from the post as chairman in favor of a better position with his own company, is well known in Belleville where he was born, raised and spent his early years. Reliable of that early life in this city and elsewhere read like a tale of fiction.

In North Belleville

Mr. McHugh was the son of parents who were pioneers in this district, his father having settled here and he was left in the care of Mr. and Mrs. David Callaghan who then lived north of the city near the railway yards. His early schooling was received at the East Belleville Separate School, and was said to have been studious. Leaving school with ambitions to become a railway telegrapher, he set out and made a close application to the job. Mr. McHugh was simple and studious in his many friends—finally graduated to the seat of chief operator on the old Grand Trunk line here, but much time was spent at that trade in Belleville is not clear, but it is known that one of his last posts at that job was held at Lindsay where he worked for some time. Then, feeling the call of ambition along other lines, he left Lindsay for the United States and entered upon a career which has led to his present fame.

Perhaps none else in the city knew John McHugh better than Mr. Leo Callaghan, then employed at the Canadian National Express Office. Said Mr. Callaghan: "My David and Mrs. Callaghan who were entrusted with the upbringing of John McHugh. Though he was a bright, capable young and John McHugh was always a favorite with us. I still remembers, many little incidents stand out from the days when the present chairman of the Chase Na-

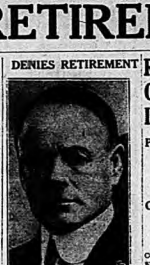
TORONTO MAN BEING SOUGHT

Chief Constable Kidd is in receipt of a letter enquiring into the possible whereabouts of Mr. Thos. H. Miller, 21, of Toronto. Miller's location is desired by his wife, who is also a resident of Toronto. The missing man is known to have relatives in or about Belleville by the name of Healey or a name sounding like it. Miller left his home and family in Toronto last February in connection with which he has not been heard of since. He is described as being six foot tall and had blonde curly hair. Any information regarding his whereabouts should be communicated to the Chief Constable.

Lights Match to Ascertain Amount of Alcohol in Radiator and is Burned

The warm wave Friday evening caused the radiator in Mrs. Jerry Eagon's car to boil almost dry. It steamed and bubbled as it rounded the corner of Bridge and Front in a chariot of old, and left a trail of alcoholic vapor, that was strong enough to give a second hand kick to the bystanders.

Mrs. Eagon was disgusted. "Tch tch-tch-tch", he murmured softly as he brought the protesting car to a squealing halt just abaft the lower bridge.



Then three things happened:

Mr. Eagon, in spite of the threatening gurgle of the radiator grasped with mittened hands and wrenched mightily. Pressure from within re-moved the cap before the last three threads had been reached, and Mr. Eagon was drenched with a decoction radiating from wood alcohol and alcohol, falling from a great height.

When quietness reigned again, he lit a match to see how far down the level of the fluid in the radiator was. Instantly a tall blue flame shot from the radiator cap. Eagon's face and narrowly missing his eyes. In the excitement of putting the fire out he whipped off a new derby and slammed it over the opening. The flames subsided and died, but damage to the derby amounted to a broken rim, and a badly scorched top.

After Mr. Eagon had purchased some cooling salve at a nearby drug store, he drove the subdued one home. The crowd then slowly melt. ed away.

DENIES RETIREMENT

W. E. N. SINCLAIR

Denying reports that he is to retire as House leader of the Ontario Liberal party, W. E. N. Sinclair alleges that the move was made behind his back and declares he knows nothing about it. It was reported that he was to retire in favor of Dr. G. A. McQuibben, provincial Liberal whip. The Liberal caucus will be held on January 18.

GEODUCKS AS SEA-SERPENTS

Victoria Barber Has Theory Geoducks Unhatched Progeny

Victoria, Jan. 6 (CP)—"Amy" has laid an egg—thousands of them, in the opinion of John Dance, local barber and piscatorial expert, who is working out on the theory that the "geoducks"—pronounced guy-duck—or sidney Spit, are in reality the unhatched progeny of Vancouver Island's pair of sea-serpents, Caddy and Amy.

Dance has fished in the waters about the lower end of Vancouver Island for 43 years and half-way expects a family of sea-serpents and geoducks, and he has arrived at the conclusion that there is a relationship between the two.

The geoduck has been known as a monster clam, as big as 18 inches across the shell, with a neck about two feet long and two or three inches in diameter, too big to be contained in the shell. It is found at periods of low water at Sidney and other localities of Vancouver Island and at several places on the mainland.

Dunes made his theory public after discovering reports on local sea-serpent had led to the conclusion that they were the work of marine monster—probably male and female.

SILENCE UPON SIMON VISIT

Premier Ramsay MacDonald to Meet Sir John on Monday

London, Jan. 6 (AP) — The Foreign Office today was coolly noncommittal regarding the results of the conversations in Paris and Rome of Sir John Simon, the Foreign Secretary.

Sir John was to return from Rome tonight and the Foreign Office indicated there was a 12.30 sharp. Regular prizes. Grand prizes.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald is to see Sir John Monday morning at the Downing Street and will learn from him directly the results of the Paris-Rome-London conference with Premier Mussolini.

RESIGNATION OF DALIMIER IS FORECAST

Premier Chautemps Decides to Stand by Mussolini

BANK PROBE

Colonial Minister Quoted as Advising Companies to Invest

Paris, Jan. 6.—The resignation of Colonial Minister Albert Dalimier was foreshadowed today as the first political consequence of the financial scandal resulting from the collapse of the Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop.

Despite Premier Chautemps' decision to stand by him against those attempting to link him with brazen larities, Dalimier feels, his friends said, that without him it would be easier for the Premier to withstand the storm brewing in the Chamber of Deputies.

It was intimated last night that Dalimier had planned to submit his resignation, but decided to see Chautemps again before making a final decision.

He was drawn into the investigation of the Bayonne bank's collapse and the resulting loss in bonuses of $40,000,000, by police disclosures that he was quoted on a circular issued by Serge Stavisky, the missing founder of the institutions, as advising investing companies they could legally invest in such concerns. Dalimier's companies were said by investigators to have been the principal victims in the sale of gilgedd bogus bonds.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Light to moderate winds have prevailed and have occurred from the Great Lakes eastward, but the weather has been for the most part fair in the west, and it is becoming colder this morning in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Minimum temperatures: Cloudy and mild. Sunday, westerly to northerly winds, cloudy and becoming colder with light snow.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Cloudy and mild and part of Sunday, followed by some rain and colder with snow.

Kenora and Rainy River—Fresh southwest to northwest winds; cloudy and comparatively mild; colder again at night.

DR. RELYEA ONCE RESIDENT HERE

From an old Hastings County directory, dated 1861, comes the first mention of a name associated by a resident of Minneapolis regarding the whereabouts of the Dr. Relyea family, one time resident of this city. From the directory given Mr. J. O. Reid-Scott, Minneapolis, on Friday morning, it was learned that Dr. Relyea had carried on the profession of doctor of dentistry in Victoria Square, now the corner of Front St. and Victoria Ave. Dr. Relyea's practice being sought before a reply is made.

In the list of officers installed in their respective positions, at the annual inspective of officers of the Moira Lodge No. 11, A.F. & A.M. (I.R.C., the name of Bro. Chas. Cochrane was inadvertently left out. Bro. Cochrane was returned to the office of tyler, a position he has held for the past 19 years.

TIP OF FINGER IS CUT OFF

Clipped by the swiftly revolving blades of a wood planer in the Vocational School yesterday afternoon, Fred Dawson, student at the Collegiate Institute, almost had the tip of the fourth finger on one hand taken off while planing a small piece of wood on the machine. The youth was taken to the nearby surgery of Dr. R. A. Tynan where the injured member was attended and later returned to his home.

Proposal to Change Method of Election

Tuesday, Oct. Jan. 6 (CP) — Changes in the system governing the personnel of the Windsor-Walkerville public school board were authorized by the board last night.

Consideration was given a proposal to have the members of the board elected directly at the polls just as education board members are elected now. This will be further considered later

NEW MANAGER OF ALHAMBRA

Mr. Chris. G. Holmes Goes to Toronto For Famous Players Corp.

Mr. Chris. G. Holmes, former manager of the Capitol Theatre, Belleville, has received the appointment of manager of the Capitol Theatre in Toronto, with the Famous Players Canadian Corporation. The theatre, one of the finest in Toronto, has a capacity of fourteen hundred.

Mrs. Holmes will remain in Belleville for some little time.

Mr. Holmes who has led an active life in Belleville not only in the entertainment field but as musician Rotary club member and as supporter of many charitable undertakings here will be greatly missed. His associations with Belleville have been most intimate and his friends are legion. A distinct loss has been suffered by the city in his removal. Mr. Holmes speaking to the press today voiced his regret on having to leave the city where he has spent so many happy days.

Mr. Holmes began his managerial career in Belleville after experience in the moving picture business in the Old Country. It was through him in good stead in his work in Canada. That his career in Toronto will be a success is assured and that his stay in that city may be a happy one is the wish of the citizens of Belleville who have come to know and appreciate him.

Annually the local Y's Men's Club provides a night which is known stage play with the entire proceeds being made up of local talent. In past years the Y's Men's annual production has met with marked success and has provided a medium of revenue toward their charity undertakings which are many. This club officials this year recently announced that the play to be produced under their sponsorship this season would be none other than that well known farce comedy, "Skinner's Dress Suit," with Miss Jean B. Tulle as director and in full charge of the production. As in years past the revenue derived goes wholly to charitable endeavours.

This well known comedy has played the various stages of the country and for the first time in years with, marked success as it assumes an air of mirth from the outset and carries the audience into a place of hilariousness, as they follow with laughter the trials and tribulations of the hero, William Skinner. The cast for the play in three act farce comedy and will be staged at the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday evening, January 19th. From the first time under the careful tuition of Miss Tulle the cast has been assembling their parts and rehearsing for the past while back with the result that the production promises entertainment by talent the same success as have other previous plays produced by the local Y's Men's Club.

The leading part of Skinner is assumed by Mr. Harry Hertig. He carries the role in a magnificent manner throughout. Skinner is a cashier in the firm of McLaughlin and Perkins. He is in love with "Honey" Rutherford, played by Sylvia Rose, but also "Honey," who is the secretary at the office, declares that Skinner make his mark in the world before she will consent to marriage. Naturally Skinner's troubles commence when he assumes an air of success before "Honey" and is called on by a young cracking salesman (Garvey Rose). The further Skinner gets into one trouble after another the more commy the play becomes until when the climax is reached and the curtain is lowered amid laughter. A good clean night's entertainment is assured those wishing to attend the Y's Men's annual stage production on Friday night next. The remainder of the cast includes Ewart Calder, Gerald Graham, Kenneth Mummings, Mildred Lloyd, Eleanor Bone, Mrs. Borden, Helen Sulman and Russell Hutchborn.

Y'S MEN TO STAGE PLAY

Skinner's Dress Suit to be Given to Assist Club Fund

Harry Hertig will be seen in the title role of "Skinner's Dress Suit" with Miss Jean B. Tulle as director and in full charge of the production. As in years past the revenue derived goes wholly to charitable endeavours.

McHUGH PLANS TO QUIT POST

tional Bank.

"He was always of a quiet nature, and a retiring disposition," stated Mr. Callaghan today, but he was a favorite with all. I don't remember an awful lot about him because I was quite young at the time, and Mr. McHugh had spent a lot of time in other towns. He learned the telegrapher's code and key himself."

Three years ago Mr. McHugh paid a flying visit to Belleville to renew old friendships, but his stay was of short duration. He was then accompanied by Mrs. McHugh, New York girl and daughter of a former bank president in that city.

Of Sweet Disposition

"Mr. McHugh is a regular gentleman," commented Mr. Fred Hertig, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. "He was also president who had been given the opportunity of meeting one of Belleville's most illustrious sons, Sir Sandford Fleming with him. "He was unaffected, of sweet disposition, and he endeared himself to everyone he came in contact with. Possibly the Bank officials this year recently announced that the play to be produced under their sponsorship this season would be none other than that well known farce comedy, "Skinner's Dress Suit," with Miss Jean B. Perhaps no better account of his varied and lustrous activities since leaving Belleville can be given than in the business in the United States could be found in the following account in January 4th by the New York Herald Tribune which is reproduced below:

"John McHugh, chairman of the executive committee of the Chase National Bank, whose annual salary was in the neighborhood of $100,000 a year, resigned from the institution yesterday that he desired not to be a party to the position taken at the annual meeting of the bank on Dec. 19 to the effect that he be withdraw from the bank board at the expiration of his present term, it was announced.

"Mr. McHugh made clear, however, that his resignation was not the management of the Chase bank does not meet with his approval, but primarily in the financial district. He will continue as president of the Mechanics Corporation, and plans to remain other directorships which he holds. Within a brief time, however, in California he will return to Wall Street, making the Chase bank one of the offices of the Discount Corporation.

"The withdrawal of Mr. McHugh from the Chase bank removes one of the financiers who for over a decade mental in the merger of the Mechanics and Metals Bank in 1915 with the Chase in April, 1926. He was president of the Mechanics bank at the time and when the merger became effective assumed the presidency of the Chase. In 1928 he was elected chairman of the executive committee.

"On retiring from the Chase, Mr. McHugh concludes an active commercial banking career of more than forty years. He has been continuously in the banking business since March, 1891. Up to 1915, a period of twenty-four years, his services were expanded in the Middle West. Since 1915 his activities have been centred in New York City.

"Mr. McHugh came to the Mechanics and Metals Bank in 1915 from the presidency of the First National Bank of Sioux City. He was chief officer of the Sioux City Clearing House Association in the panic of 1907 and was a leading spirit in guiding the Middle West through the financial difficulties which attended the outbreak of the World War in 1914.

"He has the distinction of being the only individual who has served as president of two separate state banking associations, having headed both the Iowa Bankers' Association and the Nebraska Bankers' Association. In 1920, following a term of eighteen years on the executive committee of the American Bankers' Association, efforts were made to have him accept the presidency of that body, which he declined.

"It was about this time, at the request of a group of banks in New York City who were stockholders of the Discount Corporation, that Mr. McHugh organized and accepted the presidency of the corporation. He later became chairman of the board, surrendering the presidency to E. C. Wagner.

MANY CASES IN DIVISION COURT HEARD

Judge Deroche of Belleville Presides at The Sitting

WEEK OF PRAYER

St. Pauls United And St. Andrews Join Together For Services

Stirling, Jan. 6 (Special) — The fifth division court of the county of Hastings was held in the council chamber, Stirling, on Thursday, Jan. 4, at 10 a.m., with Judge Deroche of Belleville and senior judge of the county, presiding.

Three cases were heard, the first that of Fred N. McKee, merchant, against Alexander Bonnell. The dispute was over the question of payment of an account rendered McKee to the plaintiff. Judgment was given in favor of the plaintiff for the payment of the costs jointly.

The second case was that of The Hastings Canning Co. against Collins, Marks and Co. with the plaintiff suing for the redemption of a note which is held against the company. Judgment was given in favor of the plaintiff of Cranston and providing for the payment of court costs by the defendant.

The third and last case to be heard was that of Ross Bros. Ltd. against automobiles against A. Catton in which the defendant was charged with non-payment of the price of a motor car purchased from Bailey. Judge Deroche supported Bailey's claim awarding him the judgment for the price of the car and ordering Catton to pay the costs.

The following persons were dismissed. The first was the case of Andrew Bailey, Jr., against Bailey, which the former alleged that the defendant had taken away Mr. Hertig from him several years ago for which no satisfactory settlement had been made. The other was Chris. Burkitt against William Papst, the plaintiff being the owner of a boat he had never received payment for a boat he had sold to which claim he had received the decision for in a former court. Mr. Burkitt appeared in physically unfit for manual labor the case was dismissed following which the case was dismissed following which the case was dismissed following will next be held on March 6.

The Members

The members of the Stirling Legion club rooms on Thursday evening, January 4th for the first meeting of the new year with the newly appointed officers in charge.

The president, Comrade F. W. H. Pedley was in the chair and took charge of the meeting. Sergeant-Major, Comrade (Dr.) H. H. Algar was present and on behalf of the members of the Eighteenth Battalion Fusiliers presented Comrade Pedley with a cheque for $50. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the donors, Messrs. Moore and Ross. Col. Kretchmon of Foxboro for their efforts in connection with the visit of the Stirling Branch by Comrade Roy B. Hubbs and was heartily seconded by Comrade R. A. Ketcheson. Comrade Hubbs gave a business session adjourned and Rev. R. W. Rowland addressed the men for a few minutes on the subject, "The Meaning of Christian Patriotism".

Rev. Rowland urged the members present to continue to maintain the high ideals which have been responsible for their self-restraint to which they, as true soldiers have been loyal comrades. Although we are hoping, working, yea, even praying for world peace, he stated, still we must be prepared when we should cease to prepare for war, because of the fact that the last we experienced in 1914. In a brief address of words of appreciation the speaker painted in words a peaceful picture of the European continental depicting its particular problem and pointing out the folly of the present preparations for war stating as long as the sister nations refused to regard the matter in the light of all seriousness. Therefore we must keep ourselves fit and take the responsibility of the maintenance of the Legion in a prosperous state.

Visits Old Home.

Dr. Charles M. Kingston of Grand Forks, British Columbia, was a guest on Friday and Saturday of his cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kingston, Church street. Dr. Kingston is an old Stirling boy, who has been in the West Huntingdon and attended the Stirling public school before he was awarded his degree in medicine, he was associated in practice with Dr. McKibbin, a predecessor of Dr. Algar's practice of over forty years ago. Dr. Kingston is on his annual visit to the east, where his son and daughter is attending the University of Toronto.

The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. H. Williams on Thursday afternoon, with a large number present did attendance of members. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and affirmed, the roll call was taken and was responded to by household discoveries. The accounts were received and audited and steps taken on whether or not the institute should cater for the Welfare Club dinner to be held on Tuesday evening. The members were unanimously in favor of catering for it and Mesdames Thomas Cranston and J. M. McGee were appointed as the buying committee.

The program was then presented and consisted of a vocal solo, "Baby Is Going to Bye-Lo," was given by Miss Erna Mercer; a reading entitled "Why Did Prosperity Fail" by Mrs. W. McIlsh; a vocal solo by "Sonny Boy" sweetly rendered by Mrs. Fred T. Rollin and accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Rowland; a reading entitled "Joshua's Visit to the City" by Mrs. Percy Bronson and a contest, "The Unsalted Seas" staged by Mrs. R. A. Patterson and resulted in a tie for the winner. The lucky number prize donated by Mrs. R. H. Williams was won by Mrs. Albert Hammond. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Personals

Rev. E. W. Rowland received on Thursday the sad news of the sudden death of his cousin, the late P. G. Sandy, ex-M.P. of Onslow following a heart seizure. Rev. Rowland left on Saturday for Ottawa where he is attending the funeral.

Mrs. Olive Bailey of Campbellford was a Thursday guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. G. Butler.

Bell Employee Retires

Mr. S. A. Hatley, who has been employed as utility manager for this district for the Bell Telephone Company during the past twenty-odd years retired from active duty on the last day of December, 1933, having been superannuated by the company. His successor is Mr. Murray Vicks who has been in charge of the Vicks district for the past two months. Congratulations are being extended to Mr. Hatton for the well-deserved holiday.

New parts have been secured for the tables at the local theatre for one on trial. These have clarified the picture and added brightness to the illumination of the screen to a remarkable degree and the patrons of the theatre would appreciate the act if the council should see its way clear to purchase the new parts.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Linn left on Monday evening for Kingston where they will spend the remainder of the winter. Mr. Linn, who is the dairy inspector for this district, is attending the annual meeting of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario being held there and following this will act as instructor at the dairy school being held in Kingston during the next two months.

Mr. John McCaw who has been confined to the Belleville General Hospital for the past three weeks suffering from a serious operation has returned to his home here in a much improved state of health. Miss Margaret Anderson, R.N., is in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Nell Beadell and family have moved from apartment in Mrs. Thomas Cranston's apartment building have changed their residence to the property of Mr. Frant street formerly occupied by Mr. Irvine Eggleton.

Mr. Leonard Ailis of Lansdowne House was a visitor in town on Wednesday.

Mr. W. J. Wiley is attending the convention of the Kreisler Life Insurance Company being held in Oshawa this week.

Week of Prayer

In accordance with the decree of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in United Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, a union of Stirlly a week of prayer which was begun on Tuesday evening, January 2nd, a meeting offered up with the intention that the people who had supreme control of our destinies may not be forgetful of us in the midst of the many blessings which we are passing, and that the world may be ultimately restored to peace and righteousness. The meeting is opened with a service of song and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The evening, The Tuesday and Wednesday evening meetings will be held in St. Andrew's with Rev. R. W. Rowland and Rev. W. Rowland officiating in turn. On Tuesday evening he spoke from the text, "Sleep on now and take your rest," which could be applied aptly showing that an opportunity sometimes presents itself and passes itself. The subject of his remarks on Wednesday evening was that message has the Christian Church to the world today. Rev. Rowland spoke of the present as an epoch period in the world's history and pointed out that it behooves the church to comfort, strengthen and help those who are in the midst of distress and trying times. Thursday and Friday evening meetings were conducted in St. Paul's Church with Rev. R. W. Rowland and Rev. Rowland delivering the discourses for the evening. Thursday evening the subject was "Is it well with you?" and repeated words of Christ to Simon Peter, "Simon, Simon, Lovest Thou Me?" asking his hearers to investigate their hearts and ask God to fight whether or not they had put their pride and ambitions, and their own inclinations before their duties to God. On Friday night, Rev. Rowland spoke on the "Two's in the Life of Christ" in which he ably demonstrated that the complete life is between two events in His life as His birth and death, the former being one triumphant, the other as a hated blasphemer about to be crucified by the blood-thirsty throng.

Mr. Bob Ribby was a Peterboro visitor on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ernest Thomson returned to Toronto on Tuesday after spending the past week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hagerman.

MARKET IS NOT WELL ATTENDED

Slippery Roads Prevent Farmers From Making Journey

Slippery conditions of roads rad, lating from Belleville and many surrounding municipalities of country folks at Belleville's Saturday market this morning, the result of heavy rain and wet, thaw coming to the mantle of snow which has been in position, and careful, slow driving necessitated by conditions.

Milder weather conditions, however made possible the offering of a much improved market, also on the outside market—the first time in two weeks. Anything as the list below: Tahmas 90c and 75c and $1.00 and $1.25; Cabbage 5c each $1.25 and $1.35; McIntosh Reds $1.50 and Cranberry Pippins and Baldwins $1.00 a bag.

Few Potatoes Offered

Hardly any potatoes were offered for sale and those available were sold at $1.00 a bag. Turnips, beets, rutabagas and carrots were 30c and 40c each. Cabbage 5c each and red cabbage 5c and 10c. Celery 5c and 10c a bunch and one celery 5c and 10c and some at 3 bunches for 25 cents.

There was a plentiful supply of eggs offered at the following prices: at 30c, 31c, 32c and 35c a dozen, with the latter price prevailing in large. Butter was on sale in quantity for the first time in a number of weeks, the price 30c a pound. Dressed poultry was in fair supply and a plentiful supply of poultry was that displayed for sale outside, the birds also of unworthwhile birds showing. Ducks sold at 50c, 75c and 90 cents each and the geese sold at $1.00 each. Chickens demanded 50c, 65c, 70c, 75c, 80 and 90c each, the latter price for those about the same prices.

Considerable fresh vendors and purchasers was small.

EXTRACT GOLD OUT OF SILT OF DESERT

San Bernardino, Calif., Jan. 6 — After three years of experimentation in handling the desert silt, a process has been found to extract, it is said, millions of tons of silt, Doran said, and if an extracting process is found, it may change the face of California and neighboring states and become gold producers of the first rank.

Simple Devices are Employed for Making Sounds on Screen

Rain is made by rolling pebbles over obstacles in the drum.'

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 6.—Inside the four walls of a Hollywood "sound-room" one can create with ease nature's most eerie noises.

Sound inventions, many of them secret, produce for the talking screen artificial earthquake noises more real than the real earthquake; rain and wind and cyclone and volcano eruptions and footsteps on the stairs.

Anything, in fact, a director decides he must have to emerge in sound from these machines.

Simplicity

The devices are simple, and in their simplicity lies their realism. A half-dozen different types of wind are produced by two wind machines consisting, simply, of wires, bent at the ends and radiating from a hub, and by a screen fixed on a beavier wire frame. As the wires slash through the air as different speeds, singly and in combinations, low, moaning winds and sweeping gales spring into the microphone.

Rain comes from pebbles, rolled over obstructions in revolving drums. Pig grunts emerge from organ boxes. Bird calls issue from rubber bulbs under plungers falling on dirt. The whir of automobile tires comes from a rubber-edged roller turning against the pitted iron surface of a second roller.

Noi, blog ago a director wanted a sound of people walking down a graveled path. The camera truck made more noise than did their footsteps, so the picture was filmed silent and sound recorded in the studio later.

Best Indoors.

Murray Spivak, one of Hollywood's best known sound effects experts, produces by the studio mock sounds of nature that cannot be recorded outdoors.

Formally, Spivak says, "we cannot control conditions on location as we can indoors. With artificial instruments we also can vary the pitch and intensity of sounds to suit screen needs."

Spivak, and a dozen other sound effects men, has as a daily job the task of devising new ways of making sounds. He may supply pig grunts from organ horns in the early morning hours, or simulate the noon blast dynamite for earthquakes. Or he may produce the whir of kick up a wind storm before leaving at night.

BOOK LINKED UP WITH PAST

City of Belleville is Asked to Purchase 1850 Publication

A link with the early past in Belleville was received at the office of Mayor Ellis, this today, at the city hall in the form of a small book in perfect condition written by the Rev. John Ryerson, Methodist son, and printed at the office of Powell and Moore of the Daily Intelligencer of years ago.

The book is a "Historical Catechism" written by the same Belleville author who had also penned several other books including, "The Easy of the Lord's Day", "The Christian Warfare," and others.

On the fly leaf of the little red book is the following: "Designed for the use of Academies and Schools in general and private learners in particular. Price one shilling and sixpence."

The Catechism is a small book but good condition and well preserved, and was addressed to Mayor Ellis with a request that the city purchase it to keep local historical records intact.

"Dear Sir:—Herewith I have sold "First Course in Rhetoric" by Hutchison, Belleville, dated 1850. This is the original edition of a noted early Canadian author, in perfect condition, original boards, covers and every page intact. It is a "skin deal" as chosen by me from the collection of Sir Sandford Fleming, Author of "Time" and Standard Time, etc.

"Trusting value to be stamped envelops from Belleville before glue stamps were invented. I am pleased to quote you the price of $2.50 for this book before turning it over to collectors, as I feel that it belongs back where it first came from originally.

"Sincerely Borden Clark"

The envelope referred to was of plain blue variety, pencilled with the various postage rates and marked "Paid" in red ink at the time of stamping. Five cents postage was received in the envelope, sent to Mrs. Sarah Boak, Belavia, N.Y., from Ira M. Schuyler, Jan. 14, 1852.

The unique specimen have been referred to the schools committee by Mayor Tice in the hope that some benefactor will acquire it. It was pointed out by the Mayor that the city proper, has no library.

BAPTISTS WILL HOLD CONGRESS

Representatives From This District May Go to Berlin, Germany

Considerable interest is being manifested in the Baptist Church of Canada in the Congress of the Baptist World Alliance which will be held in Berlin, Germany, August, 1934. It has been learned that a party of Canadians will attend the Congress. While there has been some discussion of the Congress in Belleville district it is a little too early for definite plans to be announced there although it is felt that some from this district will probably visit Berlin for the Congress. Rev. Dr. G. T. Webb, B.A., superintendent of the Board of Sunday Schools for Ontario and Quebec is in charge of the Canadian arrangements.

The proposed program for the Congress of the Baptist World Congress has been presented to the government of Germany and it has been received that the German government has given "unequivocal assurance of full liberty of discussion." The Congress last met in Toronto in 1923.

First Sterilization Order in Germany

GEORLITZ, Germany, Jan. 5—(AP)—The first court order for a sterilization under Germany's new Eugenics law was decreed today.

The court ordered George Purgner, 54, a workman, sterilized for contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He was also committed to jail for one year as an old offender often previously jailed on similar charges.

SMALL BOTTLE CONQUERS MOTHER'S COLD AND BANISHES BABY'S COUGH

How it helps Mrs. Malcolm amongst thousands that goes to prove there is "nothing like BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE for coughs, or colds. But we'll let Mrs. Hadow, of Todmorden, tell the story herself.

"Recently, I had such a cold I couldn't speak. I tried Buckley's Mixture. BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE and in a couple of days my cold had disappeared. My 3 months old baby coughed a great deal at night. I gave her a dose of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE on sugar. It stopped his cough entirely and now he sleeps the night through."

That is one great feature of Buckley's —you can give it to a baby with the same perfect safety as you can to a grown-up. If you have a cough, cold, 'flu or bronchitis, get a bottle of this remarkable remedy today—it acts like a flash—a single sip proves it. Buckley's Mixture is sold everywhere. Refuse substitutes.

ADMIRAL BYRD SETS OUT FOR POLE

Admiral Richard E. Byrd, photographed at Wellington, N.Z., shortly before sailing with Jacob Ruppert, on a few of the 150 huskies which are part of the livestock equipment of his current argosy into the Antarctic. The most recent report of the expedition's progress, relates that the admiral has headed the Jacob Ruppert into the Antarctic ice pack after skirting it for two days.

ALONG MAIN STREET

OXEN—

The days when big, slow moving, plodding oxen were the chief helpers of old time pioneers of this district have evidently gone forever, but there are many who still recall when a spanking team of these animals were the chief pride and joy of many a farm. An interesting article in the Dundalk Herald states that in that district a slight revival of farming with oxen has taken place lately. William Carver of Markdale, recently advertised for "a yoke of oxen, well broken and quiet to handle." Andrew Koplanyi, a young Hungarian, appeared at Dundalk the other day driving a milk waggon of steers, and was using these oxen the way a team of horses would ordinarily be used.

On the way from his farm in Melanethon township to Creemore, the oxen presented such a strange sight that a team of horses which met them on the road became frightened and upset a load of chop. Then in Corbetton, the oxen themselves ran away. People are beginning to talk about getting a few oxen and a cart and other things in the old days are being recalled.

The late Skeffington Bell, for example, used to tell of seeing in the very early days six yoke of oxen attached to a waggon of wool in now the United Church at Melancthon, where many of the pioneers of the district were laid to rest. One of the teams was drawing a heavy load made coffin on the jumper and the remainder drew the mourners paying their last respects.

The Herald had an interesting talk on oxen with an old resident who has learned many things. These beasts are simply steers and would be from three to five years old before they were broken in to work by the pioneer days. A beast would weigh anywhere from 1,200 to 1,600 pounds, and was in its prime up to eight years old. They are particularly adapted for bush work as their hide is tough and does not tear as easily as that of a horse. Besides there are no whiffle trees to make allowance for, and a yoke of oxen can do work in a space their own width. They have no reins either to guide the team.

The driver, whip in hand, stands at the nigh (left) side, usually on the shoulder, and shouts out directions to his yoke. "Haw," "Gee," "back up," etc. A steer will learn much quicker to carry out orders than a horse, and the mere touch of the tip of the black snake lets them know when they're not right!

The wooden yoke which many of the pioneers learned to make and shape themselves, would weigh from forty to fifty pounds. It was constructed in such a way that the oxen pull the load, using the bumps at the back of their necks. It is fastened in place with suitable footing, a yoke of oxen could pull a load of a good horses. The bows, made of rock elm, are fastened and bent to fit around the oxen's neck, the points extending up through the yoke. Here they are fastened with keys. A staple goes up through the centre of the yoke and attach, led to the staple is a large ring, they'll never come back," he sighed.

which holds the tongue of the implement used. A logging chain fits into the staple and it is this chain which is used to do the hauling. The bush won't go yoke then close together, and for plowing and harrowing they are spaced. Oxen, they are slow walkers and plod along at 2½ to 3½ miles per hour, considerably slower than horses.

"A good team of oxen would be worth about $50," was the suggestion to the old timer.

"Yes, and another forty or two on top of that," was the reply. "I remember my father buying a team of oxen from Uncle Wallie"—Bell. They cost $100, and I've been offered a good team of oxen bringing as high as $200.

"Practically every farmer had a yoke of oxen in the so-called good old days, and even sixty years ago horses were a novelty.

"Oxen look to be stupid, things," we volunteered. "I suppose they'd never play any tricks?"

"You bet your granny's ducks they'll play tricks. One of their favorite stunts was "turning the yoke." They'd bring their heads together, and as there were no tugs or irons to prevent them, they'd edge away from each other in a straight line and flip would go the yoke.

"What did the driver have to do then?"

"That's when a fellow had a chance to show how good he was with a blackmake whip. The oxen would bow their heads down, and could take a few steps forward, but eventually they'd bring their flanks together and the yoke would go back into place. In cases where trouble was a bit more often their tails would be tied together. Our grandfathers and fathers had to be prepared for almost every trick when handling a yoke of oxen. An ox team could be a big help and every time it got a chance. They'd eat as fast as real time and there's cheap chewing their cud every time they stopped work.

On days when the farmer would have to do some work for others they'd have to leave before daylight and get to it. The mill before there was a line-up, because every mill had two days had to have their own grain ground into flour, rings, flour and shorts. The toll in the old steam mills and a twelfth for water mill. The toll dish was a set of four, and roads no comparison with the level side roads and concession roads of today.

"Will oxen ever make a successful comeback?" old timer was asked. "Yes, I think they will, but there were some strong points in their favor. No farmers is necessary to keep a yoke; they are cheaper and easier to feed, and if you treat them right they'll do not too far to be used, and if your team gets away from you when hard thing do come you're able to eat them. But they are almost helpless on ice, and on hot days they'll die, and they're slow work. They are woefully slow also for this age."

Old Timer knocked the dottle out of his pipe. "As for me, the ox team is past its day, just as I've had mine. When real bush work turns out, oxen went with it. No, I'll never come back," he sighed.

CHIEF RUSE OF COBOURG NEAR 75

Two veteran police chiefs, Robert Phillips of York County, and Johnny Ruse of Cobourg, both approaching the three-quarter century mark, were entering a new term of office today.

To have served Cobourg under 54 different town councils was the record of Chief Ruse while Chief Phillips had overseen protection in York County since 1912.

STUDENTS EXPELLED, REFUSE TRAINING

Columbus, O., Jan. 6—(AP)—Five Ohio State University students today were expelled from the school by President George W. Rightmire because they refused to accede to an order that they register for military training. The five are Edward Lepun, of Cleveland; Richard Daumgardner of Cambridge, David Telfair of Salem; Irving Letsch and Carl Sutley of Columbus.

BANDITS KILL BANK CASHIER

Walk By Policeman Outside, Who Suspects Nothing

Basel, Switzerland, Jan. 5—(AP)— Two bandits killed one cashier, wounded another, and shot up the interior of the Weber and Company bank near the Bank for International Settlements today.

They escaped with an undetermined amount of bundles of bank notes and 1,600 francs in silver (about $305.)

Both gunmen were unmasked. They fired eight shots inside the bank, terrorizing the employees, snatched the money, and strolled out the door past a policeman who apparently suspected nothing.

They made their getaway by automobile.

"Danny Boy" is His Radio Name

Don Smith of Radio Fame Visits His Old Home in City

Don Smith, known to radio fireside as "Danny Boy" is a Belleville boy. He is in the city today on a short visit. Don is a pianist and plays the guitar and the ukelele and sings from time to time. He has been heard from Kitchener and Toronto.

His programs are largely of camp meeting tunes and hymns and Don has won a wide reputation among radio men and with the public.

Like the true troubadour he loves his home and does not allow fame or fast financial rewards. He has been entertaining since he was a boy here before radio became so popular. Thomas Arthur Arthur Smith is his real name.

"If Belleville only had a broadcasting station!" he commented.

ROSLIN HOME IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Roslin, Jan. 6—On returning to his home at noon on Wednesday Mr. Grimley found that the kitchen of the house filled with smoke. Help was summoned, and it was discovered because that windows had to be broken before an entrance could be made.

The fire which was confined to the kitchen was brought under control after a hole in the floor of the kitchen floor and also part of the kitchen cupboard had been destroyed.

The remainder of the house was considerably damaged by smoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Martin and family spent New Year's day with Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Leslie.

Mr. Connell Leslie has returned home after spending the Christmas vacation with his parents here.

Mr. John Ketcheson spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson near Stirling.

CHILDREN ADMIT THEFT OF PIGEONS

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—Three children admitted having stolen 54 racing pigeons, Mr. Justice Rose, President of the Federation of Canada, learned today.

The little thieves left only three birds behind, Mr. Justice Rose stated. The rest they packed into little boxes in which they would all have suffocated, if discovered, them so found two dead and others so sick they had to be revived.

"Some of the birds are beyond price", the owner explained, and an officer of the court declared that they were descendants of the famous birds which carried messages for the British army in the Great War.

The trio was remanded in custody until Jan. 19th.

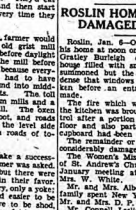
S. S. CONCERT AT BETHANY A SUCCESS

A most successful Sunday School entertainment was held in Bethany United Church, Canadian Corners, on Thursday evening Jan. 4, 1934. The weather having moderated made it an ideal winter evening and many taking advantage of it came and filling the church to overflowing and who can blame them well repaid by having the privilege of such a splendid program. The programme put on by the members of the Sunday School. The primary members gave their parts in a very delightful manner. The splendid characteristic of the Sunday School was the fine moral and uplifting spirit throughout the entire entertainment the numbers of which were very pleasing. Opening chorus by the School, this was followed with a solo, Duane Martin, Joy Irene Wilson, Duane Martin, Joy Ruth as 4152, "Heavenly Thoughts" followed with a "Children's chorus." Four more recitations were then given by Gerald Eggleton, Percy Walker, Marjorie Phillips, Vera Fern and Walter Easton. These were followed by a trio, Piano solo by unusual capable manner gave a very entertaining solo. This was followed by a duet, Miss Ida Bird and Bradshaw and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton. Other recitations were then given by Reta Rollins, Marjorie Bird, Ruth Bradshaw and Ethel Mayse. The duet entitled "An Old Couple" by two of Bethany oldest and most highly respected citizens Mr. Wm. Ketcheson and Mr. Wm. Solo given by Mr. Bruce Martin was much appreciated. Interspersed with the above numbers were also the playlets entitled "Christmas at Stebbins" and "Christmas Chimes," interwoven with their humorous and fine recitations and musicians. The last number on this fine programme was a chorus by the School.



Then under the direction of the Sunday school Supt. Mr. E. W. Saunders awards were distributed to the children as part of the annual treat. The pastor and his wife were also very kindly and generously remembered, this expression of love and esteem was highly appreciated by both pastor and his wife.

The meeting then closed with Prayer, God From Whom All Blessings Flow," and the Benediction.

Daughter of Famous Ball Player Dies

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—Florence Maddocks, daughter of the late Charlie Jones, famous baseball manager, coached and played for the original Detroit Maple Leafs baseball club in the glorious, maskless, '90s, died today in the home of her brother-in-law, Tomas McClelland and official of the Arena Gardens.

Charlie Jones was one of the most famous old-time ball players with the Guelph team.

LIBRARY CORNER

"The Shape of Things To Come" is Mr. H. G. Wells' prophecy of the future in the year 2106 judged from the changes that have taken place in the past. His tumultuous theories, intuitions, and ideas are held together by a thread of a story centered around a fictitious character, Dr. Philip Raven of the League of Nations Secretariat, Geneva, whose dream book, discovered after his death in 1930, contained the material published in Mr. Wells's book. The contents is not all confined to forecasting the future but is strewn with a review of the course of world events in recent years, and the main factors of the great war from a new angle and discusses the period in which we are now living. "The Age of Frustration". The last recorded event is on New Year's Day in the year 2106 when there is a passing mention of the unveiling of the remaining "skeletons" of the "ancient sovereigns" of the former New York on that date. The man of the future as visualized by Mr. Wells becomes more curious, more excited, more daring, skilful and pleasantly occupied every year. And the greatest discovery man has made has been the discovery of the curious genius da Vinci with his immense breath of the spiritual, culture and intelligence. To attain this intellectual supremacy and freedom to modern life, two things are necessary, "an awareness of the state of things in contemporary human affairs and an appreciation of what is important and unimportant." This book will be soon be preoccupied with machinery of international affairs. In fact, Mr. Wells has failed to convince us that it is useful. He maintains that it is only by adhering to an individualism other than that of the predatory individualism of last a permanent will civilization survive. "Individuals Ourselves" will give much food for thought to all who are interested in the present problems.

Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, the youngest daughter of the famous Russian novelist, Leo Tolstoy and the only one of his family who was closest to him, has described "Tolstoy at Home" with much kindness and her father in particular in her book entitled "Tolstoy and Tolstoy." These girlhood memories are a delightful addition to the entertainment with his wife culminated in the flight from home at the age of eighty-two years. The story will create a valuable historical picture of life on the Russian estate in ante-revolutionary Russia.

FRED FEERNOT IN THE TORTURE CHAMBER.

Act 1 ·

Fred Feerno. It's nice of you to come to see me in my dungeon, Baron. The pleasure is all mine. Fred Feerno. I have heard many of my ancestors used in bygone days to torture people, and I've been keen on their hands and rists and then torture them. But they found out all they wanted to know. Here's some of the chains rite here. I'll put one on you if you like and see just how they felt.

Fred Feerno. It's very thawtiful of you.

Baron. The pleasure is all mine. Now they're on try to get them off, ha, ha, you can't succeed. I'm a robber baron ony you didn't know that and my ancestors have been going to torture you until they reveal the hiding place of the map of Treasure Island, very good bye for the present, ha ha ha.

Fred Feerno. Ha, ha!

Act 2

Scene a week later.

Fred henchman. It dont seem to be no use trying to get anything in him eat or drink or even scratch himself any more. We've been torturing him every half a hour with all the best instruments but he wont say.

Baron. This is just wasting time. Try the blazing torches.

Fred Feerno. I'll tell, I'll tell, Baron. But you half to save me go fernt because you know you can trust me but not your henchmen to trust you.

Baron. That's fair enough. I'll give you 200 yards start.

Act 3

Scene 200 yards away.

Fred Feerno. It's in my back pocket, why didn't you sertich me. The end

Dreadfully Painful RHEUMATISM IN NECK and HEAD

T-R-C's brought great relief in one day

A neighbor's timely gift of T-R-C's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules) proved a great blessing to Mrs. Jos. Castonguay, Otter Lake, P.Q. Read her experience. "About 3 years ago I had been in bed for a week suffering from a dreadful pain up the back of my neck and on top of my head. The doctor said the pain ment that I had rheumatism. It was a very sharp pain, but not like an ordinary pain. The pain was very bad, and I suffering greatly." "A friend, Mrs. Lalonde, brought me eight T-R-C's. I took them. Two after each meal and two more at bedtime. Next day I was able to get up and do a big day's work. Always a few doses of T-R-C's have got rid of pain for me whenever I have had an attack since."

Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and correct use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time. But you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. Repeatedly they have given safe, speedy relief from Acute Rheumatic suffering; also from Sciatica, (pain-down in hip and thigh), Painful Neuritis, Neuralgia (sciatica) Lumbago, Backache, Lumbago (Lame Back). No harmful or habit-forming drugs.

T-R-C's do this—enter the blood stream and help your body throw off the many-causing poisons which have accumulated in your blood. When these go, pains and soreness disappear. T-R-C's are 50c and $1 everywhere.

BLANKETS FOR HORSES

Montreal League for Justice to Animals presented six score of horses and ponies with blankets against the severe cold. These animals came, a medley of them, piebald ponies, percherons, clydesdales, cab horses, chestnuts, attached to work carts, sleighs and pleasure vehicles. Not one of them had a blanket until the society gave them. Surplus funds of the society were used for this purpose.

Though there is no doubt human suffering, there are so many agencies at work for this relief and so many individuals that the work of the society can be praised as the chill winter's storms were wanted from the back of man's faithful helpers—a need apparent to all.

The slump has made people more thoughtful. Stray cats and dogs are not allowed to die aimlessly to be frozen on the streets. Some one regards them and thinks of them.

GLAD DEPRESSION IS OVER?

"Aren't you glad the depression is over?" ask the Canadian Business Magazine for January, besides another, "How do we know we've turned the corner?"

Canadian Businessers shows that world trade has also improved since the last spring, that over ten million out of the estimated thirty million unemployed of the world are back at work; that iron and steel production increased in 49 countries by over 40 per cent. between April and August 1933; that carloadings and port clearances are in advance of last year; world industrial production increased 30 per cent. in 1933. From this standpoint Canadian business sees grounds for optimism. Substantiating this view conditions in Britain are quoted showing that employment is now in advance of what it was in 1926, that a slight boom is in the forecast, and that trade generally has been strengthening. In the United States a sober optimism is slowly evolving from the panic situation.

Three of the greatest problems unsettled are: Disarmament (with fears from Japan and Germany); the trade restrictions which are holding world trade to forty per cent. of what it should be, and the financial instability still with looms. "Selfish and national interests must, to some extent, be modified," comments Canadian Business.

Speaking of the Canadian situation, the magazine points out that in spite of the lack of amelioration of tariff barriers, Canada's external commerce has been climbing, export increasing thirteen per cent. between April and November, and the trade balance being very much more favorable (over one hundred millions more prepared with forty millions the year before). Exports to the United Kingdom have increased fifty per cent. under the Empire trade agreements, and wheat is higher in price. Yet a "return of higher prices for all agricultural products is most desired. By such means we can lighten the farmers' debt burden which in some cases today is taking more than the farmers' returns. Fortunately farm prices have improved during the last few months and the expected business activity would seem to indicate a continuance in this price rise."

Ontario mines called one of the bright spots with a gold production expected to reach one hundred millions.

THE LASH OF SCORPIONS

Ears if they be made of penetrable stuff must have burned in Washington and all over the United States as President Roosevelt denounced the gougers, the tax evaders, and the speculators. Everyone who has read the Divine Comedy knows how deep in the Inferno Dante would have placed men who prey upon their human kind and those who dodge their clear duties—to let some poor man carry the burden. A tax dodger may convince himself he is not a bad fellow, but he does not convince others. Roosevelt's attack was in the vein of Dante and rightly so.

President Roosevelt uses the threat of the strong arm of the government and may he use the scorpion whips upon all these classes!

STOP-CROSSINGS

Those who travel on the railways can realize what must be the constant fear of every engineer as he approaches a highway crossing especially when he sees an automobile approaching and even pulling up a few feet away from the passing train, without having the assurance that the train is not hitting the motoring party.

Sir Thomas White has written a letter to a Toronto paper advocating stop signs at crossings and very severe penalties for infraction of the stop orders for offending motorists. Many will agree that some such step should be taken until the level crossings are eliminated which will doubtless be far in the future owing to the expenditure involved.

In these icy highway days the motorist does use more than ordinary caution as the figures of accidents show. Can he not use the same caution at track crossings as he does at stop streets? asks Sir Thomas. He asks for an expression of opinion of the people on the stop-crossing idea.

UNDEFINED KINSHIP

Along the river road I ride
And watch the eager, tawny tide.
Fast widening now, in drawing near
The seas, so long desired, so dear.
The cypress trees wear veils of moss
Which in the strong, fresh sea-winds toss.
The great pine thrust their branches high
Into the semi-tropic sky.

And never down this road I go
But with the river I used to know
To my mind's vision once again.
A narrow, dusty, country lane
Where elm trees' arches meet above
And through the golden wheat fields move
Slow breezes, touched with August heat
And breath of honeysuckle sweet.

Here, wheeling sea gulls, flashing white.
And there, the larks' clear-voiced delight!
All things unlike, yet near the same
This inland scene comes back to me.
What subtle kinship, undefined,
Pairs these two pictures in my mind?

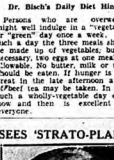
SIR WILFRID LAURIER CLAIMED that he had the all-star cabinet after 1896—and so does Mayor Tice claim that he has an all-star cabinet for the transaction of the civic business for 1934. Can he do it? Of course it is only right and proper to start with Alderman William Woodley, Finance Minister, famous Watchdog of the Treasury, who can make a dollar go farther than George Washington did when he pitched a dollar (Mex.) clean and clear across the Delaware. Then there is Alderman Ketcheson, Public Works, a post that is independent individual whom the electors persist upon re-electing regularly without any canvassing or recommendation. Ald. William Donahue. Public Works are a necessity but a sink hole for civic money like to it than others. Although absolute protection can be secured by everyone through the simple inoculation, under the skin, of typhoid antitoxin.

That people should sometimes object to being inoculated against the innumbited is hard to believe. The method is so simple, scientific and effective. There can be no question, however, that when once the scientific value of a serum typhoid has come home to one—either in contracting the disease oneself or in seeing others suffering from it — the further question of needing to convince the individual of the desirability of taking such precautions.

Usually there is more typhoid during the fall months than at any other time.



The actual symptoms of the disease may not reveal themselves for from ten to twenty-one days after infection. It is a disease also that may last for four weeks, even six or more. Relapses during the stage of convalescence are not uncommon.

Perforation of the intestines causes from one-fourth to one-thing of the deaths in typhoid. There is a preventable disease. No man need really ever have typhoid.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Potatoes, which are overweight might well indulge in a "vegetable" or "green" day once a week. . . . On such a day the three meals should be made up of vegetables, but, if necessary, two eggs at one meal are allowable. No butter, milk or meat should be eaten. If hunger is about great in the late afternoon a cup of coffee (no sugar) may be taken. In fact such a wholly-vegetable day every now and then is excellent for everyone.

SEES 'STRATO-PLANE

PROF. J. B. S. HALDANE

Predicting that planes will soar through the stratosphere during 1934, Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, noted British scientist, estimates that a flight from London to New York will soon be made in 2 1-2 hours. He based prediction on tests made recently with Mark-E-Bidge, U.S. balloonist, making stratosphere tests in London.

TYPHOID CAN BE ENTIRELY ERADICATED

Most Frequently Attacks Young People But No Age is Exempt

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D, Famous Authority on Health and Personality

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Typhoid fever still remains one of the great scourges of mankind. And yet it is one of those diseases that could so readily be stamped out completely.

The history of this disorder, which primarily attacks the intestinal tract, carries with it stories of ravages in all parts of the world. In England it has been fatal to as many as one hundred to each million of living people. In Canada it is very prevalent. Germany has been able to reduce this disease rate through intelligent community sanitation. Every part of the city of Hamburg is one that shows what typhoid can do and what can be done to combat it.

In the United States the disease still occupies a prominent place in the mortality lists especially those of country districts. Improved water, in fact, typhoid is to be found. In city and country, perhaps, the last, where preventive measures were taken, decimation more effectively than does powder, shell or gas.

Typhoid is essentially a disease associated with a contaminated water supply. Polluted streams and sewage systems which somehow connect with wells, streams and reservoirs are a cause for individuals becoming sick, indeed, with the creation of an epidemic.

Milk may also contain the germs of typhoid, produce the disease. Sometimes the milk is contaminated by infected water used to clean milk cans. Flies, the house fly may be carried by flies, by food and by the contaminated fingers of one suffering from the disease. Oysters may carry the disease as may fish that have been caught in polluted waters. Public Works are a necessity but a sink hole for civic money like to it than others. Although absolute protection can be secured by everyone through the simple inoculation, under the skin, of typhoid antitoxin.

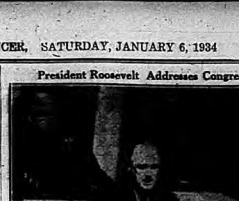
That people should sometimes object to being inoculated against the innumbited is hard to believe. The method is so simple, scientific and effective. There can be no question, however, that when once the scientific value of a serum typhoid has come home to one—either in contracting the disease oneself or in seeing others suffering from it — the further question of needing to convince the individual of the desirability of taking such precautions.

Usually there is more typhoid during the fall months than at any other time.

The actual symptoms of the disease may not reveal themselves for from ten to twenty-one days after infection. It is a disease also that may last for four weeks, even six or more. Relapses during the stage of convalescence are not uncommon.

Perforation of the intestines causes from one-fourth to one-thing of the deaths in typhoid. There is a preventable disease. No man need really ever have typhoid.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint



Potatoes, which are overweight might well indulge in a "vegetable" or "green" day once a week. . . . On such a day the three meals should be made up of vegetables, but, if necessary, two eggs at one meal are allowable. No butter, milk or meat should be eaten. If hunger is about great in the late afternoon a cup of coffee (no sugar) may be taken. In fact such a wholly-vegetable day every now and then is excellent for everyone.

WIT AND WISDOM

By "L. M. P."

The first hockey match for the championship was played last night between the Y.M.C.A. team and the Quinte team. The result was a tie, being 3 goals each. The teams composed the teams: Y.M.C.A. team—Fryfield, Tucker, McDonald, Smith, Thompson, Holton, Jamieson, Quinte—Webster, Cook, Phillips, Twining, Philpsen, Weiler, Campbell. The game was characterized by some rough play, but the best good will prevailed. For the Y.M.C.A. Smith, Jamieson and Tabor played a splendid game as did also Philpsen, Campbell and Phillips for the Quintes.

Letters to The Editor

The Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir:—

WHY A CHRISTMAS DAY ON MONDAY

This year Christmas Day, by coming on Monday, extends both the Christmas and New Year's holidays, owing to the preceding Saturday afternoon and Sunday rest.

Many business organizations can, and almost certainly will be employed to every year from 1934 on, through the International Conference on Calendar Reform in 1933, the last day in every year (and every day in Leap years) will be celebrated the yearly International Day of Rest,—following Saturday—or Sunday—and preceding the last week of the year. In like manner, the Festival Week immediately the Day of Pentecost to absorb the odd days in order to make complete weeks in every year, through which we might fix the Christian Calendar perpetual. From that fact, Christians derived their Whit Monday holiday, which is the 50th day—(Pentecost) day after Easter.

How strange that extension of Christmas' and New Year's holidays is appreciated by all people in every sphere of human activities is evidenced by the enormous increase in railway travel.

For example, Christmas on Monday brings Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, that for the same expenditure of money and time on long distance railway travel, about double the time for family and friendly reunions is made available, when contrasted with Christmas celebrated on Wednesday or Thursday—without those week-end extensions.

Evidence of these results is manifest by passenger trains having to be run in 2 or 4 sections when Christmas' and New Year's holidays come on Monday — whereas when those holidays come on Wednesday or Thursday, only about 2 sections are required.

But what extra happiness the opportunity of prolonged re-unions brings to millions of people, through Christmas falling on Monday, your readers may imagines and will appreciate by this year's experience.

"I avail myself of this opportunity of sending you and your readers the compliments of the season.

Yours sincerely,
Moses B. Colsworth,

D.A.C. TO MEET CAMPBELLFORD

Northerners Have Smart Team And Good Game Looked For

Strengthened by the acquisition of Jim Morton, ex-Queens and Peterboro all-star, the Campbellford Maroons invade the Belleville Arena tonight to meet the 1934 edition of the Belleville Doherty A.C. in the first intermediate O.H.A. game of the season. The Belleville team downed the Maroons in one of the playoffs last spring, and later eliminated them in a post-season game. At that time Manager Jay Ferris vowed vengeance and informed the local newspaper writers that there would be back this season stronger than ever with the idea in mind of —to beat Belleville in 1934. They have in addition to Morton, a host of three newcomers, Morton, Hendy and Bush, but they are not the only best juniors produced in the Hydro town in the past three seasons.

Although Belleville has been late in getting started here the spirit has apparently leaped to a fever pitch and more and more material presenting itself and the team idea is rapidly taking hold. Manager Ferris has signed Bruce Rigby, and Gerald Fisher, the smashing Trenton defenceman. Cowper, Carl and Pete Morgan will carry the burden of the scoring on the front line with Rene St. Denis, Jimmie McGuire, Henry and Jack Cannings and Bill Hollingsworth to back up the second line.

Led by "Cyclone" Buster Whitton the Campbellford outfit will have Don Morrison at the helm. Harry Ingram and Fred Ingram on defence, Jack Whitton, Jimmie and Archie McKay and Ken Odle on the wings. Buster Whitton is making the trip with the team as the two kids' Bush and Hendy.

After numerous practice battles between these two teams Monday nights the Belleville team is the reception to the rule. The Maroons have started out on the right foot this season, winning their first game with Trenton. Announcements from the Hydro town are to the effect that 1934 is to be "their year." Manager the D.A.C. are confident, with group champions, have their laurels to look to and a tidy battle should be seen.

PROTEST IS ENTERED ON BABE SIEBERT

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Protest of Ottawa Senators against the method of playing by Babe Siebert, Hockey Boston, Bruins, had to be long forwarded today to Frank Patrick, managing director of the National Hockey League, at Montreal, Arrived by tactics adopted by the best local club officials have been collecting evidence against him following the game, which Ottawas captured here on Thursday night against the Boston outfit.

"If the referees let Siebert continue to play as he played here, it is bound to end in tragedy," Coach George Boucher declared in voicing the bitterness of Ottawa Club officials. "Frank Ahearn, President of the Ottawa Senators) and I have discussed Siebert's tactics thoroughly and have come to the evidence."

It was the play of Siebert particularly against the young members of the locals, which was resented.

If the referees fail to put a stop to it, Boucher said, "The next time Siebert opposes our club, if he starts any of his rough game I expect are will be given instructions to put him in his place.

CURRENT SPORT

At a recent meeting of the Oshawa Baseball Club the players voted not to play in the C.O.B.L. next season, under any consideration. According to information received, however, they would like to play in the T.R.A.A. League. How they have hedged slightly from their decision of a month ago or so, when it was officially announced, that the Oshawas had been accepted into the fold of the Ulster Stadium loop."

It has been a well known fact locally, for many weeks, that the Dukes were not as far as the Ulster Stadium organization is concerned, so why all the beating around the bush? Locally the baseball magnate is not concerned with Oshawa or the Dukes do in regards to 1934 baseball but, what fans around here do know is Belleville is what grouping can the C.O.B.L. into the O.H.A., after these efforts that Oshawa has declared their hand?

Manager Green, who escorted about in the outfield for the Belleville Nationals and the local Victorias in past baseball seasons has nobbed up in Picton 'tis rumored. He has signed with one of the Bloomfield hockey team in the Prince Edward County. He is not a baseball player, but apparently did not burn the ice up to any great extent, that is according to the Picton press. Murney has been out of the ice game for a couple of seasons but we'll venture to say he'll make those Picton fans sit up and take notice before the season is many weeks older. Incidentally we wonder if Lorne Rose, of Peterboro, has applied for his re-instatement? He is not in accord with the Peles next summer, Lorne's home town team. He was inflicted in the days of Ray Shepherd and Hap Hartwell, and Shepherd's team the second baseman down around Perth last summer who received a fatal knock, or "accident" was he? Rogers, er Rogers?

Under the guidance of Coach Bill Hancock, Gordie McKeokin returning to de-horn to give his home town fans a treat, the Belleville O.H.A. intermediates beat Wiarton 9 to 1 on Tuesday night. Fahaga, we know the accident to Irvin Bailey and if someone in our Association is seriously hurt in the game, that it's up to the referees to drop a couple of bits to teach such rough tactics in O.H.A. games, and we mean an appreciable bit. Enough, enough, and let this be a warning to players and referees, also we hope that the officials of those who were loosest in their sympathy for Bailey and who are now saying that they're excited at a game, yell: "Put on the gloves" and "Stop the game" something equally bloodthirsty.

Following in the wake of the above statement comes the recent ruling that Bailey is out for a fact, that in all future games a substitute player will be in the line-up so O.H.A. game will automatically draw down the suspension. Apparently the heads of the provincial body are not at Maple Leaf Gardens, but in injecting this new rule a step towards the right direction has been taken, but only a few players in Western Ontario have been guilty of deliberate aim for savagery so "let your conscience, if you have one, be your guide" when blood at to all players by the O.H.A. Apparently all concerned are not, so here's another Bailey case and rightly so.

O.H.A. hostilities open at the Belleville Arena on Monday night next, when those two old and ancient rivals clash, the Campbellford Maroons and the Belleville Doherty intermediates. With the Maroons appearing in Belleville for the first during the regular playing schedule, a record crowd should be seen wending its way into the local ice palace about 8 p.m. Monday.

With such ice celebrities as the Ingram boys, Fry and Harry, Buster Whitton, Ken Davis to say nothing of their sire Jack, Don Morrison, the Maroons should be a powerful factor in the green this season. On the other hand coach Will L'Heureux has not been standing pat and surprise many with the aggregation of puck chasers he tosses over the boards wearing the "Oilmen's" green and white uniforms on Monday. Manager Patterson has been working overtime in order to line-up a team capable of representing Belleville in O.H.A. intermediate circles in a manner befitting 1934 and players from who have witnessed these two teams battle it out on the ice in years past will not snuff the opportunity of witnessing Monday's tussle, "its safe betting.

Next Tuesday evening the local junior squad will hold their initial work out of the season at the Arena. From all accounts there is plenty of junior material about town thus assuring Skipper Thomas a real tough job in singling out the wheat from the chaff. We understand, that Cy Barriage, now a resident of Napanee wants to line-up with the Belleville squad and is hoping to bring a husky forward named Murphy to help bolster up the local kid's front line. All aspiring juniors should avail themselves of Tuesday night's initial work-out.

Dollar Bet Allowed to Ride on 10 Major Upsets Would Have Netted Many Millions

Could Have Balanced All Budgets in World

YEAR OF UPSETS

Giants 40-1 They Would Not Win The World Series

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 6.—For the fantastic it sounds, impossible it was of course, but one small dollar in cash, allowed to ride through 1933 on the underdogs in ten of the year's great upsets would have returned the bootlegger over 100 times as much gold as exists, now in the mint, or as much money of any kind as there is in the world.

Balancing the budgets of all nations, wiping out all poverty, in fact winding up owning the globe itself would have been a simple matter.

He would have placed that lucky dollar on King Jack, a 40 year old gelding, to win at Agua Caliente last January 8. In return he would have received the largest odds of the year, roughly $410 to $1.

Then he'd have let his winnings back on Max Baer to knock out Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera to go over Jack Sharkey, both at six to one; the Giants to win the National League pennant and the World Series, 40 to one; Louisiana State to win the National Collegiate Track championship from Southern California and Benny Shultz to capture the British 126 pound title, two 15 to one shots; Jack Lovelock and Bill Bonthron to run a mile in which both bettered 4.09, 20 to one; Helen Jacobs to win the women's tennis crown: Notre Dame to lose four straight football games without scoring a single point, 100 to one, and Columbia to beat Stanford, five to two.

It was a year of amazing upsets in sports. But the picking of these upsets would have been the greatest speculation of all. The total theoretical winnings would have risen from the grand total of $18,605,000,000.00.

The way to do it would have been this.

After finding a book-maker in some conveniently distant region, certain bets would be made with the understanding that the winnings made along them event to pay. The amount wagered on each is the total of all up to the point at which the next is announced. As in the case of the Giants, for instance, the 40 to one odds against were posted at the start of the season; the amount wagered the total at the moment of the final putout of the World Series.

GRILLS LOSE TO MADOC 6-1

Henry Canning Most Effective Player For Losers

Madoc, Jan. 6 (Special)—Despite the rainy weather a large number attended the opening Central League game in Madoc between Grills' Garage of Belleville and Madoc. Despite the slow condition of the ice, the game was quite fast only in the third period did the Madoc team outclass the visitors. The first two periods were even with Madoc gaining a one goal advantage when Ware scored twice and J. Canning counted Belleville's lone tally. Numerous penalties were handed out, mostly for minor offences of tripping and illegal body checking.

Henderson and Ware on the Madoc first line were the most effective men on the ice. Alexander and Embury also showed to good advantage, being able to outskate easily any of the opposing forwards. Wallbridge in the Madoc nets was invincible, having no chance on the goal Canning scored. The Belleville defence worked nicely, using their weight to good advantage. Henry Canning was the most effective for the Grills' Garage. The following is the line-up:

Trenton, Jan. 6 (Special) — It looked like old times again last night, when a dandy bowed turned out at the Trenton arena to see the local Junior O.H.A. representatives turn the tables on Sam Curry's crew, Tweed, when Nuisun was the Trent Valley League by a 3-1 score.

Last week a game was met in the Tweed arena with the locals coming out on the short end of a hard struggle.

The foundry lads were outclassed last night by the home aggregation, and for two periods the northern puckstars with Nicholson at the helm could not get a look through the score down.

After the locals showing last night Manager Geo. LaBrash was given a chance to use Nuisun on the first ills for his lads in the O.H.A. against their opponents.

A very pretty but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening, December 23rd by the Rev. C. H. Brethen, pastor of Grace United Church, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Milligan, when their daughter, Alta Mabel Milligan, became the bride of Herman J. Cauthers of Stockdale. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attired in a model of pale blue silk velvet and hat to match and carried pink sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Annie Milligan sister of the bride was bridesmaid. She wore a long gown of tulle over taffeta in shell pink and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The little flower girl, Miss Jean Milligan wore pale blue taffeta and pretty frock of pale pink georgette and carried a basket of pink and yellow roses and fern. The groom was attended by Mr. Hearty Weather-

Immediately after the wedding supper the bridal party stood in line to receive the congratulations and best wishes of the friends. Mr. and Mrs. Cauthers will later take up residence in Cobourg.

MRS. JAMES CROUTER

Emma Lucretia Robertson, beloved wife of James Edward Crouter, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, January 3rd, in her sixty-second year following an illness that had lasted over the past two months.

The late Mrs. Crouter was well known in Trenton and during her lifetime enjoyed the friendship of a wide circle of friends. IT RUNS IN KING CAROL'S FAMILY

Prince Nicholas of Roumania and brother of King Carol, has been secretly granted a divorce from Mme. Jana Iocita Deletj, pretty commoner, with whom he eloped in November 1931, according to report. And, says the report, as a result of this action in the morganatic union of the young prince, he will again be recognized as a legitimate Roumanian Prince, but this time he will be immediately vetted. Mme. Deletj will continue to reside in the palace that was turned over to her by Prince Nicholas.

MELROSE W.M.S.

The first regular monthly meeting for 1934 of the W.M.S. of Melrose United Church was held at the home of Mrs. McLaren on Wednesday afternoon of this week, ten members being present. Mrs. F. Badgley, President, was in the chair conducting the devotional exercises and business.

Mrs. Sinclair, Mrs. Pascoe, Mrs. Snider and Miss Margaret McLaren were appointed for the Literature Tower for 1934.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Pascoe for work done at the lower church was moved by Mrs. Badgley, seconded by Mrs. C. Macfield and Mrs. M. McLaren then gave a very gratifying report of money received during the past year. Moved by Miss Margaret McLaren and seconded by Mrs. Pascoe that Mrs. Charles Macfield be convener of social time to be held in the near future in the absence of the group leader Mrs. Badgley took charge of the program. Hymn 451 was sung followed by Mrs. Chas. Macfield gave a short reading entitled "Story of a Bible". Mrs. Bennett then took charge of the study book and Mrs. Perry's response secretary gave a short reading and the meeting was brought to a close by prayer by the President.

TABERNACLE W.A.

The first meeting of the New Year for the Woman's Association of Tabernacle United Church was held in the parlours on Thursday with a fair attendance. Mrs. Lent, president in the chair.

Devotional exercises were conducted by the study group of Group One of which Mrs. Taylor is convener. "Bind Us Our Tie Trial Birds" was sung and Mrs. Taylor read the 103rd chapter of Proverbs and short prayers were offered by Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Hannon and Mrs. T. Bell and Mrs. Lent and Mrs. Johnston read a beautiful "New Years Prayer."

The President spoke feelingly of the death of Mrs. T. B. Bell one of the most valued workers in the W.A., more particularly as Convener of Group 6, where her good influence will be felt.

The Treasurer's report for the year just past was very satisfactory, showing that over $100 of the Alfred Dollars had been raised by the women.

It was decided to hold a joint meeting of the W.A. and W.M.S. on the second Thursday in February to which an invitation would be sent to all the women's organizations of the church.

A donation of $25.00 was voted to the M. and M. Fund.

Mrs. Taylor gave a splendid reading entitled "The New Teacher".

The meeting closed with hymn 190 "Stand Up, Stand Up, for Jesus" and Mizpah Benediction.

Frank R. Hayward of Tweed Weds Miss Anna C. Bicknell at Brantford

Bride's Step-father, Hon. the Rev. W. S. Martin Performs Ceremony in Presence of Premier Henry and Members of Cabinet and Legislature

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP) Miss Anna Caplin Bicknell, daughter by a former marriage of Mrs. Martin, wife of the Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare in the Ontario Government, was married this afternoon to Frank R. Hayward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayward of Grand Falls, Newfoundland.

The ceremony was performed by Mr. Martin, who is a minister in the United Church. He was assisted by Rev. J. Y. MacKinnon, pastor of the church. The reception was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and tall standards of golden and russet 'mums.

Premier George S. Henry of Ontario attended the wedding, accompanied by some of his Cabinet Ministers and Legislature members.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marie Bicknell, as maid of honor, and Miss Louise Kerr, Brantford and Miss Jean Pitchie, Toronto, as bridesmaids. The flower girl was little Miss Alice Jane Kaposie, cousin of the bride. Mr. Emerson Holmes, of Rochester, was best man, and the ushers were Arthur Leman, Tweed, Mr. H. E. Capp, Toronto; Mr. Courtland Pitcairn, Brantford, and Mr. Gordon Campbell, Dundas.

Mrs. Marion Dell Verity sang during the signing of the register and the wedding music was played by O. H. Bishop, organist of the church. A brilliant reception was held after the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin. The health of the bride was proposed by Premier Henry and responded to by the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayward after honeymooning in Bermuda, will reside at Tweed, Ont.

MISS WARING IS GUEST SPEAKER

Home And School Club Of Picton Holds Meeting

Picton, Jan. 6 (Special)—The Home and School Club held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, at four o'clock in the Legion Club Room with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. L. B. Calnan, occupied the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Jim Ward, and adopted. These minutes referred to three selections of which Mrs. McDonald gave by Miss Mc-Alpine at the December meeting and which were addressed on the value of Tonsol, delivered by Dr. Gerald Alline.

Fifteen public school boys, under the direction of Mr. Watkin sang two selections, namely, "Merry Christmas Bells" and "Noel," and demonstrated the physical education work in the public schools is accomplishing.

The president next referred to the picture shown at the Regent Theatre on Monday as a benefit for the Club. This had been a splendid success and had netted the sum of $91. Mrs. Calnan extended the thanks of the club to Mr. George Cook for donating the picture.

Parts of the distribution were by Mrs. Don Gullett for the benefit of new members.

The meeting will be pay rent — two dollars for each meeting—to the Legion for the use of the room that night. Nine meetings are held in room.

As a method of increasing membership, the club authorized the purchase of a good picture— copy of a masterpiece—at a cost of from fifteen to five dollars. The picture is to be hung each month in the room that has most members present at the monthly meeting. At the end of the year the room that has held the picture for the longest term will be given the picture. Miss Mildred Ward, Miss Smith and Mrs. Todd were chosen to select the picture.

Study Group Report

Mrs. Walton gave a report on study groups. These groups fill a need for parent education. Sometimes they are merely a discussion around a quilting bee, and then may be a discussion under a leader on such subjects as nutrition, music, art or home nursing.

Mrs. Morden suggested that these study groups include subjects that might entice the men to the meetings such as "Work of the League of Nations." It was suggested that Mrs. Harper head a study group on nutrition and that those who wished to join this group should advise Mrs. Webster.

A motion was passed that the election of officers for 1934 should take place at the annual meeting in May when the High School pupils might join the club and be eligible for office.

The president referred to the kindness of the Girl Guides in loaning dishes to the club and asked the patronage of the club for the tea and bridge which the Guides are holding in the near future at Mrs. E. H. McLean's.

The guest speaker of the afternoon was Miss Waring, second grade teacher in the public school, and her subject was the treatment of children belonging to the "Special Classes." She told the club that there are five special classes of children —the hospital class; the lip reading class; the open air class; the sight-saving class, and the so-called "school sick children." Each of these classes of children need special training and cannot be successful if graded with children who are not handicapped.

The Hospital class includes children who are lame or maimed. These needed to be taken to school in busses and when placed in a room where all the children are handicapped in this way they feel

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Toasts and Thank-You Notes.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a bride-to-be is being given a toast, if just ladies, or both ladies and gentlemen are present, is she to remain seated, and also does she drink with the rest, or merely raise her glass?

2. Is she expected to make an answer?

3. In acknowledging and thanking for presents, is it correct to whom are the notes addressed and what salutation is used in the following cases:

Where the wife only is known to the bride is the letter addressed to both, and does the salutation begin "Dear Mr. and Mrs. So and So?"

When the wife is the personal friend, does she say, "Dear Mary" and not include the husband when he is not known by or even spoken of as an acquaintance?

Where the senders are friends of the groom, is the letter addressed to both husband and wife?

When the senders are friends of the groom and are known personally by the bride, and when the senders are friends of the personal friends the bride just knows one of them—either the husband or wife?

1. When the bride-to-be is being toasted, whether in a party of ladies only, or in a party for both ladies and gentlemen, she remains seated, bows graciously to the guests as she raises her glass and they raise theirs. Then she puts her glass down without drinking from it.

2. If the groom-to-be is not present at the party, she acknowledges the toast, very simply, usually saying something like this, "I thank you so much. You are very kind, and I appreciate so much your good wishes." If the groom-to-be is present, as he usually is, he gives the party is a "mixed" party, it is he who responds to the toast to the bride-to-be and himself.

3. Wedding presents are sent in the name of the husband and wife, whether both know the couple or whether they know only the bride or only the groom. Also all wedding presents are sent to the bride-to-be, whether she is known to the senders or not. And all wedding presents are acknowledged by the bride-to-be, whether or not she knows the senders. When the bride-to-be writes her thank-you notes, she writes the note to the wife, with the salutation "Dear Mrs. Graham" or "Dear Mary", according as she knows her—and in the thanks of the note includes the thanks to the husband too. This applies to all of the other examples that you mention. For instance, her note might read:

Dear Mrs. Graham:

How very kind of you and Mr. Graham to send me such a beautiful pair of candlesticks for our wedding present. I know you will appreciate the sticks. When we are in our new home will you and Mr. Graham come to dine with us soon, and then I can express myself more graceful our dining-table?

Very friendly greeting to you both, and again thank you both for your kindness.

Most sincerely yours,

And this general type of note would be adopted according to how well or how little the bride-to-be knows the donors.

Table Talk and Confideences

Dear Mr. Beeckman:

1. Is it right to eat fish with your fingers at any time?

2. If coffee or any other drink is served in a cup, should it be sipped from a spoon or from the cup?

3. When a meal is finished, who should get up from the table first —the hostess or the guest? When and in what manner should such a meal be thanked for?

4. Should one show any sympathy she might have for her young man friend?

5. I have been going around with this young man for about half. My mother does not know, but I think she suspects. She dislikes him very much. Do you think I should give him a Christmas present? I would like to do something that does not cost much—as that Mother will not see the gift. It is not in my pocketbook. Should I present this gift after I receive mine? If you think there is anything a silly little girl of twenty should know, please tell me.

H.

1. No; fish should be eaten with a fork, or with a fish knife and fork, or with a fish knife and fork.

2. The first few sips are taken with the spoon—to test the heat—but the rest of the liquid is drunk from the cup. This is true for coffee, tea, consommé, bouillon, and so forth.

3. The guests look to the hostess for the signal to rise. That is, they do not rise until she does. When the difficult meal is finished, she thanks the hostess and the host "for a delightful supper," or "for the most pleasant evening" or "for your delightful hospitality," according to what that. Usually the food isn't mentioned, being considered as part of the hospitality.

4. Yes, this is a very natural thing for friends to do.

5. I am sure that you wouldn't want to have any advice for you to do something that you know your mother doesn't approve of, and about which she would be very much hurt as well as deceived. Watch your step in this friendship, for there is more than one very definite reason for your mother's dislike for this young man. It is not to sound "preachy" about a situation like this, but a young girl should not be tempted to warn "Look out" when one sees a developing danger, or even hurry to guide immature footsteps. Why should I believe this young man a gift, and you'd better be willing to receive a gift from him.

Believed Kidnapped

MARIE LAMBERT

Warning that Marie Lambert, above, 18-year-old New York city dancer, believed kidnapped by gangsters will be returning to her home with her tongue cut out, has been given her mother, Mrs. Anna Lambert, by a telephone message. The girl recently was freed under bond on a charge of aiding an escaped prisoner from the Tombs.

Old Superstitions Given A Laugh

If you want to realize how sensible, practical and scientific beauty-lying has become, just take time to dig up some of the old notions that applied to cosmetics. They literally lined in the time when the prehistoric pigtail was a pride and joy. Then a dream lover was an oracle to be consulted every morning of your life.

When grandma was a little girl her mama told her that to see a new moon hung in the sky; that made a wish. When she was a young lady, tress ends were singed because they bled and had vitality. They died because of all, as everybody knows. And ears were pierced to ward off sore eyes. Wasn't that the bunkum?

Upon the appearance of a sty, a gold wedding ring was rubbed briskly on the carpet—the same scallery trick, that—then frictioned on the sty, which was supposed to shrivel and depart. It didn't. A sty is a small boil, goes about its business of maturing and bursting and the rubbing does nothing except to irritate. Any specialists have means of aborting sties, but they don't do it with wedding rings.

There still persists a belief among some women that to have a baby with a good complexion, they must continue them else the feminine portrait will go into a state of wreckage and collapse. Nothing to it. One might as well say that if you take a walk one day you must walk every other day of the week. Of course you ought to, but you won't die if you don't.

Still hanging on is the fear that only cosmetics will produce a growth of facial fuzz—"If cold cream grew hair there would be no bald headed men. Superfluous hair is probably due to glandular disturbance, a dietless gland, though women whose parents have been hairy, think hair are likely to be tormented with bristles on lip and chin.

There are countless women who have used creams freely for years and have not been free of this blemish. And what about actresses who have used creams freely? Why wouldn't catch them playing with anything that could injure their skin or mar their hospitality.

Exploded completely is the belief that deodorants are harmful. Physicians say they aren't. There are millions of pores on the human body and that stopping the activities of a small area of skin in the armpits brings no baneful results.

Superstitions don't get a look-in these days.

Every woman who isn't hopelessly hare-brained knows that good looks are not only dependent upon good health, but good sense. No lateral thinker is going to be interesting or pretty. The stupid one may be a beauty for a time, but she cannot do it without vitality of body and high standard mental qualities.

Exercise and rest, long hours of sleep, good food, cheerfulness—upon these she pins her beauty hopes and they come true. She puts the cream on her beauty cake by toddling to the beauty shop, getting the decorations. But the real serious business she carries on herself.

TRANSPORTS ARE TIED UP

Highways And Roads Are Mere Fields of Ice

Drizzling rain from dripping skies, which continued to add to the perilous condition of the ice-coated roads on the second day of April-like weather on Saturday left dozens of cars stranded in the ditches alongside of the highways east and west of the city, and again almost prohibited vehicular traffic throughout the district.

Although cars and transports were still carrying on, they did so with difficulty, reported numerous transport companies, and bus and stage drivers. Highway traffic officers failed to report any actual accidents, scores of motors came to grief on the ice-glazed roads.

In the city hundreds of residents slipped and slithered to work over the icy sidewalks on one of the worst days of the year for pedestrian traffic. Tons of sand sprinkled on the walks and roads were merely washed to the gutters when the process was again repeated by employees of the public works. Scores of ice-clogged catch basins, unable to carry off the surface water, were marked with deep pools of water at many crossings. Relief was felt only by store owners and home owners along the main avenues, who were afforded the first actual chance of removing the four-inch sheet of ice from the concrete walks.

Behind Schedule

East and west-bound buses limped into the city behind schedule earlier in the day Saturday, but by noon traffic had once more been opened, and schedules were again maintained. A truck driver, who brought his steaming tractor and van into the city late in the morning stated that he had seen eight cars and trucks in the ditch between here and Gananoque. Numerous cars were also seen stranded, unable to continue without chains. A car load of hockey players en route from Madoc last evening took four hours to complete the trip from there to this city.

"This has been one of the worst winters the department has had to face," state City Foreman John Henderson, perspiring with the effort to keep roads and walks safe for travel in the city. "So far I don't know how many tons of cinders and sand we've used, and how many more we'll have to use seems questionable." Throughout the night employees of the department worked strenuously to prepare the city for the wakening workers. And throughout the day Saturday the ring of picks and shovels in the hands of men removing the ice from the walks was still in evidence.

"It's just the January thaw," stated the city's unofficial weather prophet. "If we get two more days of this mild weather, then the whole month of January will be warm."

Defeat Marmora 4 -1 For Second Time in Week

MARMORA, Jan. 6.—(Special)—Marmora, playing their second game suffered their second defeat on Friday evening, when Tweed defeated them by a score of 4-1.

Owing to the poor ice, team play was next to impossible, yet the game was fast, from start to finish, featuring many fine individual rushes by both teams.

Considering the condition of the ice the game was clean, there being but seven penalties handed out by Jack Brady, referee, mostly for minor offences.

Tweed went to the front half way through the first period, on a fine passing play and made a two-up before the end of the first period.

Early in the second period Tweed again found the net to put them three up. McWilliams gave Marmora the lone counter shortly after when he took a pass out from the corner. Half-way through this period Carl McCoy, Marmora's star, left defense man, was badly cut just below the right eye, when he was struck by a stick, accidentally. Three stitches were necessary to close the wound, as a result of which McCoy was unable to return to the game. Before the end of the period Tweed again scored from far out ending the period 4-1.

F. Callery, Marmora's sub-goalie replaced J. McGrath in the final period. Marmora played four and five men up throughout this period, carrying most of the play to the Tweed end, but the stellar goal-minding of Thompson in the Tweed net kept Marmora off the score sheet.

As every player on both teams, gave everything they had, there were no outstanding stars, although Thompson, Cordy, Geraldi and Meraw were prominent.

For Marmora, McCoy, Burns, W. Shannon, McWilliams and T. Shannon and Hewitt were most outstanding.

AT THE BELLE
"LITTLE WOMEN"

Now the great romantic love epic of the Nineteenth Century comes to the talking screen with a notable dramatization of "Little Women".

The present century has had its red hot romance, but the Sixties with their Civil War and its aftermath had more than their share of sincere matings and marriages in real life and fiction. Of all the famous novels depictive of that era none is better known than the Louisa M. Alcott novel relating the heart destinies of the four March Sisters, Jo, Meg, Beth and Amy.

Jo, as most of us will remember turns from the wealthy and ardent playmate of her younger days, "Laurie" to a career in the great city, there to meet the humble and honorable German professor who seems to have little hope of ever winning her heart and hand.

There is dramatic, surprise too in the decision of Jo. The triangle of Laurie, Jo and the professor provides the main plot in the story that has been a "best seller ever since it first startled the literary world in 1868.

R.K.O.-Radio Pictures has assigned none other than the meteoric Katharine Hepburn to play the enchantress of the Sixties, the girl who feared the pitfalls of love would break the firm ties of family and part the beautiful sisters.

The supporting cast and the roles they enact are Joan Bennett, as Amy, Frances Dee as Meg, Jean Parker as Beth, Paul Lukas as Fritz Bhaer, the German professor, Edna May Oliver as Aunt March, Douglas Montgomery, as Laurie, Henry Stephenson as Mr. Lawrence, Spring Byington as Marmee, Samuel Hinds as Mr. March, Mabel Colcord as Hannah, John Davis Lodge as Brooke and Nydia Westman as Mamie, George Cukor has directed this romantic epic of girlhood.

R.K.O. Radio has retained the highlights of the original volume, going to great expense to reproduce the backgrounds and settings and characters with detailed exactness. The production was a year in the making.

To thoroughly enjoy "Little Women" it is essential to see it from the beginning, it requires close to two hours to present this classic, and it will begin daily at 2.50, 7.10 and 9.30. "Little Women" will be preceded by selected short attraction making the performance start daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

A funny Mickey Mouse Kartune, and Screen oddities introducing novel and clever incidents will be exhibited with "Little Women"

AT THE CAPITOL
"LADIES MUST LOVE"

What are the details of the private lives of New York's gold-digging damsels? What goes on in the the boudoirs of these scheming "ladies of the evening?" What are the secrets of Broadway's professional purveyors of pulchritude?

The answers of these interesting questions are provided in "Ladies Must Love", Universal's gay musical picture which opens an engagement at the Capitol theatre, Monday, with June Knight, Neil Hamilton, Dorothy Burgess, Mary Carlisle and Sally O'Neil in featured roles.

In the story the three latter girls are seen as out-and out gold-diggers loving 'em and leaving 'em when they run out of money, but the more charitable Miss Knight, who shares their luxurious Park Avenue penthouse, exhibits traces of a conscience, and refuses to accept the lavish gifts of the wealthy Neil Hamilton. It is when this situation strikes rough water and June loses her man through a misunderstanding, that the other three girls, each blaming the other for the loss of a promising meal ticket, stage a knock-down and drag-out fight that entirely wrecks their apartment.

With Miss Knight as the principal soloist, "Ladies Must Love" abounds with tuneful songs, which have already become popular throughout the country. These include "Tonight May Never Come Again," "I've Got Personality," "I'd Worship Him Just the Same" and "Three Little Maids"—the latter sung by the other girls in a riotously active beer garden, scene of their first real work in a long, long time.

"Ladies Must Love" is said to be the ultimate in gay, wise-cracking intensely modern screen entertainment.

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Profit-taking in moderate volume gave the Toronto Exchange listings a slightly weak tone in the closing session of the week with trading in less than recent average proportions. A sagging tendency on the New York market helped to depress the local leaders.

Bank shares as a group alone held to the up side. Royal gained five points to 145, Montreal 2 and Commerce ½ to 144.

In the distillery issues Industrial Alcohol held a fractional gain and the others closed lower, Walker's down 1-4, and Distillers Seagrams ⅝.

Nickel, Ford A and Brazilian were off slightly.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 6—The Standard Mining Market was unable to get steam up in today's short session and business dragged slowly accompanied by a mild wearing down of prices.

Lake Shore took a loss of $1. to $46, Dome slipped 25 cents to $34.75, Hollinger dropped 10 to $11.65, McIntyre $1 to $41, Pioneer 10 cents to $12 and Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves were up 5 cents each to $6.

Base Metal issues were too slow to establish a trend in either direction. Nickel lost 10 cents, Noranda 25 cents, Hudson Bay 20 cents, Sherritt 1 cent and Pend Oreille and Falconbridge were up a few cents each.

CHILDREN'S SHELTER UNDER QUARANTINE

The aftermath of two mild cases of scarlet fever among the wards, a seven day quarantine which will end on Thursday next has been placed on the local Children's Shelter. The quarantine is a precautionary measure, and observation is being made by the Medical Officer of Health for fear of further outbreaks. The cases are described as mild types and no further outbreak is anticipated.

PRIZE WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Judges appointed to visit the various homes in the city who entered the Christmas Lighting Contest, have completed their work and announced their decision. The judges report that there were more entered than last year and the displays were excellent. The Challenge Cup given by the merchants of the city was won by Mrs. J. T. Warren, 198 Victoria Ave., and the other four prizes, donated by the Walker Stores, Belle Theatre, Metropolitan Store, and Charles T. Dolan. The winners of these prizes were Mrs. J. Semple, 100 Bridge St. East; Jack Norris, 124 Bridge St. west; B. M. Moorman, 8 Murney Street, and Charles W. Bankey, 49 St Charles Street. The judges were unanimous in their decision.

PRISON TERM FOR W. DELINE

Given 2 1-2 Years, Pleading Guilty to Robbery With Violence

William Deline, Trenton; was sentenced to serve two years and six months in the Portsmouth Penitentiary after he pleaded guilty to robbing with violence one Michael Revoy, an 88-year-old resident of Frankford, on the night of Dec 2 last, when he appeared before Magistrate Mikel today. Deline also pleaded guilty to three other charges of breaking, entering and theft on the same night in question. He pleaded guilty to entering and robbing a cider mill near Trenton, the Canadian Oil Company and John Clapp's home in Sidney in company with Douglas and Cleveland Smith and one Douglas Davis.

Deline is alleged by the provincial police to have been the ring leader of the gang that broke and entered his uncle's home and robbed him. Michael Revoy being Deline's uncle. At a previous police court hearing Deline intimated that he would elect trial by judge, as did the Smith boys. When he appeared for his preliminary hearing this morning he elected trial by His Worship, Magistrate Mikel, and pleaded guilty to all charges entered.

MILDER WEATHER IS PROMISED

Furnace fires will glow dully throughout the city on Sunday in direct contrast to the leaping flames of just one week ago when the mercury in local thermometers huddled in a little ball at the bottom. It will be mild on Sunday, and probably over the week end, state official weather forecasters, with a hint that snow or light rain may follow. Today's temperatures reached almost exactly the same marks registered one year ago, while the condition of the weather was also recorded about the same.

NO WORD RECEIVED ON EXTRA RELIEF

So far no communication regarding the extra grant to the city for relief purposes has been received from the secretary of the Unemployed Relief Committee at Toronto, it was stated at the city hall today.

"It is just possible that myself and a committee may be forced to go to Toronto to look into the matter," stated Mayor Tice today when questioned. "Although we have been expecting word from the department daily, so far we haven't heard a thing."

ALLOWED TO GO FOR ONE WEEK

Wanted for alleged desertion of her children, Mrs. Reginald Sedgewick of Port Hope was taken by Plainclothes Officer Isard this morning in Belleville at the request of Inspector T. D. Ruston, superintendent of the local Children's Aid Society. Mrs. Sedgewick assured the police she wanted to care for her children and was but trying to procure employment so as to provide for her children, who are at present residing in a home north of Belleville. Local police assured Inspector Ruston, that Mrs. Sedgewick was not wanted in this city as a resident.

Mrs. Sedgewick was allowed to go on her own recognizance for one week without appearing before the Magistrate.

PASS THE BREAD, PLEASE—This request is made several times a day in possibly every home in Belleville—many people cannot enjoy a meal without bread and the better the bread the more they eat of it. Purity Bread must be extra good if the number of loaves sold daily in the city and surrounding district is any indication of its "goodness." The drivers for this bakery are out on their routes early in the morning and it is late in the evening before they "call it a day" and go to their homes. Brown bread, white bread, buns, cakes and pies they have been delivering all day to the hundreds of users of the products of this popular bakery. One of these drivers will be pleased to call at your house if you would like to try Purity bread, rolls, buns, cakes or pies. Telephone number 1976 and you will receive prompt attention. Mr. G. E. FRONT STREET OPTIMIST SAYS: START THE YEAR WITH A SMILE —and you will probably smile all the way through. Everything points to a good year for Belleville folks, merchants, professional men, workers, all citizens. Every industry here and hereabouts has better prospects for new and increased business than a year ago—some have extra special encouraged prospects which will mean larger staffs. New industries are considering Belleville as a possible site and nothing will be left undone to induce them to locate here during the year. All along the line prospects are brighter for Belleville particularly and for Canada generally. Just buck up and face the future with a smile, the prosperity which is to come will be all the sweeter for having had a tough pull through the D D Days.

SHORTEST WAY TO ARMS PACT

"No Use Crying For The Moon" Says Sir John Simon

Rome, Jan. 5.—Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, departed at noon today for London to report to his government that there was no use crying for the moon" in matters of international disarmament.

His report will be based on the result of his conferences here with Premier Mussolini and Dr Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister.

These conferences decided him to favor the shortest road to whatever arms agreement can be reached against envious and perhaps endless talks in an attempt to gain more Utopian accords. He carries the assurance of Italy's support for a short road thesis and also it is understood, the support of the French.

Whether Italy's stand would mean the scrapping of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's as well as other plans for disarmament has not, however, been specified. A qualified spokesman stated emphatically today that no understanding had been reached here only on a general idea and that no definite plan had been discussed.

The idea, as set forth in an Italian communique last night, is that Italy draws out disarmament negotiations must be brought to a quick conclusion even though hoped-for major disinvestments have to be sacrificed.

Sir John had an informal chat with newspapermen before entering the north-bound train but declined to interpret the communique. He goes straight to London having completed his conferences in Paris before coming to Rome.

SECOND BLAST SHAKES MINE

No Hope of Recovering 129 Now Entombed in Shaft

Duchcov, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 5 (CP)—Another explosion, deep underground, shook the Nelson III mine this morning where 129 men still were entombed following an explosion two days ago.

Rescue work was abandoned by order of the engineer in charge, who decided to seal both the shafts with concrete.

The underground blast was followed with a dense cloud of smoke which burst and was fanned by rescue crews who have worked day and night, might be trapped in a new catastrophe if they were permitted to continue their labors.

Authorities said they hoped the bodies of the entombed men, for whom all hope has been abandoned, might be recovered at some future time.

Only four of the 144 miners who were underground Wednesday reached the surface alive. 11 bodies were recovered.

COMMEMORATE CENTENNIAL

The students and staff of the Belleville collegiate institute met yesterday afternoon in the College-ate and heard an address from Magistrate Mikel on some incidents in the early history of Ontario.

It was decided to make the spring edition of the "Elevator" magazine published by the students of the Collegiate Institute a Centennial number to commemorate the Centennial of Belleville as an incorporated municipality.

The Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada on the 6th of March, 1834, passed a Statute incorporating Belleville as a Police Village so that after that date that year Belleville will have completed its existence for a century as an incorporated municipality.

It was suggested that all the schools in Belleville adopt special exercises on Tuesday, March 6, to commemorate the Centennial.

The actual celebration of the Centennial together with the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalists will take place June 16, 17, 18 and 19.

BERKOWITCH HELD IN JAIL

Paris, Jan. 5 (CP)—Benjamin Berkowitch, and his pretty young wife, Clara, who claim they are naturalized Canadians and formerly residents of Montreal, today heard their formal plea for liberty denied by a magistrate who asked they be held in jail pending completion of the enquiry.

The Berkowitchs, along with eight others, were recently arrested on charges of being connected with what police termed an international espionage system. Berkowitch was believed to have been, police said, the paymaster for the French link that operated from Paris.

Both the Berkowitchs have denied any connection with the ring and so, for that matter have the rest of the suspects including Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Swits of East Orange, N.J.

The Swizs were closely questioned at length today when they appeared before the magistrate regarding documents police said they seized in the hotel room of the couple. The Americans, however, stuck to their story that they were victims of a "frame-up."

WAIT WORD ON LIQUOR SHIPMENT

"Nothing unusual to report, except that everything is going along nicely, and a good many of the older hands are back again," stated officials of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company today.

Shipments from the local company will depend on word from the head office at Montreal, with no definite date as yet being set.

"We may have something to report along this line very soon, however," it was stated.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

"You'll be in for lunch?" Beatrice Randall's voice drifted through the living room from the kitchen.

"Lunch in time. There are so many things for us to chatter about in so many years. Shall we say more than 'Welcome Home'." Something in her own assurance of that fact—must have "changed a wage.

"Personal, you may so." How quickly Beatrice Randall's voice could slide from a tropical hoarseness into the thin edge of ice. "Jeffrey disappeared in the dinner of business."

"I have an engagement to lunch with Mr. Randall," Mathilda made her decision immediately.

"Wip—yes.—Then I can't be here, Mr. Jeffrey." Beatrice's voice was "Love birds!" Beatrice was being very. "The archness of a wasp and poison.

"Love birds!" Mathilda swatted the wasp. "Come, Mrs. Randall, we're late as usual."

Beatrice was standing beside a car under the porte cochere. Again she had the feeling she wanted to throw something to her a message, that her own assurance of the circumstances over which he had no control.

The train stopped at 125th street. It would be drawing into Grand Central Station. She Sentry Randall veered through the double-breasted car-window. Life goes on. Her interest in Mathilda headed out of the window, her plump elbows on the conductor rested on a pillow she was watching for her man.

He'd be coming back from work. She would feed him out of the pots simmering on the gas range behind the kitchen door. He would be tired. He must have turned the corner. Sometime.

What would await her, Sue Sentry knew. She thought, the train had stopped? When she raced the long passage from the great Central Grand Central, through which the hopes and fears, the joys and sorrows, the heroics and the plain confused plodding of everyday life met?

She had wired Mathilda to meet her. Had she rolled out of Grand Central, bound for the home of her childhood days ago? Three years ago, three months, three years. The home of her childhood, the home now at 25 Park Place. 25 her of late.

The three days had been hind-days, cruel days. Lights and shadows. Tommy was in high school now he had grown! Straight as a string, straight and clean-limbed as he. He would be quarterback of the high school football team this year. He would be man. Tommy was not going to be in high school the year. He was going to a school where he could live. Where he could study. Where he couldn't have to do odd jobs between times to earn his books, the clothes he wore. "Rah, Tommy!

Her mother, Dear futile mother. Her unselfishness. Mother going on a trip. She was like a child about it. She had never been on a trip, a real one, which took you to, oh, days to come back. The doctors had advised a long rest. Stupid.

Herman was in a dither. He were to tell her, going about telling the children how he had decided to the house and take the minus a trip to California." His attitude toward Sue was changed. The hardness in him — was gone. Was afraid. Another power had taken hold. Money power. The gold cigarette case with the gold coin in it she had brought him for a gift. Herman was thinking the coin in the case. Vanity. Cupidity. A coat for her mother. Mink with green, mottled—with socks to match. And a wrist watch, self-winding. Yes. These were real. They were substantial. Worth the while, no matter what the world.

The train slowed to a stop. Sue got herself she must be perfect. Be her place in the line. There the only Mathilda to meet—Mathilda and —Jeffrey?

She put her hand through the line and raced along the runway, through the gates, the roped circle to inside a station room—Mathilda! "You're alone!" Sue asked, disengaging herself from Mathilda's embrace.

"Who did you expect, the Sultan Siam?" Mathilda waved away a question. "You're still wearing that dress. It looks pretty sad."

"I know. It's grimy. I haven't time to think about clothes. Where do we go from here?"

"I'll go to the Randall town house. Dinner is outside. In other words, Randall's chauffeur chauffeur with a waits."

"Jeffrey back.

Matty, not there. It's a morgue, a morgue—unless—Matty, is Jeffrey is on his way to Mexico, that has nothing to do with us. We're in a deal. Our part of the is safe for us to go to the Randall house within half an hour after the arrival of the train. Come, I'll find Conner." Sue agonizing: "Jeffrey? He'd good! She'd driven it out. Driven Jeff out of his home, out of her life. Or had Jeff the who was to the bargain. Jeffrey agreeing to the terms of the Sue. So, then, would she.

Sue, in a shell pink peignoir—by her of Mathilda—with lace cascading at neck and elbows.

"Dinner is at eight, Madame."

Mathilda nodded. "Irma, you're service for two, please."

Mathilda swaggered the length of the suite. Mathilda was dismissed from her sleeve. "Am I learning?" she asked, sitting her head at Sue.

"If you weren't such an apt pupil, you'd be sunk without warning." Sue admitted. "Matty!"

Mathilda's fists came down on her knees. "You haven't told me about Jeff. What does he want me to do?"

"Suppose we ring for a tray of cocktails. Mathilda leaded a magazine. "I mean it, Matty. I'm not so long as I'm being educated. I may as well run into worse." She rose and pushed the bell. A maid answered.

"Yes?—Is-cu-lair?"

"No, just cocktails. Non-poison, can, with a kick in them."

"Thank you, Madame."

Mathilda closed the door. "Don't thank me yet," she muttered. "Will tell you see how those cocktails act on your throat."

Sue, sipping from a silver cup, long-drawn, a chalice. Mathilda sipping too.

"Ow! ow!" Mathilda explored her chalice for a cherry. "I've never for you, Suzie. You've got guts to like it, but you've got to take it. Now make yourself comfy on the corner of the sofa. And if you pull one of those Queen Victoria faints, just remember I'm going to throw the contents of this silver shaker down your throat."

"Matty, it isn't —Jeff!" Sue, discovering orders, spilling the contents of her chalice on the carpet.

"No," Mathilda took another sip. "Not Jeff. I wish it were, Sue, Mrs. Hume is suing Henry Hume for divorce. She's named you."

"Mrs. Hume — divorce — named me? But Matty, she can't. You know she can't." Sue, gasping like a fish tossed on a dry bank.

"She can't—but she has." Matty brimmed Sue's chalice. "It's like the innocent man behind bars. You can't put him in jail, but he's in jail. Look at this!" Mathilda whisked a paper from somewhere, thrust it into Sue's hands.

There it was, flaunting, in the middle of the page:

Millionaire's bride named in $500,000 Alienation Suit.—On return from honeymoon, Jeffrey Randall finds—

Sue, crushing the paper, tossing it behind the couch.

"Wife of Mr. Hume's wife to front page me." Sue said evenly. "Well, here's answer to crime!" Sue raised her glass gulped its contents.

"Susie", Mathilda trained her glass too. "You've grown up. You can take it—and lots of it, Suzie!—I think this darn thing is a cocktail—I We're going to win, hands down, or is it feet down?"

"It's heads up." Sue said.

CHAPTER 22

Sue, sitting well back in her chair in a downtown office. Composure. She must be perfectly calm. perfectly collected. Alert and yet not so alert that she would appear to be on the defensive. There must be no hint at those emotions. Thundering within her, threatening to burst through the damn of her will.

She hoped Mr. Gifford would not keep her waiting too long. Inaction was the most severe punishment that could be meted out to be at present. Anything was better, scenes, storms, violence. She would welcome a fierce, a tangible force at which she could fight back.

Already she had been through one scene this morning. Hysterical it was, but she had come out of it without retreat. It was after Sue had been summoned to his office by Mr. Gifford that Beatrice Randall appeared at the door of the suite in the Randall home, virtually demanding entrance.

"I should like to know what we're to do!" Beatrice came in with a rush, gazed about her with the air of one expecting contamination.

"Do about what?" Sue asked pleasantly enough.

"About what!" Beatrice fell back before such effrontery. "Oh, both, much. Nothing except the prize scandal of the season. Nothing except what everyone's rolling under the tongue this morning—Jeffrey Randall's wife and her woman, some common creature no one ever heard of sued for stealing creature's husband. What shall we do? What are we do?"

"We will do nothing." Sue stepping up the pressure. "This is entirely my affair. I know nothing about it except what's appeared in a scandal sheet. I shall learn all about it today. If there's anything you should know, I'll see you are informed."

"Indeed you will!" Beatrice Randall's malevolence was like a dark hate revolving. "I'll make it my business to be informed. Randall's name is to be known not to be target for public shame, without finding means to extricate by. You hear me, you creature?"

"I'm sure they do." Sue adjusted her hat. "You see I'm handling myself, so I know precisely how you feel."

"You a Randall?" Beatrice's scorn tore through high laughter. "You bad Jeffrey was in such haste about Uncle Orlando's money wasn't it? Too bad Jeffrey didn't know about this Mr. Henry Hume. You have taken Jeff in—God knows how —but you're not taking in the rest of us. I demand to see Jeffrey. I've tried to reach him for two days. If he has any decency left, he'll see me and he'll see Cyril."

"That's a matter for Mr. Randall to decide," Mathilda said, handing Sue her bag. "I'm afraid you'll have to excuse us. We were just going out."

"I wonder if you have the nerve to face people," Beatrice raged. "I'm sure I haven't, after that scurrilous story in the paper."

"You shouldn't be so sensitive Miss Randall." Mathilda advised. She was a fairly good actress herself. She sounded real sociology. "Mrs. Hume is not accusing you of stealing her husband."

"Just who are you?" Beatrice turned on Mathilda with suddenly unveiled suspicion. "Why are you here? What are you protecting this woman Jeffrey brought into the house—what are you protecting her from?"

Mathilda smiled. As blandly as though her fingers were not itching to leave their imprint across a white distorted face.

"From anything that might bob up," she said, stepping in the door-way through which Sue had passed. "From marble busts that come to life and leap out of walls, from disrunted ladies, from conniving relatives—but anything that bobs."

"Then you are a spy!" Beatrice followed to the door. "Here to make trouble for us. You admit it. And you can tell Jeffrey Randall the whole matter of his marriage, including the past of this woman, is going to be sifted. Cyril and I intend to get the truth and to expose it."

"Why don't you?" Sue called, as cheerily as though she had been discussing intricacies with a well-liked companion. "It's really a very delightful romance."

"Cyril joined yesterday—for Paris," Beatrice said significantly.

In the car. The torrent of Sue's emotions catching her motionless, sweeping her into its whirlpools and eddies:

"They'll do it, Matty. They'll get trained investigators. They'll find out it was a hoax—our landing, my being in those rooms with Jeffrey'll scream it to the world—"

"Let 'em scream." Mathilda's

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

©1931, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

"Your people will not kill me," said Tarzan. "I come as a friend." But in his heart the ape-man knew that these primitive people would surely attempt his life. "Come, then," replied Oran and they started the descent into the canyon. They had gone some distance when the boy gave a low whistle. A moment after it was answered and when they passed around a bend in the trail ahead, Tarzan saw the bare chin of Oran upon a ledge where were gathered fully a hundred men, women and children.

All eyes were turned in their direction as the ape-man and the boy came into view. On seeing Tarzan the warriors sprang up, seizing their spears and knives. The women and children ran toward the caves' entrances. "Do not fear," cried the boy, "it is Oran and his friend Tarzan." "We kill!" growled some of the men. "Where is Atan, the chief?" demanded the youth. Then Tarzan saw a stalwart, burly savage push through the crowd. "What have you there, my son?" the chief exclaimed. "If he is a friend, why cogne, he with weapons!"

"Stand aside!" commanded Atan, "while I destroy this enemy." The boy sprang swiftly in front of Tarzan. "Who kills my friend must first kill me!" he cried. "Listen to me." His father hesitated, then spoke Tarzan for the first time: "I shall not remain a prisoner. Accept me as a friend—or not at all." "We are many, Atan, and he is only one" spoke up a warrior named Ulan. "Let him stay," pleaded the boy. "Ulan and I will see that he harms no one." "The child's son was a fool favorite with the tribe and so it was decided that, because he wished it, Tarzan might remain unharmed.

"When Ulan returns we shall call a council and decide what to do," finally said the chief. "Meanwhile the stranger must remain a prisoner." Then he ordered, "Listen to me." "He shall not remain a prisoner. Accept me as a friend—or not at all." "We are many, Atan, and he is only one" spoke up a warrior named Ulan. "Let him stay," pleaded the boy. "Ulan and I will see that he harms no one." "The child's son was a fool favorite with the tribe and so it was decided that, because he wished it, Tarzan might remain unharmed.

WIRE BRIEFS

London, Jan. 6—(CP)— Queen Augusta Victoria, who for 20 years has lived at Pulwell Park, Twickenham, has left to live at Princes in Switzerland, where she will be near her brother.

Since the death of her husband, Manoel, ex-King of Portugal, the estate at Pulwell Park has been sold for development, and King Manoel's library, including many rare Portugese books, has been sent back to Portugal.

Camden, N.J., Jan. 6—(AP) Six masked men, armed with sawed-off shotguns, held up the payroll clerks of Howland Croft and Sons, textile manufacturers today and escaped with $9,200.

Washington, Jan. 6—(AP)—President Roosevelt approved a code for the wholesale food industry, paralleling the one already signed for food retailers.

London, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP) Huron College authorities will communicate with police in Vancouver B.C., in an attempt to learn the whereabouts of Victor Kidd, third year divinity student here, who disappeared on Friday. Young Kidd is believed to have withdrawn funds from his bank account here and purchased ticket to that city for a re-opening from over study for January examinations.

Boston, Jan. 6—(AP)—Dead to all appearances no less than four times in the past 20 hours, Mrs. Theresa Wrenn, 44-year-old mother of five children, lived today with every prospect of recovery. If she survives she will owe her life to the incessant toil of 14 men from a Boston fire department rescue company.

Ottawa, Jan. 6—(CP)—Writs for the south Bothwell by-election will be issued within the next two weeks, Jan. 21 being the last date possible, it was believed here that the election would not be held until April because of weather conditions. The vacancy was created by the death of Thomas Cayley, Liberal whose majority at the 1930 election was 55.

Kenora, Jan. 6—C. A. Coutanche, Dryden Lake, Ont., operator for the Ontario Forestry Branch, heard a plane with acute aero-nautic skills. He put his transmitter on the amateur band and communicated with Joe Sky, amateur radio operator. Sky immediately wired Canadian Airways at Sioux Lookout and a plane carrying a doctor started. It was over the snow-covered terrain to Swains Lake. An emergency operation was performed and the many life saved.

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 6 — (CP Cable)—An English immigrant today launched action claiming $27,000 damages from the State of Victoria, alleging it failed to keep agreement that he would be established to earn a minimum of $1,700 a year when he settled here, the claimant, Alexander Fairtrop Moore, formerly of London, Kent, land, is now settled at Pyrgnid 1911 near here. He bases his suit on alleged breach of contract.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Jan. 6— (CP Cable)—A second Venezuelan revolutionary expedition, unsuccessful in efforts to seize the armed trading schooner Elsie, Jr., from a secret landing on the Trinidad coast.

London, Ont., Jan. 6—Following a dramatic preliminary hearing in city police court during which time one of the accused attempted what he had to be revived by police constables, the charge which Alexander Attorney A. M. Judd, K.C., charged that an estate of two women principals were to be kept separated in the county all had been ignored. Mrs. Jessie Mabel Cook of Mitchell was committed to jail for trial on charge of procuring a girl for immoral purposes.

Fort Erie, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP)— R. H. Brooks, in his first year of construction of a 2,000,000-bushel grain storage elevator on Lake Erie here by the Terminal Elevators Ltd., government official in regard to having a portion of the elevator work included as a relief project.

Washington, Jan. 6—(AP)— A plan intended to decrease the price of liquor in the United States is being formulated by Joseph H. Choate, Jr., federal alcohol control administrator.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Deputy Provincial Secretary C. F. Sellands explained what led to the investigation into a charge that proper medical attention had not been given a prisoner, in Walkerton jail. "One of the prisoners at Guelph Reformatory told us that he and others had been sworn at by the jailer," Mr. Sellands said.

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—Fourteen candidates joined in the ceremony of reception and profession at St. Joseph's Convent Chapel here, Monsignour Whelan, V.G., presided over the ceremony and the sermon was preached by Rev. Father Healy. Six Sisters made final vows.

North Wilkesboro, N.C., Jan. 6 (AP)—A young married man described as the rejecting suitor of attractive Leola Childress, 18-year-old foster daughter of a well-to-do farmer is held in a blunder, warrant, as investigators pressed an investigation into her strange death. She was first supposed to have been slain by four robbers who found her alone at home, then believed to have perpetrated a fantastic suicide, and now again listed as a murder victim.

Car Skids Off Canal Road and Halted Before Taking Drop

Mail Carrier Miraculously Escapes Injury And Possibly Death

Carrying Place, Jan. 6—Steering off an ice-covered road and careening over the steep bank of the Murray canal here yesterday, a light coup driven by J. O. Dingsworth, mail carrier, was at last halted in the nick of time with one of the four wheels miraculously hanging to the edge of the road. Close behind Mr. Dunsbury at the time of the mishap was Mr. W. Elliott on his motorcycle, and while the car was held in its precarious place by the application of its brakes, he hurried to block the three overhanging wheels with large stones. A group of men working nearby on the canal were summoned and with the use of block-and-tackle the car was hauled to safety.

Mr. Dunsbury's escape from probable injury and drowning is remarkable. Members of the party who helped rescue the car state that they do not see just what stopped it from crashing through the thin ice and into the canal bank. This road, which runs the entire length of the canal on the north side is dangerous and rough almost the year round, and drivers must use every caution as there is no fence between road and canal.

Fourth Horse Dies.

—"Ted", the last of four valuable horses owned by Mr. Harry La Tour, died late last night, the fourth victim of mysterious poisoning. A young team in splendid condition, a colt ready for breaking to use, and "Ted", a light work horse and a great pet, have all succumbed to the disease which first developed about ten days before Christmas. The team died almost at once within a few hours of each other, but the other two horses, although stricken at the same time, lived until recently, the one dying on Wednesday and the other a day later. This would be a serious loss at any time, but now, with horses high in price, only farmers can truly sympathize with Mr. La Tour. Veterinaries and governmental investigators agree that death was due to poisoning of some sort, but cannot positively identify the poison, nor tell where it may be found.

CLUB RAIDS MAY FOLLOW

Police Determined to Stop Gambling Clubs in Suburban Areas

Toronto, Jan. 6 (CP)—Frequent raids, staged by small parties of provincial constables and based upon the plan which obtained in numerous convictions in the Windsor area last summer, will be carried out by Const. V. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police, against all known gambling resorts in the Toronto district, it was announced late last night.

Roused by the ability of the clubs, through sentinels or leakage of information, to close down when gambling by the time police have reached the premises, Const. Williams decided to adopt the plan used in occasional raids in the past. Gen. Williams stated that he will issue the instructions immediately which will result in a group of picked men proceeding on the raids.

The basis upon which the campaign will be run is understood to be if were undertaken on the same lines as those which were carried out on occasional raids on gambling clubs last year, evidence would be that almost nightly visits made at irregular periods, would make operation of the clubs impossible, and difficult to be continued or would result in a sufficient body of evidence and sufficient evidence for a conviction in a court.

Local Police Failure

Failure of local police to take any steps to enforce laws is what the provincial authorities are determined to overcome, and it is stated that the action by the provincial police, it is understood, will not be confined to police forces in suburban districts, but also stated, with reason to fear of the clubs, which are suspected, exist just over the line of the Toronto police. The adequacy of staffed city force rendering existence impossible.

When called last night and asked if this plan was being considered by the provincial authorities, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General, under whose department the force is administered, said:

"It could not be expected that I would say what is being planned even if I did know."

"Is there a possibility that a very few officers, even one or two, visiting the gambling resorts often, finding themselves evident much of the time, becoming known in the front of the operators', could achieve results?" asked The Mail and Empire.

"You mean after the plan which Gen. Williams pursued in Windsor?" asked Col. Price. "I really cannot say. I know that the Commissioner has been studying the situation which has arisen by the existence of these places where local action has not been taken. Further than that I cannot say."

UNITED THRU $1.45 LEGACY

Brother And Sister Lost to Each Other Since Childhood

London, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP)—Fate is, in the form of $145 legacy, next Monday will reunite brother and sister who have been lost to each other since childhood. The brother is William Champion, this city, and the sister is 22-year-old Mrs. John Mill of Granton, Ontario.

The story began in the Thomas Abbay Hall home for children almost 18 years ago. Mr. Champion, 76 years old and only intermittently employed will hitch hike to Granton.

Three Champion sisters, and two brothers were placed in the home. All the girls and one of the boys were adopted, only William remained in care of the institution until he began to fend for himself.

"We've kept track of Dolly, the youngest," Mr. Champion said, "and I heard no more of her until this summer when a Salvage Company asking me to help find her because they had a small legacy for her from our mother."

Some way Dolly Adelaide Champion, now happily married to John Mills, a farmer near Granton, learned of the legacy and wrote the Huron and Erie police she knew. One of them was a London. Mr. Mills came here and attempted to locate William Champion finally obtaining correct address. A letter arrived from Granton.

CONTROVERSY OVER SCHOOL

Information Laid Against Chairman of Board in 1933

Sarnia, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP)—Further developments were awaited in the renewed Cabin School row Friday, Thursday Chairman Walter Wallis and Ernest Rolstone, laid an information with County Magistrate C. S. Woodrow, here, charging Peter MacLeod, chairman of the 1933 board with theft. It was reported that a provincial constable arrived in Cabin to continue the investigation before summonses were issued. Chairman Walter Whiting said he would not be able to say what the night ends in inquiries Saturday.

The controversy dates back to 1932 when Miss Jean Stalker, the teacher was dismissed by Mc-Leod and his son, Blake McLeod appointed. The community divided into two classes, were carried on for a time. At the election the 1933 Board was defeated and the present Board reappointed Miss Stalker.

GUARDS SMASH DOORS

Sudbury, Jan. 6—(CP)—Re-capturing when five guards smashed down the doors of the hunting camp near Bayswater, in which they had barricaded themselves early yesterday morning. Carl Brooks, of London, and Boyston St. John, of Toronto, were committed for trial by Magistrate J. S. McCausick Friday on charges of escaping from Burwash Industrial Farm on January 2.

TO DECIDE ON HOUSE LEADER

Liberal Caucus To Be Held Without Hepburn Being Present

Toronto, Jan. 6 (CP)— Liberal members of the Ontario Legislature will meet in caucus at the Prince Edward Hotel this afternoon for the purpose of deciding the fate of Premier Hepburn leader, W. F. Nickle, K.C.

Downtown Liberal circles expressed the belief last night that while Mr. Nickle would make a determined attempt to retain the leadership, it was almost certain he would be forced to resign. Chairman, party Whip,

If as forecast yesterday in The Mail and Empire, the switch is made, the Legislature will witness for the first time in several years the Liberal group, and the Progressives under R. G. Nixon, working in harmony in the same chamber. Both groups will retain their separate identities this session, but in the next Legislature—regardless of victory or defeat in the 1934 general election—they probably will be formed into a single unit.

To-day's caucus is one of the most momentous since the 1929 election. Every available member, including Mr. Sinclair, has had special notification to be present. Even Douglas M. Campbell, new member-elect for East Kent is expected to be on hand. As the Provincial leadership question, at the present will be discussed it is stated that Mr. Sinclair has realized for some time that Mr. Hepburn has not been invited.

Some time ago, Mr. Sinclair sent out a notice to the group asking them for their opinion of Mr. Hepburn's leadership. That notice is said to have carried the intimation that Mr. Hepburn's resignation would be present. If such is the case, it is that Mr. Sinclair is said, from Mr. Sinclair to Mr. Hepburn since they had their estrangement over the provincial convention in 1930. It is generally understood that Mr. Sinclair has realized for some time that Mr. Hepburn's usefulness to the party is declining about his House chieftaincy retirement, and that by inviting Mr. Hepburn to the caucus yesterday, he hoped to stall off his reported problem for a few days.

ANCIENT ROBES WORTH RANSOM FOR CORONATION

Peiping, Jan. 6—(AP)— Those Manchurian robes that tourists bought for a song—well, they would have to hire Mario Jerlins herself to sing that song today.

For the Emperor Pu Yi to be crowned King of Manchukuo, and where he is a Manchurian king, the Manchurian robes must be worn.

The former Assistant of the Chinese Imperial household here says Jerlins, famous tenor, arranged, at second-hand stalls for Manchu robes bearing imperial insignia and dragon designs, found such tune as the fine is paid.

He served overseas with the Royal Air Force.

SCRIBE STAYS AT MEETING

Had Right to Stay as Money of Port Hope Was Being Expended

PORT HOPE, Jan. 6. —Despite the action of the Port Hope Welfare Board favoring the expulsion of a press representative at yesterday's afternoon's regular meeting of the board, Mayor Walter J. Crowhurst to obtain action by the police, the meeting proceeded with no scribe having present. Later in the meeting, however, a woman applicant gave vent to considerable feeling and a call was put in for the police. When the latter arrived, however, had disappeared.

The relief question has been before here since last April with W. J. Crowhurst, the Chairman, and Rev. Dr. K. H. Palmer being the outstanding figures.

At the opening of the meeting the Chairman quietly told the reporter to retire. This not being done, the latter was put to a vote, which favored the expulsion of the press by a vote of 3 to 2. The result of the vote was relayed to the press representative, who again refused to retire claiming that town money was being expended and he would remain during session.

Mayor Crowhurst indignantly walked to the clerk's telephone, but was unable to locate Chief of Police Thomas Murphy. Pressure this the meeting continued uninterrupted.

Heretofore applicants for relief have individually appeared before the board each week, but today the board decided to try out the voucher system for one month. In this way the needy fill out applications before the meeting commences and the cards are dealt with by the board members every Friday afternoon.

53,000 TANK FIRE

BELIEVE PLANE DOWN IN NORTH

Carried Two Airmen and Young Married Couple

MOOSONEE, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP) —Far "back of beyond" an aeroplane is believed down today. It carried two young airmen and a young married couple. It is three days overdue today.

Piloted by H. H. Bibby and carrying Mechanic W. H. Sunderland and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stewart, the plane took off from Moosonee for Fort Harrison, 1,000 miles north, on December 20. Bibby had stated definitely he would be back made, in Moosonee on January 2. The ship failed to return. There is no way of telling whether or not it ever arrived at Fort Harrison.

Mr. Stewart is manager of a Revillon Brothers Trading Post on Upper Severn River. The flight was beginning last fall and was married. The couple originally intended to travel by dog team to their home on the Severn, but Mrs. Stewart decided to leave by air after reaching this settlement. Then they intended to travel by dog-team the rest of the way.

But hope has not yet been abandoned for the missing. Stewart was born in the North, is an expert, experienced with the snows and ice. Bibby and Sunderland both are "old-timers" up where the northern lights gleam and splutter. If they are stranded in the barren lands, the people of Moosonee are certain they will be able to fight their way back to civilization.

RIOT IN CELLS BRINGS TERM

Cobourg, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP)— Magistrate J. H. Davidson sentenced Jack Lee to reformatory for six months Friday for creating a disturbance in the town hall police cells earl that morning. A razor was said to have been secured during the affray and a bottle of rubbing alcohol and a bottle of water found in the cells.

James Shannon, James McThee and Lee were also charged with disorderly conduct. Police said 11 window panes were broken.

Lake Ontario Level Is Reported Rising

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—Although the level of the Niagara River remained at its normal mark on Friday, the level of Lake Ontario was rising, the harbor master's office reported. The present discharge of a plane was flowing in water of the lake off Station Island here.

Liberal Members of the Ontario House Demote House Leader W. Sinclair

Dr. Geo. A. McQuibban Will Direct Liberals in Next Session

NO STATEMENT

Liberals And Progressives Will Unite Against Conservatives

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—Prepared to join with the Progressive group in a mass attack against the Conservative government of Premier Geo. S Henry, Liberal members of the Ontario Legislature, stunned today by the leadership of Dr. George A. McQuibban, former Whip, and away from the guiding hand of W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., their former House Leader.

Meeting in caucus here Saturday, the Liberal members ousted Mr. Sinclair from the position he has held since the Provincial party leadership was assumed by Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., and appointed Dr. McQuibban in his place.

No official statement came from the caucus room. But leaders of Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Sinclair to come to an agreement on policy was reported to be the reason for Mr. Sinclair's demotion. The trouble was of long standing, and so fatal since before the House Leader had succeeded in the course of nature, in the back benches if he did not "fall into line" with the Provincial leader.

Dr. McQuibban and Harry C. Nixon, leader of the Progressive group of five, will co-operate in the coming session of the Ontario House, a general election. Mr. Nixon pledged his support in a statement yesterday.

So far as I am concerned there will be the closest harmony and co-operation from the Progressive group he declared.

INCOME OF U.S. JUMPSUPWARD

Income of Over 62 Millions And Cost of Collecting Less

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Income of the United States increased upward some $62,110,181 during the 1933 fiscal year, and while more it cost the government less to collect it.

Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, also disclosed today in his annual report to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau that although 2,762 beer and wine were legal only for a small part of the fiscal year, collections for them brought in $35,149,492 and the tax $30,946.

With income taxes carrying the bulk of the load, Helvering estimated total revenue for the calendar year at $1,619,839,224 as compared with $1,557,729,042 the year before.

Further it cost the government $1.85 to collect each $100 of revenue for the year. That was a decrease per $100 than it cost the previous year.

Bees Able to Think and Communicate Thoughts to Bee Friends Discovered

Toronto, Jan. 8. — Bees seem to possess a great deal of ingenuity and seem able to think and to communicate their thoughts to their bee friends, stated Dr. Frank E. Lutz of the American Museum of natural history, New York, when describing to the Royal Canadian Institute here a series of experiments he had conducted to test insect "intelligence".

For example, Dr. Lutz said he placed sugar water in a cage, entrance to which was blocked at certain times. He used a sloping tray floor which easily pushed up when a bee was finding its way out but which refused to open when the same method was used from the inside. But shrewd little bees sometimes watched till there were several were coming out and then slid in while the door was still up. Some bees found that by turning a somersault they could lift the trap door and roll in upside down.

He revealed experiments which he had carried out proved that a cockroach which lives in dark places, is shocked often enough by electricity to always refrain from entering them preferring to remain in the light, thereby changing habits of long centuries.

F. P. BENJAMIN DIES AGED 86

Son of Late Hon. George Benjamin, Was Born in City

Late Sunday evening one of this city's most honorable and esteemed residents passed away at his late residence 96 Bridge St. East, in the person of Fred Phillip Benjamin. The late Mr. Benjamin was a member of one of Belleville's oldest families, he was the son of the late Honourable George Benjamin, M. P. P., and his wife, Isabella Jaques. He father a hundred years ago July next, established the "Intelligencer" and the Daily Post, and at his honor the Benjamin Loyal Orange Lodge of this city was named.

The late Fred Benjamin was born in Belleville on December 14th, 1847, and was the 8th child born to his illustrious parents. On his retirement from commercial activities in 1903 he came back to Belleville to spend his declining years in the old family home.

Fred Benjamin was known throughout the Dominion in his long years of connection with the Gault Brothers, wholesale dry goods house and Canada Cotton in Ottawa for a number of years as they flew from one industry and then went to Montreal as its European buyer, and for a number of years in Hamilton as manager of the Gault Brothers firm there. He retired from business and came to Belleville and returned to Belleville. Especially in the later years of his connection with the corporation Mr. Benjamin he was made recipient of a life grant from his employers.

Fenian Raid Veteran

Mr. Benjamin was the last time of the Fenian Raid served at Prescott with the detachment from the old 49 Battalion of the old city of Belleville. An active interest in the progress and welfare of the local unit. His love of country manifested itself in later years when unable to serve actively he took a prominent part in the affairs and welfare of the Red Cross Society and the Patriotic Association during the Great War.

A man of many parts and a devoted churchman, and a constant attendant at the Bridge Street Church which he had been a member since childhood. The Benjamin family had held a pew in St. Thomas Church for the last hundred years by the early Benjamins. Interested by in the teachings of his church. For many years he was the Sunday School of the St. George Lodge, and was for a long time a vestry board of St. Thomas' Church. While a member of the Masonic fraternity he was a charter member of Mount Royal Lodge A.F. and A.M. of Montreal, and affiliated with The Belleville Lodge. He took the 32nd degree Mason of the Scottish Rite Masonic body. He was also made a charter member of the Quebec Commandery Knights Templar and that later became absorbed in the Toronto organization.

He ever took an active interest in sports and was a constant attendant at baseball games. He was a member of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club and after failing health prevented his active participation in the games of the club, was always present at tournaments or afternoon or evening gatherings to still manifest his interest in the pastime.

With the passing of Fred P. Benjamin, this community loses one of its most honorable citizens, a man who it was a joy and pleasure to meet; one who was ever charitable in his thoughts and actions toward his fellow men; a man whose life reflected his Christian lovableness. He cherished his friends and his friendship was sincerely cherished by them. Mr. Benjamin was a gentleman of the old school and his memory will long remain green in the hearts and thoughts of his friends.

To the brothers and sister left to mourn the loss of an upright, just and honourable brother, the sympathy of their many friend is extended.

ONLY 4 NOW OUTSIDE LAW

Wilbur Underhill, Outlaw Leader of Gang, Dies From Wounds

Oklahoma City, Jan. 8 (AP) — Wilbur Underhill, outlaw, died with 13 bullet wounds. Elusive Elmer Inman, a reputed confederate, is again behind the bars, and only four of the southwest's major criminals remain at large as "the law" continues its relentless roundup.

Underhill, co-leader of the escape of 11 prisoners from the Kansas State Penitentiary on Memorial Day 1933, and wanted for the slaying of two officers and their convict prisoner in Kansas City last June, died Sunday morning in the Central Osteopathic Hospital here.

Inman, who assumed the role of Oklahoma's No. 1 desperado when his gang chief, Matt Kines, was sentenced to life for murder, was wounded and captured at Bowlegs, Okla., Saturday. Underhill's luck slippery as an eel in the hands of the law, Inman has numerous sentences and escapes on his record.

PRINCE ALEXIS EVADES SUBPOENA SERVER

Circles California and Will Meet Wife at Reno

San Francisco, Jan. 8 (AP)—Prince Serafini Stefano Midivani was in San Francisco today on her "round-the-world honeymoon," while her Prince Alexis was hundreds of miles away.

Prince Alexis, ex-aeroplane, circled far around California, where a subpoena server awaited him, after parting last night from his $40,000 heiress bride at Reno, Nevada, and headed for Seattle.

His destination and the fact the couple have reserved quarters on the liner Tatauta Maru, sailing from here for the Orient Thursday, led Princess Midivani to report her plan to meet again at Honolulu or Far east.

"My husband left on business," the heiress to the Woolworth "Five and Ten" fortune said in explaining why the Prince flew east to Salt Lake City and north while she continued on to San Francisco in her father's palatial railroad train.

Prince Alexis denied as he transferred from one plane to another at Salt Lake City that legal matters had anything to do with his first separation from his bride since their marriage last June.

SAM RICE RELEASED AFTER 19 YRS. SERVICE

Exp.. to Hook One With Some American League Team

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Washington Senators today handed Sam Rice, veteran outfielder, his unconditional release.

Rice was with the Senators 19 seasons. From 1916 through 1930, he was a regular outfielder. Since 1930 he has been a pinch hitter and utility outfielder.

Although 42 years old, Rice said today he expected to connect with some other ball club before long. He said the release surprised him and that he had not asked for it.

Clark Griffith, Washington president, intimated the Club was in the market for a new fielder to replace Rice.

Commissioner George A. Reid today received the coveted honor for his service on the local utility board when he was elected to the chairmanship of the Hydro Radial Electric Hydro System, Mr. Reid was a strong advocate of the Hydro purchase and has served long on the board. Through the chairmanship changes, the personnel of the commission is unchanged.

Chairman Reid met at the opening of the meeting at the commission office today. Routine consideration of the services rendered by the manager and commission secretary Mr. O. H. Scott for his untiring courtesy and efficiency in the performance of his duties in connection with the office. Stating we have very reason to be proud of our plant and I would ask the manager to convey to the employees thanks and to pass them on to his office staff," Mr. Reid commented.

Commissioner Geo. Tice Mayor noted the pleasant meetings and the character of the business of the year but also spoke regarding the appreciation of the work of the manager and staff in the construction of the Hydro affairs. "I now take pleasure in proposing that resolutions be passed, December 31st, 1934," the Mayor moved, seconded by Chairman H. Duff.

Remarks

Assuming the chair, Mr. Reid stated that he appreciated the vote of his fellow commissioners. "I was looked forward to this position and am glad to be in Belleville to take over the plant. Now I have been named to the chairmanship, I will not say I have not desired it, but I have not sought it. I have filled every position that the city can give me. As to you Commissioners, I thank you for the honor set in council when you were mayor and we have enjoyed our duties together under your commissioner-ship," Mr. Reid added. He thanked the two commissioners, the manager and the staff of the Hydro for the happy meetings of the past year. He also thanked the office manager and staff courteous and efficient and wished to express his thanks to the Hydro engineers for the remembrances sent to Mrs. Reid and himself in the time of illness of an accident. "I hope she may soon be home. I have been well myself, thank you personally," the chairman added.

Looking into the future the new chairman predicted a bright economy as had characterized past meetings and congratulated the board at rest for the year. The number of matters which had been handled during the Dominion Exhibition, 214 St. Lawrence Street during the Exhibition were read and fyled.

New Rate For Fairs

Total rebates of $232.02 will be allowed to Belleville consumers as a result of a decision of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. These include voted today. Liberal Association, $14.51; Kiwanis Club $42.12, St. Agnes' School $3.33, St. Michael's School $4.44, Belleville Fair $153.40, and some small amounts.

These rebates were sanctioned by a recent decision of the Ontario Hydro Commission, fixing new rates for fall fairs, circuses and agricultural exhibitions. The ruling is as follows:

"For some time there has been a need for a rate for light and power service for fall fairs, circuses and special agricultural conferences in

Search for Film Career by Society Girl is Stolen from Secrecy

Hollywood, Jan. 8 (AP)—The search for a film career by another society girl, Virginia Peine Lehmann, wife of Edward J. Lehmann, Jr., Chicago millionaire, and department store owner, was stolen from secrecy today.

"I've done everything possible to conceal my identity, even to staying home nights," said the striking young woman, daughter of Adolphus Peine, wealthy Chicagoan. "I wanted to make good on my own in pictures.

"I wanted to become a screen actress while I was attending a girls' school at Cooperstown, N.Y. My marriage prevented this ambition. Now that Mr. Lehmann and I are separated I felt free to come here.

"The serious about this work and want a career. If I fail, I can always look back at this experience as one of the most interesting of my life."

MANY INNOVATIONS ON ALL 1934 MODELS

One High Priced Car Can Have Whole Top Vanish

New York, Jan. 8 (AP)—Besides the new streamlined cars, designers, interior decorators, and accessory manufacturers are showing a lot of innovations in the1934 Auto Show this week.

If there's a small boy in your family who likes to ride with his head out of the window, roll down the first half of the split window, adopted by one manufacturer.

And if the bobs family likes fresh air, the whole window can be rolled down.

On the sport fire-passenger convertible phaeton, of a high-priced line, the whole top vanishes into the rear deck of the body, which has been hinged and counterbalanced to receive it.

WORLD PEACE IS MENACED

Greatest Since Close of War Says Leaders of Parties

Ottawa, Jan. 8 (CP)—World peace is menaced today as at no time since the close of the Great War, according to a joint statement issued last night by leaders of the three major political parties in Canada.

In the statement, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mac. Kenzie King, and J. S. Woodsworth asserted that "peace cannot be maintained without knowledge and consciousness on the part of democratic peoples." Canadians should study the contribution which Canada can make to ensure world peace.

The statement was issued in connection with a study project which the recently reconstituted League of Nations' Society of Canada will undertake. Its first activities directed by a confession to the double killing was placed in evidence at the hearing, but Sampson repudiated it. It was then said Mr. Ellis as Magistrate Ian Ross ordered his committal.

Serge Stavisky Shoots Self after Discovery of Hideout by the Police

Alleged to Have Swindled French Republic Out of 40 Millions

2 WEEKS SEARCH

Living in Room of Villa at Foothills of The Alps

Chamonix, France, Jan. 8 (AP)— Serge "Stanley" Stavisky, alleged to have swindled the French public of $40,000,000, committed suicide today when police forced him after a two weeks' search.

He was living alone in one room of a villa at the foothills of the French Alps.

The secret service traced him there and its agents entered the unbesieged home. No signs of life had been seen about it.

The room, later found to be the only heated quarter in the villa, was found locked. The agents knocked at the door. There was no answer. Convinced that Handsome Alex must be inside, they battered down the door.

Stavisky was there. As the police burst into his hiding place he placed a gun to his head and fired. He died at once.

Premier Joseph Is Search

So ended a search conducted on a worldwide scale by the French government ordered by Premier Camille Chautemps himself.

The villa had been rented for Stavisky's use by Dr. Raoul Alexandre.

Stavisky's friends long had said that he was prepared to kill himself if captured. They said he carried a dose of poison with him constantly as well as pearls valued at one million dollars.

Dr. Alexandre, who vanished from the Claridges Hotel on the Champs Elysees with their two children on the day after her husband fled, had been located living in a small apartment within a quarter of a mile of the hotel under her maiden name.

IS NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND
"Man Can Make New Start" Says Rev. Dr. J. Semple

"It is never too late to make a new start," said Rev. J. Semple, pastor of the congregation of Bridge Street United Church last evening.

Can a man make a new start?" he questioned, stating that opinions here are divided in opinion. Some say that anything is possible. Psychologists say that, "You cannot make a new start."

What are the obstacles? Inheritance is considered one. Certain characteristics are inherited from early. One may have inherited undesirable characteristics. One should draw rational fears of the past.

"Habits are another obstacle," he contended. Getting criticism is a bad habit. One must build a new set of habits. Habits are the old ones worn.

Dr. Semple said that unfriendly environments places a restriction upon a new start in life. He referred to the story of the sycamore tree as an illustration. He said that one is never too old to begin again.

"Obstacles are all applicable to the realm of divine encouragement," he continued. Some who try to make a new start have suffered owing to differences in temperament. But effort is the price of fine views of the heart of God. His love is greater than the measure of man's mind. It is unfathomable. It gives man a chance to change."

"Can a man make a new start?" repeated Rev. Semple.

"By the Grace of God—yes", he answered.

He concluded with the text "Behold I make all things new."

First Class of Candidates Confirmed at St. John's

Bishop Lyons 'Lays Hands on' Candidates From Three Stations

MESSAGE OF JOY

First Century Message That Which World Cries Out For Today

Rite of confirmation or the laying on of hands took place on Sunday morning in the Herchimer Avenue mission of the Church of England known as St. John's, His Lordship the Right Rev. Dr. John Lyons, Bishop of Hamilton officiating. It was a happy occasion for his lordship as among the large number who comprised the congregation were those whom as a former vicar of St. Thomas Church at Bellerville he had known for years. It was also fitting as being the first confirmation service ever held within the new mission, and the first class of candidates which the Rev. R. Gerald Graham incumbent had presented for confirmation. The candidates were from the three congregations of St. John's, Herchimer Avenue, of Trinity at Cannifton, and of the Good Shepherd at Rural Island.

The large attendance was a tribute to the splendid pastoral work of Mr. Graham. Despite conditions of roads which made travel difficult, the members of the three congregations came long distances to attend the service, and bring their children and others to be confirmed. Rev. Mr. Graham took the service.

Spell of Christmas

"We are not yet out from under the spell of Christmas," Bishop said the bishop opening his sermon. "Full of romance and the spirit of goodfellowship it still lingers. Nevertheless we are facing a new year, the people are filled with expectations and we have hopes which we cherish. Thoughts which linger in our hearts from Christmas festival, we call our hopes."

Could there be a message of greater assurance, a message of greater joy, because the message was to all ages, the very age in which we live today, than the Christmas message? he asked. It is a message of joy that there was born a Child who is Christ our Lord.

To some it may seem that the message does not seem to fit in with the gloom in which this depressing problems. Yet take all the benign influences which emanate from Christianity out of the world today and what would we have? Despite conditions of roads which made travel difficult, the members of the three congregations came long distances to attend the service, and bring their children and others to be confirmed. Rev. Mr. Graham took the service.

Message of First Century

"So the message of the first century is the message this world cries out for today, a message of confidence. They can accept His message and live in His light, and they can find in the year we shall be a happier people."

The bishop addressing the candidates said that he confirmed congratulated Rev. Mr. Graham, on the splendid work he was doing in progress. The candidates he said were to be congratulated on the start of more real service to the church to which they belong.

"We cannot have privileges without responsibilities," his lordship remarked, "that is one of the troubles of today. We have enjoyed the privileges but we have not very but we were not serious. The responsibilities which go with them our responsibilities seriously. You have received the gift of the Holy Spirit, so that you may be strength-ened."

"Don't allow yourselves to be discouraged at times when it does not always allow your eyes to see the ground. That is why we should see that the will help up out of the selfish spirit, and we shall find others and not occur his. If we look up we shall find help."

The bishop pointed out that there may be things which seem impossible but there are times when it is advisable to venture out on a work of faith, though we may be condemned have their place.

The candidates were urged not to forget worship and prayer without the privileges for the great central fact of the Holy Communion.

"To give me great pleasure to come to this mission and to see the progress which you are making. Be in your services and worship also a place of worship. While the Church is the place of playing its part in the social life of the community, the church itself should be the House of God standing as a witness to the community. You may go down the road past the door of the church, you may never darken its door but the very fact that it is here with the cross upon it, shows the world of men what you are trying to do."

The sermon preached at Canadian station on Sunday evening of prevailing conditions, joy is related today through the Christmas message.

"Joy is there so much unhappiness, and discontent? I see it that in fellow Christians we present the appalling world situation, we see the social evil, the needs of men and the suffering and it is our sense of our inadequacy as men and women to meet that need which makes for the feeling of our unhappiness. We do know the first century Christianity with realism in making an impression society, those days were appalling and people wondered then how they were going to carry on, but that little church moved forward, because these men and women had the vision of the Christ. Some had seen Him, others had learned of Him. They were filled and of an experience of fellowship with Him. And it has always been so in the world in making an impression society. So it is today the need. Let us be filled with the spirit of Jesus, with a personal experience of Christ, and then if we are so filled, power will be influenced by us. The church needs to-day more if you men members do not do it. The church may be reliant but if you do not you are failing in your duty to influence the world.

"Let us leave with you the Christmas message. Men are all at sea in the world there is distrust. Self-confidence must be built up again in individuals.

NEW BRANCH IS FORMED

Western Ontario Organize Branch of A.A.U. of C.

Branford, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)—A new branch was within the folds of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada today, headed by Professor N. O. Starr of the University of Western Ontario, London. At a weekend meeting here attended by delegates from Windsor, London, Hamilton and Sarnia districts the new branch was formed and the officers elected.

J. H. Crocker, president of the A.A.U., who called the meeting, declared the new body had obtained control of their athletics and would cling to that control. "Never again shall we put ourselves in the hands of Toronto," he declared.

Formation of an Ontario Track and Field Association was decided upon after several delegates had announced their approval of such a step.

The Central and Ottawa Valley branches proposed such an organization in a resolution which met the meeting's approval.

W. H. Childs of Hamilton, was chosen vice-president; W. H. Gilliard of Hamilton, secretary, and Gordon Young of London, secretary. Organization meetings to be held within the various zones will select the zone vice-presidents.

Letters to the Editor

Camp 435
Kaladar, Ont.,
Jan 6th, 1934

Dear Editor:

I would be very pleased if you could spare me a small place in your valuable paper to express thanks to your paper and the many thoughtful people, who have sent papers and magazines to the boys in camp.

They are a cheery gift and always well read.

I hope they will continue to pour in in the future. May I take the opportunity to wish the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer and staff and their families a happy and prosperous New Year. So Long.

SPRING'S HARBINGER TRILLS FIRST ARIA

While straggling shafts of sunlight pierced the low clouds, and rivulets of water ran from slush covered walks, in the Antrim-Asa weather of Monday, a robin red breast balanced on the limb of a maple on lowey Coleman street in plain view of workers on their way to lunch. It was reported that a resident of the street had frequently heard the bird trill a few bars of his welcome song earlier in the day. The robin would remain passed over the city early in the morning.

TRENTON CHAPTER O. E. S. OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED

Trenton, Jan. 8 (Special) — The installation of officers took place for the Order of Eastern Star, Trenton Chapter, No. 118, last week. There was a large representation present from the Bellerville chapter as well as from other chapters in the district.

The installation ceremony took place in the chapter Rooms on Front Street, with Mrs. Anna Boyd, Past Worthy Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star of Ontario, in charge of the installing officer.

Worthy Patron-elect, Mr. Russell Embury was not present owing to illness, thus necessitating the installation of the officer to take place at some future time.

During the ceremony the Grand Soloist, Dr. E. A. McQuade, and the Grand Pianist, Miss Singer, provided instrumental and vocal music.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Anna Boyd, the Past Worthy Grand Matron; Mrs. Singer, Grand Pianist and Dr. E. A. McQuade, Grand Soloist and Mrs. Lucy Gray, the Grand Marshal.

A presentation was made to Mrs. Verda Macdonald, retiring Worthy Matron, with a beautiful silver basket on behalf of her officers, the presentation being made by Mrs. Lulu Twiddy, Worthy Matron; Mrs. Vera Payne, Past Worthy Matron, presented Mrs. Verda Macdonald with the jewel emblematic of her office as Past Worthy Matron, in place of the jewel to Past Worthy Patron, Mr. E. Bellgrim, will take place later, owing to his absence.

Speeches were also given by Past Worthy Matrons and the Past Worthy Patrons of the visiting Chapters. Mrs. Irene Lapp, Past Matron of the Bellerville Chapter No. 35, and the Minerva Chapter, Belleville. The serving of a delectable luncheon and an hour's dancing ended an enjoyable evening.

Seymour—Taft

A marriage of interest to Trentonians was performed in Oshawa on Saturday, December 30 at 4 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Taft, Oshawa, formerly of Trenton, announce the marriage of Alexander Seymour, son of Mrs. John and the late Mr. Seymour, of Bowmanville. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Canton of Knox Church, Simcoe United Church, Oshawa. The bride wore a gown of brown transparent velvet with hat, shoes and gloves matching. Miss Helen Taft of Trenton, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and wore a blue crepe gown with gray accessories. Mr. Frank Hurst acted as groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Seymour will reside in Bowmanville.

Master Harold Fairman

After an illness of three months Harold Fairman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo. G. Fairman, passed away at the residence of his parents on King street on Saturday. Harold Fairman was born in Trenton ten years ago and until his illness he attended Dufferin street public school where he was a favorite with both the teaching staff and his playmates. He was also a member of King Street United Church Sunday School. Besides his sorrowing parents, two sisters, Evelyn and Shirley and three brothers, Lloyd, Gordon and Ronald survive. Harold Fairman, well known Canadian National engineer, is a grandfather.

Liberal Members of the Ontario House Demote House Leader W. Sinclair

"The members of the Legislature," said Mr. Hepburn, "exercised their right to select their own House Leader. Dr. McQuibban was elected. Dr. McQuibban. . . I can assure you we are the closest of friends and are going separate to the fullest extent and I think work well together."

Expect Statement

Mr. Sinclair is expected to issue a statement in a few days, outlining his relations with the party and Mr. Hepburn. Shortly after the caucus ended Saturday, he walked out, curtly. "I've been thrown out, that's all," he said. "I have been a Liberal since 1886, the first vote I ever polled being for Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The trouble apparently was that I am neutral politically on the issue of a hyphenated name. I have stood by the Liberal party and by the word of the Scripture I have 'fought the beasts of Ephesus'," he said. "My instructions were that I carry on the House leadership and I did so to the best of my ability."

Since 1921, when Mr. Hepburn had declined to lead Liberals in the House rested entirely on Mr. Sinclair, he received no formal notification from the Provincial Leader, said Mr. Sinclair. In February of that year, he had said Mr. Hepburn was to attend a caucus, and the latter had replied: "In view of the fact that I am not an elected member of the Ontario Legislature, I prefer not to make any appearance at the Parliament Buildings during the session. Such a visit would, I believe, be used by our opponents to infer dual control, and I wish it understood that the leadership in the House rests entirely as at present."

"I do not wish to be a party to any action that would cause the slightest embarrassment to you or to any Liberal member in the Legislature and I am sure that you, as House Leader, will agree with me and the members themselves reciprocate that feeling."

Members of the group of 15 in the Legislature who were present at Saturday's caucus were: Mr. Sinclair, Bay, South; Bruce; W. H. Bragg, Durham; T. F. Reid, Hamilton East; Rev. Peter Bryce, Rev. Peter Brew; S. C. Tweed, North Waterloo, J. Thomson were; Mr. Sinclair; Dr. McQuibban; T. A. Blake-lock, Hastings, William Newman, Victoria; Paul Munro, South Wellington; Dr. W. J. Simpson, Centre Simcoe; C. A. Nesbitt, North Huron; J. A. Sangster, Glengarry; N. O. Hipel, South Waterloo, and H. A. Baxter, South Oxford.

New Leader Able Speaker

The new House Leader was first elected to the Legislature in 1919 and re-elected in 1929. He is a physician and surgeon, practising at Alma, Ont. He is an able speaker, and on several occasions has strongly attacked affairs of the late Sir Hydro Electric Power Commission.

Mr. Sinclair was first elected in 1911 and in 1923 was elected Party Leader. He stood aside when Ferguson the government of E. C. Drury in the House, but shortly after assuming the leadership he declared he would fight and would stand alone and, though prepared to welcome any former Progressives into its fold, would make no arrangements for mergers with that party. He had stuck to this policy.

The ousted leader has no intention of withdrawing from politics, or from the Legislature, he declared. He plans to again contest the riding of South Ontario in the coming campaign.

ACCLAIMED BY MEDICAL BOARD

Develops Palinaesthesia to Revive Those Given Too Much Ether

Joblin, Mo., Jan. 8.—Miss Pearl L. Moorman, 34, a native of the Ozark county, was acclaimed by the medical world today after a long struggle in developing palinaesthesia, a method of quickly reviving a person from an unconscious state caused by an overdose of an anaesthetic, drowning, suffocation or acute alcoholism.

Miss Moorman conceived the idea of an intravenous stimulant to be used when respiration had ceased but heartbeat was still present.

"I knew that hydrochloric acid when combined with carbonates, produces carbon dioxide gas," she said, "and that animals in the last state of asphyxiation was prone to shift to the alkaline side. I decided that a minute quantity of hydrochloric acid injected into the veins might produce the desired result. The laboratory tests at first seemed almost silly.

"I tried it first on a guinea pig that I had given too much ether. The effect was instantaneous. What I meant to do by it became conscious right away."

The method, since has been used with success on a human being, according to a recent announcement of officials of the American Association for the advancement of science in which praise was accorded Miss Moorman, born in Monett, Mo. She now is director of the health branch of the Duncan laboratories.

40 Run-Down People Benefit In Test at Hospital

Recently at a leading Canadian hospital a scientific test was made of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in restoring energy and the strength to a group of 40 students who, studying hard for examinations, were more or less run-down in health. These volunteer patients were blood-tested before and after a five weeks' treatment with this medicine.

The first blood test showed these patients—male and female—had a condition known as "low blood count." Their blood was deficient in haemoglobin and red blood corpuscles. They had vital blood elements, and they alone, carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs and nourishment from your food to every part of the body. Naturally, if your blood is below normal in these, your health is below normal.

Many people have a 'low' blood count without knowing it. If you are always tired, listless, exhausted and breathless on exertion, nervous, pale, lack appetite, the chances are your blood count is low.

If these are your symptoms, start taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once like these 40 "hospital-tested" patients. Because, when their blood was tested again, after a five weeks' treatment with this medicine, they showed splendid increases in their blood count, equal to as much as 22 per cent. and, with it, a return of energy, vigor and joy in living."

Start the treatment at once. You are taking no chances. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are hospital-tested. Children and young people in many cases need this proven remedy as much as adults. Your druggist can supply you—50c. a package.

Information on these 40 patients, certified by the hospital authorities, are on file.

Could Hardly Do Her Housework

She Suffered So From Her Kidneys

"I strongly recommend Doddy's Kidney Pills for kidney troubles and backache," writes Mrs. Orval Tremblay, 1649 Henri-Julien, Montreal, P.Q. "I suffered so much with my kidneys I could hardly do my housework. I gave Doddy's Kidney Pills a trial and after taking the first box I felt like a new woman. So grateful am I for the experience of others. Act now and banish your backache by taking it."

OBITUARY

MRS. O. WINSOR FOSTER

The death occurred Sunday afternoon at her late residence in the third concession of Hallowell of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Foster, beloved wife of O. Winsor Foster. The deceased was born at Zion's Hill seventy-four years ago, the daughter of the late William C. and Minerva (Ketcheson) Sills and has resided in Hallowell for the past thirty-three years. She was a member of the Bloomfield United Church, and was prominently identified with and beloved by a large circle of friends throughout the countryside; their sympathy goes to those left to mourn her loss.

Surviving immediately are the husband, four sons, Herbert S. of Bloomfield East, George at Moira, and Harry and Theodore of the third concession of Hallowell; two daughters, Mrs. Harold Huff of Bloomfield Pleasant, and Miss Mabel, registered nurse, at home; and one brother, William C. Sills of Winnipeg. A daughter, Mrs. John McCullough, predeceased.

ALLAN C. MOTT

Widely known throughout the province, Allan Curtis Mott, for 40 years a resident of this city and formerly of Picton, passed away Sunday afternoon at his late residence, West College street, following a lengthy illness. The deceased was the son of the late Alfaxa Ward Smith (Pratt) Mott and was born at Hay Bay, Dorset, 78 years ago. He was a retired commercial traveller and previous to following that avocation had been connected with the hotel business for many years. Mr. Mott had a host of friends and was known by the travelling public across the continent. Ever genial and highly regarded he will be missed by host of friends in Belleville and elsewhere; their sympathy goes to those bereaved in this passing. Mr. Mott was a member of the United Church.

Immediately surviving are the widow, previous to marriage Miss Harriett Jane Cook; one son, Charles, city engineer of Belleville; two daughters, Mrs. Byron Peer of Chatham, and Miss Hazel at home; one sister, Mrs. Howard Myers of Moreweod.

The remains are resting at the Tickell and Bronoe Funeral Home, 60 Victoria Avenue until the time of the funeral Tuesday afternoon.

NORMAN H. MITCHELL

Marmora, Jan. 8.—At his residence in Belleville where with his wife he was spending the winter, Norman Henry Mitchell passed away to rest at two o'clock on Thursday last in the early forty. Deceased had not been in robust health for several years but he bravely put up a fight for recovery. He suffered a weak spell, however, on Wednesday evening from which he failed to rally. In his death Marmora suffers the loss of a much respected resident. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mitchell of Millbrook. He came to Marmora about twenty years ago and was employed as shoemaker by John H. Barrie. He enlisted with the 155th battalion in which he was attached as battalion shoemaker with rank of sergeant. When his battalion was sbeghed in England, the late Mr. Mitchell was transferred to the Eastern Ontario Regimental Depot at Kingston where he continued to follow his profession.

Some thirteen years ago he married Dorothy daughter of the late O. R. and Mrs. Jones of Marmora who survives him. After a residence of Toronto of some years, he returned to Marmora where he did some repair business which he conducted until a year ago.

Besides his widow, he is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. W. Cheesman of Millbrook and Mrs. Mitchell of Toronto. He was a member of the United Church. His membership in music was evidenced in his membership in Marmora Community Band.

The remains were conveyed to the home of O. R. Jones on Saturday evening from where the funeral took place on Sunday afternoon being taken from the residence of Mrs. Martha Jones, Bunstall street, at 2.30 o'clock to St. Andrew's and St. Andrew's United Church for service. Interment was made in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

WATER PIPES LAID DEEP TO PROTECT THEM FROM FROST

Daily Inspection Given Hydrants in Cold Weather

Fifteen years ago a cold snap such as experienced in this district during the past week or so would leave a trail of water and ruptured water pipes in homes from Yeomans street to Herchimer avenue. Each city block had scores of the burst pipes through which no water trickled, and dozens of extra men hired by the city waterworks department to thaw the frozen services were unable to cope with the demands made by irate householders to "do something".

But as the years pass, man has learned to lay pipe deep enough that the coldest effort nature has to offer, is, the waterworks department of the city this is particularly true. Fifteen years ago water mains were laid to homes with the minimum of effort, and often less than two feet below ground. Now a five foot depth is the average for your water service, and in many cases where conditions permit, they are placed considerably deeper. Thirty below zero weather now may produce a few frozen pipes, but in the main the heaviest frost does little to interrupt the service. Generally the cases which do freeze are old services, installed many years ago.

Have No Protection

One of the factors which leads to the freezing of pipes when the mercury starts to descend nowadays is that that little or no snow is left on the streets and roads to protect the pipes from frost. In the old days man simply let the snow stay. It always goes anyway, and was not inconvenient to the citizenry at large, but with the coming of the motor car, city engineers have had their work cut out to dispose of the snow as it fell. Snow is left in lieu of the snow and the frost sinks steadily deeper, often to a depth of five feet or more below the cleared paved roads. In Belleville, however it was explained by the manager of the local waterworks system, that little if any concealment from this at the mains are well below the frost line.

In the newer cities and towns in the north, newer methods of laying water pipes has been the order for some time. Specifications now call for the burying of water pipes not less than eight feet below the surface. Even when the mercury drops to forty and fifty below, common temperatures for the north, the pipes, will protected, are safe.

Hydrants have been the chief source of the local waterworks department in the past. Daily and weekly inspections are needed to ensure that they are in readiness for operation at the first outbreak of fire. Follow closely the construction of water pipes in the basements of homes where the pipes have been laid in the solid planks, instead of the rocks of the foundation, often, and then running above ground in the cold weather. This is an open invitation for Jack Frost to lay a chilly hand on the pipes, but with this system the city waterworks department is not concerned. They protect the service only to the lot line. It has been a thoroughly and thoroughly explained time after time, and often in the dead of night by employees of the department who have been routed from their midnight sleep by an anxious householder who has observed the tap but found no water running therefrom.

READJUSTS FINLAND'S DEBT

New York, Jan. 8 (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune says in a Washington dispatch that President Roosevelt has approved negotiations now almost completed, looking toward a readjustment of Finland's $7,000,000 war debt to the United States. The President, says the dispatch, will ask the next Congress to make a special case of Finland, which is the only debtor nation to have made its full payments under existing arrangements.

CATCH COLD EASILY?

DON'T be that "worst pest of all"—the person who suffers from colds, who passes germs on to friends or family. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery tones up the stomach and the blood so that the entire system feels the beneficial effect. Mrs. William Rider of 221 King William St., Hamilton, Ont., said: "My health failed about six years ago. I had no appetite, lost weight and vitality, my nerves were poor, I caught cold easily, suffered from a bad cough, a lot of dizziness—and my blood became poor and red raw. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and the Pellets and after using them for six months I took two more and gained in weight. I have had no dizziness and better than ever." NEW CABINET MAY BE FORMED

Outcome of Bayonne Bank Scandal in France

Paris, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Formation of a new French cabinet was discussed as a strong possibility today with the government meeting urgently to protect itself against overthrow in the storm growing out of the 240,000,000 Bayonne Bank scandal.

In this connection, it was said unofficially that Edouard Herriot might be called as Minister of Foreign Affairs.

In any event, government leaders were said to have agreed that grapping Colonial Secretary Albert Dalimier was essential—both give him a big hand to defend himself against allegations growing out of the collapse of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop and to strengthen the government's defenses against opposition in parliament.

With many leaders differing over the wisdom of scrapping M. Dalimier's resignation, the cabinet gathered today for a session at which a final decision was expected.

The Minister was said by police to have been quoted in a circular issued by the municipal pawnshop, banned by Jean Bienvenu, founder of the Bayonne Institution, which was the municipal pawnshop, as advising financial institutions they could legally invest in such securities.

It was learned that should the cabinet decide for the joint resignation of its membership, President Albert Lebrun would immediately ask Premier Camille Chautemps either to simply replace Dalidier or make other modifications to strengthen the government.

Meanwhile Leguenieh, member of the Chamber of Deputies, M. Garat, head of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop and Mayor of the city, was held in jail charged under several separate counts with complicity in the issuance of an estimated 500,000,000 francs (approximately $30,650,000) of fraudulent bonds.

BLUE-BLOOD SUES

London's Mayfair set has just learned that the Duke of Westminster has sued his own niece, Lady Sibell Lygon, for damages. Lady Lygon, 26, daughter of the Earl of Beauchamp, is owner, editor and contributor of the Oxford and Cambridge magazine and the suit of her uncle is his retaliation to her chiding of him for spending so much of his tremendous income in France, which chiding appeared in the Christmas number of the magazine. The Duke of Westminster is one of England's wealthiest land owners. He owns 30,000 acres in Great Britain, not including a large Scottish estate, and 600 acres in London proper. He is 59, has been married thrice, and was a grandfather at 44. He fought with distinction in South Africa, and in the world war. He was divorced by his first two wives, and the glaring headlines which characterized both cases are said to be the reason why he has never entered court society. It is shown, however, that he never cared for it. Lady Sibell is a Socialist, and a former sweetheart of Ramsay MacDonald, Socialist premier. despite which her blood is the bluest of the blue.

Large Posse Search Countryside For Missing Man

Blenheim, Ont., Jan. 8. — Search for 80-year-old John Faulls was resumed here today after it was presumed for his safety as it is believed he spent the night in the open.

All last evening a posse of twenty scoured the surrounding district for the aged man who left his son's home yesterday morning and failed to return.

Member of the Orkney Islands, Mr. Faulls had lived for some time in Chatham and after his arrival in this country and it is thought probable he might have left for that place, as he had expressed a wish to return there.

He came here to live with his son five years ago.

HON. J. TESSIER DIES IN QUEBEC

Member of Senate For 30 Years And in Public Life 50

Quebec, Jan. 8 (CP)—In the city where he was born, Hon. Jules Tessier, member of the Red Chamber for 30 years and in public life for more than 50, died at rest today. The veteran Quebec member of the Senate died in Montreal Saturday in his 82nd year and his body was brought here last night. He will be buried Wednesday.

A serious operation last Tuesday proved the last battle for the aged Senator and he died at the Hotel Dieu Hospital. He was the former Francoise Mathilde Elliot Barnard, and other members of the family survive.

His entry into public life was made in 1886 when he was elected for the Quebec Legislature as well as Liberal member for Portneuf which post he held for 14 years, he succeeded Pertneuf in the Legislature and his career in the Senate followed by his appointment as Speaker, in 1897 which post he occupied until 1930, in which year he announced to the Senate.

He was born in Quebec in 1852 and was educated at the Quebec Seminary, at St. Mary's College, Montreal, and Laval University. His father was Hon. Jules C. Tessier, Minister of the Court of Queen's Bench, and he was called to Quebec's Councellor by 1900 and built up an extensive law practice. He was formerly editor for many years of the newspaper "Le Clarion."

AUTOPSIES TO BE RELEASED

Matron Admits Placing Tablets in Bathing Water

Windsor, Jan. 8. — Investigation conducted by the Windsor Children's Aid Society Shelter, adjourned Friday, was reopened today with the return of Miss Minnie Olive Strang, assistant matron, to the witness stand.

She told Miss Strang, whose pister Magdalene was matron at the institution, admitted she had placed tablets of bichloride of mercury in water in which children were bathed. She said she did not know the strength of the tablets and did not know if two children, Buddy Stevens, three, and Marie Godsell Pearie, five, who died last year, were bathed in water containing the mercury bichloride solution.

Bodies of both children have been exhumed and autopsies performed. Results of the autopsies will be made public some time during this week,

HONORS LIST

Honors which have come from His Majesty to members of the Canadian judiciary and thirty-three women were of the kind which aroused ofly the most favorable comment. This was to be expected in view of the fact that none of the honors were hereditary and have been given for service to the Bar and to mankind.

The first honors list with the large number of women honored was something new.

What Canada has been aiming at seems to be to prevent the creation of an aristocracy of title and the over-doing of honors as this is a democratic country.

Brockville Recorder and Times favors a limited honors list. Men of standing in the judiciary, in education, in the arts and sciences, even in public life, are deserving of such recognition which His Majesty feels impelled to give them, provided the practice is not over-done as it once was."

VOTERS WHO DO NOT VOTE

The usual consideration is given in the press at this season to the question of voters who do not vote. Once each year the municipalities have an opportunity to learn how small a percentage of the people really take an interest in civics.

It is doubtful if there can be anything to stimulate a very much larger vote than is usually registered. A certain percentage of the electorate apparently has no desire to vote and is little interested, following the foolish reasoning that one vote more would not make any difference. In some cases it would not-but in many it would make a considerable difference. One thing is certain—that if persons felt the value of the vote, something like a seventy-five per cent. vote would come out instead of the small number of today.

But, the fact that the average is about the same year after year shows that under the present system little chance is possible of a greater vote.

There is the method of forced voting under penalty of loss of franchise for a period of time. This would work out but is difficult to state as there has been no experience of the kind hereabouts. Would the forced voters votes do anything? Would they divide as others do or would they mean bringing into the lists men of other opinions and greater or smaller abilities? What is to prevent a person who does not care to vote from going into the polls and spoiling a ballot, to spite the law?

Perhaps the delinquent vote is a vote which would be a real drag on progress. Or would it mean that the better men were assured of stronger support and the more efficient men might have a greater chance? Who knows? One hundred per cent. elections are unknown.

Possibly the comparatively small vote which is registered today in municipal and political fields is as perfect as the franchise can be. Most of those who do vote are really interested, even if a percentage of them are strongly partisan.

It is disappointing to those who love democracy to find that so many of those who would benefit themselves and the municipality by an all-inclusive vote fail to show the slightest interest. Such privilege has been won over the centuries and the people take no interest. Probably it means that the political and economic solution of the people must be carried to a stage much higher than it is today.

But today, many never have a thought of voting, others are restrained by obstacles which, prevent their use of ballot, others by personal view and because they do not care for candidates do not vote. But the great bulk who do not vote, just depend on others to vote and as for themselves do not care. It would be an interesting piece of information to know how many of those who fail to vote criticize the administration.

OTHER STERILIZATION CAMPAIGNS

The German Government's sterilization program seems to be slowing up. The first concession was made when Catholic patients were exempted from proposed surgical treatment if placed under institutional care. It is now announced that this rule holds for inmates of all institutions in the Reich. They are estimated at 280,000 out of a total unfit population of 400,000.

Hesitancy in this matter is in sharp contrast with the Nazi regime's earlier sterilization campaigns. One need only think of the prompt way in which freedom of thought and speech has been sterilized of the way in which the elementary civic liberties have been sterilized; of the wholesale manner in which Marxist books were sterilized by being passed through the fire. Or see how the German government managed to sterilize the sympathies of the outside world for Germany. Or, again, see how Herr Schacht has been sterilizing German government bonds held by foreigners.—New York Times.

We are only vulnerable and ridiculous through our pretensions.—Mad. de Girardin.

SONG OF REST

At last the tides of twilight
Engulf the dark hill's crest,
At last the first star-candle
Flares palely in the west.
The day was made for labor
And night was made for rest;
Now, done with eager strivings,
The night seems best.

O, sweet those flying hours,
Bright morn and golden noon.
Those ardent, sunkissed moments
That slipped away so soon;
But sweeter still the coming
Of little winds that croon,
And, through the swaying poplars
The crescent moon!

At last the tides of twilight
Flood up across earth's breast;
Toil's done and dreams draw nearer,
The night is best.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT delivered his momentous message to the United States Congress last week, showing without a tremor what the New Deal was costing in dollars and cents (amounting to billions of dollars), and cheerfully announcing a monster deficit in national finances for a few years to come, greater than ever has been before, billions, in fact. Roosevelt's revenue estimates did not include any payments of war debts from foreign nations, which is significant, showing that he is willing to face the future by taking care of the present at whatever cost, letting a possible future generally take care of the mountain of debt created through providing employment for the unemployed. The fact that President Roosevelt does not consider foreign debts as live assets, looks as those he can see that the United States through her association with the allies will be ahead even if she never gets another dollar foreign war debt.

GERMANY DISARMED, sez he, could be reasonably certain that no war would touch her borders. FRANCE HAS THE GUNS, Germany has none, speaking allegorically—France's guns are not even loade ', because there is no danger from a disarmed neighbor. Germany insists upon having one of the guns. If Germany gets the gun, both guns will be loaded and then there is the danger of a premature explosion and the whole world embroiled. All of the war talk seems to be originating in Germany where Dictator Hitler starts in with a war on the Jews seemingly determined to drive members of that race out of Germany,—a lawless German mob. Hitler forgets that the sinews of war come from gold, that the House of Rothschild financed most of the wars of Europe and made the final defeat of Napoleon possible.

NAPOLEON SAID that an army travelled on its stomach—and Napoleon found out that to be a sad fact in the retreat from Moscow when his depleted army crawled home through the snow, more on its stomach than on its feet. The Russians did not defeat the great Napoleon by force of arms; strategy and the terrible cold of the Russian steppes defeated Napoleon, cold and hunger, for the Russians burned their cities and foodstuffs before Napoleon could seize them.

A Swiss lady on a visit to England was taken to church where, as usual, at the morning service, the banns of marriage were read. Afterwards she surprised her hostess by saying she considered the publication of the banns an example of very bad taste on the part of the clergyman. Asked for an explanation, she said: "In my country we would never dream of saying in a public place how many times the gentleman had asked the lady. Sometimes I notice it is for the second and sometimes for the third time of asking."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 8, 1914

The hockey match between Belleville and Picton resulted in victory for Belleville by the score of 3 to 0. Many spectators were present and at times the game was fast. As a result of the game Richard Arnold is a proud man as is also Dr. Gilbert who looks after the boys. Mr. Marsh of Toronto, who is recognized as one of the best of referees, was on the job and performed his duties in a manner that gave general satisfaction. The following composed the teams: Belleville — Nurse, Pitcher, Bishop, Moore, Gosser, Picton — Hudgin, Adams, Hubbs, Burns, Hare, Sayers, Cooper.

Messrs. Charles Duckworth of Rochester, Fred Duckworth and W. Duckworth of Toronto and Harry Duckworth of Picton, have been spending a few days in the city. They are all Belleville boys.

Mr. William Weir, an old Belleville boy, has been appointed chief of police of the city of Spokane. The many friends of Mr. Weir in this city will be pleased to learn of his success.

The C.M.R.A. installed their officers for 1914 as follows: Chancellor, Rev. C. J. Killeen; President, W. Pepgin; First Vice-President, C. Kelleher; Second Vice-President, T. Callaghan; Rec. Sec., V. Huffman; Ass't Sec., J. Murphy; Fin. Sec., H. L. Ingram; Treas., R. McCloy; Marshal, R. Smith; Guard, Jas. Malyea. After the installation a sumptuous supper was served.

BE CAREFUL SO AS NOT TO BE MACHINE

Sorry World if All Persons Were Like Robots

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

In this world of ours we deal so largely with machines and statistics, and we have so much in terms of impersonal efficiency, that our own natures are likely to be influenced by them. Industrialism actually to lose sight of the human equation.

We shall continue to demand bigger and better machines, of course, because each new mechanical development spells, directly or indirectly, certain advantages to the individual and to society. Science also will keep on solving the mysteries of nature and will harness the results to the use of man.

Therefore men and women must be careful lest the gigantic discoveries and inventions they keep on making will not eventually reduced to their own undoing rather than to their benefit.

What a sorry world this would, indeed, be if we all became as hard, as mechanical, as unbending, as relentless as the luminous "robots" our own genius has devised.

Suppose that a thousand age of ours did really develop 100 per cent. efficiency in every phase of the spirit, the soul, or whatever you choose, to call that inner something that distinguishes humans from the rest of the animal kingdom, were lost as well, what would really be left of man?

No one can predict that such a state of affairs will ever come about. The world is sick of fighting itself and in a measure self-correcting somehow its mistakes. Still, we would do well to stress the human factor in life and even now, for many of us are far too intellectually machine-like for our own good.

Therefore practise kindness all you can! Never lose the opportunity of being patient and forgiving to someone who is human as you are, you. Don't let the competitive struggle make you so self-seeking and selfish that you ignore the heart that beats in every breast. Try sometimes to understand how it feels to be the worst of fools.

Be careful lest continued success intoxicate you to the point of becoming anaesthetic to the rights and aspirations of the humble and the struggling. Always take the time to think out carefully what effect your decisions, actions and relationships—whether in business or society—may have upon those over whom you wield power and influence.

And, besides, keep your own emotions alive. Don't be afraid to cry or stifle them and shut them away. Get over the notion that to exhibit feeling, such as compassion or tenderness is a sign of weakness. The strongest men have been known to weep. You don't want to become an iron man or woman anyway. Nothing of genuine personal value is ever lost in the process of progress.

In many ways your own body and mind constitute a machine. But it is a machine of the very highest order—finer than machines and that makes all the difference in the world.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Although over-feeding is rather than underfeeding of babies is the general tendency, the latter type of condition certainly exists. Such underfed infants either fail to gain weight steadily or they lose weight. The skin also is likely to be pale and the muscles flabby and the child sleeps more than usual. Such undernourishment may even occur when there is an abundant milk supply and only because the child will not nurse. The remedy, of course, is to consult a doctor.

Barber Poles of Ottawa Lose Two Games Over Weekend to Maple Leafs and the Red Wings

"Chuck" Conacher Snipes Four Points And Cude Shut Them Out

AMERKS WIN

Beat Boston 4-2 While Hawks And Rangers Play Tie

Charlie Conacher and Wilfred Cude are down today in Ottawa Senators' list of young gentlemen to be avoided. Trudging home after an unfortunate week-end, the barber poles from the capital could lay most of their ill-luck at the doors of the Toronto right winger with the blistering shot and the young Detroit goalie.

Buck Boucher's young pond hockey team was given the run around by the Leafs after getting off to a two-goal lead. Conacher's four goals had a lot to do with the Leafs' victory. Sunday night they lost 2-0 to Red Wings when they met the league leaders in the Detroit nets for John Ross Roach.

Senators' double loss, combined with the 4-3 lasting Montreal Maroons gave the Toronto Leafs night dropped the Ottawans to fourth place in the Canadian section standing back of the Montrealers. Black Hawks Boston and New York Rangers 1-1 tie in Chicago and the everamazing Americans whipped the Cubs 4-2 in the Windy City to add to the other week-end contests.

Leafs jumped into their almost unbeatable section leaders in the first period of the Ottawa game when Dede Roche and Jerry Shannon put the capital's team in the lead. What happened in the dressing room between periods wasn't revealed but when the Senators stepped back on the ice they were a different team.

Conacher got two goals in the second period, Shannon added a third, Happy Day and Frank Clancy, both assisted on the plays, Conacher got the fifth. Shannon got the victory' third goal early in the third period and Conacher fattened his scoring average to 25 points with two more goals.

Fast First Frame.

The first period of the tussle was one of the fastest seen here this season, at the youthful Ottawans passed perfectly and swamped into Toronto territory. Later their defence, without Scotty Bowman, crumbled but they were still the smooth-functioning team in the circuit today.

Frank Carson got both Detroit's goals against the Senators, sweeping around the Senator defence to beat Bill Beveridge early in the second period and then with Cude's shutout bound in the third. Beveridge played a brilliant game for the Senators and was certainly unbeatable in the Detroit nets.

"Sasket" McVeigh justified Joe Sampson's moving him to the first-string forward line minutes later the Canadiens almost single-handed last night. He changed a listless game into a spectacular personal victory in the third period with three goals and was in on the play for the fourth, tallied by Normie Himes.

In addition to his scoring the veteran star was a powerful defensive factor, particularly when his team was shorthanded. Bonnie Martin also got credit for sport work. He passed to McVeigh for Americans' third tally and to Himes for the last.

Maroons Going' Places.

A week ago Maroons had played some games and won only four of them. Eddie Gerard, forced to do something about it,-rebuilt his defence and the Montrealers have won three games since. Marvin Pye and Stew Evans brought in for the bolstering Maroons started with their defensive work in the win over Boston.

Boston were ahead for a short time in the second period when Marty Barry scored and after Herb Cain and Earl Robinson had put Maroons ahead the Bruins tied it up with Nels Stewart's goal. Earl Robinson's second goal and assist by Dave Trottier gave Maroons their margin in the third.

Andy Aitkenhead's goal-tending held the Hawks at Chicago last night. They played rings around the New Yorkers for most of the game but could get past the Ranger goalie only once. Lionel Conacher put the Chicagoans in front in the second period when Ching Johnson was in the penalty box and Bill Cook tied it up in the third when he batted in a loose puck.

CURRENT SPORT

With the inauguration of 1934 O.H.A. play by Belleville this evening it might be appropriate to introduce the new playing rules to the fans of Belleville. A few changes have been made by the C.A.H.E., which in turn were adopted by the O.H.A. As the local fans have not had the opportunity to witness much hockey thus far this season we deem it advisable to publish the new playing rules so as to acquaint the public with the new 1934 methods of checking the "old boy" Incidentally the Campbellford Maroons will be the visiting team on Tuesday when they meet the local D.A.C. team this evening in the opening game of the city senior hockey season at the Belleville arena.

Taking one more step towards bringing about the uniformity of hockey rules throughout Canada, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association recently announced the regulations governing their future games. With but a few exceptions the newly drawn-up rules will be practically the same as those now used in the professional hockey game.

THE NEW RULES—

Forward passing in all zones has been adopted, and, like the professional game, the puck may now be in the first attacker to enter a zone. This will be a great advantage to the amateur and professional code is that there will be no necessity for bodychecking in the amateur game, as the defence will be able to check the puck-carrier and only in their defence area. Bodychecking is now barred in the amateur game.

Here is how the C.A.H.E. rules committee describes development of the game:

"Starting in the defending zone, the puck may be passed in any direction forward and taken inside the first blue line by any defending player.

"Between the blue lines the puck may be passed or hacked over the blue line to any attacking player who was in the defending zone when the puck crossed the blue line and may skate up into the centre zone and play the puck.

"For violation of this rule (that is for a defending player in the defending zone to pass to a player in the centre zone) an offside is to be called and the face-off to take place at the point where the puck crossed the blue line.

CENTRE ZONE—

"This brings play into the centre zone. In this area there is no offside and the puck may be passed or kicked forward by attacking players who are in the centre zone.

"When the attack reaches the zone next to the line either forward or the puck-carrier must be first over the line.

"That is to say, the player in possession may not carry or kick the puck over the line or laterally or forwardly into the third zone.

"If the puck-carrier crosses the second blue line all the players who were in the centre zone when the attack crossed the line may play the puck and the attack continues without interruption.

ATTACKING ZONE—

"Play now brings play into the third or attacking zone and the puck-carrier may only be bodied by the defending team.

"In this zone (as in the other zones) there is no off-side and the puck may be passed or kicked forward to any attacking player, but not kicked into the net. Special attention is to be called to the fact that only the attacking player in possession of the puck may be bodied by the defending team. And he must not be charged or cross-checked.

"Referees are instructed to watch this particularly and penalize all attempts of rough play and illegal checking.

"The attacking players are not permitted to interfere in any way with the movements of a goalkeeper or his vision of the puck or the play. The penalty for a violation is a face-off at the blue line. A goal scored under such conditions shall not be allowed. No other defending player but the goalkeeper is allowed in, at, near or fall on the puck within ten feet of his own goal. Penalty, a face-off ten feet directly in front of the goal.

"When an attacking player commits a foul in the defending zone the face-off shall take place at the blue line. If the defending player commits a foul the puck shall be faced where the foul occurred, except where otherwise specified, as in the preceding clause.

"The puck must at all times be kept in motion.

"The team in possession of the defending zone may carry the puck behind the goal-line zone, but after that shall always advance the puck unless prevented by opposing players.

"In the centre zone they may

Fans Watch Doubleheader in Stirling Arena Friday

STIRLING, Jan. 8.—(Special) In the first game of the double feature scheduled to be played in the Stirling arena Friday night Minto registered an easy win over the Bethel squad coming out on the long end of the score. In the first period the play ranged for the most part around the Bethel net and a few minutes after the start scored. Feeling ran high as the Minto Club made a solo rush up the ice passing to Don Reid, who bulged the twine for the first counter. These boys starred for the Minto team and showed a fine brand of hockey in the game frame in a long shot from the blue line. The hardest man on the ice was F. Dickey slender centre-man for the Bethel squad who was a constant menace. The frame ended with a 2-0 count.

The second period ended not for Bethel in the first stanza was registered by Minto, when Don Reid beta in the second to play centre combination with Dickey and Tanner in the right wing. These boys worked together and got a nice little combination of what combination play can do. Reid of Minto scored the counter after a nice pass. Tanner in the nets for Minto was called upon to make a few nice saves during the period. Bethel threatened by a two-minute penalty to Tomlinson of Minto for tripping up Dickey who, a minute later was given a trip to the cooler for heavy slugging. With Bethel a man short, George Gibson once again bulged the twine to bring the count up to 3-0. The Dickey combination worked hard but accomplished little because of a poor defense line.

The third period began with the play much faster than in the previous frames-and time after time the Bethel boys, stick-handled their ways through the Minto defense but failed to score. Tomlinson was given his second trip to the showers with a three minute penalty for fighting. While the strong forward line of the Minto team was taking a rest, E. Dickey sailed through the Minto nets for the first Bethel counter and three minutes later scored again from the Minto blue line. Gibson and Reid added to the Bethel net making the count 6-2 when the bell sounded.

The game was an interesting one with Gibson and Reid outstanding for the winners and the Dickey Bros. for the Bethel lads. Gibson has all the marks of a real hockey player and with a little coaching should go far in the winter sport.

Everyreen 2, West Huntingdon 2

Everyreen edge West Huntingdon took the ice at 8.30 for the second contest and before one minute had passed, Harold Mott of the Huntingdon lads slipped one by Rodgers in the Everyreen net to put his team in the lead. From then on Mott was a marked man and was checked and double-checked for the remainder of the game. Stapley and M. McGee of Everyreen made several rushes bombarding the West Huntingdon goal with shot after shot. Excitement ran high and the game became rougher.

The second frame opened with Everyreen having the best of the play but as in the first, lacking the scoring punch. Mott coolly got away and M. McGee was given plenty of chance to demonstrate his clever shooting ability. Added another counter on a combination rush with Mott giving the rubber the final poke. The first penalty was given to B. Stapley for tripping the speedy Mott. One minute later Stapley's mates of Everyreen slipped the first counter past Sadies in the nets after serving a trip to the benches for tripping the much-molested Mott. With two men-short, Everyreen fought hard with Rodgers pass the puck back and forth, but never got away or carry it back into the defending zone.

The penalty is a face-off ten feet in front of the goal of the offending team.

"On all face-offs every player must be at his own side of the puck, and no players but those facing off can come within ten feet of the puck.

"Attention is called to this rule, because the 'no-offside' areas are in the game."

Arrangement Made For Opening of Season Made

S. R. "Sandy" Burrows was unanimously chosen as president of the Doherty A.C. of Belleville at the annual meeting held in the Belleville Arena on Saturday night. Mr. Burrows, after serving one year as vice-president of the organization, steps into the president's chair succeeding Walter H. Patterson, who led the D.A.C. last season but has been appointed to the office of manager of Belleville Doherty A.C.C. hockey team for 1934.

A goodly number of last year's officers were on hand to help with the re-organization of the club for the present season. Secretary Norman Alexander read the minutes and presented the financial statement, which found the club in good standing after a successful season at a slight loss. The officers considered, that due to the heavy expenses entailed in 1933 the club had done remarkably well.

Wilf Weir Captain

With W. H. Patterson as the helm of the team it was generally felt Wilf L'Heureux of Port Arthur hockey fame of seasons past, had been engaged to coach the Doherty for the 1934 campaign. During the meeting it was felt, the duties of the officers and players present to name Alex Weir as captain. Alex graciously accepted the appointment and assured the executive he would assist Coach L'Heureux and Manager Patterson to the best of his ability. Elwood Rowbotham, manager the club last season was elected vice-president of the club.

The officers elected at the annual meeting of the Doherty A.C. hockey team were: Hon. President, Mayor Geo. O. Tice, and A. M. Wolfond, president of the Child Service Oil Co., in Canada; President, S. R. Burrows; Vice-Presidents, E. D. Dudley; Sec.-Treas. N. Alexander; Manager, Walter Patterson; Coach, Wilf L'Heureux; Captain, Alex Weir; executive, S. Pender, W. S. Bowsher; Chief Alex Reid, Chas. Treverton, H. Legate, Dr. V. Sinclair, Jack Doolan, Fred Du Vernet, Mac Robertson, Geo. Forhan, M. F. Duff, Dr. C. J. Roberts, Cud Freeman and Leo B. Biggs.

Have Three Pads

During the meeting final arrangements for the opening of the current hockey season tonight were completed Mayor Tice has been invited to face the puck. When these two old rivals, Campbellford and Belleville pay off the 1st of local hockey activities at the Arena this evening. This morning the club was reported to be in excellent playing condition despite the rather mild weather experienced over the week end. The Doherty will line-up as follows: goal, Rowland; defence Rigby and J. Ruhier, centre Burrett, wings, Carr and Pete Morgan; subs, Wetz, St. Denis, Harry Morgan and Jimmie McGuire. The team will continue to wear the "Oilmen's" green and white colors. The referee appointed by the O. H. A. has not been announced.

On Tuesday night the local juniors will hold their initial workout of the season, all of age being invited.

BROCKVILLE ONE GAME UP

Defeat Hemlocks 6-5 in Playoff For Kingston Loop Title

Kingston, Jan. 8. — Brockville went through with a slim margin to win over Hemlock Palm in the first game of the City League semi-finals at the Rink's arena last night by the score of 6 to 5. The second game of the two out of three games will be played on Tuesday night.

Both clubbing a deckled advantage in the first period of the game the Brockville boys scored a 3 to 0 shut-out for the twenty minutes, the Island City representatives were run to earth in the second period and were out-scored 4 to 3 by the Brockvillers, an exciting period ending 5 to 4 for the visitors.

Hollis De Nevers, Red-Belleville game of Wednesday night, Friday evening's performance was devoid of roughness or dirt of any kind and despite the ruggedness of the play it was clean. There were a few minor penalties but nothing for which to call a very serious penalty.

Friday night's game brought out Reg. Paterson as one of the outstanding players on the ice. Patterson, a youth, is a better all round man he did last night. His stickhandling was the nearest approach to perfect one could want and he played heads up greasy hockey all the way through. His checking was hard and effectively and received the applause of the fair fans and again. With the Hemlock team also Peterson stood out prominently and played smart hockey. His was a brainy game all the way through and besides executing plays smartly himself, made them for the other members of the team as well. Tonight Thurlby played no mean game and was working his head off from the start while there was a useful performer also.

The defence works of the Dalrymen was weak and it proved to be their undoing. Time and again the Brockvillians were able to walk in on Gowsell and Hemlock goalie despite the fact that Gowsell did look weak on a couple of goals he wasn't getting any glib-edge support from his defence. If Hemlock Dairy hope to beat Brockville in the second fame, the defence weakness will have to be overcome.

TECS ARE OUT OF CELLAR

General Swapping of Places in International Loop

(By the Canadian Press)

A general swapping of places occurred in the International Hockey League over the week end, when Detroit Olympics registered two victories, Cleveland and London one each and Syracuse failed to win or defeat twice.

Olympics started the week end in convincing style when they defeated Buffalo 6-2 on Wet Ice Saturday —the first time this has been accomplished in 23 games—but Detroiters then went into first place by downing Syracuse, 5-4 at Syracuse on Sunday.

Cleveland's victory was also scored at the expense of Buffalo, they defeated 6-2 on Saturday. This win coupled with Buffalo's defeat placed the Indians in third place one point in front of the neighborhood who led the League at the start of last week.

For the first time since the schedule opened, London Tecumsehs were out of the cellar position, a 3-2 victory over Windsor Bulldogs on Saturday dropping the Borderites into last place.

Leafs' Delayed Attack Overcame Boys' Brigade

Buck Boucher's Boy Scouts from the Ottawa Valley, showing great speed on the trails and expert path-finding around the goal mouth, dashed into a two-tally lead on the Leafs in the fastest first period that has rocked the rink this Winter.

But after the intermission the Mapleos leaped out on the ice as though the dressing-room had exploded (which was quite possible) and turned on an attack that completely bewildered the Boys' Brigade. Chuck Conacher, with his sensational sniping and King Clancy, dashing about in inspiring fashion on his heels, featured this rousing rally.

However, the young visitors, led by Jerry Shannon of the Niagara Patrol, continued to give an astonishing display of play-off possibilities until it was well past their bedtime. They fought it out to the finish in the teeth of a rising blizzard of Leaf Goals.

QUEEN ELENA OF ITALY, 61

Birthday of Beloved Queen Celebrated in All Italy

Rome, Jan. 8 (AP)—All Italy celebrated the 61st birthday of Queen Elena, while this indefatigable and offtimes incognito charity worker quietly received the felicitations of her husband King Victor Emmanuel, and her tall son Prince Humbert of Piedmont.

Flags flew from the Quirinal Palace, where the Royal family and intimate members of the court received with the King and his Consort. Beautiful and vivacious Princess Maria, who celebrated her own 19th birthday December 26, and who this winter has formally taken her place in society, added youthful merriment to the occasion.

In Rome and in all other Italian cities, towns and villages, the national tri-color was abundantly displayed.

The Queen is the mother of five children and grandmother of four. Although husband personally is one of the most wealthy men in the kingdom, she budgets the expenses of the immediate Royal family with the careful thrift of a good housekeeper.

BONARLAW CHURCH NEARLY FINISHED

With all exterior work now completed, only minor details of construction in the interior remain to be carried out in the new church at Bonarlaw, according to architect Arnold J. Thomson of this city. At present the church is being given finishing coat of plaster. It is expected, that dedication of the edifice will take place some time during the middle of February.

IS RE-ELECTED W. A. PRESIDENT

Three Injured From Fall on Icy Walks at Tweed

Tweed, Jan. 8—The annual meeting of the Women's Association of St. James' Anglican Church was held in the Guild rooms on Thursday afternoon with the President, Mrs. M. Wallace in the chair. The meeting was opened with a suitable hymn and Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne (the Rector) offered a prayer of thanksgiving for the work accomplished during the year. Most encouraging reports of the activities of the year were given by the Treasurer and the Secretary. The leaders of Teen-age, Junior and Little Helper groups gave reports of the work carried on in these societies. The President's faithful leadership was in no small measure responsible for the successful year just concluded, thanked the Members for their loyal co-operation and asked Mr. Swayne to occupy the chair for the election of officers which resulted as follows:

Hon. Presidents—Mrs. Swayne and Mrs. Geo. Clarke.
President—Mrs. M. Wallace.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Geo. Thompson.
Secretary—Mrs. Fred Mitchell.
Treasurer—Mrs. H. Neal.
Supt. of Teen-age girls:— Mrs. Swayne.
Supt. of Juniors—Mrs. George Clark.
Supt. of Little Helpers—Mrs. W. A. Paul.
Delegates for Annual—Mrs. W. Leal and Mrs. A. Baker.

A very nice letter was read from Rev. Marshall thanking the W.A. for the girls outfit sent to the Indian School. He made special mention of the knitting done by Mrs. A. Beach. The meeting was closed by the Rector.

The slippery streets and sidewalks have taken toll during the past few days. Mr. Jas. McGowan struck his head in falling and sustained a very painful injury. Mr. Mowlet Simmons injured his leg and is also confined to his home. Mrs. Delbert Stout sustained a badly sprained wrist which required medical attention. Dr. M. G. Deles fell while skating and hurt his back.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. James' Anglican Church held their annual meeting on Tuesday in the Guild rooms for the purpose of electing officers of the society for 1934. The following were elected: President—A. W. Lemon. Vice-President—Frank Hayward, Secretary— Helen Hagerman, Treasurer — Stanley Luffman.

The first meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Tweed United Church was held on Thursday, Jan. 4th with Rev. R. R. Nicholson, the Pastor, in charge.

Honorary Pres.—Mrs. R. R. Nicholson.
President—Mrs. J. W. Kingston.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. C. Barnett.
2nd. Vice Pres.—Mrs. T. E. Moffat.
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. C. H. Kerr.
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. W. H. Hicks.
Christian Stewardship—Mrs. F. B. Foster.
Literature Sec.—Mrs. S. R. McGee
Temperance Sec.—Mrs. Nicholson
Supply Sec.—Mrs. W. H. Sayels.
Strangers' Secretary—Mrs. S. G. Way.
Asso. Helpers—Mrs. W. H. Richardson.
Peace Sec.—Mrs. C. Kleinsteuber.
Press Sec.—Mrs. H. Grey.
Missionary Monthly—Mrs. W. J. Grier.
Pianist—Mrs. S. H. Connor.

The meeting was then handed over to Mrs. J. W. Kingston, the President, who asked everyone to repeat the Watchword and Psalm 23 in concert. The reports of the different secretaries were given. The recording secretary stated that the average attendance for the year was 36. The corresponding secretary reported that 30 letters had been written. The report of the treasurer indicated that $310 had been sent to the branch. Mrs. Pettit leader of the Mission Band reported that 19 meetings had been held during the year with an average attendance of 20, and that $25 had been raised. Mrs. S. G. Way, Strangers' Secretary stated that many calls had been made on the sick and shut-ins and also on new people coming into the community. During the year 41 subscriptions have been received for the Missionary Monthly. Mrs W. E. Tummon gave a lovely solo "Hold Thou My Hand" which was very appropriate for the newly installed officers.

The devotional leaflet "The Busy Life of Jesus" was given by Mrs. W. H. Richardson, the text being taken from Luke 10:27. Mrs. W. S. Gordon gave a New Year's message entitled "A Happy New Year to All", and the meeting was concluded with a beautiful prayer by Mrs. Kingston.

A move has been on foot for some time among the merchants of Tweed having for its object the early closing of their places of business. For the months of January, February and March the merchants will close their stores at 6 o'clock every evening with the exception of Saturday.

Tango, Smartest Dance Of Modern Ballrooms, Is Gaining Popularity

Spanish Influence Dominates, Says Authority, Giving Latest Combinations of Fashionable Steps

Lita Lope and Linitei demonstrating the 1934 Tango

New York, Jan. 2. — Just as tap dancing is said to be on the wane and theatrical producers and managers are giving their audiences something different, so the jazz craze from the Charleston to the Lindy is an old story. Something new is now presenting itself to the ballroom devotees.

Music trends play an important part in making dance history. The social dancers always have musical accompaniment, so it is natural for dance critics to inspire new dance types.

The Spanish Influence.

The newest influences dominating the dance world have come recently from Germany and Spain. Those who have studied the German dances realize that there is no exhilarating, captivating rhythms or movements in their dances that could be used by either our joyous, romantic social dancers, or by our repressed sophisticated exponents of ballroom art. But the Spanish school has a very different spirit. Audiences who have watched Argentina and Escudero are entranced with the music, rhythm, movement, romance, joy and dignity in the expressions of these artists. It at once satisfies the naive and the sophisticated, and we have the Spanish influence introducing the most important changes in our social dance to-day.

Three representative types are the exciting dances from Cuba, based on the rhumba rhythms; the exhilarating, energetic paso doble from Spain, a quick one-step type; the romantic, sophisticated tango from Argentina, with its pulsing beat.

The Tango.

The tango is characterized by great control, restraint, and musical appreciation on the part of the dancer. The tango type is so different from American dance expression, that even our dancers who know the rhythm and style hesitate to dance it, because they feel they cannot recreate the authentic style. But practice makes perfect, and if the dancers will keep in mind the following points, they will soon become accustomed to the tango style. The walking should be done as if the dancer were stepping on thin ice and feeling the surface before transferring the weight of the whole foot. The first part of the stepping movement is slow, the last part quick-end. The foot in back remains in back as long as possible before taking the next step forward. The foot is always lifted slightly above the surface of the floor with every movement; it never slides as in our waltz. The knees are always slightly flexed, quite different from our extended knee positions in the foxtrot. The body is erect, immobile from the waist up. In some positions the knees are together and turned in, a movement which seems to make our dancers a little self-conscious. They forget how agile they became with this knock-kneed movement in the Charleston to jazz tempo a while ago. Remember that most of the tango is sombre, the music having definite minor qualities. The following selections are authentic and popular tangos: Tango Mio, Por Mi Camino, Guardia Vieja, La Eterna Ni Longa.

How It's Done.

Here are some interesting combinations in this season's tango: Gentleman's part is described, lady's is opposite. Two counts to the measure. L means left; R, right; ct, count; m, measure; ft, foot.

Introduction. Step back on R (ct and), step back on L, bending L knee slightly (ct 1). Transfer weight again forward on to R (ct 2).

L. T. 2 walking steps forward L-R (1 m). Step forward on L, cross R ft forward (lady crosses L in front of R) (1 m), point L ft forward without transferring weight, step back on L, slightly bending L knee (3 m). Step forward on R (ct and), arch L at the ankle of R ft (1 m). Step forward on L, step R to R side and draw L to R (1 m). Turn back to L with 1 slow step on L, 2 quick steps on R and L (1 m). Step R ft to R and draw L ft up to R (1 m).

II. Two slow walking steps L R (1 m); 2 quick walking steps forward, L hold on R and arch with L (1 m). Step forward on L, cross forward on R (1 m), step forward on L (ct and) step side on R and draw L up to R (1 m).

OBITUARY

MILTON W. YOUNG

Picton, Jan. 8—Milton W. Young, former Reeve of Athol Township, and Inspector of the Prince Edward County Home for some years, is dead here. For thirty years he was a member of Prince Edward Masonic Lodge, in politics a Conservative. He was a descendant of Colonel Henry Young, first white settler in Prince Edward County, and before coming to town, twelve years ago, was a prominent berry grower in Athol. His widow, a son, Ray of Athol; a daughter, Mrs. Harry Rayner, Toronto and sister, Mrs. P. Anderson, Oshawa, survive.

WILLIAM A. CHRISTY

Picton, Jan. 8—The funeral was held at Bloomfield today with burial here of William Albert Christy, who died in Port Perry. He was born in Hallowell Township, Prince Edward County, sixty-five years ago, where he spent most of his life. In Port Perry he was a member of the board of the United Church and Secretary of the School Board. His widow and a sister Mrs. Angin of Montreal, survive.

JOHN FECTEAU

Trenton, Jan. 8 (Special) — John Fecteau, for over a half century resident of this town passed away Saturday at his late residence, Dundas street east. Born in New Liverpool, Quebec, sixty-eight years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Demas Fecteau, the deceased had been a resident of Trenton for the past fifty-one years. The late Mr. Fecteau had been afflicted with blindness for the past seventeen years and was a familiar figure about the streets of this town. His congeniality and good spirits made him a host of friends who sincerely mourn his passing.

He had long been associated with the lumbering industry of this district and throughout the province. From 1910 to 1912 he was connected with the Gilmour Co. of Trenton and from 1912 to 1917 he was superintendant of Senator Edwards' box factory at Ottawa, and at one time was manager of the old Rathbun Lumber Co. at Deseronto.

He was a member of St. Peter-in-Chains Church and had ever displayed a marked interest in the Roman Catholic activities in Trenton. Previous to the forming of a Council of the Knights of Columbus in this town the late Mr. Fecteau was a member of the Council in Belleville.

Impaired sight was the result of a fall sustained in Ottawa some seventeen years ago. For many years he operated a grocery here and his store was the centre of many happy community gatherings.

Surviving are his widow, previous to marriage Miss Mary Lane of Trenton; one son Wilfred of this town; a daughter, Mrs. Anna Empey in Rochester, N.Y.; one sister, Mrs. Melvina Menard of Muskegon, Mich. and three brothers, Maurice of Trenton, Frank in Toronto and Archie at Detroit, Mich.

JAMES W. ALLISON

Picton, Jan. 8 (Special)—The week end in Picton has marked the passing away of a number of prominent residents of this town and the death of James W. Allison which occurred at his late residence, Saturday afternoon, is sincerely regretted by his host of friend in Picton and thruout the county. Known and esteemed by hundreds his death removes a central figure in the business, civic and social life of this community. Born 55 years ago here, he was the son of Mrs. Emma (Crandell) Allison and the late C. B. Allison. For some time he resided in Ottawa as manager of the Wampoles Drug Co. and for ten years was in a like position with that firm in its Toronto branch. Later he returned to his native town and had since carried on his successful pharmacy establishment. He was a member of the Picton United Church and Prince Edward Lodge, No. 18, A.F. and A.M. The late Mr. Allison was a graduate of Picton High School and the Ontario School of Pharmacy, Toronto.

Surviving are his widow, previous to marriage, Miss Mabel Conger, of Picton; his mother; one son, Conger of Chicago, Ill.; a daughter, Miss Audrey at home; one brother, Dr. Gerald Allison of this town; and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Bolton, in Montreal.

The funeral will be held from his late residence and interment made in Glenwood cemetery.

LATE HARVEY M. DAY

Picton, Jan. 8 (Special)—The death occurred Saturday last at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. C. D. Wilson, of Harvey Merton Day, for 12 years resident of this town. The deceased was the son of the late Henry and Elizabeth (Reynolds) Day and was born in Camden East, 84 years ago. He had been in failing health for some time and his death was not unexpected by his daughter and friends here. For many years the late Mr. Day resided in Trenton and in the vicinity of the Trent Canal. His daughter, at whose home his death occurred, is the only immediate surviving relative.

With many former friends and relatives in attendance the funeral took place this (Monday) afternoon from his late residence. The Rev. (Major) F. M. Scott, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of which the deceased had been a member, conducted the service at the home and at the graveside in Glenwood cemetery.

LATE MRS. W. E. BIRD

To pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of one who had done much in the church and community life of Foxboro scores of former friends and neighbors were in attendance at the funeral of the late Mrs. Matilda Jane Bird Sunday afternoon. Funeral service was held at the Foxboro United Church at 2.30 o'clock conducted by the Rev. Mr. Mutton with the Rev. Mr. Beaser of Thomasburg assisting, and both clergymen took part in the service at the graveside in the Foxboro cemetery.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. Walter Wickett, Arthur Walt, Everett Sills, Jonathan Wilson, Wm. Coulter and Joseph Daniels.

Floral tributes included:

Pillow—Husband and family.

Broken Wheel—Brothers and Sisters.

Sprays—Grandchildren; Mr. and Mrs. Sydmer Bird and family; Mr. J. L. Herbertson and daughters, Bertha and Effie; Mr. Herb Howes and sister, Ethel; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bartlett; Mrs. R. Townsend.

LATE ALTON S. ROBINSON

With many of his former young friends and sympathizing friends of the bereaved family in attendance the funeral of the late Alton S. Robinson was held Sunday afternoon from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Robinson in Tyendinaga to the Salem United Church. There the Rev. W. H. Clarke of Shannonville, conducted the funeral service which was marked by a special selection by the choir of the church. The Rev. Mr. Clarke also officiated at the graveside in the Salem cemetery

Acting as bearers were boyhood friends of the deceased, James R. Haight, Glen Milligan, Sherman Lazier, Charles Long, Bruce Sherman and Harold Sherman.

"The consumer will be charged at these rates for each calendar month during which the service is taken, as though power were taken for the entire month. For such part of the power as is kept off the local system peak a discount of 33 1-3 per cent. may be given on these rates. The consumer will be required also to pay the cost of putting up and taking down any special transformer or equipment, necessary to supply this service.

It is recommended that an adequate advance payment be made to guarantee the account. The letter from the Commission was signed by the Chief Engineer, F. A. Gaby. This decision is retroactive to the first of last year. The flat rate water heater rate at Belleville is $36.

Matters of this kind had been cropping up before the commission lately. The decision of the Ontario Hydro settles this question.

The question of a person who turned on electricity on his own account without knowledge of the Hydro was mentioned at the meeting today and the person has been asked to appear before the Commission.

Window Display Wins

For the third time the Belleville Hydro Shop has appeared in the prize list for decoration of the window. In the provincial contest, Belleville window display stood third this year to win a twenty dollar prize. As customary the half of this was voted to the decorator, Mr. Everett Smith.

Commissioners expressed their pleasure at the attention which "the shop" was paying to the arrangement of the window.

Commissioners and the manager will attend the provincial meeting in Toronto on January 31st and February 1st.

A number of accounts were passed.

Toronto, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Coroner M. M. Crawford today ordered an inquest into the death of a child whose body was found last week under a barn at Welland. The inquest will be opened Wednesday night.

Jean Fox 20, of Toronto and Alex. Baker 22, Toronto are held on a charge of concealment of birth in connection with the case.

MRS. HULIN DIES AT ELDORADO

Eldorado—Mrs. A. Parnell and Farley have returned home after spending a few days with friends at Belleville.

Miss Freta Harvey of Peterboro is spending this week with her parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Harvey.

Miss Lois Blackburn of Bongards, has been spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Cecil Blackburn, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fox entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. Harvey of this place and Miss Freta Harvey of Peterboro to tea on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brownson, Mr. Geo. Sandford, Mr. Wm. Holmes and daughter, and Harold Holmes, spent New Year's dinner hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald.

Miss J. Ferguson of Vernon has returned to her school here on Tuesday last.

Mrs. Ethel White and sons returned home on Friday evening, having spent a week with her mother at Cobalt.

Miss Lela Empey was the guest of Miss Violet McCann on Sunday last.

Dr. and Mrs. Nickle and children spent Monday last in Madoc, the New Year guests of the latter's father, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Burnside.

A charivari was tendered Mr. and Mrs. A. Harvey on Monday evening, January 1st. About fifty of the young people of the surrounding community, gathered outside their home with cow bells, tin pans, and so forth. After a short time of noisy fun, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey invited them into their home and the remainder of the evening was spent in playing games and a social time spent. All report a very enjoyable evening.

The Y.P.S. of Eldorado and Union United Church held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening, January 3rd. The President, Miss Violet McCann in charge. Bible reading, 13th chapter of Corinthians was read by Cecil Boyle. Roll call showed 32 present on the "Red" side, 19, present on the "white", total present 51. Minutes of last meeting was then read by the secretary. The Christian Fellowship convener, Miss Annie Holmes then took charge of the meeting. This started with a short song service followed with prayer by Mrs. Trumpour, "I'll go where you want me to go dear Lord" was sung by all the girls who were present. The "Church in the wild wood" was sung by Vernon Strebe, Kenneth Martin, Don Post and Ed Webber; Mrs. Wm. Andrew then gave a reading entitled "Father Time". Mrs. Fred Wright, gave a recitation "This New Year is yours". A New Year topic was then taken by A. Holmes, followed with a recitation, "New Year's Resolution" by Helen McCaw. A solo "Back in the old Sunday School" was beautifully rendered by Kenneth Martin. After singing Hymn 225 and Mispah Benediction, a baseball contest with questions and answers was put on by Mrs. J. R. Trumpour, the 'Reds' against the 'whites" and the 'whites' were the winners.

The regular meeting of Eldorado and Union W.M.S. was held at the United parsonage on Wednesday, January 3rd, at 2.30 p.m. The president, Mrs. A. Empey was in charge of the meeting. The roll call showed ten members present and one visitor.

A season of prayer was in charge of Miss A. Holmes, Mrs. C. D. McCann, Mrs. Trumpour and Rev. J. R. Trumpour, after which Mrs. Geo. Robinson, group leader put on her program Study Book leaflets were taken by Mrs. Geo. Robinson, the leader and Mrs. A. Young. Mrs. C. McCann and Mrs. L. Robinson, a worship service on stewardship led by Mrs. Nickle and members each taking parts. A reading "Following the Star" was read by A. Holmes, Mrs. L. Robinson rendered a beautiful solo entitled "Let the gospel light shine out". After singing a hymn, Mrs. A. Empey took charge of the business part of the meeting and Mrs. Trumpour closed the meeting with prayer. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a social half hour enjoyed.

Death has again visited the community and taken an old and respected resident in the person of Mrs. Effie Hulin, of Eldorado, who passed away at her home on January 3rd, at the age of 69 years and 11 months. Although she had been in ill health for some time her passing has cast a gloom over the community, as she was much beloved by all who knew her, ever ready to give a helping hand or speak a kind word to those in sorrow or trouble.

The deceased was a member of the United Church, Eldorado. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. H. McDonald, who resided with her. The funeral service was held at her late residence on Friday at 1.30 p.m. with Rev. J. R. Trumopur, pastor, conducting the funeral service. Taking for his text, 1st chapter Philippians, verse 21, "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain", which was specially chosen by the deceased.

"Does Jesus Care" was rendered by the Eldorado quartette, Mrs. S. Moorcroft, Mrs. L. Robinson, Misses Elsie Fox and Leda Post, "My Heavenly Home is Bright and Fair" was sung softly by the choir as the funeral passed out. Interment was made in Lake View cemetery, Madoc. Among those in attendance at the funeral from a distance were:

Mr. and Mrs. Sim Fox, Belleville; Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Lumb, Bancroft; Mr. and Mrs. B. Sine and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Sine of Stirling.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Jan. 8.—There was little life in the stock market today although prices, as a whole, were steady to firm. The alcohol equities, while in small volume, raised their quotations moderately, some of the tobaccos rallied and various leading issues moved a bit higher. Dullness was the rule, however, in the early hours and the ticker tape was silent at frequent intervals. Bonds were listless and irregular. U. S. Governments were easier.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Schenley and American Commercial Alcohol got up one to nearly two points, while American Telephone, Liggett and Myers B, Reynolds B and Dome Mines advanced around a point.

Aside from Dome, changes in the Canadian Equities were confined to fractions. International Nickel, Canadian Pacific and McIntyre ranged from steady to a trifle higher. On the curb Lake Shore mines and Hiram Walker both improved major fractions. Dominion Government 5's were unchanged. The 4's eased ⅜ of a point but the 4½'s were a shade higher. The Canadian dollar lost 3/16 of a cent at 99.81¼.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 8. — The Standard Mining Market opened the week with a spiritless demonstration, sales moving slowly and prices undergoing a slight shading from Saturday's final quotations.

In the big gold group Lake Shore lost 40 cents to 45.60, Wright Hargreaves 5 cents to 6.90, Dome 10 cents to 34.50, Bralorne 5 cents to 10.05 and Teck Hughes 5 to 6.95. Hollinger and Pioneer traded unchanged.

Pend Oreille again advanced, selling at 95 and Noranda and Base Metals Corporation were both slightly up from the last close while nickel showed a recession of 10 cents to 21.25.

Following a mild sinking spell in the first hour the mining board improved in the early afternoon, senior golds recovering their losses and registering moderate net gains in Hollinger, Lake Shore, Dome, Pioneer and Bralorne.

Base Metal stocks lagged, only Noranda, Base Metals Corporation and Pend Oreille showing to better advantage while Nickel, Sherritt and Sudbury Basin were off a little each.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 8—(CP)—Stocks held to an advancing trend in the opening session of the week on the Toronto Stock Exchange with volume appearing chiefly in Ford A, Walkers Common, Canadian Industrial Alcohol, the Brewing Corporation Stocks and Imperial Oil.

In the banking section Imperial registered a gain of 17 points to 160 while Commerce and Royal were up 7 each and Montreal 3.

Outside of a gain of 5 cents for brewers and distillers the liquor stocks held unchanged, Walkers at 54 1-2, Alcohol at 18 3-4 and Distillers Seagrams at 23 1-2. Other interlisted issues were irregular, Brazilian and Ford A advancing by small fractions and C.P.R. weakening an equal amount.

Banking and brewery stocks showed group strength from the opening with volume of sales small in the financial issues. The Brewing Corporation stocks were particularly active and the common was bid up to 8 for a full point while the preferred gained 1-2 and Cosgrave 1-4.

Unsteadiness in the New York market was reflected in the interlisted group where only Brazilian and Ford A held to the upside. C.P.R., Nickel and Walkers Common eased down small fractions and Alcohol and Distillers Seagram were unchanged at mid-afternoon.

CHEESE

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—The Toronto Wholesale Cheese Market was firm today with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 10¾ to 11 cents.

Dealers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New, large 11½c; twins 11¾c; triplets 12c. Old, large 17½c; twins 17¾c; triplets 18c. Medium, large 15½c; twins 15¾c; triplets 16c.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 8. — The Toronto livestock market opened the week today with early trading on weighty steers and butcher cattle unsettled. Cows, bulls and fed calves opened steady. Calves, sheep and lambs were steady with hogs unsettled.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1880, calves 260, hogs 1140, sheep and lambs 550.

Good butcher cows brought $3.00 to $3.50 and good bulls sold at $3.00 to $3.25. Fed calves ranged from $5.00 to $7.00 according to quality.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Steady to higher prices were witnessed on Montreal produce markets last week with the exception of eggs, which were easier. Butter, cheese and potatoes reached the highest levels touched so far this winter. Poultry remained steady.

The butter market ended the week at 25 1-4c to 25 1-2c per lb. for No. 1 pasteurized regraded butter in carlots or l.c.l. lots, compared with 25c a week ago.

The cheese market closed at 10 1-4c to 10 1-2c per lb. for current make Ontario cheese, compared with 10c a week ago.

Potatoes sold at $1.10 to $1.25 per bag, compared with 75c to $1 the previous week.

On the egg market heavier arrivals representing stock delayed by recent storms and cold, eased the market a little, and graded shipments generally ended the week in carlots or l.c.l. lots, at 1c per dozen less than a week ago, being quoted mostly at the close 34c for grade A-large, 31c for A-medium and 29c for A-pullets. Lower grades however, hold firm.

IS U. S. NAVY PROGRAM START OF ARMAMENT RACE FOR COMING YEAR?

The race in war armaments fore-cast for the year 1934 starts with the U.S. navy seeking government authority to build their navy up to treaty strength. The entire program calls for the building of 102 ships or approximately 20 each year until 1939, at which time it is desired to be on treaty parity basis with other nations. The layout shows the program for 1934 in the United States providing for two heavy destroyers or destroyer leaders, 12 destroyers, one cruiser carrying eight inch guns, two cruisers carrying six inch guns, and six submarines together with increase in naval and marine strength. A comparison of the naval power of Japan, United States and Great Britain is shown.

FEAR NEW JAPANESE INVASION OF REBELLION-TORN CHINA

Indicating preparations for a strong offensive against a rising rebellion, the Nanking government has ordered all foreigners to leave the zone of hostilities in the Fukien province, the newest development in the turbulent affairs between China and her traditional foe, Japan. Danger of a new clash between the two countries has been seen in the refusal of the Japanese Legation to remove its 30,000 Japanese and Formosan subjects from Fukien, and assertion that Japan would protect its citizens there. The layout shows battle scenes in previous skirmishes of the two nations, and a view of Foochow, city in the rebelling province. Fukien is sketched in map.

CALL SEVENTY WITNESSES FOR WYNEKOOP MURDER TRIAL

Seventy witnesses have been called to testify in the trial of Dr. Alice Wynekoop, prominent Chicago woman physician, on charges of murdering her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Reta Wynekoop, wife of her son, Earle, in the home office of the physician. Dr. Wynekoop is accused of firing a bullet into the girl's heart while she lay on the operating table, shown above. Arrested with his mother for the murder, Earle, who admitted his marriage had been unhappy, later was released.

ROCKET 'PLANES BEFORE END OF YEAR?

HANGCENTRE is Mark E. Rider, U. S. aviator, whose experiments with Prof. Haldane have resulted to satisfactory that heavier-than-air machines for flying in the upper atmosphere are due within a year's time. RIGHT, CENTRE are Ernest Loebell and Edward Hanna, who are developing a rocket plane in Cleveland, Ohio. Their plane will be shot 15 miles into the stratosphere. Hanna is financing the experiment. Sketched above is a conception of the stratosphere plane, and below is a picture of the rocket.

WHAT'S 58 BELOW WHEN A PICTURE'S TO BE PAINTED?

Artists are not usually coldly practical, but on this occasion when they went up to northern Ontario to paint, they had to do something about it when someone knocked the bottom out of the thermometer. This group of representative Canadian artists, however, refused to quit painting even at 58 below—probably because they were frozen to their chairs, or something. They gathered at Burk's Falls, Ontario. Top row, LEFT to RIGHT: Mrs. Hortense Gordon, A. R.C.A. John Gordon, A.R.C.A.; J. W. Beatty, R.C.A., Miss Winifred Nerdler, Miss Lynch, Tom Stone; Fred B. HOUSES AND CARS SUBMERGED IN MUD AFTER FLOOD

A family counting the cost after the Los Angeles flood had almost wiped out their possessions. The flood, which took the lives of more than 40 people and did mil-lions of dollars damage, was the worst in California in 56 years. Note how the cars are almost submerged in mud and the debris in the foreground. The house and the garage have been carried off their foundations and partially buried. The scene shown here was taken at Montrose, a suburb of Los Angeles.

Maybe this is who the governor of South Carolina was talking about when he spoke to the governor of North Carolina. At any rate, Miss Crowder is a sample of what the southern states can and do offer the rest of the Union can do. She was selected last year by Governor Max Gardiner, as the most beautiful junior student at Meredith College, Raleigh, N.C. This year her sister students okayed the choice and elected her most beautiful in the college.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

"Let 'em scream." Mathilda's down-at-the-mouth mate has a little enhanced of cacophony in certain words. "The 'ifs' will be on them. Their money is behind them. I'm pretty married and that leading party was just a prank the two of you decided to play on your august boss ten hours after this Hume affair."

"You're forgotten about Gifford, the executor. You don't imagine he won't appear the—after this Hume scandal."

"I've not forgotten Gifford. I've given the old boy a great deal of important thought. He will not disprove you. Not now. In fact, he has called me to say that he will not be most thoroughly disapproved of you. Dragging the Randall name through the mire of divorce court—that's the game like the lady who's been 'framed' and can't get on the witness stand and vociferously declare her innocence. Then prodding your innocence of wrongdoing."

"Sense of which still fills Gifford's disapproval."

"Will stop him, perhaps, but if you're good at handling the truth, he will show him up. Then it will be up to you to prove to Randall as to Randall's wife, you have not."

"Does that mean I'm not able to face a threat. Being reviled and scorched for something she had not done. Henry Hume's wife must be mad, blaming her—of both an instrument of Fate? That's what Henry Hume's wife was. Insane—jealous—mad. Or she was using the instrument to defeat Sue. Sue cheat her husband. Sue—to punish her for her chicanery and her defiance."

"Jeffrey will know," Mathilda said. "I never like to scold. Can't reach him today or tomorrow. Evidently he neglected to leave his address with his noble cousins if they won't be able to post at him as a article. Those cousins where he is, but Gifford's holding off until he talks with you."

"That's pretty decent of him."

"Yes, the old boy has his points. When he knows it's all a ghastly lie, he'll condone charging again. Flooding over the dam."

"We couldn't stop something happening when it already had happened. Papers were served on him as he stepped off the ship. They were him by reporters going up on his office. You're to come there directly you've finished with Gifford."

Sue sat in Mr. Gifford's office. She never had felt more dolay, almost sorry she had agreed to Mathilda's plan. After what seemed ages, she heard:

"Mr. Gifford' will see you now, Mrs. Randall."

She followed the girl through an inner door.

"Er—ahem—good morning," Mr. Gifford adjusted gold-rimmed glasses and rose to receive her. "Sit down, please." He motioned to a chair beside a formidable mahogany desk. "You may as Miss Rosen. I'm sorry if I need you." The girl disappeared closing the door softly behind her.

"I've asked you here on a grave matter," Mr. Gifford began. "You have that I shall have to warn you against any attempt to conceal the truth."

Sue's pulse thudding. Gifford knew. He knew, and he was going to denounce her, to expose her shame.

"There is nothing to conceal, sir," she managed.

"I trust so. I do sincerely trust there is no need for concealment. Jeffrey couldn't think I'm prying. In the absence of Jeffrey Randall, I must look to his interests. My duty imposes an unpleasant task. Mrs. Randall, what were your relations with Henry Hume?"

Mrs. Randall! Tiny beads of perspiration formed on her upper lip. Then Gifford did not know about the hoax. In relief, Sue was dulled to the implication in the question. "You mean what position did I hold in Mr. Hume's office?" She was steadier now.

"No, I mean what were you to Henry Hume?" Mr. Gifford said heavily.

Sue, holding to the arms of the chair, was now flying at Gifford. He had the right to ask. He was Jeffrey's lawyer. It was his business to protect Jeffrey's name, his fortune, his future.

"I was a stenographer, doing general work in the office. Except when Miss Fetherstone was very busy. Then I helped her. She was in regular secretary."

"Did you know Hume before you went to work in his office?"

"No. I'd never seen him, to my knowledge."

"He engaged you?"

"Yes. That is Miss Fetherstone interviewed me first and I applied for the position. Then she sent me to Mr. Hume."

"You saw him later, outside the office?"

"Yes."

"Where?" Mr. Gifford's ears appeared to cup and to point for the answer.

"Frequently at lunch. Several times at dinner."

"What happened on these occasions? Please be frank. We shall understand. You can save a great deal of time and unpleasantness by giving me the information now."

"I don't like to—"

"Naturally. You hesitate to discuss these—intimate matters. I'm afraid you must do it though, Mrs. Randall. You lunched with Henry Hume—you dined with him? On these occasions—"

"It may take months." Sue, mutinous against delay.

"Two or three at the least." Henry Hume said, "Owing to the thriving business done by divorce mills we couldn't expect to have the case tried before that time even though it were uncontested."

Sue, twisting a handkerchief to shreds! "It's incredible. Innocent persons to be accused. Their whole lives can be wrecked while they're waiting to prove their innocence."

"Yes, they can't," Mathilda insisted, "unless Innocent' parties have not the genius to prevent wrecks."

"I'm sorry to lose you, Mathilda, from the office," Henry Hume said. "You're more valuable to me than three men and a boy. But it's better that you remain with Mrs. Randall. She'll need you and this promises to be the kind of game in which wits will be at a premium."

It was arranged. Henry Hume's lawyers would take care of Sue's defense as well as the answer to the divorce.

"Mathy, you must wire Jeff at once to say where he is. "Sue said as they left the buildings. "Maybe it isn't necessary. But just in case he might feel obliged to come back, I want him to know that his mediating in this affair with Mrs. Hume is the last thing I want him to do. It's my own battle and I want to fight it in my own way."

"Good. We're making progress. Growing fighter. I can't answer for Jeffrey, though."

"Make him understand that because of what's happened, Mr. Gifford will never approve of me. Jeff and I have been chasing pots of gold at the end of rainbows. We've mixed the rainbows and we've lost the pots of gold."

"Maybe your spine isn't growing as strong after all," Mathilda said. "It's grown strong enough to hold my head up."

"That's the spirit. We'll dismiss your chauffeur with limousine. We will have tuxedo and jeffries sedan. Then with chocolate sodas at the drug store around the corner. And then arrive at Mrs. Randall's town house by taxi. A taxi-cab under that porte-cochere is a novelty."

"Matty!" Distress signals from Sue. "We're not going back to that!"

"Yes, we are. We and we are. We are the bad pennies that roll home when we're expected. Our heads are up and that's the way we are keeping them."

"You mean we're staying there

BRINGING UP FATHER

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burrough

Tarzan, accustomed to the tribal life of primitive men, finds his place naturally among the Clovers, the cave dwellers among whom chance had thrown him. He obeyed their ethics and followed their customs scrupulously. He paid no attention to those who paid loose to him. There were only a few, however, who had accepted the ape-man without suspicion. Among them was Maral, the mother of the boy Taran had rescued from the ryth, and Hela, his sister.

These two women became devoted to the ape-man because their son and brother had accepted him. Tarzan liked to talk with Maral because of her sunny disposition and marked intelligence. She told him she was from Zoram, having been captured by Avan, when as a young man, he had decided to take a mate. To her birthplace Tarzan attributed her great beauty, for among the Clovi it was believed that women of Zoram were the most beautiful in all the inner world.

Ulan he had liked from the first because he had championed the ape-man's cause. He appeared superior to his fellow tribesmen. Besides being a famed hunter and warrior, Ulan was a maker of pictures. These he exhibited with much pride to Tarzan. Upon a cave's wall he had outlined familiar beasts of Pellucidar, sphons of them, like the mammoth and saber-tooth tiger, Tarzan had already encountered; there was one he had never seen. So Ulan called it a gyor.

It had been noonday when Tarzan arrived and it was still noonday. Under this never moving sun, it was impossible for him to tell how long he had now lived with the Clovi. Never within the memory of the tribe had a strange warrior been allowed to remain with them and most of the tribe were uneasy over Tarzan's continued presence. They but awaited the return of Orb and his hunting party, who they hoped would then sentence the stranger to death.

Central Press Canadian Film Writer

Neither the theatre-goer or critic in Canada will take exception to the claim that the closing year has been the most successful in British film production as far as the Canadian reception was concerned. Trade statistics reveal that the number of British films shown in Canada during 1933 trebled the total of the previous year.

Most outstanding in British film productions and the chief cause of their increasing popularity throughout the Dominion is the unmodish overcoming of technicalities which hitherto have otherwise kept outstanding pictures out. Better lighting, better photography, more careful grooming of screen players, have contributed. Better direction is also evident, particularly that credited to Ufa directors who were forced to leave Germany during the Nazi activities.

A glance over the British film releases in Canada during 1933 will immediately bear out the statement that British pictures are now setting a pace which must cause a definite worry to the Hollywood moguls. A partial list of outstanding films of the year includes "The Private Life of Henry VIII," "Rome Express," "P.C. 1," "Was a Spy," "The Good Companions," "Jimmy Sweet" and "Soldiers of the King." All of these productions have skilful story treatment, excellent directing and splendid camera-work, with the German photography influence again predominant.

Henry VIII Outstanding

The British producers continued throughout 1933 to launch that series of well-mounted musical specials, such as "Bitter Sweet," "The Maid of the Mountains" and followed by "Toni," "Love Lies," "Mayfair Girl," "Southern Maid." These have retained almost the identical cast of "Maid of the Mountains" and, owing to popularity with Canadian theatre-goers are Renee Gadd, Nancy Brownlow, Nancy Brown and Lupino Lane. The standard set by Renate Muller and Jack Hulbert in "Bitter Sweet" was again maintained during 1933 by these two stars, notably in "Mayfair Girl." Hulbert in playing opposite his wife Cicely Courtneidge, also created a series of typical British farces that proved successful.

It is likely, however, that "The Private Life of Henry VIII" will head the list of British films for 1933 and come high in the choice of Canadian fans. Alexander Korda, who directed "The Private Life of Henry VIII," is about to release two other costume films. One is "Catherine the Great" starring Elizabeth Bergner and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. the other is "The Girl From Maxim's," starring Frances Day and Leslie Henson in the reminiscence of the "Gay Nineties." Madeleine Carroll, who scored such a success in "I Was a Spy," will also play the title role in "Mary Queen of Scots," a historical drama film now being produced by British Gaumont.

One interesting British film experiment which did not turn out as successfully as was expected was the importation this summer of a number of Hollywood stars whose presence in British productions was expected to offset the complaint of Canadian and United States distributors when British films which were unknown on this side of the Atlantic. Such American film names as Edna Daniels, Constance Cummings, Thelma Todd, Sally Eilers and others took the transatlantic jaunt, but their names did not meet with the expected reception in Canada although the reaction was favorable in the United States. The increasing popularity of British films is shown by the fact that those behind the scenes to be an outcome of the steady Hollywood exodus of British Canadian theatregoers were literally becoming fed-up. With the strong sentimental preference for British films, which more accurately depict the British viewpoint as well as background, the 1933 success has been proved by the aforementioned technical improvement. The claim is not better made that every film to come out of the United Kingdom meets with the general approval of the mass of Canadian movie-goers. Canadian distributors are returning to Great Britain many films which in fact, do not come up to the standards of Canadian exhibitors. However, remembering the outstanding British films of the past year and recalling the trade journal statements is made, however, that 1933 has been to Do For Quota and to the British film industry in Canada.

Mae's Initial Success In Films Brought Rapid Increase in Her Income

By GEORGE LAIT

Written for Central Press Canadian Special by Intelligencer

New York, Jan. 6—To a female screen star, nothing is more important to her than the gala, overdone, Hollywood premieres, the "first night" showings of new pictures. Thousands of curiosity seekers line the curbings of the theatre long before dark, and large searchlights are brought out to illuminate the scene. Then the stars arrive, dressed in their latest party clothes. They parade through the lobby and say a few words into a loud-speaking microphone.

Such an occasion is the night of nights to picture stars.

But things were different the night Mae West's "No Angel" opened at the Garish Grauman's Chinese theatre in Hollywood.

Few Screen Luminaries

The screen was there — the searchlights were there—but only a few of the screen luminaries put in an appearance.

The reason, the particular studio to which Mae West "belonged" appeared, kept their piece that the public address system, and strutted their finery for the crowd, but their appearance was missed in line of duty.

Mae's opening served, however, to entrench her more firmly in the hearts and mind of the Hollywood theatre-goers. In the period re-served just before the showing of "the picture" — a master of ceremonies to introduce the celebrities of film stars, Mae made an impromptu personal appearance. In her talk, in which she could have been sarcastic or facetious, Mae was circumspect and made no allusion to the absence of most of the movie elite.

Her Tactics

Instead, Mae delivered straightforward, wise-cracking comedy chatter.

Mae apparently doesn't care a whoop what her professional sisters think of her, or whether they come to see her picture or not.

"I'm not the busy to worry about those trivial matters," she confides. "If they don't like me, that's their business. I've got to keep busy turning out good pictures. That's my business. Of course, I'd like to have them come to see my pictures because they would mean just so much more money in it at the box office. But then I'd just as soon have anyone else come to see my pictures so long as they don't bring it for their money is just as good at the box office as is the money of anyone in the United States."

Mae's unprecedented success was one of the most startling phenomena that ever struck Hollywood and the picture business.

In her first film endeavor, 'Night After Night,' Mae was a mild success in a meager role.

Then Mae made "She Done Him Wrong," film as far as the studio officials were concerned, it merely was another picture.

But "She Done Him Wrong" had not played more than two or three days before the studio executive discovered the gold mine they had stumbled upon in Mae West.

Record box-office receipts began to be recorded.

It was not until then that the picture concern gave Mae West any special attention. When, however, this special attention did begin, it came in an avalanche.

Special From Agents

Special press agents were placed in charge of her advertising and publicity matters. Mae's first film, 'Night After Night," was resurrected and released, with Mae given co-star billing with George Raft.

The picture company began, also, to look into Mae's contract to see whether or not she was getting paid enough.

Well, Mae wasn't getting enough to keep her satisfied, not by a long shot. She was getting approximately $2,000 a week, but weren't other stars getting more?

Mae didn't demand more money. With her manager, Jim Timony, by her side, she calmly announced:

"I don't think I'm getting enough money. I'm bringing more into your box-office than any other star in the business is bringing at the moment. What are you going to do about it?"

Gorgeous Mae

Needless to say, something was done. Mae's salary still is comparatively low when the salaries of some of the others are considered, but in addition to her salary, Paramount has made a bonus arrangement with Mae whereby her pictures bring her income up close to the top of the Hollywood "pile."

Other Sources of Income

Also Mae has under consideration from a weekly national broadcasting contract, under which she will earn more money than many screen stars are making with the film work and sidelines of endorsing commercial products.

Mae's manner of working has recently veered her success. She still works very hard on her pictures, but she is known as the "prima-cutters' delight," for practically nothing has to be done with her after she has finished.

"On 'She Done Him Wrong' we had 60,000 feet of film shot when we went into the completed picture," one of the chief cutters of the studio said. "The only time we had to trim any scene it was because the scene was too long. I don't recall any instance in the three Mae West pictures I've worked on, except 'Night After Night,' 'She Done Him Wrong,' and 'I'm No Angel'—where we had to delete as much as a single line because it was in poor or raw taste. Mae seems to have a way of making her dialogue funny, snappy and clever, but always within strictly within the bounds of propriety."

Censor boards had very little work to do in deleting lines or scenes from Mae's pictures. In "I'm No Angel," only one line was deleted by the censors, and that line in a strict anti-western state.

The Line

In the sequence, a midway barker or spieler is shouting the attractions of the bosthy-society show:

"She shakes it this way and she throws it that way, she throws discretion to the winds," the barker cried.

The mid-western censor board deleted the last portion of this speech, the phrase, "she throws discretion to the winds."

In "She Done Him Wrong" a censorship board on the South Atlantic coast deleted two lines. In one scene where Mae says, "Why don't you come up sometime?" and a short time by a bit player in which one word was deleted.

At the moment Mae and Jim Timony, her manager, are busy on the next picture, in which Mae will play the role of the owner of a drinking house in New Orleans when that city was known for its drinking houses.

Temporarily deserting British films to appear opposite Barry Jones during his Canadian tour of the stage production of "Women Kind," Renee Gadd will be seen shortly by countless thousands who remember her work in the cinematic adaptation of "Maid of the Mountains." Her latest film, "Skipper of the Osprey," a British film in technicolor by W. W. Jacobs, will be Renee Gadd's latest release.

BACK FROM A ONE WAY RIDE

Crawls Through Two Miles of Mud With 4 Bullet Wounds

Chicago, Jan. 8 (AP)—Few men come back from their "one way rides" but John French, 25, a relief worker in the city welfare department, claims to have done so despite four bullet wounds he said were inflicted by his assailants.

Crawling through two miles of mud, French made his way from the little Calumet Creek, on Chicago's far south side, to a point where he was found yesterday by a motorist. He was then taken to a hospital in Harvey, Ill., where he was on an operating table, he told his amazing story and named his alleged abductors.

The men he accused, both of whom were arrested, are Edwin P. Cusack, a suspended policeman and James McCarthy.

French, who is under indictment with several others on a charge of being involved in a $12,000 merchandise theft, police said, declared that he had "talked" and that this was the motive for the "ride."

He named late Saturday night as the time of the "ride." Both Cusack and McCarthy denied his accusations.

STONE CHURCH Y.P.S.

On January 2 the Y.P.S. meeting was held at the home of Miss Margaret Howard her success. She said works very hard on her pictures and she is known as the "prima-cutters' delight," for practically nothing has to be done with her after she has finished.

"The British producers continued throughout 1933 to launch that series of well-mounted musical specials, such as "Bitter Sweet," "The Maid of the Mountains" and followed by "Toni," "Love Lies," "Mayfair Girl," "Southern Maid." These have retained almost the identical cast of "Maid of the Mountains" and, owing to popularity with Canadian theatre-goers are Renee Gadd, Nancy Brownlow, Nancy Brown and Lupino Lane. The standard set by Renate Muller and Jack Hulbert in "Bitter Sweet" was again maintained during 1933 by these two stars, notably in "Mayfair Girl." Hulbert in playing opposite his wife Cicely Courtneidge, also created a series of typical British farces that proved successful.

It is likely, however, that "The Private Life of Henry VIII" will head the list of British films for 1933 and come high in the choice of Canadian fans. Alexander Korda is following the historical costume picture successfully revived in the tale of the mouth-marrying Tudor is evident in the flood of pictures of this type that are now being released and will be increasingly so in 1934. Alexander Korda, who directed "The Private Life of Henry VIII," is about to release two other costume films. One is "Catherine the Great" starring Elizabeth Bergner and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. the other is "The Girl From Maxim's," starring Frances Day and Leslie Henson in the reminiscence of the "Gay Nineties." Madeleine Carroll, who scored such a success in "I Was a Spy," will also play the title role in "Mary Queen of Scots," a historical drama film now being produced by British Gaumont.

One interesting British film experiment which did not turn out as successfully as was expected was the importation this summer of a number of Hollywood stars whose presence in British productions was expected to offset the complaint of Canadian and United States distributors when British films which were unknown on this side of the Atlantic. Such American film names as Edna Daniels, Constance Cummings, Thelma Todd, Sally Eilers and others took the transatlantic jaunt, but their names did not meet with the expected reception in Canada although the reaction was favorable in the United States. The increasing popularity of British films is shown by the fact that those behind the scenes to be an outcome of the steady Hollywood exodus of British Canadian theatre-goers were literally becoming fed-up. With the strong sentimental preference for British films, which more accurately depict the British viewpoint as well as background, the 1933 success has been proved by the aforementioned technical improvement. The claim is not better made that every film to come out of the United Kingdom meets with the general approval of the mass of Canadian movie-goers. Canadian distributors are returning to Great Britain many films which in fact, do not come up to the standards of Canadian exhibitors. However, remembering the outstanding British films of the past year and recalling the trade journal statements is made, however, that 1933 has been to Do For Quota and to the British film industry in Canada.

AT THE CAPITOL

"LADIES MUST LOVE"

Dorothy Burgess, Sally O'Neill and Mary Carlisle are the battling beauties who make a shambles out of a beautiful penthouse apartment, while Miss Knight, who shares the luxurious abode with the other girls, is an innocent bystander during the fray.

Vases, pictures, books, lamp shades and all other movable furnishings are hurled in the air in the rousing conflict, and the wreckage that greets the eyes of the landlord when landlord when he finally bursts in the door is enough to make the strongest moan. The scene is complete. It is the best battle ever seen in this town.

The whole trouble comes about over the loss of a man with money, with each girl blaming the other for bringing out the separation from a much promising meal ticket. The disappointed gold diggers immediately break up housekeeping and go their separate ways—but it doesn't last. More—more—more follows.

An intimate peep into the boudoirs of gold-digging "ladies of the evening" is provided in "Ladies Must Love," with June Knight and Neil Hamilton in leading roles. The picture lays bare the private lives of these delectable maidens, who tell not, but live in luxury—and they find themselves able to ensnare a man with plenty of money and a generous disposition. But that's the catch. Things are not always as rosy as they seem to the outsider, and the schemes of the "seductive sirens" often encounter obstacles which cause the chiseling chanmers to fall flat on their respective faces.

"Ladies Must Love" is an irresistible comedy, a mad, merry musical with hot hit songs—you'll rave about it. Ott Night, Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol — Royal Princess Dinnerware.

AT THE BELLE

"LITTLE WOMEN"

R.K.O. Radio's praiseworthy dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's immortal story of the life, love laughter and tears of a fine old family in the Sixties was a big hit with all in most anyone's "best ten".

Unfolded Saturday three enthusiastic audiences of little women and their mothers and grandmothers along with little men and big men. The sweet fireside story of another age proved to be entertainment that warms the heart and wins applause.

The performance of Katherine Hepburn as Jo and that of twenty other notable artists in amazingly authenticated atmosphere gives the impression of seeing a scene of being the original book brought back to life, with all its characters loving, sorrowing and rejoicing fast as they do within the aged pages.

It is evident that the producer knows of no gains or brains to give this in its original appeal upon the screen. The story and the background that have been good enough for some twenty million readers, an estimate based on nearly two million sales of the volume, were considered good enough for the screen.

The old Alcott home at Concord, Mass., the surrounding scenes, and backgrounds of Massachusetts of the time were duplicated in minute detail.

For beauty and sheer homely power, for naturalness and intrinsic merit in the lessons of life, for all-around entertainment qualities as well as for its picture of a noble era, "Little Women" wins a lasting place in the hearts of the film fans.

Katharine Hepburn, at her best as the energetic, romping, restless Jo, has plenty of competition for histrionic honors. Edna May Oliver is the grumpy old Aunt March, Joan Bennett is Amy, Frances Dee is Meg, Jean Parker is Beth, Paul Lukas, Douglas Montgomery, Henry Stephenson, Samuel Hinds and John Davis Lodge are the masculine contingent, with a group of scenes of being Mermee, while Mabel Concord is Hannah and Mydia Westman Mamie. They all give excellent performances, George Cukers again direction is notable throughout.

And there be rejoicing over "Little Women" among the lovers of t venerable old volume and among t film fans who have yet to learn its quaint spell over several gen erations of citizens, and peoples other countries, too.

"Little Women" will hold boards at the Belle until Wednesd matinee daily, and is one attract you must bring the whole family see and add to the great screen pictures of your life.

Hon. J. D. Monteith Ont. Minister of Labor Dies at Stratford After Stroke

Man of Warm Sympathies and Impartial With All Constituents

HEAVY PORTFOLIO

Believe Strain of Helping Unemployed Situation Hastened End

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 9.—Ontario had suffered the loss of her second cabinet minister in eight days today for Dr. Joseph D. Monteith, Minister of Public Works and Labor, died here last night. Hon. E. A. Dunlop, provincial treasurer, died January 1.

Dr. Monteith, veteran parliamentarian, a man of warm sympathies and noted for his impartiality to his constituents, irrespective of their political creed, had been in ill health for some time, and the strain of his duties was regarded as contributing to his death.

On December 26, he attended the funeral of Andrew Malcolm, prominent Listowel manufacturer and a personal friend, and on December 27 presided over the meeting of Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Dominion government. Shortly after, he was taken up with a stroke and since then had fought valiantly. Last week he suffered a relapse and gradually grew up hope for saving his life. Death came quietly to the stricken minister last night.

Funeral will take place Thursday from St. James' Anglican Church, where he took an active part for over 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. that day. Interment will take place in Avondale Cemetery here.

Hydro Hardly Recognizable

Numerous tributes from prominent government and other leaders poured in on Mrs. Monteith today. Premier George S. Henry, Mr. George S. Henry, who represents his constituents in East York. He referred to the deaths in the last two weeks of Hon. Dr. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Public Works and Labor, and Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, declaring the ministers were virtually "casualties of the depression."

Their deaths, he said, could be attributed in no small measure to the overwork during the last two years, which had been trying times for government heads.

Premier Henry commended the Ontario farmer for his attitude during the economic crisis. He declared that Ontario had accomplished what no other Government, Provincial or Dominion, had done when it balanced the budget and recorded a surplus of $500,000 during 1929.

"The farmers know we have been piling up debt year after year and that the people as a whole will have to take care of it," he said. "Yet, no word of complaint has come from the farmer that I was aware of, for he realizes, I am sure, that in industrial centres like ours, the situation, the relief problem is much more severe than elsewhere."

COMPLETE RECOVERY EXPECTED FOR BAILEY

Soon in Condition to Return Home to Toronto

Boston, Jan. 9.—Irvin 'Ace' Bailey, Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star, injured in a National Hockey League match here December 12, continued to show steady improvement at the city hospital today.

The "Ace" was up and about and will soon be in condition to return to his Toronto home.

Dr. Munro, noted brain specialist in charge of Bailey's case, declined to discuss the player's hockey future. He reiterated he did not want to be a party to such a discussion before Bailey, he conceded he believed Bailey on the road to "complete recovery".

LIBERAL LEADER

DR. GEORGE A. McQUIBBAN

W. E. N. Sinclair, House leader of the Ontario Liberal provincial party, has been succeeded in that capacity by Dr. George A. McQuibban, Toronto. The change came about at the Liberal caucus in Toronto, when, it was alleged that Sinclair had failed to cooperate with Mitchell Hepburn, provincial leader. McQuibban is the member for North East Wellington. Sinclair represents South Ontario.

DEATHS LAID TO OVERWORK

Dunlop, Monteith Seen by Premier as Casualties of Depression

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—The difficult task of governments during the depression has been placed today by Premier George S. Henry before his constituents in East York. He referred to the deaths in the last two weeks of Hon. Dr. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Public Works and Labor, and Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, declaring the ministers were virtually "casualties of the depression."

Their deaths, he said, could be attributed in no small measure to the overwork during the last two years, which had been trying times for government heads.

Premier Henry commended the Ontario farmer for his attitude during the economic crisis. He declared that Ontario had accomplished what no other Government, Provincial or Dominion, had done when it balanced the budget and recorded a surplus of $500,000 during 1929.

"Yet, no word of complaint has come from the farmer that I was aware of, for he realizes, I am sure, that in industrial centres like ours, the situation, the relief problem is much more severe than elsewhere."

RUDY VALLEE CHARGED WITH INFIDELITY

Wife Enters Suit For Separate Maintenance Against Singer

WILL ANSWER

Anti-Climax to Initial Sensation is in The Offing

Los Angeles, Jan. 9.—(AP)—An array of startling charges embracing infidelity, vicious temper, vile language, character assassination plots and niggardly financial settlements were heaped upon Rudy Vallee today by his actress-wife, the former Fay Webb, in a suit for separate maintenance.

The brewing marital storm between the handsome crooner and the daughter of the police chief of Santa Monica, Calif., about which rumors have been flying, broke in the form of a 21-page complaint, which the actress filed in order for a time after being fyled in the Superior Court here yesterday.

At Vallee's own insistence the seals were broken and the charges became public. After he had read them, the curly-headed singer, actor and orchestra leader, a recent arriving in Hollywood to make a motion picture, dropped a hint that an anti-climax to this initial sensation was in the offing.

"I will be happy to classify the answer to certain paragraphs technically by saying that I never have to do this. I have no particular desire to blast the girl. But certainly I will have to defend myself and bring out the charges. I hope I won't have to do it, but if I do, we will let Mrs. Vallee's own voice speak for itself and her letters also."

Many Charges Made

The dark-haired actress, who returned to her home in suburban Santa Monica yesterday, took up in an effort to regain her health, accused Vallee of infidelity with three women. She named only one, Mrs. Valle she knew to be among his troupe. The others were designated as Jane Doe.

Mrs. Vallee alleged the singer's association with Miss Faye dated from January 1929, and has since prominent the New York Press referred to Mrs. Sills had been confronted her husband, and Vallee and his New York attorney both told her the charges were untrue. Mrs. Vallee also believed her husband.

Shortly afterward she came to California and Vallee took his orchestra to Miami, Fla., where his wife claimed he "openly, notoriously and notorious" association with Miss Faye.

Baritone Walks Out On Audience of 1,000

Dallas, Texas, Jan. 9.—(AP)—John Charles Thomas, American baritone, walked out on an audience of 1,000 persons last night, when the management was unable to pay him his fee of $1,500 for a recital.

There was only $500 available, as the audience was made up largely of season ticket holders who had paid a small fee. Thomas expressed his regrets and took a train for Los Angeles.

12-YEAR-OLD MOTHER AND BOUNCING BABY

Since it was announced that twelve-year-old Mrs. Theodore Welch of Syracuse, New York, had become the youngest mother in the medical history of that community, it has been established that similar cases are on record in Canadian hospitals. The picture shows the happy mother with her seven-pound baby and her husband, the nineteen-year-old Theodore Welch. The baby is normal in every respect.

BUSY SESSION IS EXPECTED

Quebec Legislature Opens With Important Work Ahead

Quebec, Jan. 9 (CP)—Ready to put their shoulders to the wheel of government, and with a busy and important session ahead of them, members of both Houses of the Quebec Legislature were assembled here today, awaiting opening of the third session of the 19th Legislature Assembly this afternoon.

Probably the last time he will perform such a function, Hon. H. G. Carroll, Lieutenant-Governor, will read the speech from the throne in which the administration of the veteran Premier, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, will outline its plans to assist the return of recovery in Quebec.

On the other side of the House the Conservative Opposition, numbering but 11 members compared with the Government's 76, will be under a new permanent leader. Maurice Duplessis, K.C., who was House Leader last session.

The speech from the throne was expected to foreshadow, among other things, creation of a system under which municipalities may organize their own electric services.

The situation created in lumber camps throughout the Province caused by what the lumberjacks claim as too low pay and unsanitary conditions was expected to have a thorough airing. The Premier sent investigators into the camps and a report was expected shortly.

Stabilization of milk prices and the need for uniformity in which cows was expected to be dealt with by Hon. Adelard Godbout, Minister of Agriculture, during the session.

2 BROTHERS IN TROUBLE

Lifers on Parole Caught in West Admit Theft

Vegreville, Alta., Jan 9 (CP) — Identified by police as two former "lifers" of Kingston Penitentiary, two brothers, Williams and Charles Newton, today faced three year terms in Prince Albert penitentiary after pleading guilty to charges of breaking and entering a garage at Lavoy, Alta., in September, 1932.

They were arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police Sunday near Vermilion. Heavy automatic pistols were found among their effects. According to police the men were released on parole from Kingston Penitentiary in 1932 after serving three years of a life sentence remitting from a robbery in which one man was shot six times.

Col. Coghill was in his 47th year and had been in the National Civil service throughout the war and later enlisted the Canadian militia, coming to Ottawa eventually as assistant director of organization: In 1920, on the retirement of Major W. W. Bowie, Col. Coghill was made Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Commons. Col. Coghill has been ill for some time.

Harry Coghill was one of the best known officers in the National Capital, alike for his genial disposition and his calm efficiency.

BALILLA MUSKETEERS ORGANIZED IN ITALY

Tiny Blackshirt will Carry Musket for Every Italian Killed in War

Rome, Jan. 9 (AP)—A musket for every Italian soldier who fell during the war will be placed in the hands of a tiny Blackshirt under orders issued today.

An organization to be known as the Balilla Musketeers will be made up of boys ranging from 10 to 18 years. They have been formed in a spirit of carrying on.

Each member will be given a musket, bearing the name of the soldier who fell in the war.

The Balilla organization comprises 800,000 members and is growing rapidly. Italy has 650,000 men in the war.

It was recently announced that a corps of 100,000 officers would be recruited to train members of the Balilla as well as Avanguardisti, who range from 14 to 18.

Pig-and-Liquor Deal of Great Britain and U.S. Seems Assured

London, Jan. 9—(AP)—The proposed pig-and-liquor deal between Great Britain and the United States, appearing today to be assured.

Authoritative reports said that the "American offer" — that the British liquor quota in return for an increase from 14 to 7.6 per cent of the British import quota on American pork products was received by the government today.

Simultaneously, Great Britain is considering a vigorous protest to France because that nation has increased her quota on imports of American goods by 300 per cent while Great Britain remains on a reduced quota basis.

Pending the clearing up of this issue, it appeared likely that Great Britain would withhold announcement of definite agreement with the United States on liquor and pig.

If other countries refuse to give up part of their pork quotas in Great Britain in favor of the United States, exporters, the British marketing authorities are empowered to make an arbitrary concession to the United States. This, it was said, probably would be unnecessary although it was stated that no other exporting country than the United States would endorse a reduction.

Two Thousand Dollar Jewel Robbery Well Planned

ESCAPE POLICE

Pedestrians See Thief in Montreal Window Helping Self

Montreal, Jan. 9—(CP)—Jewellery valued at $2,000 and $100 in cash was stolen from the store of G. H.Bleau & Frere, jewellers, by by, hold-up men today.

The men entered the store while the manager was in the rear talking to his two employees, walked directly to the back of the store and forced the latter to lie on the floor, producing revolvers to back up their orders. They then tied each man with cord and one robber stayed on guard while the other proceeded to pick out the most valuable jewellery from the window.

The man helping himself to the jewellery in the window acted in a nonchalant manner and people passing by scarcely noticed him, thinking him to be an employee.

The bandits were interrupted by the arrival of the owner, G. H. Bleau, but managed to make their escape before the arrival of the police.

THREE CLUBS ASK MEETING

Review Evidence Given in Shore-Bailey Case Likely

Montreal, Jan. 9 (CP)—"A meeting of National Hockey League governors will be called as soon as possible," Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, said today, following a conference by Frank Ahearn, owner of Ottawa Senators, that such a meeting had been requested by the Senators, Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal Maroons.

"A meeting will be held, in fact must be held under the constitution of the league when requested by three clubs," Calder added, but he could not indicate a probable date, said steps will be taken as early as arrangements could be made.

Making the announcement his club had fired in the application for a special meeting, Frank Ahearn declared Eddie Shore should be given no less consideration by the league than was given Howie Morenz after the latter had been severely criticized Art Ross, Boston manager, for referring to Shore's meeting as unjustly.

Bandits Hold up, Rob Man Working at Motor

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP)—Labboring over the motor of his truck which was giving trouble today, Mike Gavanduri, 30, was suddenly found himself confronted by two men who held him at bay in a car, one of whom covered him with a revolver while the other took his cash. The second man went through his pockets and secured a roll of $200. Zakoor was on his way to Toronto to get a load of produce.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 9—Snow and rainy weather continues in the Maritime Provinces, and light snow has fallen in some parts of Ontario and Quebec. It has been quite mild in the districts of Eastern Canada, but has become much colder in northern portions of Quebec and Ontario. The weather has been fair throughout the west, mild in Alberta with little change in the rising temperature in Manitoba. Pressure is high over the Labrador coast and over Northwestern Canada, with high pressure in the James Bay region and over the Western States.

Northern Ontario—Fair and cold. Wednesday, partly cloudy with slowly rising temperature.

Lake Superior—Partly cloudy and moderately cold; local snow flurries.

Keewatin and Rainy River—Fair and moderately cold. Wednesday, by rising temperature.

Manitoba—Fair, with rising temperature.

School Boy Giant's Shoes No. 35 are More Regarded Than Convention

St. Louis, Jan. 9 (CP)— Robert Wadlow's shoes are attracting more attention at the convention of the National Shoe Retailers here than any other pair on display.

Wadlow's shoes, part of the exhibit of a St. Louis manufacturer, are size No. 35. They were made on a special last at a factory cost of $25.

Fifteen years old, 7 feet 10 1-2 inches tall and weighing 360 pounds Robert, known as the "Alton School Boy Giant," came over from his Illinois home yesterday to attend the convention and attracted even more attention than his shoes.

City and District News

NO ARRESTS IN PAST 24 HOURS

Activities were still at a minimum in and about local police circles during the past 24 hours, when not a single arrest was registered on the city's frontier. No accidents or a serious nature were reported despite the slippery conditions of the streets and highways. Since the precautions applied at the police sergeant's desk for a night's duty on Monday night the unanimity of which were in search of employment, they informed the night sergeant.

LANDSCAPE ARTIST TO VISIT ISLAND

Mr. W. H. Moore of Islington, noted landscape artist, retained by the city to draw plans and sugges recommendations for the work on the Zwicky Island project now being carried on by the relief workers is expected to arrive in the city today for the purpose of viewing further work on the island to be carried out by the city engineer. He will make a tour of the island late today to confer with members of the city council.

SURVEYORS STILL AT WORK AT DOCK

Government surveyors, equipped with boring bars and force pumps, are still at work on the Bay of Quinte taking soundings of the bay bottom in order to secure an accurate and complete plan of deepening and harbor development during the coming season. Nearing the whole territory of the upper end of the bay and harbor has now been mapped by the crew.

JANUARY THAW STILL HOLDS CITY

Consistency in temperatures during the past few days has been the only feature which may be termed whose fickleness and changeability since the New Year's have been most unusual for even the variable kind the country is noted for. On Tuesday another brand of nature's offerings was in evidence, with large wet flakes of snow falling over the district, adding to the sloppiness of the slush encountered on the streets. Sniffles and sneezes are again prominent in the city as the usual epidemic of colds make the rounds following the unseasonable change from sub zero temperatures to spring-like weather.

SGTS. ARGYLL L. I. HOLD FIRST EUCHRE

Warrant officers and sergeants connected with the Argyll Light Infantry of this city were last evening at home to a number of relatives and friends. The pleasing function took place in the sergeants' room and sergeants' mess at the armouries and those present certainly enjoyed it. The committee in charge left nothing undone for the comfort and pleasure of their guests and their efforts were appreciated. It was a happy event and evidence of cooks make the rounds following the unseasonable change from sub zero temperatures to spring-like weather.

GARDENVILLE TROUBLE HAS SEQUEL HERE

Belleville Police Turn Man Over to P. E. Authorities

Wanted on a six weeks' old charge of theft of money from the home of Mrs. Smith, Hamilton, was arrested as he was leaving the door of a home on the west side of Belleville to answer the door bell that had been rung by Plainclothes Constable Isard, in company with Provincial Constable Ketcheson, on the charge of theft of a breach of the peace Smith of-fence, and upon his arrest was placed under arrest.

Smith is wanted in connection with an alleged brawl and general disturbance at the home of neighbors of Gardenville early in the month of December last when a party is alleged to have been the residents of Gardenville. The party is alleged to have taken place in a deserted summer cottage at Gardenville near Picton.

Members of the alleged party had previously been apprehended and fined on charges of disturbance before Magistrate Calnan at Picton. They included Lorne Hamilton and James Lovelace and taken to Picton.

PREMIER'S SON WILL SPEAK IN SIDNEY

Mr. George W. Henry Makes His Debut in Campaign

Mr. George W. Henry, son of Premier Henry, will be the chief speaker tonight at Sidney Town Hall at the meeting of the newly organized club of Young Conservatives in Sidney. Mr. Henry is named the head of the provincial organization and will be welcomed by Mr. Jack Sargent, Jr., president of the local association.

The young orator, son of the Prime Minister, is spending the day in Belleville as the guest of Mr. H. Ireland, M.P.P., chief whip of the Conservatives in Ontario.

Mr. Henry will be accompanied by a number of young Conservatives.

This is the opening of young Mr. Henry's campaign in support of his father's political fences.

FILING SYSTEM AT CITY HALL INSTALLED

Member of Company Will Instruct Staff on Detail

Green steel filing cabinets, the drawers of which slide with silent and effortless ease, now installed in the office of the general clerk at the city hall this week have added a new air of efficiency to the scheme by replacing the old-time wooden cabinets now in use, which had become antiquated and unable to handle the increasing volume of correspondence relating to civic business. The cabinet have been installed by the Globe Filing Company from whom they were purchased and the system will be explained in detail to assistants of the office this week by another official of the company.

BEST ICE IN YEARS BEING CUT BY DEALERS

Uniform Thickness of 16 Inches and Fine Quality

Described as the best ice seen in years, the first crop of the season from the bay of Quinte was being harvested today.

Mr. Robb, Orr, first of the ice men merchants dealers to commence the work had a fairly large gang at work since early in the morning east of the government dock and with the aid of two teams and a large gasoline engine driven power saw was hard at work, and also several trucks on which was loading the wallting, horse-drawn sleighs. Given favorable weather, it is expected that the rest of the city's dealers will commence their cutting tomorrow. Plots have already been staked by them, with evergreens marking the appropriate boundary lines.

The ice is a uniform depth, averaging 16 inches in thickness, and is clear blue and steely hard. Little snow now remains on the surface after the rainfall of the earlier part of the week, and the cakes are clear ice all the way through. This year few blow holes have been seen on the surface of the frozen-over bay, and travel across the surface is declared to be fairly safe at any point.

Over Three Hundred Attend Opening of Week of Prayer

Auspicious Opening of United Prayer Services

ADDRESS

The annual Week of Unified Prayer was conducted locally under the auspices of the Belleville Ministerial Association, opened last night. An excellent congregation, well over three hundred persons assembled in St. Andrew's Church and gave the 1934 series of meetings an auspicious opening.

With the pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. J. A. Patterson were seated Rev. A. B. Payne and Rev. Dr. Bishop. Music was rendered by a composite choir under direction of the church organist, Professor Wheeler.

The opening and closing exercises were led by the pastor and Scriptiure lessons were read by Rev. Dr. Bishop.

The address of the evening was presented by Rev. A. B. Payne of St. Thomas', based on the words of Rev. 19-6—"The Lord God Omnipotent reigneth," which served as a powerful background for the address entitled, "The Need of The World." Rev. A. B. Payne exhorted the large prayer-congregation to look to the world the spirit of thanksgiving for the Kingdom of God in the world, and that the world should not be so self-conscious and forget its dependence upon God. The speaker then drew a beautiful word picture of the Kingship of God. He reminded his hearers of the days of prosperity the world had seen, resulting in the harvest of selfishness the world over, and now in the suffering of the present days, man must come to realize the omnipotent, omniscient power of God. Man cannot serve two masters, and the world has been trying to serve pride and mammon, and must now realize the judgment of God.

The subjects and leaders for the evening meetings are as follows:—Tuesday, "The Church Universal", Rev. Dr. Seymour; Wed. Rev. H. B. Neal, Wednesday, "The Family and Youth," Rev. Dr. Semple and Rev. H. Thomas. These two evenings in St. Andrew's Church. Thursday, "Personal and International Life," Rev. G. O. Wright and Bishop Geo.

LEO. J. GREEN ADMITS THEFT

Arrested at Airport After Evading Officers Over Night

Wanted by the police as a suspect in connection with a series of recent breakings and thefts, Leo. J. Green was arrested by provincial constable Campbell at the Trenton airport this morning after Green had allegedly evaded the police last evening when a detachment of officers visited the airport in search of Green who was suspected of breaking and entering two places of business in Deseronto.

When arrested by Constable Campbell this morning Green admitted to the breaking, entering and stealing of a quantity of goods from Deseronto, and also from Napanee, said police. When further questioned by the police, Green admitted he had evaded the officers last evening so as to destroy some of the previously cached stolen goods. He burned a quantity of cigarettes, which he had with him, he had stolen, so stated the police this morning. Under Constable Smith of Deseronto was notified of the arrest and will take the prisoner to Deseronto this afternoon where he will later face charges of breaking, entering and theft tomorrow.

Rev. Dr. Bishop Says Methods Will be Changed Radically

Mayor George Tice, the members of the City Council, Hydro Commissioners, and city officials were guests of Belleville Rotary Club, Monday at the regular luncheon gathering in the Hotel Quinte. President Ed. Bernstein occupied the chair and extended a cordial welcome to the guests with congratulations and assurances of cordial co-operation from the Rotary Club in all matters for civic betterment.

Mayor Tice introduced the aldermen and civic officials, and in a brief address complimented the city of Belleville had come through strenuous times in the past few years, but this year of 1934 was the crucial year and that the city council was already faced with a situation involving the care of a large number of families for relief which looked almost insurmountable. He also called for the support of every citizen and urged where the present cards and reasons for spending the primary cause of disease.

The Real Cause of Disease and Its Correction
It is true that disease only manifests itself in weak tissues, due to lack of "resistance."
Bodily resistance in all tissues is maintained by the life force delivered through the spinal cord and nerves. When there is pressure produced upon spinal cord or spinal nerves at the spinal column, the carrying power of the nerves is diminished. This accounts for the loss of resistance and is the real cause of disease. In treating a diseased condition we locate where the pressure exists and remove it by means. Thus removing the primary cause of disease.

QUARRIED AS YEARS AGO

Memorial Craftsmanship Subject of Address at Y's Men's

"Memorial Craftsmanship" was the interesting subject heard by the members of the local Y's Men's Club at their first meeting of the new year held at the Y's last evening. Mr. Campbell defined a monument as being anything by which a person, event or anything of particular note was commemorated. The speaker, who compiled a local gazette and monument works, later commented on the various monuments to those erected today and startled his audience when he declared that stone and marble slabs are quarried in this day in the self-same quarries they were in in the days of the early Egyptians.

In reference to the various types he explained there were three distinct stones main, namely: the temple, mausoleum and monument type of stone manufactured, "Up to twenty-five years ago little progress or change was noted in monuments in the ancient Egyptian, Grecian and Gothic types predominated both a character of workmanship as marble workers assumed a new method of designing, but since then and to-day we have the modern monument," stated Mr. Campbell, as he went on to explain the interesting manner in which stone and marble is still quarried. Mr. Campbell's address was heartily enjoyed while the hearty thanks of those present were conveyed to him by President Boyd.

Y's Men H. Crowe, Vern Weir and Jack Williams were named as a special membership committee, whose duty it is to look after the attendance of the club. Secretary Brannan announced to the club, that their annual play, "Gilmore's Dress Suit" would be presented at the local auditorium of the club on Friday night of this week. It is the first showing of this farce comedy in Belleville.

CARRY MILK BY AIRPLANE INTO CHICAGO
Regular Shipments Are Begun on Fourth Day of Strike
ACUTE SHORTAGE
Police Guard Municipal Airport to Protect Milk
Chicago, Jan. 9—(AP)—Regular shipments of milk into Chicago by airplane were started today as the fourth day of the city's milk blockade brought an acute shortage to the metropolis.
The first shipment, 1,000 quarts, was consigned to the Wagner Dairy Company. Officials announced additional consignments would arrive hourly. The Wagner Company is one of the largest independent dealers in the city.
Police were summoned to the municipal airport to guard the milk enroute to the company's plant.

HORSE TAKEN MANY TIMES IS BELIEVED

Discovered Gone, When He Goes to Barn Late at Night

LOOP FORMED

South Hastings High Schools to Play Hockey

Stirling, January 5 (Special)—A strange incident occurred on Saturday evening the mystery of which still continues to baffle the police. Mr. Pat Waller who about one year ago removed from Stirling to a farm at Crookston had put his horse away as usual on Saturday evening and when some neighbors came in late on he went with them to the barn to put their horse away only to discover, that his own was gone. Traces of the footsteps of two men were discerned in the snow as well as that of the lost horse. The police were notified and Provincial Constable Hill of Belleville was summoned. The clues were followed for several miles but all the pursuers over fields and through fences. At last the party gave up home returning home at a late hour. Since the horse has escaped or the thieves had become alarmed and set the horse free. Mr. Waller has noticed of late, that the horse seemed very fagged often early in the day. Does was the question at last, reason for it and feels, that this is not the first time the horse has been "borrowed."

Following the usual Sunday evening service in St. Paul's United Church, a fine gathering was held in the Church auditorium. Grouped around the cheery fireplace in the brightly lighted room were all joined in the singing of a number of favorite hymns after which a social half hour was devoted to the entertainment of the guest. Once the Christian Attitude Week Theme was discussed by the leader of the group being Mr. A. J. Dobbie.

Miss M. Fitzpatrick, R.N., returned to Cambridge, New York on Wednesday after having spent some time duties on the staff of the Mary Morris Memorial Hospital after spending a month's vacation the guest of her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick.

Mr. J. J. Maunsell of Toronto, visited Stirling, friends for a short week end.

Roads and highways surrounding the village have been in a terrible condition since Friday, especially on Sunday. One car is reported to have turned around on the road and the icy road in attempting to make the Campbell hill. Fortunately none of the occupants were injured and up to now no serious accidents have been reported. Perhaps one of the strangest spectacles of the year was on Sunday afternoon when a skating party of six skaters proceeded up main street during the busiest part of the day.

Miss Hazel Bowerman returned on Tuesday after spending the week the guest of friends in Toronto and since has been confined to bed with a severe cold.

Mr. Vernon Patterson is spending a few days under the parental roof.

Miss Irene LaChapelle spent Sunday in Tweed.

High School League.

A meeting held in the Lab Stirling House on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of forming an inter-scholastic loop in which Tweed, Marmora and Stirling would be given representation. As Stirling had previously entered the South Hastings High School Hockey League with Frankford and Wooler the league was made up only of these and Marmora. However an attempt is being made to get Madoc into the league the other entries in the Southern Section would then play the winner of this group will play with the winner of the Tweed-Marmora loop.

In the schedule drafted for the South Hastings High School Hockey League arrangements were made whereby the Stirling team would be played in the local arena on Friday evenings and those away from home games will be played on Tuesday evenings. Frankford and Wooler games will be played in the arena of the Tweed-town as the Wooler rink is an open air one. According to the schedule:

Friday, January 5 — Wooler at Frankford

Wednesday, January 10—Frankford at Stirling.

Friday, January 12—Stirling at Wooler.

TOWN COUNCIL OF TRENTON HOLDS INAUGURAL MEETING

Mayor Harry Cory Outlines Program of Body For Years

Trenton, Jan. 9 (Special)—Trenton's new Mayor and council were sworn into office yesterday afternoon in the town hall.

Mayor Harry R. Cory in his inaugural address stressed the fact that has fallen to the 1934 council. The speech was delivered eloquently and to the point.

His Worship addressed the gathering:

Gentlemen:—We, the members of the 1934 council, have met and installed in office today fully realize the responsibilities we have assumed.

"Unfortunately, information has reached the press and been broadcast all over Canada, that Trenton is insolvent, which, you know, is not the case.

"We are ready to admit that conditions have been bad and our credit may have been had certain policies been followed in the past, but the situation is by no means hopeless and it falls to the lot of the 1934 council to correct some of the things which are far from right and it is the intention to do just that.

"This is going to take some drastic measures in order to accomplish our desire, but we are confident we have full responsibility for these moves, and believe that the public will see that Trenton will come through with flying colors.

"We have in your liquid assets account $139,105.99 of uncollected taxes. This sum, however, has been asked for a list of these to be in our hands by January 15, and as soon as this list is received, they will be gone over and every endeavor made to immediately taken to collect all that are collectable. This will give delinquents from January to the end of January to pay up and avoid further costs.

"In 1923 we paid to our schools $44,000.00. In 1933 we paid to our school purposes $21,321.40, so that we have paid our schools $14,778.60 out of general taxes.

"In 1923 we paid schools $44,417.35 from general taxes, and 1933 we pay $29,971.21, so that in 1933 we have paid schools $14,675 out of general taxes.

"This year we are notifying the school boards that the town council cannot consider any increase in excess of general taxes and that revision of their expenditures will have to be made to conform with this decision.

"There is to be a general downward revision of salaries of all employees of the Corporation which position they hold, and in this respect as we realize the fact that the salaries paid to them in the years under the conditions will have so far improved that we may be able to bring their remuneration back to somewhere near its present status.

"We have received a complete list of unemployed single men, both married and single, and it is our intention to immediately take steps to put to work those under the age of 21 in connection with our local M.P.P., Mr. Ireland, re getting them employed on government contracts.

"It is our intention to appoint a relief committee to look after relief in every case on relief in Trenton so that duplication be prevented and assisted and each family receive what is considered a reasonable amount.

"It is our intention to take up with the Government the question of extension of cost and maintenance of the bridge across the Trent river and in this respect we propose to ask for a grant.

"It is our intention to impress on the Government the necessity of the capacity of commencing operations on the Trenton Channel at the earliest possible moments, as a relief measure and that this be brought home to that work, the claims of Trenton men be given first consideration.

"It is our intention to bring to the attention of the government the fact that the unsatisfactory condition of the Trenton-Carrying Place road, and that the condition of this road is losing considerable tourist trade and many thousands, which business is being allowed to go to other centres to which points and conditions are not favorable.

"A commission composed of four of the largest ratepayers is being set up to sit with the town assessor and assessment staff to investigate with the town and report to the council the conditions of assessment, revising values for taxation purposes from a patriotic stand-point to the community.

"Under the terms of the Municipal Act this council is empowered in making immediate application to the board for relief in the proportional adjustment of the town debenture indebtedness.

"Gentlemen, this is our job! It is our belief that we can do it and give the best of our ability we are going to carry it through.

"We will need the fullest cooperation and backing of every citizen in Trenton to make it a success, so let's forget personalities and just remember that-Trenton is our home town, that our investments are in Trenton and that our town's prosperity is our prosperity, while the failure means failure for us all."

Chairmanships

The following chairmanships were selected for the ensuing year: Finance, Reeve Hagh (Chairman); Streets and Sidewalks, Councillor Ernie Ellis; Harbor and Public Works, Councillor Kenny Carter; Fire, Market and Police, Councillor Chas. McEvoy; Printing and Bylaws, Councillor Georges LaBreche; Court of Revision, Councillor Dick Whitley; Indigent and Relief, Mayor Harry Cory.

Here the meeting adjourned to meet in their first regular session at night o'clock.

Long before the time set for the 1934 council meeting, the council chamber was filled to capacity.

Mayor Cory, who was called to see so many out even if they had not the seating capacity, haven't forgotten any promises and are intent to start the machine working to-night.

The mayor said that the unemployed problem, effective January 1st, 1934.

The mayor stated that the council had to reduce the overhead to protect the ratepayers.

He was sworn in by councillor Le-Brash and seconded by councillor Whitley. The following payers be appointed to assist in receiving the revision, Messrs. Harry W. A. Fraser, Col. Bywater, W. Bayley and G. Alyea, and report to the council.

It was moved by councillor O'Connor and seconded by councillor McEvoy that the town apply for an extension of time for the debentures for the years 1934-38 inclusive.

Moved by councillor Whitley, seconded by councillor Carter, that J. J. Hight be appointed relief inspector for three months.

Councillor Hugh Edwards took the chair while the council went into committee of the whole to go over the estimates.

That Mayor Cory be paid $1,000 for the year 1934 and the following were read and agreed to.

To borrow $60,000 from the bank to meet current expenditures.

Five members of the council appointed to the court of revision.

Appointments

That Mr. J. F. Cox be appointed to the Library Board.

Gratifying Progress of Canada

"A More Pleasant Outlook Before Us"

Sir John Aird, President, and Mr. S. H. Logan, General Manager, address The Canadian Bank of Commerce Shareholders

THE BANK MAINTAINS STRONG POSITION

"There has never been a time when a good borrower could not get necessary banking accommodation"

Mr. S. H. Logan, the General Manager, said in part:

On the occasion of our last Annual Meeting we were in the night of the world economic depression which had been intensifying for many months since 1929, and I could then only express the hope that I might live to witness at least some degree of recovery. That hope I have happily been able to see, has been fulfilled through the quite noticeable improvement which has taken place during recent months in general business conditions in Canada.

Continued Strength

The strong financial position of the Bank has been fully kept up and well maintained. Our liquid assets, $246,000,000, are greater than ever, or in amount than a year ago, but they represent a higher ratio to total liabilities to the public, namely, 58 per cent. Our deposits, also, are greater, about $40,000,000, or in excess of 11 per cent. of those a year ago.

Current Loans.

Our current loans stand at $228,000,000, as compared with $246,000,000 a year ago.

Deposits payable after notice aggregate $152,390,000 and non-interest bearing deposits $93,610,000, as compared with $379,100,000 and $90,300,000 respectively at the previous statement.

We have entered upon the Dominion Realty Company, although it is not one of the subsidiaries, primarily at our own many of our buildings, including the one in which this Bank has its home. All the shares of its capital stock are owned by this Bank. The asset is carried in our statement at only $3,000,000 although the actual value of the shares exceeds $15,000,000. The Realty Company is yielding a satisfactory return upon the investment. It has proved to be a most popular office building, about 5,000 people entering and leaving it daily. The vacant space it has the rental space been less than 99 per cent occupied.

Commission on Banking.

This has been an unusually important year in the history of Canadian banking. We have witnessed the appointment of an extensive financial structure by the Royal Commission on Banking and Currency, whose Report many of you no doubt have perused in detail. The Commission at its numerous sessions throughout the Dominion, heard the views of banks and individuals the opportunity of expressing their opinions.

The chief criticism throughout these hearings was that the banks did not lend freely enough and that interest charges were altogether too high. There has never been a time when the banks were unwilling to not get necessary banking accommodation. By the good borrower I mean one who can offer adequate security in reasonable relationship to the needs as well as to the purpose for which the money is required, the banks should, and do, welcome him. Not only co-operate in endeavouring to make it a success.

Bank Note Circulation.

The bank note circulation of this country is regarded as one of the best of the world. Throughout the years, for one reason because of its unchangeable character, it has stood over the last half century. Its safeguards and protection are the envy of the greatest authorities on banking. Sir Edmund Walker, the eminent banker, whose work for the Gold Commission of the United States is recognized as a masterpiece, to quote the following question: "Whether it would not be desirable to abandon the monopoly of bank issue, and to allow, as in the case of the best joint-stocks banks, the right of issue to any bank which could show that it had complied with notes exclusively for discounting of commercial bills, and that it was strictly limited, and to a certain degree based on the bank's cash system?"

Should the right of note issue be withdrawn from the chartered banks many of their smaller branches would not be able to exist. In order to operate at a profit and would have to be closed. The result to the public realise to what extent the banking facilities of the country would, of necessity, be curtailed if this step were taken.

Broadening Foreign Markets.

The most outstanding feature of our trade during the past year was a sudden and widespread foreign demand for certain Canadian basic products. It is necessary in this connection that I deal specifically with what has already been made public, namely, that the value of our export trade has increased steadily since April, and that we have, as a result of a broadening of our foreign markets, become better customers of other countries by increasing our imports. Nor need I stress the fact that consequent upon the greatly increased margin of merchandise exports over imports ($141,000,000 for 1933, as compared with $37,000,000 for 1932) we have found it easier to maintain our proud record of honouring our external debts, while many of other countries have defaulted, wholly or in part. Indeed, I can point to no two special points, one, how will Canada shared in the improvement in world trade, and the other, the role played by our banks in this most striking economic development of recent years. The latter I will first consider.

It is a matter of chance that Canadian banks are in so strong a position at the close years of unprecedented world depression. Having given up active bank management in order to take up a somewhat independent compilation of Canadian Financial Managers of our banks on the notable growth of Canada. Their services extended to these institutions to the benefit of the country. A remarkable evidence of security, efficiency and convenience. The question, then, is which is preferable: the kind of bank management, as we have it in Canada which we might expect from the advocates of the unit banking theory or their supporters, who, notwithstanding a record of their motives or their qualifications for the task, have failed to grasp practical experience in banking?

Our Wheat Problem.

Again in 1933 we have dealt a heavy blow to our grain growers. The reduction of that crop from the supply to more manageable proportions was necessary, but the descending scale in all the major countries of production, except Russia. But weather conditions on the Continent were such as to damage severely the crops of wheat in Europe to cause the second successive year of shortage. It is now plain that every importing country will be confronted in increasing its dependence on foreign supplies. The outlook, therefore, so far in Europe as to reduce the carry-over of that crop to as much as 200 million bushels per annum. We should lose no opportunity to impress that every authority in the world, political and economical, namely, a better-balanced agriculture, and a greater diversity in making our wheat more widely known. We have the soil and climate and to impress buyers with our ability to grow at a prewilling world prices.

Government Increase Revenue.

The Government have come into experience with their finances our sympathetic and constructive efforts to reduce their expenditures to meet the serious shrinkage resulting from the improved business conditions, at last found some relief, slight though it is. In fact the Dominion Government's revenue for the nine months ended since June over the corresponding months of 1932, which undoubtedly have been effected in controllable and capital expenditure on revenue account, as well as on that of the Canadian National Railways. For more than one year of higher revenue and of economy in fiscal and railway expenditure will be necessary to balance the public accounts.

Suggestions to the Government.

The Bank of Canada has already made the suggestion of a turnover tax by the Dominion Government in place of the sales tax. This, I venture to think, under proper administration, would be less burdensome than the sales tax. I also repeat a recommendation which I have made previously, that some of our admirable Trade Boards be abolished. Three separate organizations each of the Maritime Provinces seems unnecessary, and with some such taxation relief which would follow legislation would be welcome. Unless there is some substantial reduction taxation will be oppressive, if not intolerable, for years to come. Indeed, we need not stop at financial relief and reconstruction, but apply it to municipalities as well.

Restored Economic Vitality.

I cannot grace the upturn in business with the title of prosperity but a more pleasant outlook is undoubtedly before us. There are valid reasons for expecting, if not further improvement, at least the maintenance of our present commendable progress. Of late years we have restored our economic vitality mainly by natural methods; and, secondly, that we are a member of the healthiest trade family, the British Empire. We are, as are only at the beginning of the upward swing of recovery, there is need of the most skilful navigation if we can keep our heads as well in the future as we did when we suffered the worst effects of depression, our faith in Canada will be found to be fully justified.

FATHER AND SON

Rather an interesting event is being witnessed in Ontario with Mr. George W. Henry, son of Premier George S. Henry, entering the campaign in the interest of his father's party, the Conservatives. Such a combination is not usual in Canada, but is not rare in England where the family tradition is often carried on, even sometimes the son fighting in the ranks of another party than his father's.

But Mr. Henry, jr., is with his father's party and in Hastings County which has the opportunity of first meeting this young man. Tuesday night he is slated to appear in Sidney.

Mr. Henry, junior, is not only a follower of his father in the political field but also in agriculture and the livestock business.

Whatever the political views of this people they cannot but admire the combination of father and son fighting in the same ranks for the same political ideals. Young Mr. Henry has already won merit by his work in connection with the association of Young Conservative Clubs.

Too many young men of political leaders do not show up well. Fortunately Mr. Henry, jr., is not of this kind. He might have an easy way ahead of him if he should wish it but evidently he chooses a real field of effort to serve the public.

The premier must be proud of the young man. Friends of other young men can appreciate the glow of satisfaction which must come to Premier Henry to see his son trying to make himself useful in the world of statesmen.

Will young Mr. Henry set a new ideal for young men—to prepare themselves for parliament? Will he be willing to take the best method of preparation, getting right into the field while he is young and learning the business on the foundations.

Mr. Henry has a fine background of course, his father's prominence. This has provided him with an ambition as well as the early education of a statesman and that intimate knowledge of those factors in life which make for the successful public man.

Young parliament and young Conservatives have in this young man a model in picking a calling.

Some young men have a notion that they know more than their fathers. Fortunately that is not a general condition for in most walks of life, it does not take the young man long to realize that the experience of the father is what comes only with years and constant meeting of conditions. It is more likely the fellow who at his best will never equal his father who gets the odd notion into his head that his father is not so great after all. Mr. Henry, jr., fortunately is not of this type. His father's career and his contact with men of all political ranks indicate to him in the right way that he has a model still the one to whom the young man should look.

Fortunate the young man who has a parent whose public record impels him to follow in his calling.

UNEMPLOYED YOUNG MEN

The unmarried unemployed man has been the subject of much thought during the past year particularly. In some places there has been a tendency to try and force him to forage for himself, surely one of the worst outlooks possible and one leading to real danger to the possible breakdown of the morals of the young men. They are at a time when they nee l to be steadied so that when recovery comes they may have the will to go to work and fit into the industrial system.

Mayor Tice and those in charge have worked hard to help this type of dependent, so as not to lose him to society. In many of these young men are latent possibilities which can easily be lost if nobody cares. Fortunately somebody does care.

Of course there are some young unmarried men, who because they have not the restraints of a family are inclined to unrest and to lack of responsibility, but in the ranks of the single idle are many who feel it is not been for the depression would have been filling good jobs and grasping out their future, now unfortunately entirely redirected or allowed to drift until conditions improve and opportunity opens up.

DAIRY INDUSTRY

The recent meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association shows that dairying is one of the greatest factors in the life of this portion of the province of Ontario. The convention brought together leaders who know what is essential to the success and progress of the great farming industry.

Records for the year just past showed a falling-off in production but less than in the western portion of Ontario. Cheese is reported to be of a higher quality than heretofore. This it is which is the foundation stone for foreign demand.

It's very seldom that stark ambition can talk as convincingly as an empty stomach. —Norma Shearer.

THE DAISY FIELD

The daisy field is a field of snow,
For now the winds from the northland blow
And over every hillock and dell
The snow king's weavers have labored well
Until earth, bare and brown,
Of the snow, so white,
So soft, so light:
But to me, in spite of the glistening snow,
It still is the field where the daisies grow!

Like cloth of gold the wide field lay
Beneath the glorious sky of May,
While the larks kept singing a glad refrain
Till the arch of the heavens rang again;
Like cloth of gold,
Spread out, unrolled;
But to me, in spite
And of field were one,
So I only see, where the snowflakes cling,
The field of white where the daisies will grow in spring!

BABE RUTH, the bambino who capitalized the festive home run into large figures, figures he will have to take another salary cut for coming season, visualizing a small slice of $12,000 from his annual baseball income as star home run hitter and outfielder for the New York Yankees, owned by Colonel Rupert, the Beer Baron. Babe is forty-years old, which is age for a ball player in the Big Time, but has a good batting eye and claims he is good for one hundred games next season which should be worth $40,000 of Yankee money. Jacob Ruppert may not think the aging Ruth is worth $400 a game, although it is about the biggest box office attraction in baseball now as ever. Some of the youngsters coming up in the league baseball have been batting out home runs with great regularity and taking some of the spotlight away from the Babe—but still he is a great attraction, and the man who put the home run appeal into baseball. Another $40,000 won't do Babe Ruth any harm.

MICKEY MOUSE MAKES the British Who's Who for 1934, and aint that somepin for we, the Americans, to gasp at. Silly Symphonies of the Screen, Three Little Pigs, etc. Hitler and Beatrice Lillie (Lady Peel) did not make the British Who's Who of 1934, but Stalin, Russian dictator, Dr. Ditmars, curator of reptiles in the New York Zoo; and Alan Villers, do. This publication is called Great Britain's hagiography of the living. Close up on Mickey Mouse among the newcomers to receive honorable mention in this Who's Who, is Josef Vissarionovich Djugarhhirli Stalin, (three lines), biggest man in Russia. There are 903 Smiths and 1,000 Jones's: James Allan Mollison has been included, also Charles Augustus Lindbergh, a repeat in smaller space. Herbert Hoover is cut twenty-one lines. Also, we grab the most space in the book is Sir Ernest A. Wallis Budge, former keeper of Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities at the British Museum.

FOREIGN VESSELS plying the Great Lakes, ocean going craft, are seen occasionally, but it comes somewhat as a surprise to learn that 179 such vessels passed through Canada's free canals with cargoes from foreign ports, last season. Of these 103 were Norwegian registry, showing what a busy sea-faring people the Norse Kings still are. One ship, the Flaks, brought 1,220 tons of pulpwood from Sweden for United States delivery. Another vessel, the Gorm, carried 1,500 tons of chalk from Calais, France, to Chicago. Twenty-two foreign bottoms flew the United States flag; thirteen were British ships; eleven were German; three were registered in Panama, and one came from Sweden. Most of the cargoes were wood pulp for United States paper mills. Sixty-four of the wood pulp cargoes were loaded at Baltic ports, or on the west coast of Norway. The balance was brought from Nova Scotia. Nine cargoes of Welsh anthracite passed through Montreal westbound—right being for Toronto, one for Port William. Seventeen whole or part cargoes of petroleum were carried in foreign vessels, in addition to cocoanut oil, cod liver oil, vegetable oil, and peanut oil. Nine steamers arrived at Montreal from Fowey on the south coast of Cornwall, England, with cargoes of China clay, and passed through the canals and lakes for Chicago delivery. Twenty-one cargoes of sugar passed up through the Gulf into the Great Lakes.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 9, 1914

Messrs. James and Michael Cummings have come from Detroit on a visit to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Cummins, Front street.

Mr. Thomas Ponton has returned home from Moose Jaw where he has been for some time.

Mr. J. V. Jenkins of this city has received word that he has been awarded a tire by the Dominion Rubber Co. The company recently asked the automobile owners in Canada to vote on the three tires their Saturday dates and agreed to give one of their tires to all those born on their birthday or near birthday. Mr. Jenkins was born on St. Valentine's day and this day proved to be the popular birthday.

Mr. Wallace Robb of Montreal, an old Belleville high school boy, as an evidence of his continued interest in the old school has presented a handsome loving silver cup for competition between the high school and public school cadet corps. The prize is highly valued and no doubt will be an incentive to the corps to do their best work.

At the Griffin Opera House at Hamilton recently Mr. Bert Shaw —a Belleville boy—won first prize in a competition for waltzing.

30 YEARS AGO

JANY. 9TH, 1904.

The members of the 15th Battalion Bugle Band last evening tendered an oyster supper to Mr. John Pringle of Winnipeg who is home on a visit and who at one time was the leader of the band. The supper took place at James Wallace's restaurant. During the evening Corporal Parks who organized a band of the ranks of the benedicts, was presented with a beautiful easy chair.

Some time during the night the residence of Sheriff Geo. Hope, at the corner of Bridge street and Bleecker avenue, was entered by burglars. The various rooms on the ground floor of the building has been missed. Sheriff Hope and his family were not at home at the time.

Miss Hague of Havergal Ladies' College, Toronto, is a guest at the home of Col. Ponton, Front Road.

Mr. C. H. Vermilyea is spending a visit with friends in Philadelphia.

Mayor-elect Chown returned home today from a business trip to the western part of the province.

Me and pop and my dog Junior was taking a wawk and 2 men went passed, one of them saying to the other one, that was a purty good dog, or at least it wouldn't be if its front legs were straighter and its tail didn't have that shiit.

Meening Junior, and I said, O, pop, did you hear that? and pop said, I heard it, and I also see what it was werth, and its full value is zero. That berd knows nothing whatever about dogs. In other werds he's no berd dog, I mean dog berd. And I shouldn't be surprized if he was just as ignorant on other topics. I'd like to ask him a few questions on fillosophy and histery, just to see what a blunderer in fillosophy and histery, he said.

Making me feel better instead of worse, and I went away and pop stopped going passed, saying, I dont know if you know it or not, but that's a swell little dog you got there, have you shown him yet?

Shown him? O I see, put him in a dog show, no I haven't as a matter of fact, pop said. I see you think I've got a skoni dog, he said, and the man said, Yes, that's one subject you cant fool me on, especially wire hair foxes like yours. Yes, I said, a little dog he's practically perfect, his ears are rite size for a dog his size, his tail is rite, I cant find a flaw in him, why dont you show him?

Well, after a little some time, it sounds like a good idear, pop said. Anyway its nice to meet somebody that really knows something about dogs. A lot of people think they do but they dont, but I know you were an expert from your first few remarks, he said, and the man said, well, I guess I am, and pop said, so for that there little dog here, he'd make a good dog show with just a little grooming. If you ever decide to show him let me know, I'll be pleased to bring the best terrier plucher in town and I'll greet you rite and my rates is reasonable, here's my card, he said, and pop took it in one hand and kept on going.

Pop has a small slice man chewing gum without leavin the toothpick sticc out of his mouth.

REASONS WHY GLANDS ARE SO IMPORTANT

Diagnosis of Gland Unbalance is Experimental

By Louis E. Black, M.D., Ph.D. Famous Authority on Health and Longevity

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Few realize the importance of glands. Until rather recently they were quite neglected even by the medical profession, but now they are receiving a tremendous amount of experimental attention.

These glands I refer to are the so-called ductless glands" or glands of internal secretion."

The most important of the glands are the three situated in the back head behind, and rather below, the base of the brain, the pituitary gland in the brain, and the adrenals, which are situated on the top of the kidneys. These glands secrete into the blood stream substances which are circulated in the blood stream to every cell. These substances are essential to the growth, strength and health of the body and mind.

If one gland over-secretes or underexercises it seems to throw the remaining glands out of balance—that is, too much secretion or too little secretion in order to compensate for the glands which are out of balance. It is like a system of wheels within wheels.

The result of unbalance of course, is some body or mind disturbance of one kind or another. The difficulty in diagnosis of gland unbalance and of gland treatment is that the experimental stage but some of the results already known are encouraging.

Under-secretion of the thyroid produces in children a stunted stature, dry skin, large tongue, and a dull, stupid mind. In adults there is also a dry skin together with general sluggishness of movement. Over-secretion of the thyroid produces nervousness, a moist skin, and motor unrest. In severe cases it may affect the eyeballs, making them protrude and bulging.

Many disorders and puzzling ailments have been traced to an unbalance of the endocrine glands. Certain remedies have also been obtained through the judicious and scientific administration of gland extracts taken, as a rule, from animals.

Low blood pressure often indicates trouble with the gland-ular system. A blood pressure may also indicate that one or more of the glands being out of balance with the others. Diabetes, particularly in functional nervous ailments, physicians are paying more and more attention to the glands. An occasional indisposition may also be traced to the glands.

The glands are worth watching. Maybe some day we will come to know much about glands that individuals are handicapped with because we know nothing about them. Perhaps then we will come to know something about the glands which cause insanity, insanity and all forms of mental and nerve maladies. Ailments can be quickly checked through the administration of the right gland to set the system in balance again. Certainly stranger marvels in science have already occurred!

Dr. Black's Daily Bible Hint

A spoonful of vinegar in a cup of hot water may begin giving it cooked cereals after the child is four months old. As marked individual reactions to food exist in bottle-fed infants, vinegar may be added to the diet without permission of a physician. The baby will come to like it. Gently, but surely, Kruschen rids the system of all fat-forming food matter, of all poisons and toxins. It tones every fibre to rise to rheumatism, digestive disorders and many other ills.

ALONG MAIN STREET

NOT LIKE THE OLD DAYS—

"The old gentleman with the cane and the heavy muffler with the tassels, the bowler hat round and round his neck under the coat collar stood on the lower deck the other afternoon and made a sweeping motion with his free hand toward a group of men who made their slow way on skates across the murky ice of the harbor. "There has lost the knack of playing things are changed," he commented the old gentleman feelingly. "Takin' like I used to in the days they'll all dressed up in their new fangled doodads," and they wouldn't know how to use 'em if they saw it played." Old Timer's forgetful memory spanned the bridge of time back to the days of forty years ago when the harbor was the gathering place of the elite of the city and the finest skaters in the district in the country. Any body could skate those days, and did, and for the benefit of the four year old at Christmas time was a pair of the old fashioned "Acme" skates which were guaranteed to stay on the toes and developed to the point where he would be safe on the speedier, wooden sole skates of the next year. Then was the days when skating was a real sport, when the "double barrel arches, either" remarked the old gentleman as he waved toward the shabby ice again. "I've seen, in the days before there was a town line on the ice, to the other with flagpoles and bunting floating in the breeze, and the band playing and the fireworks at night. Yes sir, there was a time when there was more than one kind of skate and you could skate back to Massassaga and back again without stopping twice or thrice. Then one got a crack on the shins they went off to the skating rink and got a little. There wasn't any time kept and the players just kept on until the ice got too slushy to play on. There was a lengthy pause. Out on the ice a small group of men skated listlessly to and fro. Old Timer's head drooped. "Huh!" he said, "there ain't none of them young sports could make his ankles bend to the ice if he tried. Wish I was about twenty-five years younger." He turned and went off, seemingly hard with the case as he went.

THE WEDDING—

Mr. Phil Bert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bert was the bridegroom of Miss Ruhl Rights today. The ceremony took place at the groom's parents home, and was largely attended, after the London gathering.

Mr. Nut was attended by Mr. Phil as groomsman. As the groom approached the altar he was the cynosure of all eyes. Blushing prettily, he replied to the question of the clergyman in low but firm tones. He was charmingly clad in a new pepper and salt mixture of coat, vest and pants. The coat, of some dark material, was draped around the shoulders and tastefully gathered at the arms. A pretty spray was set at the front. The same one that was worn by his grandfather and father on their wedding day. Mr. Nut would neither confirm or deny the truth of this sentimental touch. It was gracefully fashioned with pockets set in the back was sewn together by a strap and buckles of the same material.

The groom's pants were of dark worsted, and were suspended from his waist, falling in a straight line almost to the floor. The severe simplicity of the garment was relieved by the right pant leg which was caught up about four inches by a Boston garter, which was under-neath, revealing just the proper amount of the white cotton hose of genuine leather. Laced with patent leather shoes completed the fact was rather chic.

Beneath the vest the groom wore blue gallows attached fore and aft to the pants and passing to a curve over the shoulders. For practical and useful part of the costume they were found unsatisfactory and not the groom muffled the ring when Mr. Pate slipped it on the bride's finger. He tried to recover the errant circlet the pants and suspenders proved unequal to the task. His neck was encircled by a collar characteristic of the clergy, saw duty around the collar a crawl was loosely knotted. The bride was attired in her self ear and gave that studied effect of expectancy which marks an occasional artistry in dress.

Mr. Pate's costume was essentially the same as the groom's save that he two stood at the altar a hushed silence fell upon the crowd which enveloped the audience at the completion and solemn ceremony of the contract. Actually you could hardly tell one from the other as they left the church of court plaster worn by the groom over the left ear. This was done by the lately razor. Neither Mr. Nut nor the bride's father would pay the money.

Miss Rights entered, she wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms.

RHEUMATISM GOES WITH EXCESS FAT

Both Banished by Kruschen

When one realizes that the cause of overweight is closely associated with the cause of rheumatism, it is not difficult to understand how it is that the two troubles can so easily be banished at the same time.

The experiences told in the following letter are typical of those of many other sufferers:—"I first started taking Kruschen Salts for rheumatism in my ankle joints. They gave relief, I thought perfecting rather slowly, would remedy both troubles, and you cannot have both troubles and rheumatism with the effect. I don't feel anything of my ankles now and my extra five pounds overweight has reduced 19 lb. in just three weeks. I am still reducing, and yet I eat what I like, and I feel a different person." (Mrs.) B. (Mrs.) B.

Gently, but surely, Kruschen rids the system of all fat-forming food matter, of all poisons and toxins. It tones every fibre to rise to rheumatism, digestive disorders and many other ills.

Campbellford Takes Firmer Grip on Group Leadership by Defeating "Oilmen" 2-1

Ten Minutes Overtime on Sticky, Slushy Ice Needed to Win

SPICY GAME

McKay of Northerners Draws Five Minute Penalty For Slashing

Belleville's 1934 edition of intermediate O.H.A. hockey players, the Dodgers, lost their opening game of the 1934 playing season when after seventy minutes of exceptional hockey a delightfully little-er-junior named Owen Hendy and ballyhoo from the little town of Campbellford blasted all hopes of the locals in winning their initial game of the season, when he scored the winning goal with but one minute to play left in a second overtime period between the Campbellford Maroons and the Belleville entry. The local D.A.C. intermediates at the Belleville arena last evening before the 1,200 odd appointed patrons.

Not only did Hendy score the "million dollar" goal at the "eleventh hour" but he had also scored both of the other Maroon counter in the second frame to open the scoring for the contest in Belleville. The visitors' lead was short-lived, however, when Alex Weir, veteran pilot and captain of the "oilmen", evened the score in the middle of the period to team mates only to have Hendy ultimately steal the limelight and assume the hero role of the evening.

Mayor Tice officiated at the local hockey season joyfully on its way when he faced the puck to open hostilities between the two ancient rivals, Campbellford and Belleville on a slushy ice that had proven most unsatisfactory to the local's style of play and it was at times impossible to attempt combination of any description owing to the absurdly slushy condition, although the ice was in good condition taking into consideration the mild weather spell. The local speed merchants were also handicapped considerably by the slow ice conditions which in the opinion of the Dobertys chances to victory.

Buskard Not To Blame

After an absence of three seasons from the Belleville hockey wars, Buskard returned to guard the local nets and incidentally did yeoman service on the nightly play, netting what scored against him being fundamentally his own fault although Jim Bibler outshone his two counterparts during the early stages of the best of the three rear guardmen while carrying the local's initial front line of Pels and Carl Morgan flanking Roy Covert at the positively critical left point of the Campbellford goal mouth only to be thwarted by the rubber or the puck rather on the sticky ice. The speed of this front line was not handicapped by the slowness of the wet ice. On the second line used Bert Morgan looked the best with McGuire and St. Denis filling in the berths of the veterans. Inability to shoot the puck off the ice, when in scoring position owing to the slow ice conditions cost the Dobertys their opening game as they had the puck on their sticks as many shots on the net as did their rivals, but were lacking that defensive game throughout. The game was a typical Campbellford-Belleville affair with its less than nineteen penalties being handed out by Referee Hunt, the chief offender being Kay, the visitors' right winger, drawing five of the total for a penalty of five minutes for wielding a heavy stick across the back of Bert Morgan's legs.

Manager Pells was forced to use Buster Whitton on the defence with Fred Ingram, owing to a recent injury sustained by Harry Ingram, and incidentally these two Campbellford players were the only regular plays as they carried the bulk of the Maroons' defensive duties on their shoulders throughout, when Morton was not thwarting the efforts of Kay, the visitors' right winger, drawing five of the total for a penalty of five minutes for wielding a heavy stick across the back of Bert Morgan's legs.

MAX KAMINSKY

Here is the new sensation with the sensational young Ottawa team in the N.H.L., which appears to be going places in the league race. Stalling from Fort William, who, on the O.H.A. senior league, Max joins his pals, Scotty Bowman and Gerry Shannon, on the Senators' roster, and already the three of them have established the fact that there is apparently little jump from senior O.H.A. to major league ranks. In addition to his other qualifications, Kaminsky is one of the few Jewish boys to make good in pro hockey circles to date, and Conn Cable when it comes to playing-nomy.

CONTRACTS GO OUT TO NEW YORK GIANTS

Most of the Players Have Received Increases

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.— (CP) — Salary contracts for 1934 have been mailed to the New York baseball team mailed to 25 members of the world champion New York Giants today.

The news they carry will, in the main, be good, says Secretary Jim Tierney.

Those who contributed most to our success last year were received remembered," Tierney said.

We probably have a few differences of opinion, but on the whole I think the Giants will appreciate they are not participating in a downward revision."

Manager Bill Terry signed a five-year contract shortly after he had led the Giants to World Series victory over the Washington Senators.

STIRLING IS BLANKED 3-0

Tweed Scores Impressive Win Away From Home Ice

STIRLING, (Special)— Stirling hockey fans witnessed the first home fixture in the Junior O.H.A. Trent Valley loop on Monday evening when the latest Tweed pick combination invaded the local arena taking the game by a 3-0 count. The ice was in fine shape allowing the game considerably.

In the first frame, the play was fairly even with Tweed gaining a decided edge towards the last of the period. The lone counter for Tweed was netted by MacOuter who, on a nice piece of combination play with Marsh, came through with only Sprentall the goalie to beat to tally for his team. Sprentall standing the Stirling nets was called upon to make some real saves and played a stellar game. Rashotte earned a penalty for tripping Joblin and was in the cooler when the lone goal was scored. The other penalty was meted out to MacOuter of Tweed for tripping up Gibson. The Tweed forwards showed a fine Stirling line for when Robinson was outstanding.

The game was speeded up in the second period and although Tweed held the edge on the play, no goal was scored although each net was seriously menaced at different times. Only one penalty for Stirling was rossed, when it was Rashotte for the locals, second in a scrabble in front of the Tweed net for the puck. Tweed gave the blue line. Several chances for score were lost through lack of team play. Arbor of Tweed was handed the only penalty of the period.

Tweed in the third stanza added two more counters to their total to shoot on Sprentall from every angle, Stirling's goalie was equal to Shanque, the first on a shot from the point and the latter on a nice combination play, when the forward line skated through the Stirling defence for a counter. Joblin was Leal of Tweed and Armstrong and Johnston of Stirling, the latter outfits in the corner of the arena. The Tweed boys continued to storm the Stirling net getting in every stage of five shots to every one of Stirling's until the final whistle sounding the play.

The Tweed boys were appear smaller and more inexperienced than Sam Stirling's but they showed by their combination play, when the forward line skated through the Stirling defence for a counter. PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

(By The Canadian Press)

For the first time since the golden age tough in the National Hockey League Montreal Maroons find themselves with a chance tonight of retaining undisputed sway in Canadian section standing with Canadiens.

What they meet tonight at the Montreal Forum in their fourth game of the season, the Quebec teams will be scrapping for the right to trail Toronto Leafs, a spot they have held for the last two years. They now have a two point advantage over both Canadiens and Montreal Maroons, one of the two will lose that advantage tonight. Not since the days of Cyclone Taylor and Eddie Gerard's team 5-0 Nov. 24, 1923, have Canadiens had a night at the reorganization of the team when Maroons come within striking distance of the Frenchmen in the standings. They have met twice since Maroons came to Montreal and playing a 2-2 tie.

Maroons are looking for a win tonight and expect to get it. They have been going great guns in recent defence bolstering while Canadiens' hasn't been all it might have been. Gerard's team have won two and lost one, scoring 6 goals, beating Boston twice and Americans.

With only five points separating the first and fifth place a shakeup in the United States section standing is likely before the night is over as four teams get into action. Three are playing at home and Americans stay happen.

Beaten in their 1st three starts Boston take on Americans tonight at the Boston Garden with the veteran New Yorkers who seem to have taken on a new lease of life. Lady and Ann were three of their last four games are figuring on giving Art Ross' outfit plenty to worry about.

Detroit and Rangers have staged some of the smartest hockey games of the season, and New Yorkers are looking for another keen battle tonight. Of their three clashes this season Red Wings have won two and Rangers the other.

NOW! DEFENCEMAN

ERBIE GOODFELLOW

A year or so ago, Ebbie Goodfellow was one of the most dangerous forwards in the N.H.L. as a leading goal-scorer. This year, in a frantic effort to find a defence Jack Adams has moved Ebbie back to the defence where he has proved to be just as effective in preventing goals as he was in scoring them.

"Rabbit" McVeigh's "Dogs" Tired but He Can Get Goals

Boston, Jan. 9 (CP)—One of the older oldsters of Major League Hockey, Tiny Rabbit McVeigh, bustled into town today with New York's Americans—the spirit of reincarnation. There was no stillnat said after examining the Yankee coaching staff, what the aged Rabbit might do in the past few weeks.

When the mite came to Boston earlier this season forth a battle with the Bruins, he groaned about "these second hand pants" as a master-mind of fact they had propelled the Rabbit through 13 seasons of big-time hockey and, as the Boston sticks-hurdler pointed out, they were tired. That was when the new campaign was young and McVeigh had not got his archaic equipment properly lined up. The pants weren't coming his way. The Americans were getting nowhere fast and as well, 13 years is a long time.

There wasn't a groan left in the old boy today. He had been practising his hip-drive form slowly, gradually building up a point total, that stood unembarrassing. The Rabbit climaxed his comeback Sunday night by scoring three goals against Montreal Canadiens and leading Americans to a 4-0 victory.

It was pretty close to being a one-man show as McVeigh went about the job of showing Gotham what the 13-season midget can get away with. His mates did score in the third period—a time when you might have expected the Rabbit to be home eye cocked on the shower-bath.

One of Few

Only a few National Leaguers have been under the big top for as long as McVeigh. He broke in with Moose Jaw Maroons in the old Western Canada League when the Prairie circuit raised as a major league. That was in 1921 and when Howie Morenz was finishing his blazing junior career, when Bill and Bun Cook were Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and Eddie Shore was three years away from starting a hockey career.

King Clancy was breaking in with Ottawa Senators in the east and Harry Oliver, Red Dutton and Duke Dutkowski were making debuts on Boston, Dubbywski and McVeigh played with and against each other in high school days in Winnipeg. It was a long time ago when little Rabbit McVeigh hopped over the boards. He has been through campaigns on the Prairies with Moose Jaw and Regina, on the Pacific Coast with Portland Rosebuds. He played a little while with Chicago Black Hawks, but almost all his National League work has been done in the Spangles of the Americans.

Hasn't Slipped Much

The Americans are not packing the goal-getting punch they used to in the past. In 1931 slipped very much. Today he stands in a tie for 4th place in the National Division scoring averages with Andy Blair, Ralph Bowman and Hec Kilrea of Toronto, Dene Roche of Ottawa and Wilf Cude of Montreal Canadiens. He has six goals and five assists for an 11-total.

The old boy has one more point than Howie Morenz, two more than Hec Kilrea, three more than Cude but is inclined to think so himself days when the Prairie boys to watch him very closely tonight.

CURRENT SPORT

"The old hockey game ain't what she was but what is by many long years ago."

"Maybe we should have said what we did before we said what we done there were only two things, and that was stick in order to make the opening of the 1934 hockey season last night a success locally. The ice was in fine shape, the crowd was there and interested, the second season which the Belleville Intermediates have been in existence. Of course the ice was in far from ideal shape for a fast game of hockey, especially after such a long spell but, carrying a puck and playing combination next to impossible as the rubber bounced over the glittering surface like a little white ball some people try to play golf with, but nothing to sing-sing, or what you call 'em, about."

This enough the local D.A.C. dropped their initial game of the season to Peterboro by a scant little brown spanell. The way the little fellers fought and played was the talk almost think he knew what it was all about, as they battled and followed the play up and down the Arena like a veteran rugby fan on a cold autumn day. The fans, the sports writers and the sports themselves did the scribbling and wifily did he proclaim the pastime.

Captain Alex Weir auspiciously acknowledged his position as the new captain of the Dobertys by scoring the locals' only counter. Taking his consideration the leering possibilities of the locals, they should have doubled the score.

At the request of the officers of the local Skating Club we have been asked to inform the skaters of Belleville, that the skating club executive do not particularly relish towards fancy and figure skating as a matter of fact the majority of the members enrolled at present are not ordinary skaters and never have joined the organization to procure certain recreation. The advantages derived by members of the club are many but the feature one, as pointed out by the club officers, is the fact that adult skaters may have the freedom of four hours skating a week without being molested by energetic and youthful boys scooting about the ice in random.

Up in Oshawa they claim the reason they cannot finance a club in the O.H.A. is the fact that the travelling distance is too far. In Belleville we have the O.H.A. Intermediates, defence, A. Gerald and F. Gerald centre Quinn, wings Rupert, Murray, Soho. Orr, Clark, Cordy and L. Rabbitte.

MADOC TOPS CENTRAL LOOP

Madoc, January 9 — The Madoc Intermediates have undisputed lead in the Central League by virtue of a 4-3 win over Marmora in a match that gives them a 4-1 decision on Monday. The ice was very slow, at times having water and slush in it. Play was very rugged but Madoc, who with a 4-1 win over Belleville were just able to nose out the tail-enders by one goal. Cullery in the Marmora nets made quite an improvement and in the second period Marmora should provide stiff opposition to the other teams. The second defence was a tower of strength and was the talcers greatest asset. Madoc was without the services of Roy Ware, the scored four goals against Grill's Garage. The Madoc defence did not play as well, two goals resulting from slow clearing. The Madoc team as a whole did not work as well as in their other game but the vet condition of the ice prevented any team play. Thirteen penalties were handed out but the game was not very rough. Stewart of Marmora collected four penalties.

First Period

Marmora—Shannon.

Madoc—Alexander.

Penalties—

Second Period

Madoc—Akey

Marmora—Clemens

Penalties—None.

Third Period

Final score: Madoc 4, Marmora 3.

KING CLANCY IN KING ROW

In 13th Season of Pro Hockey With Enthusiasm of Rookie

Toronto, Jan. 8—(CP)—When they start voting for the National Hockey League's all-star team at the spring s.f batting Irishman Clancy will receive the unlimited enthusiasm of a rookie who will mark the front-rank contenders, although in his 13th season.

Travelling at a faster clip than when he led the league's defencemen in point scoring in the season of 1928-29, King Clancy today has amassed 18 points with Toronto Maple Leafs in the present season. That's 18 points of any other rearguard in the league. His all-time record, including playoffs, shows 124 goals and 115 assists for a point-total of 239.

Since he started his pro career with Ottawa Senators, back in 1921 Frank Clancy has missed only two games and has been out of the playoffs one season. That was 1932 when he was out of an Ottawa-Montreal Maroon game with a cracker bone and the following year an infected chin kept him on the bench when Ottawa played Canadiens.

HEADS PHILLIES

Jimmy Wilson, recently returned to the Philadelphia National from the baseball club in a trade with the St. Louis Cardinals, has been appointed manager of the club for the 1934 and 1935 season. Wilson succeeds Burt Shotton.

Shotton, with two years still to run on his contract, has been made a free agent.

BASKETBALL

Completely out-scoring their opponents in every department, the Belleville City and Y.M.C.A. senior basketball team won their initial game of the season, when they romped home to a 33 to 19 win at the local Collegiate gymnasium last evening before a fair gathering of spectators. The defensive power set up by the local tri-colored clan proved the undoing of the visitors as they seemed unable to penetrate the local defence.

SHOULD REGARD DEAF CHILD AS AN INDIVIDUAL

Too Often Thought of in Terms of "Mass" Says Speaker

FINE ADDRESS

Miss C. Ford, O.S.D., Speaker at Women's Canadian Club

To give every deaf child in Ontario the opportunity of receiving an education and to bring to citizens a better understanding of the aims of the school, is the ideal of the Ontario School for the Deaf as explained by Miss Constance Ford, director of professional training at the Ontario School for the Deaf in addressing an afternoon meeting of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday.

Miss Ford, who recently celebrated her twenty-fifth anniversary as teacher at the school, is recognized as an outstanding educational authority in the teaching of the deaf. In the children, she said, Deannard, girls' supervisor, is a missionary among the deaf, an education chiefly wrong. The Ontario School aims to help the deaf child overcome, not an institute. Its pupils have every right to be regarded as individual with their own individual problems. They represent a great educational problem for their parents. Their infirmity is an accident that might happen to "your child," said Miss Ford, who then introduced by Mrs. J. W. Bennett, president of the club.

Miss Ford discussed what the deaf child, its needs and understanding felt by their teachers toward the handicapped little ones under their care were apparent in every word. To these children, their teachers are mother, counsellor, friend. No task is too humble, the school is for the children, as Miss Ford pointed out, not for the convenience of the teachers.

Province's Aid

The province of Ontario provides generously for the education of the deaf. A nominal fee of $50.00 is specified as the contribution of the parents but when, as in many cases, this sum represents a problem to the family a certificate from the Mayor or Reeve of their community will admit the child to the school. The children receive board, laundry, tuition, books, medical attention free. They live from the fourth Bay the government pays railway fare to and from their home. Many children come to school poorly clad and without sufficient underclothing and through gifts of friends of the deaf, the school is able to clothe them.

Many fifty children enter each year. This term new students each from the 4 of twenty-seven years of age.

"It's a pitiful thing to have a boy twenty-seven years of age unable to read or write because of neglect on somebody's part to send him to the school. What is to be done with all the children we can get—that all the citizens of Ontario may know of the advantages of the school, that no child will be bereft of an education because parents were unaware of such schools.

"We must not become hardened to plight of the deaf. It is only by the grace of God that your children are not afflicted. Not one escaped the accident or disease that robbed these children of their hearing," commented the speaker.

Types of Deaf

Miss Ford discussed at length the various types of deaf children and methods used in teaching them. These included the children who lost their hearing after acquiring natural language. Their affliction was the result of spinal meningitis, scarlet fever, influenzas or mumps. Deprived of an amusing sort of disease mumps has made children totally deaf.

To a child of eight, ten or twelve sudden and total loss of hearing is a tragic thing and their greatest difficulty is in adjusting themselves to their new condition. Then there are the children relegated to public school, dubbed as sub-normal when partial deafness, inability to hear at certain pitches, or certain vowels makes their speech imperfect. These training it impossible to learn, because they cannot hear correctly are often neglected and arrive at the school at an advanced age because their affliction was diagnosed as backwardness.

Other classes of children are those who hear normally but do not speak those who are word deaf and the children who are totally deaf from birth. There is also the percentage of sub-normal as well as the bright and for these the most broad-minded and most cultured teachers are chosen. If their service for these children sometimes must include the humblest of tasks they perform them gladly remembering that the greatest teacher who ever walked on the earth willingly washed the feet of His disciples.

Children who cannot advance in academic work are taught useful arts so that they may acquire confidence and self-respect that comes from being able to do things.

School Day

The school day was described by Miss Ford as one full of interest and eight to four, senior and intermediate classes having an hour and a half of vocational training daily. Each child has twenty minutes of rhythm work at the piano, a period with the amplifier to gain something from the remnants of speech remaining.

Over forty teachers are engaged in the academic and vocational teaching but after school hours comes an important part of the day, supervising th children in their recreational hours. Miss Deannard in the girls' building with 197 children and Miss Pord in the boys' building with 197 little ones begin an either day, listening to worries and problems, taking the place of parents in the child's life.

That there is no limit to what parents expect of the school was illustrated by amusing little anecdotes. The choicest of these was the appealing letter from a harassed mother after holidays. She had got the pupil's return railway ticket carefully away in her husband's Sunday suit. Unfortunately her husband had died in the summer and had been buried in his Sunday clothes. Had she? What should she do?

In concluding Miss Ford extended an invitation to all to visit the classes and to the club on behalf of Mr. Fetterly to hold a meeting there. Mrs. Bennett thanked the speaker. Miss Ford for her address and invitation. Tea was served after the meeting.

Wedding bells are scheduled to ring on February 10 for Miss Irene Delano Robbins, daughter of the late minister to Canada, and kin of President Roosevelt, whose husband-to-be is Alexander Cochrane Forbes, of Boston. Miss Robbins is shown in gown she wore during debut at British court last year.

GATHERING HONOR BRIDE AND GROOM

On Friday evening, January 5, the many friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morgan of Hallowy in honor of their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Coombes.

The following address was read by Mrs. Roscoe Robson and a beautiful gift of Lady Hamilton silver was presented by Mrs. Clarence Hamilton.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Coombes made suitable replies thanking their friends for their kindness and inviting them to their new home in River Valley.

Lunch was served by the ladies and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all, though somewhat saddened by the death of Mrs. Morgan's sister that morning.

Hallowy, Jan. 5, 1934

Dear Alice and friends, we have your friends and neighbors, have assembled in your home tonight, uninvited guests, to enjoy a social evening with you and to express our good will toward you. Your place in the home will be hard to fill but distance will not prevent your coming. We offer sincere congratulations to you in the choice of a partner although he comes as a stranger to many of us we hope to become better acquainted in the near future.

Alice, you have always been willing to contribute every service in your community and elsewhere. We hope that the same cheerful spirit that has guided you through your business and social life here will be with you in your new home. We feel that we cannot let you go without a token of your Halloway friends.

When you take an inventory
Of your friends both new and old,
When you are adding up the joys of life
That can't be bought with gold,
When you feel the need of some thing,
Who will stand through thick and thin,
We shall count ourselves most happy
If you only count us in.

Signed on behalf of the community, Roscoe Robson, Clarence Rushnell, Clinton Townsend.

W. M. S. Meetings

AIKIN'S W.M.S.

The W.M.S. met for January at the home of Mrs. Fred Weather with fifteen members present with the president, Mrs. F. Grills, presiding. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Grills. Mrs. Parr led in the Scripture Lesson, Psalm 65. Mrs. E. Hubble gave a most helpful New Year's message and Mrs. McMullen a reading. The white tower was most interesting, taken from the Outlook of the Church by five members. Roll call was answered by quotations of noted writers. Mrs. O. Penn gave a temperance reading, "Alcohol from a Clergyman's Viewpoint" by Rev. Trevor Davies. Mrs. Kells gave a reading, "Alcohol's Relation to Crime". Mrs. C. McMullen gave a reading entitled "The New Year". Mrs. W. Bush gave a reading, "The Indian's Gift". Mrs. E. Hubble gave a talk on the life of the writer of the study book, Dr. Hodkin. The secretary, Mrs. R. Pinkie, reported $140.00 raised during the year. Meeting closed by all singing "A Better Day is coming", and prayer. The finance committee met and prepared the plan for the year's work for 1934.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Shannonville W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. W. S. Dies on Thursday afternoon, January fourth, nineteen thirty-four.

Mrs. (Rev.) Clarke the president, extended greeting to the society for a happy and successful year. Mrs. Clarke then read the devotional leaflet "The Busy People Jesus", St. Luke 18, followed by prayer. On the Missionary Monthly, Mrs. Robert MacFarlane, first group leader took charge of the meeting. The roll was answered by a New Year's Resolution, and the first two lines of the Consecration Hymn were repeated.

Mrs. K. Vivian then thanked the ladies for cards sent, two of which she was laid up. Mrs. W. Robertson read the yearly letter from Mrs. F. MacMullen Presbyterial Press Secretary. Mrs. Gilbert Corbett Literature Secretary read a letter. Mrs. Clarke also read a letter on Christian Stewardship. A reading was given by Mrs. S. Elliott on "Our Task". Mrs. Chas. Boulsridge also gave a reading "Enlarging our Membership". Prayer was then read by Mrs. Robt. Mac, Parlane and a duet by Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. P. Knight entitled "Don'ts for the Auxiliary". The Correspondence Secretary was instructed to write a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Charles Lennox. Mrs. Clarke closed with prayer. Two new members were enrolled for the coming year. Collection $2.75. Flower Fund 99c. Attendance 22. Meeting observed and a social half hour enjoyed.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The initial meeting of the W. M. S. of St. Andrew's Church, for 1934, was held in the Church Hall on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 3.

The President, Mrs. Seymour, presided and conducted the devotional period, the hymns and scripture readings demonstrating very fittingly the spirit of the New Year.

The business included the secretary's and treasurer's reports, and the appointing of group leaders and committees for the coming months.

In a brief address Mrs. Seymour referred to the text, "Be Steadfast", as a motto for the year and made a number of suggestions regarding programs for the meetings. Mrs. Bateman was named as substitary delegate to the annual meeting of the Kingston Presbytery to be held in Cananoque on Friday, Jan. 19th.

BRIDGE ST. W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Bridge St. United Church was held in the church parlours, Friday afternoon, January 5th, at 2.30 p.m.

The meeting was opened by the singing of the hymn "O God of Bethel, by whose hand Thy people still are led".

Mrs. Bishop, the President of the Society, then offered prayer, and Mrs. Bateman read the yearly letter, chapter 14, which is the account of the feeding of the multitude with the five loaves and two fishes. Mrs. Bishop also stated there are 160 women in this auxiliary, 2,000 auxiliaries in Canada with 76,000 members. These members raised $758,000 last year for the missionary work. A collection was made to give the best that one possesses, just as was done by the mother of the boy who brought to the disciples the humble lunch of five loaves and two fishes.

Annual reports were given by the different secretaries, also by the treasurer and the leaders of groups.

Mrs. Farnsworth, the Temperance Secretary, stressed the importance of this work as being one with Missionary work in general. This department was added four years ago by the missionary program. A temperance playlet was given at the May meeting and a protest, signed by the ladies, was sent to the Premier against allowing sales of beer and wine in restaurants and hotels.

The Peace Secretary, Mrs. Deroche reporting a meeting given to the study of the League of Nations and what it has accomplished. A little play, entitled "No Jails in the Country" was put on at one meeting by several ladies of the society.

Miss Anglin, who has charge of the Indian Work, reported 34 members, 17 meetings held and an average attendance of 16.

Mrs. Holton, Secretary of Missionary Society reported an increase attendance of 81 as compared with 77 of a year ago.

Mrs. A. B. Schryver, Treasurer, reported cash receipts for the year:

Womens' Missionary Society	$1436.37
Mission Band	50.00
Mission Circle	260.00
	$1,706.90

The quota for the year was $1700

A prayer of Thanksgiving was then offered by Mrs. Wm. Bishop. This was followed by the hymn "Praise God from Whom all blessings flow".

Mrs. J. W. Ackerman expressed appreciation of the services of Mrs. Schryver as Treasurer for the last three years, and a vote of thanks to Mrs. Cowan, incoming treasurer.

The group leader gave a report on the activities of her group during the year.

The officers for the coming year are:

President—Mrs. Chas. W. Bishop.
Vice Presidents—Mrs. E. Farnsworth, Mrs. G. H. Holton.
Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. V. P. Bishop.
Flower Secretary— Mrs. L. C. Richardson.
Strangers Secretaries—Mrs. H. W. Ackerman and Mrs. F. G. Deroche.
Literature Secretary—Mrs. R. P. Davidson.
Supply Secretary—Mrs. C. W. Sherman.
Press Secretary—Mrs. A. E. May.
Stewardship Secretary—Mrs. W. D. Harrison.
Missionary Monthly—Mrs. W. H. Lattimer.
Temperance Secretary—Mrs. E. Farnsworth.
Peace Secretary—Mrs. G. E. Deroche.
Pianist—Mrs. F. E. Houston.

Mrs. Bishop conducted the service for the installation of the new officers.

A beautiful hymn was sung "On Master let me walk with thee, in lowly paths of service free."

Dr. Semple then read from the 25th chapter of Matthew, verses 14 to 30, the message of Jesus to the disciples, "The Parable of the Talents".

The closing hymn was sung "Take my life, and let it be consecrated, Lord, to Thee."

"B.O." GONE... Uncle prepares to say... "BLESS YOU, MY CHILDREN"

I KNEW GRACE WOULD TAKE HIM AFTER LIFEBUOY PUT AN END TO THAT "B.O."

"B.O." has ALWAYS been an unforgivable fault!

IN LOVE—in social or business relations—"B.O." (body odour) is a handicap no one can afford to risk! It's easy to offend unknowingly, for none give a thought to odour-caused waste daily. Take no chances — bathe regularly with Lifebuoy; its clean, fresh, mildly-antiseptic scent tells you Lifebuoy is different from ordinary toilet soaps — gives extra protection. Lovely, lasting lather purifies and deodorizes pores — stops "B.O." Removes germs — helps guard health.

Dull skins freshen

Make Lifebuoy your complexion soap—watch your skin improve! For Lifebuoy deep-cleans—rids pores of clogged impurities. Brings the radiant glow of health to dull, cloudy complexions — makes skins lovelier.

Crashing Planes Dangerous But Profitable in Filmdom

The warlike plane has been weakened in various places for its final crash.

Dick Grace

After the crash—note the crumpled wings that bore the brunt of impact.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 8.—There is a little group of men in Hollywood whose skill and nerve in flying aeroplanes probably is not surpassed anywhere in the world.

Of an original band of twenty-three men, engaged in the business of crashing aeroplanes for the movies, none has escaped some injury. Eighteen of these men are dead, four have been badly crippled.

On the body of Dick Grace, possibly Hollywood's premier stunt man, are wounds of thirty-four sensational crashes. Grace has had his neck broken, his back dislocated, his body pierced by splinters from the broken propellers, motor parts and carved-in fuselages. His ribs have been broken nine times.

$3,500 a Crash.

The daredevils of the movies risk their lives and necks for only one regard: the $3,500 they exact for each crash.

Recently Dick Grace signed a new contract, the terms of which are interesting.

He receives in addition to his flat salary, which is payable in advance, a compensation of $100 a week while he is incapacitated and full hospital attention during that time. He also pays is provided with a rescue crew of eight men of his own selection.

These experts, led by a former captain of the air service, are equipped with a dozen instruments for rescue. One carries a flip-saw, another an axe, another an ax, and others carry four-foot steels bar crowbars, knives, crowbars and fire extinguishers.

Four men manning a pulmotor and three fire fighters complete the crew.

Based on the average of former experiences they can extricate a wrecked stunt flyer from a wrecked and burning ship within 30 seconds.

Fire is the greatest dread of these stunt flyers. It also is the object of the greatest precaution. An actual crash occurring at speeds of from 80 to 100 miles per hour is scientifically calculated. Usually in the case of an ordinary crash a stunt flyer attempts to distribute the impact by side-slipping in so that the wings bear the first brunt of the blow.

The stunt flyer makes no elaborate precautions before a dangerous job except to wear goggles, tennis shoes and a leather coat. Padding of the cowlings and controls impedes the human body. Goggles bodies make the best shock absorbers.

TRAGIC SCENE AFTER MATH OF WRECK

In the mortuary chapel, improvised in the railroad station at Lagny, France, row on row of white, coffin-like cots, the guests of President Le Brun of France (leading) and other officials, when they came to mourn the victims of the most horrible train crash that France has ever known. A blanket for, and trail wooden cart, caused the multiple death of 175 lives, and the injuring of more than 100 more, when the crack Paris-Strasburg flier, travelling at 65 miles an hour, crashing into and plowing through the frail bodies of the coaches of the Paris-Nancy Express. Both trains were crowded with holiday seekers.

SIR JOHN AIRD VIEWS UPTURN IN BUSINESS

President of Bank of Commerce Addresses Shareholders

TASKS AHEAD

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—Sir John Aird, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce today warned shareholders of that institution that unless legislative mergers effected in the Prairie and Maritime Provinces "taxation will be oppressive, if not intolerable, for many years to come."

In his annual address that took note of improvement in business conditions in Canada and other parts of the world Sir John urged reduction in governmental machinery. "Three separate organizations each for the Maritime and Prairie Provinces," he said, "seem unnecessary . . . Indeed, we need not stop at Provincial legislative boundaries, but apply the same consolidation, but apply it to the Dominion as a whole. Taking all governmental bodies, Dominion, Provincial and municipal, into consideration, there is one such body for every 2,500 people, maintained at a cost that absorbs about one-third of the national income."

More Pleasant Income

Although he saw improvement in trade conditions, Sir John said: "I cannot grace the upturn in business with the title of recovery, but a more pleasant outlook is clearly discernible. There are two valid reasons for expecting if not further improvement at least the maintenance of our present comparatively good position: (1) that we have restored our economic vitality mainly by natural methods, and, secondly, that we have escaped the unhealthiest trade family, the British group.

"The president recalled that a year ago he said that the rate of progress would depend upon the degree of international co-operation in tariff and monetary policy, the stabilization of national currencies in terms of one another.

Empire Trade Improvement

"This stimulus",—he said, "could have been, but unfortunately was not forthcoming from the Monetary and Economic Conference held in London, England, last Summer. Notwithstanding the failure of the conference to achieve any of the major purposes for which it was convened, however, the vigor and vitality of business energies that the close of the year showed, and particularly that of the British Empire, in the countries in which close economic association with it, is today in a more satisfactory and sounder condition than a year ago.

Goodwill is Needed

"Our satisfaction in the demonstration which we have witnessed of the recuperative powers of the business world must . . . be tempered by the thought that the fundamental causes of the acute economic distress of recent years have not been removed, and that there is a new hazard in the American monetary experimentation. The problem of clearing the channels of international trade still remains for solution . . . What is most needed is a spirit of international goodwill and unselfish co-operation without which durable progress must be uncertain."

Well Balanced Agriculture

Of the wheat problem Sir John said: "We should lose no opportunity to achieve what we can, especially in the Prairie provinces known originally, at least, for a better-balanced agriculture; to extend our markets by making what bread now widely known as the best bread cereal; and by the same token, our endeavor to sell all we grow at prevailing world prices."

S. H. Logan, general manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce today told the bank's annual meeting withdrawal of the right of note issue would force chartered banks to close many of their smaller branches owing to loss of profits. He urged that the government leave the right of note issue with the commercial banks for 10 years, establishment of the proposed Central Bank by Canada.

Proposed Capital Inadequate

Mr. Logan declared his belief that the proposed capital of $5,000,000 for a Central Bank "appears to be entirely inadequate for such an institution whose liabilities by way of notes in circulation and deposits on its books may extend to hundreds of millions of dollars." He opposed a "present serious exchange risk" he said, the new bank should be not be allowed to carry any important part of the business in other countries, except under the unqualified guarantee of the Dominion of Canada."

He noted improvement in many lines of business, particularly those concerned with the country's basic products and summed up his view of the business situation by saying: "While Canada is still paying the penalty of over-expansion and over-borrowing, conditions are undoubtedly better than they were a year ago."

The upturn in business, he said, had not brought an important reflection in the bank's net earnings and drew attention to the annual statement showing a profit of $1,642,000 which was $630,000 less than the profit last year.

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)— Trading broadened out to-day in a liberal assortment of the penny shares on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, while volume was small in the big blues except in Hollinger, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves which moved actively. The general price tone was firm to strong.

Teck Hughes will become exdividend 15 cents tomorrow and buying for the dividend was active today around $3.10, up 25 cents. Wright Hargreaves advanced to $7.05, up 30 cents and Hollinger to $12.25, was up 5 cents. Lake Shore dropped 25 cents to $46. McIntyre was unchanged at $41.50. Pickle rose up 10 at $12.10 and Bralorne up 20 cents at $7.25.

Base metal issues held narrowly to the upside. Nickel gained 10 cents. Noranda 25 cents and Base Metals Corporation, 5.

The mining market was mainly occupied today with the penny stocks giving several of them a brief and slightly higher prices. The big producers however continued firm and the turnover was on a large scale. Teck Hughes, Wright Hughes and Wright Hargreaves.

Base metal issues were rather slow but the whole group showed slightly higher range of prices this afternoon.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 9—(CP)—Interlisted shares gave the Toronto Stock Exchange strong support in its to-day's morning session and as noon neared the list was showing fair losses. Brazilian was under active accumulation and the price advanced to 12 3-4, a full point higher.

In the beverage list, Walkers Common was up 1 point, Dominion to 54 1-4, Distillers Seagrams 1-8 to 23 3-4 and Canada Malting to 25, cents, to $2.75, and the Brewing Corporation shares 1-8 to 1-4. The other industrial leaders were also ahead also, C.P.R. climbing 3-4 to 13 1-4, Nickel 3-8 to 32 1-8 and Ford A 5-8 to 16.

Banks were less active today but the list held a majority of gains over losses. Commerce was again the lead with a gain of 8 points to 150 while Commerce advanced 1 and Royal 1 to 201 and Montreal 1-4.

In the oils Canadian Oils and North Star were the firm side.

The whole list was quietly strong from the opening, interlisted issues reflecting the improved tone in the New York market. Banks, utilities and the investment group generally higher at mid-afternoon.

Heavy trading in Brazilian at higher prices featured the morning session. Some of the accumulation was reported to be coming from Montreal. Dealings in banks maintained a firm appearance without making much headway on the up side. Dealings in Dominion Bank, Brewers and Distillers had substantial gains, but others were firm.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Jan. 9.—Stocks puffed up a bit today under a revival in the tobacco issues. Trading was quite active but still at a minimum, sentiment apparently improved sufficiently to attract buying in one or more points.

Following the announcement of an increase in cigarette rates, Liggett and Myers "B" jumped 6 points, American Tobacco "B" 4 and Reynolds "B" around 2. These lost part of their gains later. Other equities came out of their doldrums and followed the tobacco lead in more or less purely pace.

Bonds showed some improvement, although U. S. government securities were still a little uneasy.

Aside from the cigarette group, shares of American Telephone gained up 2 and Case and Western Union advanced about 2 each, fractionally.

Canadian stocks ruled moderately higher. Shares of Dome, McIntyre, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were around a half point higher. On the curb Hiram Walker gained a point and Lake Shore nudges a small fraction. Dominion Government bonds were unchanged except for 1s which eased ¼ point. The Canadian dollar improved 1/16 of a cent at 99.87⅛.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Mild weather, and increased receipts, caused local fruit prices to decline yesterday at Montreal. Graded shipments of apples came in f.c.l. lots became generally 25c for Grade A-large, 20c per dozen for Grade A-medium and 20c for Grade A-pullets. Receipts were 922 cases, not an excessive load, but sufficient to cause some accumulation here, taken with last week's increased arrivals.

Other produce lines held steady with last week's closing levels. The butter market was 25¼c to 25¾c per lb. for cartels or f.c.l. lots of No. 1 pasteurized regraded. Receipts were 172 boxes. The cheese market was 19¼c to 19¾c per lb. for current make Ontarios. Receipts 32 boxes. The potato market remained at $1.10 to $1.25 per 80-lb. bag.

Dressed poultry prices to the retail trade, on small lots, are quoted by wholesale jobbing houses per lb. as follows, 2 grade generally being two cents under the A grade prices:

Milfed chickens	21c-22c
Milfed chickens	19c-20c
Fowl	15c-18c
Broilers	20c-22c
Broilers	18c-19c

Rev. W. A. Hunter is Welcomed to New Charge, St. Andrew's, Tweed

Tweed, Jan. 9 (Special) — On Sunday afternoon, Jan. 7th, practically the entire congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was present to greet the new Minister Rev. W. A. Hunter M.A., D.D. recently appointed to the combined charges of St. Peter's of Madoc and St. Andrew's of Tweed. Before entering upon his new work Rev. Hunter preached in Embro, Ont. A number of years ago he was a missionary of the Presbyterian Church in British Guiana, but climatic conditions were not favorable to the health of himself and his family, and he was forced to return to Canada. For some years, after his return he taught science in Woodstock Collegiate before re-entering the ministry.

Rev. Hunter chose as the text of his first sermon a portion of the thirty-eighth chapter of Isaiah in which King Hezekiah, who has been seriously ill, prays for recovery from his sickness. In a masterly style the minister applied the text to present day conditions. The nations of the world have been praying and striving for recovery and leaders tell us that this year of 1934 will witness an answer to our prayer for the recovery of prosperity. The speaker compared the world to a sick man who required the services of a physician. The world leaders in this capacity have diagnosed the sickness as economic and material and have prescribed remedies which they tell us will result in an economic rehabilitation. But so far the progress of the world toward recovery has been very slow. In this day we are facing a movement which means a new world or disaster. In the midst of plenty, men are crying for bread.

The trouble is the diagnosis is wrong. The leaders have proven inefficient. It is a moral collapse not an economic, from which the world is suffering. The world has gone not so much off the gold standard as off the God-standard. That the collapse has been moral is evidenced by the dishonesty shown by some leaders in the world of finance and industry as has been disclosed during the past few years. It is further shown by the attitude of men and nations towards the temperance issue. Today men must pray with King Hezekiah for the recovery of honesty in national life and in personal life; for the recovery of confidence; and for the return to repentance. What the world needs today is not gold but God. Our prayer for 1934 should be "God grant us the recovery of our souls in the sight of God." An answer to our prayer would obtain for us a recovery of the old peace and happiness that belongs to those who are sons of God.

Rev. Hunter is a forceful and interesting speaker, a keen observer of present world conditions and the congregation of St. Andrew's Church is particularly fortunate in having him as its minister.

Resided at Tweed

Jerry Shannon, a star of the Ottawa Senators whose play featured Ottawa's win over Boston Bruins recently and scored two of his team's goals against Toronto Maple Leafs on Saturday night almost caught a place on Tweed Intermediate some four or years ago. Following the closing of the hockey season of March 1928, Jerry arrived in Tweed and for some weeks was in the employ of Gordon Steel Works, Ltd., and was eligible to play for Tweed the following winter. However, about the middle of May Shannon left for Niagara Falls for whom he played until signed up by the Senators recently.

Walter Leal, one of the stars of Trenton Junior O.H.A. team, who has until recently been employed at the Airport, has returned to Tweed and secured employment at Tweed Foundaries Ltd. Walter will materially strengthen Sam Curry's junior squad who incidentally took the small end of a 3 to 1 score when they played a return game in Trenton on Friday night against George LaBrash's bunch of stars.

Three Hockey Teams

Tweed Consolidated School boasts three juvenile hockey teams organized during the past week. The manager of the rink Mr. Fred Hinckle, through his interest in these boys and their physical development has thrown open the arena on Saturday afternoons so that they may stage their games free of any financial outlay. On Saturday afternoon Staff Way's team handed Harmon Simmons' team a real trimming by a score of 3 to 0, the goals being scored by Harry McCaw with two and Harold Long one.

The line-ups:

Simmons' team — Goal H. Simmons, defence F. Thompson, and R. Duggan, centre J. Hindle, wings C. Rodgers and W. McCaw. Sub. G. Johnson.

Way's team—Goal T. Moffat, defence H. Long and S. Way, centre, "Shorty" Long, wings, D. Porritt, and H. McCaw. Sub. F. Shewring.

Referees—R. Sayers and S. Orr.

Some of these lads show real hockey form and will ensure no lack of material in the years to come.

Fine Play

A capacity audience greeted the young people of Halloway in the Opera House on Friday evening when they presented an old time play "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" under the auspices of the local Y.P.S. group. Mr. Laurason Newton who is mentor of the group, acted as chairman and expressed the thanks of the boys for the splendid audience.

The acting of the various members of the cast was very creditable indeed. Special mention should be made of Mr. Orville May who as Sample Switchel acted the part of a Yankee Tippler (very much alive) who eventually (after ten years) decided to abstain entirely from the use of intoxicants; of Miss Helen Caskey, school teacher, who played the part of Mrs. Simon Slade, the tavern-keeper's unhappy wife, in a very convincing manner; of Olive Sarles as Mary Morgan, the drunkard's daughter, whose sad experience, in endeavoring to persuade her father to come away home from the tavern, and who as she lay dying, obtained from him a promise to reform, were very touching. Others who acquitted themselves creditably were Sherwin Cronkwright as Simon Slade, the tavern-keeper, Ruth Cranston as Mr. Romaine, the philanthropist, and Dick Cranston as Joe Morgan, the drunkard.

The cast of characters:

Mr. Romaine, a Philanthropist—Ruth Cranston.

Simon Slade, Landlord of the Sickle and Sheaf—Sherwin Cronkwright.

Willie Hammond, Squire Hammond's son—Bruce Beckwith.

Sample Switchel, a Yankee Tippler—Orville May.

Harvey Green, a Gambler—Gordon Kennedy.

Frank Slade, the Inkeeper's son—Bill Brough.

Joe Morgan, a Drunkard— Dick Cranston.

Mrs. Slade, the Inkeeper's wife—Helen Caskey.

Mrs. Morgan, the Drunkard's wife—Edna Ray.

Mary Morgan, the Drunkard's daughter—Olive Sarles.

Mehitable Cartwright, a Sentimental Yankee Girl—Ruth Brough.

Between acts the members of the cast gave a number of musical selections.

Trio—Lamp Lighting Time in the Valley—Orville May, Olive Sarles, Dick Cranston.

Solo—Honeymoon Hotel—Orville May.

Trio—Down in the Licensed Saloon—Bruce Beckwith, Orville May, Dick Cranston.

Reading—Little Blossom— Ruth Brough.

Motion pictures have returned to Tweed after an absence of two or three years. On Saturday night "Skinner's Dress Suit" starring R. Denny was presented to the devotees of the cinema.

Misses Grace Houston and Isabelle Campbell entertained the teachers at a delightful afternoon tea at their apartments on Saturday.

Captures Star-Nosed Mole

Mr. M. Drinkwater section foreman of the C.P.R. came across an interesting little animal the other day while patrolling his beat. It is the star-nosed mole a little creature about nine inches long covered with very dark fur. It is so called because it has a starlike fringe of cartilage about its nose. The star-nosed mole is fond of life near and in the water and in winter may be seen swimming under the ice in search of water insects.

PTARMIGAN TAKES LONG RIDE ON TRAIN

Bird Brought In to Cab From Running Board of Engine

Dauphin, Man., Jan. 9—For several winters past, ptarmigan have taken occasional trips on Canadian National Railways locomotives in the Dauphin district, but the little white traveller which rode with engineer Richard Smith on his last run has set up a new mileage record.

Perching on the train at Seba, between Hudson Bay Junction, Sask., and The Pas, Man., the ptarmigan rode on the running board of the locomotive, oblivious to the shrieking whistle and clanging bell. Soon the bird began to feel the chill of the bitter wind and Smith lifted it into the engine cab.

When the train arrived at Dauphin, more than 200 miles from Seba, the little ptarmigan, black with grime, made no effort to leave the cab, so Smith took it home with him.

FIRST SEA WATER DISTILLED IN 1593

Present Practice is Not New, Known To Sir Richard Hawkins

Montreal, Jan. 9—On the modern "Lady" liners of the Canadian National Steamships which ply the route between Canada and Bermuda, the British West Indies, British Guiana and British Honduras, large supplies of fresh water are carried and modern machinery is installed to replenish the supply from time to time, the appartus being able to manufacture wholesome drinking water from sea water. One might be inclined to think that this is an achievement of our modern age but in going back over the old records it is recorded that Sir Richard Hawkins, in a voyage he made to the West Indies from England in 1593, had on board a distilling apparatus for the same purpose and they reported the resulting water as "wholesome and nourishing". One of the "Lady" liners is named "Lady Hawkins" after the wife of Admiral Sir John Hawkins who was father of Sir Richard and both helped to write England's sea history in the West Indies.

NEW FRUIT FOR CANADIAN MARKET

Honduran Grapefruit and Oranges Reach Toronto

Montreal, Jan. 9—Large quantities of British Honduran grapefruit and oranges are arriving on the Montreal and Toronto markets this season in competition with the Jamaican product, and during 1934 it is hoped to double the quantity exported to Canada from British Honduras. The forecast was made by A. Leys Brown, agent in Montreal for the British Honduras Citrus Association in Belize.

Mr. Brown said the British Honduras had installed modern machinery for sorting, polishing and stamping the fruit. The origin will be marked on each skin. He told how the colony, surved by Canadian National Steamships, had only 25 acres under grapefruit in 1928, whereas they now have 2,000 acres under grapefruit. Some of this grapefruit are as big as a man's head.

ERNEST HUBBS IS INJURED

Hurt While Getting Out Wood From The Bush

Picton, January 9.—(Special)—Mrs. Weston Leavitt of East Lake, has left to visit her daughter, Mrs. Ernie Stewart, and Mr. Stewart in Buffalo.

Captain James Haylock and Mrs. Haylock are spending part of this week in Toronto.

The death occurred last week in Port Perry of Will Christy, a former resident of Bloomfield.

Mr. Ernest Hubbs of Scoharie, received injuries, more painful than serious, on Monday last, when getting out wood, on his farm. He was confined to the house for a few days, and unable to deliver the products of the Hilltop Home Canners in Picton on Tuesday.

On Friday evening, January 5th, a delightful surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Allen, Union Street, in honour of the natal day of Miss Marion Allen. Eighteen youn friends of Miss Allen spent a jolly evening, with cards and dancing. At eleven refreshments were served and Marion Allen. Eighteen young friends of good wishes, after which dancing continued until twelve.

On Saturday afternoon, Mr. Yarwood and forty boys of the York St. School had a jolly bobsleigh party on the mile-hill. Johnny Skittrell, Ross Rand, Clarence Vestervelt, Gilbert Arthur, Lowell Robinson, Bruce Manlow, Rolland Welbanks, Howard McWilliams and Pat Bailey furnished the bob-sleighs and Mr. Yarwood provided light refreshments for the boys at the close of the afternoon.

At ten o'clock Saturday morning, the Stamp Club met in the basement of the Library with Mr. Van Cott, Mr. Yarwood and Inspector Strothers in charge. Many boys of the Mary Street and York Street schools are interested members of the Club which aims to provide the boys with a hobby, and to aid in the teaching of Geography.

On Thursday night last, at Picton Arena, the game between Wellington and the Picton Fruit-Growers was rough —even nasty in spots. Some hard feeling resulted, when on Friday, it was learned that one of the Wellington boys suffered a broken collar bone. It is alleged that two members of the Picton police force, have been asked to be present at the return game, between these teams, in Wellington on Tuesday night.

ENTERTAINS GUESTS AT NEW YEAR'S

Quite a Euchre Club meeting was held at the home of Mr. Keith Redner, Thursday evening, with a large attendance.

Miss Roberta Wallbridge is spending a few days with Miss B. Jones.

A few of the neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. N. Wilder, Thursday evening in honor of his birthday. The evening was spent in sing song. Afterward a dainty lunch was served.

Misses Marjorie Redner, Ellen Gilmour and Mr. Jack Parley spent a social evening on Thursday with Miss B. Jones.

Mrs. N. Wilder and Ralph are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wannamaker, Havelock.

Mrs. Fred Redner returned home on Wednesday after spending some time with Mrs. B. Redner.

Mrs Stanley McKibbon

After a long illness, Cynthia Ann Scott, beloved wife of Stanley McKibbon, passed to her last rest, at her home at Cherry Valley, on Saturday, January 6th. Mrs. McKibbon was born in Prince Edward County sixty-seven years ago, a daughter of Alva Scott and his wife Mary Ann Rose. After her marriage she lived at Point Petre until ten years ago, when she and her husband made their home in the village. She is survived by her husband, one son, Amos, residing at Point Petre and two daughters, Florence and Edna. The funeral took place Monday, January 8th, at 2.30 p.m. in Cherry Valley Church and was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Gardiner spoke comforting words to those mourning the loss of a kind and loving wife and mother. Interment was made in Cherry Valley Cemetery.

William Wright

At his late residence, Centre St., the death occurred on Saturday, January 6th of William Wright in his 83rd year. The deceased was a son of Eliphalet Wright and his wife, Isabella Pierce and was born at Waupoos, Township of North Marysburgh, where he resided until twenty-five years ago, when he made his home in Picton. Mr. Wright had been in gradually failing health for some time. He is survived by his wife and three sons, one living in Philadelphia and two in Toronto. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and the funeral service was held at his late residence, on Monday, January 8th, at 10.30 a.m. with Rev. S. M. Scott conducting the service at the home, and at the graveside in Glenwood Cemetery.

Where Do All The Old Tires Go To?

Have you ever wondered where the old automobile tire casings and inner tubes go? Argentina is seeking rubber scrap from Canada for the manufacture of soles from the rubber for cheap grades of canvas shoes and the remaining portion of the fabric of tires for the manufacture of sleeves for blowout patches, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Japan is also a large importer of old tires.

Partridge Gives Up Its Freedom For Food

A partridge which discovered that food could be obtained in the animal enclosure of the Charlesbourg Zoo, near Quebec, has surrendered its liberty in favor of permanent residence among the zoo inmates, reports the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways. The Department believes that there can be few cases on record of a partridge giving up its liberty, for it is one of the most easily frightened of wild birds.

"I do SOLEMNLY DECLARE

Mr. William J. Tracey, Toronto, Ont.

I suffered so severely from RHEUMATISM and neuritis that I could hardly walk upstairs or close my hands. After taking Fruit-a-tives for four days the swelling left my hands and knees and I was able to climb a ladder which I have to do in my work."

William J. Tracey

A sworn statement to the above effect was made before a Notary Public of Ontario at the City of Toronto, on October 20th, 1932. Original on file for your reference.

DUMP MILK TO STOP FLOW INTO CHICAGO

Violence Flared Over 100 Mile Area Near Windy City

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—Milk deliveries were halted in Chicago as violence flared over a 100 mile area in a dairymen's strike against reduced prices.

Dumping of milk spread from highways surrounding Chicago and reached into the city itself. Independent retail dealers who attempted to deliver milk had their trucks tipped over or the contents spilled into sewers.

HONOR ROLL FOR MARMORA P. S.

Marmora—On Saturday evening, December 30th, 1933, at St. Andrew's Church parsonage, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth of Ruth Aletta Vansickle of the Vansickle Settlement, and Gordon Moffatt of Marmora township.

The innovation of a Watch Night service drew a goodly number of worshippers to St. Paul's at 11.30 p.m. on Sunday last when members of St. Andrew's congregation mingled with those of St. Paul's to ask God's blessing on the undertakings of 1934. Special prayers were taken by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. Romans 12 was read by W. J. Cottrell and a striking address was given by Rev. C. H. Hollingsworth on the text, "Set your affection on things above," Colossians. The united choirs led in the hearty singing of "A few More Years Shall Roll," "The Year is Gone Beyond Recall," and "O God of Bethel."

St. Pauls A.Y.P.A.

St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. held another enjoyable meeting in the White Hall on Tuesday evening with a good number of members present. It was decided to hold a Box Social on January 16th when a program will be given by male members. The program of the evening took the form of a spelling match which was conducted by Miss Annie Bailey. Sides were captained by Misses G. Lumsden and E. Hennamn, honors going to the former side.

ST. THOMAS CHIEF OF POLICE COMMITTED

Magistrate Finds Prima Facie Case of Perjury

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP) — With no evidence offered by the defendant Magistrate Maxwell decided sufficient evidence had been produced by the prosecution to warrant him sending Herbert Gunson, Chief of Police of St. Thomas up for trial on a charge of perjury.

The charge is an cutgrowth of the investigation heard by the St. Thomas police commission into charges of misconduct laid by their Mayor-elect Angus Y. Johnson. Chief Gunson in testifying on one of the charges swore he never visited at the home of Harry and Sophia Brand at 83 Clarence Street, London, Ont.

MRS. FRANK P. STONE Lacombe, Alberta

You can depend upon the Pinkham medicines. Many women like the Tablets for the relief and prevention of periodic pain. Chocolate coated . . . convenient . . . effective. Small size 35 cents.

"I am forty-six. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets for backache, headache and cramps. It is a splendid medicine for women of my age." —Mrs. Ernest H. Robinson, Shigawake, Quebec.

"I have been taking the Vegetable Compound at the Change. I was irregular, I was bloated across the abdomen, and my organs troubled me. Now I am much stronger, less nervous and in good spirits. My back does not trouble me and I sleep well." —Mrs. Arthur Clifford, Orrville, Ontario.

"Since 1913 I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound off and on. First for a rundown condition and now at the Change of Life. It built me up till I could do my house work lots better. I also take care of the garden and poultry."—Mrs. Frank P. Stone.

CANADA TO HAVE INFLATION OR REPUDIATION, HEPBURN

Urges Monetary Reform Similar to That of Australia

Bothwell, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CP)—What Canada urgently needed was monetary reform, similar to that carried out in Australia and if it was not immediately forthcoming the Dominion would lose out in its fight for World Trade, declared Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, at a political rally here.

"The countries, that have depressed their currencies will get the big share of the trade." he declared. "We are going to have inflation or repudiation," he added.

The Liberal Chieftain said he could not agree with the policies of the cooperative commonwealth, which he declared were unworkable. There would be no true socialism without confiscation, and the Canadian people would not countenance taking over private property.

"It is the abuses of the present system that lie at the root of our troubles," he continued. As evidence of what he alleged was exploitation Mr. Hepburn pointed to the gasoline industry. There was a disparity of eight cents a gallon between the United States and Canadian prices, he said. As Ontario used 300,000,000 gallons a year, the people were being exploited to the extent of more than $20,000,000 he asserted.

Scores Government

Mr. Hepburn scored the Ontario Government for its "extravagances" and declared Premier George S. Henry was misleading the public when he implied Old Age Pensions and Social Service grants would be cut should the Liberals gain power in the province.

Reverting to the Dominion Field, the speaker said Canada's public debt amounted to $8,000,000,000 and with private debt added, reached $20,000,000,000.

He pleaded for a greater interest in the bigger problems of the Dominion. The reason why Municipal Governments could show the best records was because they were closely watched by the electors. He urged similar vigilance in Provincial and Federal matters.

A return to Liberal principles with reduced tariffs and reductions in production costs was the only hope for the country, he said.

White's held their annual meeting at the church on Thursday. A dinner was served at noon followed by the election of officers for the coming year. Meeting opened by the singing of a hymn followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. Minutes of the last meeting were read. Roll call. Report of secretary-treasurer for the year was given. Rev. Mr. Plant then took charge and the following officers were elected: Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Walter Jones; president, Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson; first vice-president, Mrs. William Jeffrey; second vice-president, Mrs. P. Boulton; third vice-president, Mrs. J. Fair; flower and visiting committee, Mrs. P. Boulton and Mrs. J. Megginson; sewing committee, Mrs. J. Fair and Mrs. J. Megginson. Rev. Mr. Plant then closed the meeting with prayer.

Tokyo, Jan. 8 (AP)—Deaths of 71 persons and injuries to 56 in a panic stricken crowd were reported today by the Rengo News Agency correspondent at Kyoto.

ECONOMY TO BE WATCHWORD

Many Municipalities in Ontario Hold Inaugural Meetings

Nearly a score of Ontario municipalities plunged into their 1934 work today, following their inaugural council meetings last night. The problem of relief for the unemployed was a big item on the programme of a number of municipalities and to a majority, economy will be the keynote for the coming year. The trend of times, however, was reflected at Guelph where Mayor R. B. Robson recommended salary cuts be restored to civic employees.

Despite opposition by Mayor C. F. Swayze, Niagara Falls councillors voted to ask the Provincial Government to appoint a Board of Supervisors to administer the affairs of the city. A warning against the move was received from Mayor David Croll of Windsor.

Payment of part of the principal of bonds maturing in December had been defaulted by the city, and the majority of the council considered it impossible to continue paying interest and principal as well as relief costs during the year.

At London a new system of departmental control whereby the civic departments were divided into 12 sections with an Alderman in charge of each, was inaugurated. Ald. C. R. Smith, supervising the relief section, submitted a plan which he claimed would take 5,000 off direct relief. It was unanimously approved. Under the new plan men will be given steady work of 30 hours each week as long as the relief project lasts, instead of getting work only once every five weeks.

IT'S WONDERFUL HOW BUCKLEY'S CAN FIX A COLD SO QUICKLY

That's what surprises everyone who takes BUCKLEY'S for the first time. Accustomed to ordinary cough remedies they don't expect any benefit for several days, and often don't get relief then, and are astounded to find that the very first dose of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE gives unmistakable relief. Take Miss Mary Rysary, Glenside, Sask., for instance — She writes: "Last Winter I caught a very severe cold. I tried several remedies without deriving any benefit. At a friend's suggestion I tried BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. It is wonderful how it can help a cold so quickly."

Whether your cold is mild or severe, the sneezing, sniffing, coughing away deep down, Buckley's will bring you prompt, sure, safe relief.

It acts like a flash—A single dose proves it.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

"I hate it." Sue, grimacing distaste. "Sitting stubbornly where we are as welcome as the plague. Don't you think we've held out long enough, Matty? The thought of staying there another day is poisonous to me."

"Can't be helped. Tonight we'll pack. Tomorrow we'll leave for a short pleasure trip."

Sue, shaking off her lethargy, laughing with the pure joy of promised relief.

"I'm going to get Tommy and take him with us. Where shall we go, Matty? Some place we've never been or probably never will go again. Some place smart and expensive. We've earned it."

"I was thinking of Atlantic City. There's a specially good ocean at Atlantic City. It wouldn't do, though. Not exactly a Randall rendezvous. Green Springs, Virginia, would be better. Horseback riding and all that."

"Riding! Tommy's always wanted to ride. He used to pretend he was riding and gallop around the yard for hours."

"Then it's settled. We'll go to Green Springs. I'll see we have reservations as soon as we get back."

"And I'll send for Tommy to come in tomorrow morning."

Through the countryside where the first breath of autumn, blown on fields and hillsides, had left its tinge of gold and crimson and of purple.

One, mile, two miles in silence. Then:

"Matty, you've heard from—Jeff?"

"Yes, I've heard from him."

"He's staying down there? He's not coming back to mix things up—any more than they are mixed?"

Mathilda shook her head. Not easy to give hope the blow she must give it. She was not misled by Sue's evident anxiety to keep Jeffrey at a distance.

"He didn't say, so I take it for granted he's staying," Mathilda said.

"He didn't say, so I take it for granted he's staying," Mathilda said.

"Anything—more?"

"No. Except that you're to remain in the Randall home as long as you wish, and that it might be better to hold off any plans you have for your own divorce until this case of Hume's is settled."

"My—divorce? Oh, yes—of course I must get a divorce, mustn't I? It's the thing to do. Everybody who is anybody has at least two or three decrees they can hang on their walls. I wonder Jeff doesn't go in for one of those of the tricky Mexican brand with the curleques on it."

Mathilda squirmed in her seat, uncomfortably. Bitterness on young lips disturbed her.

"You sound as if you're going Bolshevik again, Susie," she said. "Divorce was part of the bargain, wasn't it?"

"Indeed it was." Sue tossing her head. "You don't think I'm considering hanging myself around Jeffrey Randall's neck, now our deal hasn't gone through?"

"How do you know it hasn't gone through?"

"I have a rough idea after what the scandal sheets have been saying about me, and after listening to Executioner Gifford."

"I wouldn't be so sure. No deal is lost until its finished. This one of yours is only begun, and so far you hold the high card—your marriage.

"You've forgotten the joker—Gifford's power to accept or reject."

"Gifford's a crusty old shark. But it's my opinion if you know how to shuffle your cards, he can be handled."

"Matty, you're the best! The very best there is." Sue, catching Mathilda's hand in both of hers, pressing it against her cheek in a sudden overflow of those dammed back emotions. "I've got to help Jeff. I've got to save his fortune—for him. Not for myself. I don't want it, I couldn't take any part of it. Not even for Tommy. I'll pay Jeff back every cent we've spent. There must be a way. If there isn't, I'll make a way. At first, on the ship, I didn't understand. I was blind with misery, with ambition, with wanting things I'd never have, never be able to have. I don't want them now. They're stones, they're lumps of lead. Stones to stumble over, lumps of lead to drag down. They cost too much freedom, honesty, the right to love and to be loved. We're going through, for Jeff. But whether we win or lose, Matty, we're going forward. When the deal's finished we're going to get ourselves a couple of jobs. We're going to live like decent wage-earning citizens, not like racketeers."

"Susie, if you'll stick to that speech, we're sure to win." Mathilda's voice went into its low register of sincerity. "The way I feel now I'd give my wages for the rest of my earning life to see the noble cousins of Jeff scrubbing floors and shovelling snow—"

Mathilda's voice was cut off, abruptly, as if by a stop-pedal. An electric moment. A sharp swerve of the car. Impact. A grinding, a demolishing. Things happened — but what? The universe was a void in which insenate bodies plunged toward oblivion.

CHAPTER 24

Voices, confused, excited. Sue, crumpled between the back and front seats of the car, sought to raise herself, but there was a heaviness on her limbs, from the hips down. She twisted her head. The weight was Mathilda. Wedged, like herself between the front and back seats.

Now the doors on both sides of car were swung open. The weight was lifted from her limbs.

"You're all right, Mrs. Randall? You're not hurt?" Conner, the trusted chauffeur, was helping her to regain the seat.

"So far I seem to be sticking together." Sue moving parts of her body cautiously. "What was it, Conner? A bump or a stone wall?"

"It was neither, ma'am. It was a truck, as we was crossin' the stone bridge back there. Just before we got to the bridge a truck shot out of a side road and came for us like a bat out'a hell. I thought it would hit us sure but it swerved and began crowding us toward the stone wall along the bridge. All at once I saw there was construction going on and that there was a gap in the stone wall. There's a twenty-foot drop to the water and I knew we'd be taking it unless I could leap ahead of the truck. So I gave her the gas for all she's got and she made it. The truck caught our rear end. The driver didn't even stop. He must have an airplane engine in that bus of his. Before I could climb out aof the car he was gone."

"He lost control of his truck." Sue, drowning suspicion with words.

"Lost control!" Conner exploded. "Ma'am he could fly that truck better than Linday can fly a plane."

"He could, could he?" Mathilda was back in action.

"Then let's do some flying ourselves. Can we pull out under our own steam, Conner, before more of a crowd gathers?"

"We can," Conner affirmed. "They only clipped at our rear ends."

"Then get us under way as quickly as you can," Mathilda said.

"It's O.K." Sue heard Conner addressing the voices outside the car. "A bit o' damage, but the missus is hook up and wants to get home." The engine began to purr. The car was moving.

"Matty," Sue snuggling close to Mathilda, "they mean to kill me. And you too, because you are on my side."

"We're leaving tomorrow," Mathilda soothed. "In the meantime, Susie, don't loose your nerve. There's a destiny that shapes our ends, some smart fellow said. And he must of been right or we'd be reposing in the river below that stone bridge at this moment. The fact we aren't will be quite a shock to whoever wants to see us there. Odds were a hundred to one against us."

"But who wants me to die?" Sue, thinking aloud. "Not Henry Hume's wife: A dead corespondent is no corespondent. Then it must be Beatrice and Cyril Randall. But how could they benefit? Jeff has married, in accordance with the will."

"A small item you've overlooked," Mathilda said. "Beatrice Randall is in love with Jeffrey."

"Matty, Jeff is her cousin, her own cousin."

"No question. But you haven't figured Beatrice Randall. Shes twisted. She grows in a swamp. Somehow, in the swamp, she's conceived a passion for Jeffrey and she'll feed it with any fuel that will burn, including murder."

"Could it be that Jeff cares for Bea, even though he knows she is as she is?" Sue's heart clamoring against the suspicion. "It's strange, his having her in his houe, giving orders to his servants, giving orders to him."

"If he'd felt that way about her he would have married her," Mathilda pointed out. "The noble cousin is suffering from frustration, and we've got to watch our step to keep her from taking out her spleen on us. As soon as we get back, you get in touch with Tommy. Arrange to have him come in tomorrow. We will send our trunks out in the morning and meet Tommy at the train."

Dusk. Sue and Mathilda, returning from their ride that might so easily have marked the end of their journey, found the same uncanny quiet pervading the Randall house that had chilled them when they left.

"A Mrs. Rumson has been trying to reach you on the telephone," Persons, the butler, informed Sue. "She said you would know her as Delphine Cragston. The number is on the desk in your suite. And there's a telegram too."

From Jeffrey? Was Jeffrey coming back? Oh, he mustn't — not now. To find her struggling in the muck Henry Hume's wife had churned up.

The telegram was from Sue's mother. Herman had insisted they stop off at Colorado Springs. "Feeling better already and the pain is gone from my side. Wish you and Tommy with me in this beautiful country. Mother." So read the wire.

Sue thinking: I ought to be happy. I am happy. Jeffrey Randall means nothing to me, except this—to have mother well again, to have Tommy in school. It was not a bad bargain, in spite of falling statutes and open bridges.

All the time her heart was arguing against her head. Was a one-sided bargain a good bargain? It was a one-sided bargain, for by it she had lost that which she might never regain.

"I'll ring Delphine," Sue told Mathilda. "Mrs. Rumson! Then Delphine must have escaped from her mother."

"Hello, Sue." Delphine lilted over the wire. "Here I am, darling, Mrs. Rumson of Rumson, N.J. Elegant, what?"

"You're married, Delphine?"

"Absolutely welded. Beyond control. To the boy I told you about on teh ship. Sue, I'm so happy I drivel. Listen, darling, now Larry and I are all settled —Larry's the boy—suppose you take a run across the river. We have a dove cote you will adore. It's over the garage he runs and it has a real kitchen with gas range and everything. I bake swell biscuits."

"Oh, Delphine, I'm so glad. You are really happy? You don't miss all the wonderful clothes and places—"

"Miss' em! Wait until you meet Larry. Wait till you see the snappy bungalow aprons in my hope chest. Mrs. S. Van Pelt Cragston is holding out my wardrobe, except the few things I pitched into a bag the day Larry and I eloped. Sweet person, my mother. Helpful. But tell me about Jeff. Is he still the thoughtful bridegroom?"

"Oh — yes—that is—Jeff's in Mexico."

"Mexico!" Sue could hear Delphine's sharp intake of breath.

Sue, forcing a laugh: "He was called down—about the Randall mines."

"Something is not on the up and up," Delphine said. "You sound low. I'll bet the Randalls have been giving you the kind of deal the Cragstons give Larry. Come over to the cote, Sue. We have what'll be good for you."

"I want to, a lot. But we're leaving for Green Springs, Virginia, tomorrow— Mathilda and my brother Tommy and I. We want to be quiet. Let me have your address, Delphine. I'll write you from Green Springs and the minute I get back I'll come to your cote."

"You won't find quiet at Green Springs. But the riding is swell. Take a sniff, please, Sue. I have chicken roasting in the oven and it's calling me. Also I'm about to bake gingerbread. It's Larry's favorite fruit. Don't forget the date over the garage when you get back. And bring Mathilda. She's the sort of fellow who will know what the code is all about."

"Will you have roast chicken?"

"A large juicy hen. And cream gravy."

"Sold. Go on being happy Delphine—you and Larry."

Sue, clicking the receiver to its hook. Turning to Mathilda: "She's happy, Matty. Delphine is happy. She had everything. She has nothing—except her Larry and a cote over his garage. She's delirious about roasting chicken and baking gingerbread for dinner."

"Why not?" Mathilda inhaled the perfume of yellow roses on the living room table. "It's true Delphine had everything—everything except the right thing. The right thing seems to be her Larry. Happiness isn't a bunch of posies. You can't pin it on. You've got to bud it inside you and let it sprout. I'm going to do some intensive packing. In the morning we'll let Gifford and Henry Hume know we're on our way and where they can reach us. I'm going up to my room to get a few necessaries. Lock the door after me."

Sue, selecting this and that from the clothes closets for packing. This black and white sports suit with the green blouse. This flesh-colored negligee of shadow lace. This grey dinner dress with the grey fox on the sleeves. This—the biege coat. The coat that had brought her where she was. The coat she had bought in Paris, with her savings from the hedged in, hard working summer. How perky it looked. As though it had no thought of carrying her into the sea. A smart coat. A darling coat. It had brought her Jeff———. She'd put it over there on the bed. And wear it, tomorrow.

Mathilda returned, bundle-laden.

"The Randalls are entertaining in a big way," she announced. "Guests are arriving in droves downstairs. I peeked over the bannister. Looked like old home week or the White House for a New Year's reception. Nice we're not invited."

BRINGING UP FATHER

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Down the gorge came the whistled signal of the Clovians. An instant later a youth rounded a cliff and entered the village. "It is Tomar," said Maral to Tarzan. "Perhaps he brings news of Carb." The young warrior ran to a rock ledge in the centre of the village. There he paused with upraised hand, commanding silence, and addressed the assembled tribe. "Carb is returning," he said. "Victorious Carb and his warriors. With them they bring the most beautiful woman of Zoram."

Presently the returning war party came in sight, twenty warriors led by a man of great physical strength. The ape-man surveyed him closely, for Carb, he had learned, was great in the tribe's council, and perhaps Tarzan's fate would rest with this big fellow whose handsome face was marred by thin, cruel lips and unsympathetic eyes. Tarzan took Carb's measure in a single glance and then his eyes wandered to the face of the prisoner with him.

He saw a girl with her wrists bound behind her, a rawhide leash around her neck, its free end held by a brawny warrior. She was of startling beauty. Well indeed, thought Tarzan, might she be acclaimed the most beautiful woman of Zoram. Avan, the chief, received the returning warriors in the centre of the village. He looked with favor on the girl and listened attentively while Carb narrated the most important details of the expedition.

"Who is that?" suddenly asked Carb, pointing to Tarzan. "A stranger who has come into the tribe to be one of us," answered Avan. Carb scowled. "Why has he not been destroyed? Let us do away with him at once," he said. "That is for the council to decide, not you," replied the chief. "If the council does not destroy him, I myself will kill him," threatened Carb. "I Carb, will have no enemy living where I live." And Tarzan well knew that Carb was to prove his bitter enemy.

GETTING READY FOR CARNERA BOUT

Tommy Loughran, ring veteran of Philadelphia, will get one more crack at the world's heavyweight championship when he meets Primo Carnera of Italy, the present holder of the crown, in a 15-round bout at Miami, Florida, on Feb. 22.

Tommy is shown working on a small bag at the Hoff gymnasium. This was Tommy's first session of hard work in preparation for the bout. He plans to leave for Miami, Jan. 22. Tommy is former world's light-heavyweight champion.

Dempsey's Great Wish—a Son May be Realized Very Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dempsey

By LEVON E. HORTON
Central Press Canadian Writer

New York, Jan. 9—The stork is expected by Jack Dempsey and his wife, Hannah Williams, of stage fame, the former heavyweight champion of the world told reporters during a train trip from New York to the coast.

The heir will be named Jack, Jr., if it is a boy; or Jacqueline, if it is of the fairer sex.

The announcement takes this reporter back a few years to a middle west state capital, Jack Dempsey was contemplating his first boxing promotion with Floyd Fitzsimmons, and he was waxing upon

Fred W. Green, then the governor of Michigan, the hope of legalizing 15-round bouts in that state.

This reporter was sent to Lansing hotel to interview Dempsey. He found him in the act of shaving. And between whacks at his stubble of beard, which hag been the terror of his ring opponents in previous years, Dempsey answered the queries fired at him.

"What would you like most in the world, Jack? What would give you the most satisfaction?" I asked him.

He hesitated only a second, staring into the mirror.

He said, "A son".

Well, now he may have his wish.

EMPEROR JONES DEDICATES COURSE

Bobby Jones, retired king of golf, drives from the first tee of the Bobby Jones municipal golf course at Atlanta, Ga., thereby officially opening the layout for play. Construction of the course was begun in 1929, the entire expense being carried by the city of Atlanta and the layout named after its favourite son.

AT THE BELLE

"LITTLE WOMEN"

R.K.O. Radio's dramatization of "Little Women", Louisa M. Alcott's powerful and idealistic story at the Belle tonight and Wednesday, matinee and evening, has been brought to the screen without dramatic license and with brilliant sensitive performances on the part of every member of the large cast.

It is a true representation of beautiful ideals and the best in family life.

Katharine Hepburn, starred as Jo, is magnificent. Her performance shades anything she has ever done.

Joan Bennett, Frances Dee and Jean Parker as Amy, Meg and Beth respectively, the other "Little Women", leave nothing to be desired by those who have made the Alcott characters their ideals.

Many movie-goers are no doubt familiar with the story, the tale of an American family, revealing the development and ennoblement of four sisters.

All the characters are introduced. Marmee, the mother of the "Little Women" portrayed by Spring Byington, who leads her daughters through the formative, dangerous years of girlhood.

Grumpy old Aunt March (Edna May Oliver at her best), who first makes life rather miserable for Jo and then ascends her throne by making a "great lady" of Amy.

Henry Stephenson is splendid as the irascible Mr. Lawrence, the Marmia rich neighbor.

Hannah, the March servant, is a small part made big by the artistry of Mable Concord.

Three great actors, Paul Lukas, Douglass Montgomery and John Davis Lodge enact the suitors of the "Little Women".

Lukas appears as Frits Bhaer, the lovable professor whose hopeless infatuation for Jo wrings the heart, though finally, in a burst of intriguing, glorious romance, he wins the heart of this girl who was afraid of love.

Montgomery is Laurie, who courts Jo and finally weds Amy, while Lodge gives an excellent portrayal as Brooke, who wins Meg in spite of everything Jo does to prevent the match.

"Shining Pretty" Tuneful

Mark Gordon and Harry Revel have written ten new hit songs for Paramount's musical comedy riot "Shining Pretty" coming to the Belle Thursday with Jack Oakie, Jack Haley, Ginger Rogers and Joshua Cook heading the talented cast.

The songs include "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" "Many Moons Ago," "You're Such a Comfort to Me," "Good Morning, Glory" and "I Wanna Meander and Wander."

AT THE CAPITOL

"LADIES MUST LOVE"

A cat's neck is a strange place for a diamond bracelet—but it's a strange place for a girl's patent! On the terrace of a New York penthouse one evening a rich young man offered a girl a sparkling bracelet "just as a remembrance" —but the girl had a conscience, and refused the costly bauble, while the young man then slipped around her cat's neck.

The three gold-digging damsels with whom the girl shared the penthouse had nothing even faintly resembling a conscience, and they had been listening behind the partly open doors leading into the apartment. Calling the cat inside, they quickly substituted a garter for the bracelet, and one of their number bet-footed it over to the pawnbroker. Four hundred dollars in four minutes, flat! But there turned out to be dangerous curves ahead, and a feminine feud that completely wrecked the beautiful apartment.

This is a part of "Ladies Must Love," Universal's gay, wise-cracking musical comedy now playing the Capitol Theatre. The blonde June Knight is seen as the girl with a conscience and Neil Hamilton is the lover, while the ruthless "ladies of the evening" are played by Dorothy Burgess, Sally O'Neil and Mary Carlisle.

"Ladies Must Love" is quite the gayest musical picture that has been seen on a local screen in many a day. It's a wise-cracking comedy—a picture filled with lilting songs, most of which are sung by June Knight who can sing, and dance in a manner which is very pleasing to the eye and ear and who introduces the melodies with a zest which has made her a great favorite on the New York stage. You will find "Ladies Must Love" thoroughly entertaining. A good comedy, scenic of Shakespeare's country and news reel are excellent short additional subjects.

Royal Princess Dinnerware given away free to the ladies at today's matinee and evening performances. Come early and get your favorite seat.

June Knight, one of the gay gold diggers in "Ladies Must Love" at the Capitol Theatre today.

RUDY VALLEE

Last fall, Mrs. Vallee said that "with brazen effrontery" he wrote a note in which he said "Leonie my first wife, was a fine woman and really loved me" and that he thought he would have perfect happiness in his third marriage. The Santa Monica girl is his second wife.

Sinister Motive

Mrs. Vallee said that after she returned to New York, in the spring of 1933, her husband, with a "sinister motive," placed a device in her apartment by which all telephone conversations were recorded. She said he was unable to obtain any evidence of infidelity on her part and so "in his haste and impatience" he threatened to obtain a divorce in Mexico.

Flying her with liquor, sending her gifts and writing affectionate notes she claimed he sought to "bull" her into a false sense of security, meantime continuing his association with Miss Faye. He also she said, undertook to systematically force her into a "shockingly and gross inadequate" property settlement, which, through "complete ignorance" she signed and received but $100 a week.

Evans and Samuel A. Ettelson, the bankruptcy attorney, immediately moved before Judge Lindley to dismiss the receiver of Middle West Utilities Company on the same grounds.

George Henry Jr., Son of Premier, Addresses Young Conservatives

With Ross Philpott, is Guest Speaker At Wallbridge

LAUDS GOVT.

Social Evening Spent by Younger Set After Meeting

A capacity audience made up almost entirely of the younger electorate and residents of the township of Sidney was that, that congregated in the Sidney Town Hall at Wallbridge, Tuesday evening, to greet and hear George Henry Jr., son of the Honorable George S. Henry, Premier of the Province of Ontario. Expounding the principles of Conservatism and extolling the admirable capabilities of his father, and the administration he and his Cabinet had rendered Ontario in years of stress and frial, Mr. Henry brought his message to the younger Conservatives of Sidney Township and delivered it in a straight forward and convincing way.

His address Tuesday night at Wallbridge, is the third to be made by him to the younger electorate of the province, and shows that his gatherings in Eastern Ontario are to be privileged to listen to the President of Council, son, bring his ideas of what the youth and young manhood and womanhood of Ontario look for in its government.

Accompanying Mr. Henry was Mr. Ross Philpott of Toronto president of the Young Canada Conservative Club of that city and organ-

21 YEAR GIRL IS MISSING

Father Arrives at Haliburton to Look For Her

Haliburton, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP)—Distressed and alarmed, 43-year-old Benjamin Bordeff was in Haliburton today in an effort to trace the whereabouts of his daughter, Hilda, 21, missing since she left Haliburnhampton near here, presumably for her home in Windsor last Christmas.

Aiding police in their search for the missing girl was Mr. Bordeff, her father, recently arrived from Windsor.

Police today were quizzing station agents at surrounding points in an effort to learn whether the missing school teacher had obtained her railway ticket after she left Haliburnhampton, one and a half miles from here, presumably for the station at Gilbert and has not been seen since.

Investigating the case are Provincial Constable Porter of Haliburton and Township Constable Pritchard.

Cities of Halifax and Toronto are at War Over First Bathtub

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 10 CP)— A at the corner of Parson and Water bypographical error in an article by Dr. W. L. Hutton, Medical Officer of Health for Brantford, appearing in the Educational Courier has started a controversy over the bathtub.

The article stated that "the first bathtub in Canada was installed in Toronto in 1844" but the magazine printed the date as 1864, which made quite a difference. The statement as printed was, in the meantime, started an argument. A Haliburton, now resident in the Capital writes a letter to the Halifax Board of Health in which he asks "is this not wrong? Surely in Halifax we had a bathtub before that."

EXPORTS NEED OF DAIRYING

Dairymen Seek Adjustment of Dairy Supply Costs

London, Jan. 10—At the meeting of Western Ontario Dairymen here today, it was pointed out that "our export trade" is of utmost importance if we are to hold our place in competition with the world's best and during this readjustment period we must never lose sight of the importance of dairying as a fruitful profitable phase of agricultural activity.

"In sympathy with lower milk prices the rates for manufactured cheese have been readjusted downward and if it is possible to adjust the cost of dairy supplies and equipment more or less in conformity with present conditions, this will be a special source of encouragement."

Frank Hearn instructor said: "The principle underlying organization of cheese factory patrons associations is the hope of improving the basis of production and assisting factories to reach a solution. On the problems of production, manufacturing and distribution which must be dealt with if success in the industry if future progress is to be made.

"The marginal producer and small factory may succumb to economic pressure and pass from the picture because low producing cows, even with cheap feed, cannot insure a profit to reach a solution. On the other hand it is quite possible to overcapitalize large plants so that the resulting cost may also become a burden."

REFINANCES FARMS IN U.S.

Roosevelt Proposes Guaranteeing Two Billion Bonds

Washington, Jan. 10— (AP) President Roosevelt in his first special message to the United States Congress today proposed that the Government guarantee the principal of the $2,000,000,000 in bonds for refinancing of farm mortgages.

The Senate and House were actively studying the message with the President's conviction that the measure would be the most responsibility to guarantee these issues.

The President set out that the action recommended would put the bonds on a par with treasury securities. He said further that technically the responsibilities of the government will be increased by the amount of $2,000,000,000, but it is thought that the security will thus publicly acknowledging what amounts already to a moral obligation.

"In any event, the securities to be issued will be based solely on the credit of the government, but also by physical property of very definite value."

TREATY MAY NOT "CARRY"

Two Thirds Vote Needed On Ratification of Waterways Plan.

(By Ken Carr, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 10 (CP)—President Roosevelt is expected to address to the Senate later today a message upon ratification of the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty between Canada and the United States. It is doubtful whether the two-thirds vote necessary to ratification will be found in the Senate.

The treaty provides for the completion of a 27-foot channel from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean, which would permit lake carriers to proceed from Port William to Montreal and permit the development in its own territory and secures a sufficiency of water in the lakes and the St. Lawrence for navigation.

LIQUOR QUOTA TO BE DOUBLED

Pork Quota May Also Be Increased, Says London

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—It was understood today that the United States will double its import quotas on British Liquor immediately for the period ending March 21. An official announcement that the British quota on the United States pork products will be increased is not expected for the next several days, however.

The increased quota on American pork will be a permanent allotment when fixed.

"The increase in the American pork quota permitted by the United Kingdom results from the American Government's decision to increase the British Liquor quota. Each nation used the respective product as a bartering means.

He got it.

GHOST TOWN OF BRITISH COLUMBIA COMES TO LIFE WITH NEW GOLD STRIKE

The historic mining town of Barkerville, British Columbia, 56 once again coming into its own. In the "boom" days of the '60's, when the placer gold rush to the Cariboo area was at its height, it was known as the gold capital of the world, with its population once numbering as high as 15,000. Now Barkerville, in the '70's, is it is coming back to life again as the latest rush for lode gold in the area is under way, and prospectors are now crowding into the town that in late years has been nothing more than a ghost town with but a population of a few hundred. Between twenty-five and thirty millions of dollars worth of placer gold was taken from Williams creek, which flows through the town. Barkerville, in the '70's and '80's, was a typical mining camp. Old-timers say that Barkerville hasn't changed much since the "boom" days of 70 years ago. A fire in 1868 destroyed all but one building in the rough frontier mining town, but it was rebuilt in 1868 in much the same manner—a rough frame shack along the banks of Williams' creek. One change is noted, however. Prospectors are now coming into Barkerville above shows—LEFT, "Main Street" of Barkerville, with the snow-capped peaks of the Cariboo mountains in the background. RIGHT, shows Mr. Fred Wells, who is responsible for the present rush for lode gold. INSET is Baby Snowsill, the "million-dollar baby" of the Cariboo gold camp. Seen here are the first gold brick from the new mine situated on Cow mountain.

Accumulation of Debt Would Retard Progress Says Premier Bennett

Perfectly Justified to Spend if Money Can Be Obtained

FAVORABLE TRADE

Upholds High Tariffs as Necessary Under Conditions

Vancouver, Jan. 10 (CP)—Linking a warning against debt accumulation with a prophecy of brighter days at hand, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett today prepared for a quick visit to his home city of Calgary and a dash to Ottawa to attend the Federal-Provincial conference.

Canada has seriously discounted the future, the Prime Minister declared in an address to the annual meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade 1:1 night, and the accumulation of further debt would retard the progress of depressed conditions now being achieved.

The big question when expenditures were being considered was where the money would be obtained. He was strongly in favor of spending more money but first of all he wanted to be sure where it was coming from. The people them-

AFRAID OF BLINDNESS IS CAUSE OF SUICIDE

Daughter Finds Body of Father Slumped in Chair

Belleville, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP)— Despondent at the approach of blindness, Alexander Charing Cross mail carrier is believed to have taken his own life early today. His daughter Annie found his body slumped in a rocking chair, a shotgun pointed at the breast and the left side of the face blown away.

Coroner Dr. J. W. Coulter of Belleville said death came instantly. No inquest will be held.

In recent weeks Mr. Perrin had been bothered greatly with cataracts on his eyes and he was going blind.

WOMAN INDICTED AS HOARDER LAUGHS

Daughter of Former Senator, Says Gold is Her Own

Denver, Jan. 10—A Federal grand jury indictment on a charge of gold hoarding—the first of its kind ever returned here—is on file today, against Miss Edith M. Thomas, 45, daughter of former U. S. Senator Charles T. Thomas of Colorado, who last May defied the United States Government to seize gold held by him.

Miss Thomas was indicted on two counts. One charged she had $3,000 in gold in her possession last September 18, in violation of President Roosevelt's executive order, and the other charged she failed to report her gold holdings to the internation, revenue collector in Denver.

At the time of her arrest, the offence is defined as punishable by a maximum fine of $10,000 and a maximum prison sentence of 10 years.

Miss Thomas was arraigned today Miss Thomas laughingly said: "I expected it."

"I feel that the gold is my property and the Government has no right to take it away from me," Miss Thomas said.

FIVE SEATS OF HOUSE EMPTY

Death Has Dealt Heavily With Legislature Since Last Session

Toronto, Jan. 10 (CP)—When the Ontario Legislature opens for its final session before election on January 31, there will be five vacant chairs in the historic chamber at Queen's Park.

For death has dealt heavily with the Legislature during the past few months. Dead are Mr. Henry, Conservative East Kent, was followed closely by that of Fred W. Elliott, Liberal financial critic in North Bruce, and Fred Skinner, Cons., of Leeds. Then on January 1, Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, died, and on January 4, Hon. J. D. Monteith, Minister of Labor and Public Works, followed his confrere to the grave. Louis Coiz of Ottawa East, has been elevated to the Senate. Only one of the six vacancies was filled when Douglas M. Campbell, winning East Kent was seated by acclamation. He ran as a Liberal-Progressive but has not yet declared whether to sit with the 14 Liberals or five Progressives.

Strangely enough "north ridings" have members in Mr. Dunlop came from North Renfrew; Dr. Monteith, North Perth and Mr. Elliott from North Bruce.

There will be a re-arrangement of seating on the Liberal-Progressive side of the House when W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., deposed House leader of the Liberal party, will turn over his seat to Hepburn, the chamber from Premier George S. Henry to George A. Mcpherson, new Liberal House Chief.

After the next election, of course, the House will be completely re-arranged, for its membership will be reduced from the present 112 to 90 under the Redistribution Bill passed last year.

Servants to Strut Stuff, When the Annual Butler's Ball is Given

(By Dale Harrison)

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Jeeves, James and Josie are going to have a party Friday night.

This is the Butlers' Ball. It is the occasion when the servants strut bearing the social register sinks full of social register dirt during the year.

All the very best help from the very best families will be there: butlers, second men, parlor maids, second maids, waitress and probably a few gardeners.

A most unique financial arrangement provides that tickets to the ball must be purchased by the society folk themselves, and turned over to the hired hands. The hired help will then be socially free to entertain their own employer.

Those butlers and maids who wish to sit in boxes, who wish, in fact, to be a wee bit snootier than the others may do so by paying an additional $3.00.

Among the bookholders will be none other than Forbes, who butlers for Mrs. E. Hatton Rice, Mrs. Marshal Field valet; Goodchild, who carries the card tray at Mrs. Robert Livingston Terry's house; and Pulis, who throws out a mean chest to person who push Mrs. William Woodward's doorbell.

In keeping with the situation Meyer Davis, the bandmaster, will surrender the baton for several numbers to his personal butler, who was described as being decuedly clever at it, really.

PAYS PENALTY FOR PART IN REICH FIRE

Marinus Van Der Lubbe Beheaded as Law Directed

VERY APATHETIC

Till Last, Refused to Divulge Whether He Had Accomplices

(By John A. Brosan, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Leipzig, Germany, Jan. 10 (AP)— Marinus Van Der Lubbe, 24 year old Dutch communist, was beheaded today for firing the German Reichstag building in Berlin last February.

He had repeatedly confessed setting the fire, but steadfastly refused to divulge any information as to whether he had any accomplices.

Van Der Lubbe had been under sentence of death since October 23, when the Supreme Court convicted him and acquitted four co-defendants.

The four are Ernst Torgler, former communist chief in the Reichstag, and three Bulgarian refugees, Georgi Dimitroff, Blagoi Popoff and Wasili Tanaff.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 10 (CP)—Light snow has fallen in some parts of the lower lake region and Western Ontario, though the weather has been for the most part fair from the Rocky Mountains eastward. It has been mild throughout the west and in the Great Lakes region, but there has is colder this morning from the Ottawa Valley eastward.

Northern Ontario—Fresh southwest and west winds; cloudy and comparatively mild today and Thursday, then probably somewhat colder again.

Lower St. Lawrence Valley and Gulf—Fresh southwest winds; cloudy and milder tonight and on Thursday; some flurries.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valleys—Fresh southwest winds; partly cloudy and mild today and Thursday with rising temperature.

Lake Superior—Fresh southwest winds; partly cloudy and milder.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan—Westerly winds; fair and mild.

Alberta—Fair and mild, but probably becoming colder in northern districts.

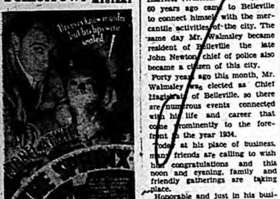
FIREMEN RECEIVE THANKFUL LETTERS

At least one dozen letters from needy families throughout the city have been received by Fire Chief Wm. Lynch of the local department during the past week or so, thanking members of the department for their effort at Christmas time in supplying the destitute with the baskets of necessities to tide them over the holiday season. Couched in simple terms of heartfelt thanks the letters received told more than words could express the thanks of the needy recipients who were cared for. In the neighborhood of one hundred and seventy families were cared for by the firemen.

CLOSE OFFICE FOR ONE HOUR

The local Employment Service of Canada office on Campbell street will be closed from 2 until 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon out of respect to the memory of Hon. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Public Works who died in Stratford on Monday evening.

QUOTA TO AIRPORT NEARLY FILLED



With small detachments of single unemployed men being sent from the office of the Employment Service of Canada each day, the quota of men for this city now being taken at the barracks of the Air Camp on the Trent Road has been nearly filled. Only a few more men are needed to complete the quota, stated superintendent Lorne F. Green today. Little trouble has been experienced in getting sufficient men acceptable for the camp.

LARGE CROWD AT I. O. O. F. EUCHRE

Swelled by the largest attendance of the season, and with over twenty tables of euchre in play, the monthly gathering of Belleville Lodge No. 81 I.O.O.F. held in the club rooms last evening was one of the brighter gatherings of the city last evening. During the fore part of the evening progressive euchre was participated in by the large number present, with the following being awarded prizes, ladies, Miss White, Mrs. Vickers, and Mrs. R. White; gentlemen, Mr. Simpson, Mr. Gibson and Mr. Dauphinee. The door prize was won by Miss Dauphinee.

Following the cards dancing to the strains of the Commodores was enjoyed by the many guests, until an early hour.

80TH BIRTHDAY

Recipient of the sincere congratulations of a host of friends in this city and from throughout the district of the Bay of Quinte, ex-Mayor James E. Walmsley of this city is, today, observing the 80th anniversary of his birth. Born at Milford, Prince Edward County, he was the son of the late Harriett (Walters) Walmsley, and 60 years ago came to Belleville to connect himself with the mercantile activities of the city. The same day Mr. Walmsley became resident of Belleville the late John Newton, chief of police also became a citizen of this city.

Forty years ago this month, Mr. Walmsley was elected as Chief Magistrate of Belleville, so there are numerous events connected with his life and career that come prominently to the forefront in the year 1934.

Today at his place of business, many friends are calling to wish him congratulations and this noon and evening, family and friendly gatherings are taking place.

Honorable and just in his business, political and social activities it is the hopeful wish of this publication that ex-Mayor Walmsley may for years to come be prominently associated with the community life of Belleville.

WORKING ON NEW LINES

Relief Workers at Island Follow Plan Laid Out

Improvements on Zwick's Island were being continued today by the large number of relief workers on new lines suggested by Mr. J. H. Moore, landscape artist, who visited the island yesterday and made an intensive survey of the work already completed there.

Mr. Moore, retained by the city to lay out the improvements now under way, and to draught plans for the guidance of the city engineer, arrived in the city at noon on Tuesday and in company with Alderman Wm Donahue, Chairman of Public Works, and Mr. R. E. Snell, Board of Parks Commissioner, immediately visited the island to make an intensive survey of the work already completed and to suggest further employment to keep the force of relief workers engaged until the completed map of the island could be forwarded to the city.

It is expected, that the complete planting design will be despatched from Mr. Moore at Islington, Ontario, before the end of the month.

The landscape artist, left on the late afternoon train for his home.

CROWN ATTORNEY NEW PRESIDENT

B. C. Donnan, K.C. Elected Head of Hastings Law Library Association

B.C. Donnan K.C. was elected president of the Hastings Law Library Association at their annual meeting held in the Law Library at the County Court House yesterday afternoon at which a large and representative gathering of barristers from this county were present.

The usual routine of business prevailed with correspondence being read by Secretary E. Ormonde Butler to the effect that a lower standard of admission had been secured to Osgoode Hall. A law student today does not need a university education as here-to-fore, honorary senior matriculation and an apprenticeship entitling him to enter law school. Miss Lillian McRae was reappointed librarian for the ensuing year and a report as to the expenditures of the association was received.

With the recording of the minutes of 1933, in the record book of the Hastings Law Library Association it was found, that this prized and ancient document was filled, a new record book being needed. Upon scrutinizing the old minute book it was found to be the original used when the association was first inaugurated on March 24th., 1890. The records went to show that at the time of organization there were 28 practicing solicitors in Belleville against 16 today. John Bell Q. C. was the first Hon. President in 1890, while the late J. Parker Thomas was the first president. Shares were sold to the various lawyers to meet the expenses entailed in stocking the library with the necessary law reports and statutes needed. The Law Association in Hastings County at that time proved an asset to the lawyers of the community in the matter of reference. But three of the original 28 solicitors to constitute the first association back in 1890 are still residents of the city and are His Honor Judge J. F. Wills, Col. W. N. Ponton K.C. and His Worship Magistrate W. C. Mikel K.C. The present electorate decided to rebind the old record book and preserve it as a mark of honor and distinction in their organization.

Officers Elected

The officers elected for the Hastings Law Library Association for the year 1934, were: Hon. President Chas. Cameron; President, B. C. Donnan; Vice President, R. J. E. Graham; Treasurer—R. D. Arnott, Secretary, E. O. Butler; auditors, A. R. Cameron, and J. D. O'Flynn; curator, Mac Wright; purchasing committee, B. C. Donnan K.C., E. J. Butler, K.C. and Charles A. Payne K.C.

Retiring President Chas. Cameron assumed the chair during the meeting. Mr. Chas. Cameron and Mr. Donnan were elected delegates to attend the annual meeting and banquet of the Ontario Bar Association at Toronto in the near future, where many questions of interest pertaining to the conditions in law will be thoroughly discussed to the mutual benefit of all concerned.

Letters to The Editor

RENAMING OF ZWICK'S ISLAND

Belleville, Ont., Jan. 9th.

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Understanding that the city authorities are contemplating laying out Zwick's Island as a City Park, making it a beauty spot some think we should consider carefully the renaming of this spot. No doubt, when completed it will be a beauty spot, playground and bathing beach for many generations to come. Kingston has its MacDonald Park, named after Sir John MacDonald, a premier of Canada and native son of Kingston. Belleville too, has the honor of being the home of one of the Premiers of Canada, and at the present time there is nothing in our City to mark the memory of our illustrious son—Sir Mackenzie Bowell. Some think that we should have named one of our many Schools after Sir Mackenzie Bowell. Would it not be fitting that at this time we give our Island Park a new name and call it "Mackenzie Bowell Park". Would suggest that our city authorities consider this matter of place names, and honor our illustrious sons, and especially Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

Yours respectfully
Fred S. Deacon.

S.E.A.C. BOXERS SPAR FOR KNIGHTS

Four bristling bouts staged by mittsters of the South End Athletic Club were the feature attraction at the Knights of Columbus club rooms smoker which followed the regular monthly meeting last evening. The bouts were purely exhibition tilts in which Johnny O'Neil was matched with Andy Knott; Bobby Fisher with Rene St. Denis; Tommy De Cote with Gord Cooke and Joe Semain Jr. matched with Vern Goyer. Referee Joseph Semain was third man in the ring.

Congregation at Week of Prayer Continues to Grow

Rev. Dr. Seymour And Rev. H. B. Neal in Charge

CHURCH UNIVERSAL

The second service in the week's series of United Prayer saw a still larger congregation assembled in St. Andrew's Church, over which Rev. Dr. Seymour and Rev. H. B. Neal presided and ministered. As on the previous evening a composite choir of earnest singers under Professor Wheatley conducted the vocal worship.

"The Church Universal", being the scheduled subject, provided Dr. J. A. Seymour with a majestic topic for his brief, but comprehensive meditative address, and as the speaker opened a deep soul upon the congregation, he challenged,—there is no other institution on earth, stands for so much and has done so much for the world—as the Church of Christ.

Although it has sustained bitterness and persecution, it is still followed by multitudes, who, with love and passion, are loyally devoted to it. It has been despised misunderstood, and neglected, yet outside of the home, no other institution is so loved.

As invisible as the air, is its power and its secret, and although it has been blessed with wealth and scholarship, yet it still stands, by the invisible power of its divine secret.

It has survived the struggles of generations, and is still suffering from various obstacles, but it goes on to stand for, and live for those invisible realities.

It has created more hope, more faith, more inspiration, and changed more destinies than any other institution.

The speaker closed his remarks, by stating that if there ever were a time when we needed the church when we should be loyal, and do our best to build it up, that it may be an instrument for extending the Kingdom of God—it is now.

Dr. Seymour then led the massed congregations, very fervently in a sustained period of intercession. The aim of the week of prayer had been achieved early in the series—the open-hearted approach of all Christians to the Throne of Grace in humiliation and solemn devotion to the Sovereignty and mercy of God.

The Divine Presence stilled the sanctuary as the people were led to pray for the church universal, and every earthly section, with their respective human authorities embracing every well-known denominational following regardless of all shades of distinction and difference, as well as every local church congregation and Christian organization.

Surely the church life of this city must be refreshed and re-vitalized by such services as are being held this week, with three more to follow.

SHANTIES ON BAY FEWER

Men on Relief Work Not Able to Spend Time Fishing

In this district there are visible signs that the depression has lifted for many. There's a notable dearth of fishing shanties on the ice of the Bay of Quinte for proof.

During the past three or four lean years unemployed fathers of the city struggled valiantly to feed the empty stomachs of their families and themselves. Winter fishing through the ice was one of the more popular ways of eking out the scanty supplies in family larders. Hundreds throughout the district depended on their daily catches of sunfish and perch to keep going. But this winter it is different. So far this season, instead of the scores of little fishing shanties as formerly, now only three or four shanties dot the ice in the immediate vicinity.

There's a reason for the lack of fishermen this year. Nearly all the single men of the city who have been unemployed have been picked up during the past month or so and either despatched to road camps in the north or have found quarters in the barracks at the Air Camp on the Trent Road. The married men have been working in gangs of nearly two hundred in weekly shifts on the Zwick's Island relief scheme. There's no one left to fill in the spare time fishing, except the very young or the very old of the dependent families.

DR. ROBLIN IS CHIEF SPEAKER

Life History of Sir John A. Macdonald Interestingly Told

It being near the anniversary of the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald, members of the Kiwanis Club were given an insight into the great character of the man by Dr. Roblin of Picton, who for years was a neighbor and intimate friend of the great Canadian. It was the opening meeting of the year and if the year finishes as well as it has been started, the Kiwanis Club in this city will certainly do its part in the betterment of times. Dr. Roblin is a gifted speaker, with ready wit and his address was more than appreciated by the members and guests and he will be welcomed back on a future occasion.

Eddie Shapiro, the president presided with Sandy Lummis as sergeant at arms and Harold Cross as song leader with Leo B. Riggs at the piano. Guests to the club included, H. J. Moore of Islington, landscape artist, W. C. Springer, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Charles T. Dolan, past president of the Rotary Club, and others and each were called upon to say a few words. The secretary, George H. Griffin gave the names of the chairmen of the various committees for the year and the members, who will assist and all were asked to function and to accept every duty given them. Frank Domenico, chairman of the dance committee informed the members, the dance would be held on February 12th and that it would be the crowning social event of the season in Belleville.

Life is Traced

The speaker of the day was introduced by Claude D. Tice and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by P. C. MacLaurin. Dr. Roblin in his opening remarks maintained that it required a great deal of courage and colossal nerve to invite a Grit to speak on the anniversy of a Tory but Sir John A. Macdonald once said "I could never be a Tory but I admired the old fashioned Tory for his patriotism but I would rather be called a Liberal-Conservative and that was the foundation of the present name of the Conservative party. The speaker traced the early life of Sir John A. Macdonald, his living at Hay Bay and later at Stone Mills in Prince Edward County now known as Glenora and his schooling, which consisted of but five years. "It is not what a man becomes that makes him great but what he overcomes and becomes great", said the speaker "and this aptly applies to Sir John for he rose to his position through sheer determination and the following of a principle. He was not an extremist but could see both sides and see through problems given him to solve and he had a wonderful genius to bring the men around him and the opposition to his views. When he took control Canada was in a chaos and he learned the country to use it's brains and it's limbs and to make it the first Colonial child of England . Personally I have agreed with his attitude and perusual of this scheme. The speaker showed the stiff opposition, that was given Sir John in his political life, mentionng George Brown, Edward Blake and Sir Richard Cartwright, who left the government bench to be one of the chief critics of the government.

Relating the Pacific scandal, the speaker showed the calibre of the man when after his defeat on the question, Sir John A. Macdonald faced the house stating "no matter how much is true or false these hands are clean". It was a great achievement, said the speaker, "to bring the several provinces into one great union for each Province had its own axe to grind but Sir John with his brilliant mind moulded them and brought them into the union. Closing the speaker showed the man to have abiding faith in the future and always believed Canada some day would be the greatest possession of the Mother Country, and before he died Sir John A. Macdonald remarked "the way of Canada is upward.'

OBITUARY

WILLIAM BURKE

Marmora, Jan. 10 (Special)—Following a lingering illness, William Burke passed away at his home at Deloro at 9.15 p.m. Sunday in his 51st. year.

Deceased who was born in London, England, was employed at the Deloro plant for a number of years, later moving to Port Colborne where he resided for twelve years. He returned to Deloro six years ago to resume employment there. He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church and his friendly manner won for him a large circle of friends.

He is survived by his wife, who is a daughter of Mrs. John O'Brien of Marmora, and six children, all at home.

MRS. R. M. COLQUHOUN

The passing of the late Mrs. (Rev.) P. M. Colquhoun reminds old settlers of North Marmora that yet another cherished companion of their early school days has passed on.

The late Mrs. (Rev.) Colquhoun, whose maiden name was Susannah Wiggins was born at Beaver Creek, North Marmora, on January 7th., 1858, her parents being the late George Wiggings and Catherine Downey.

She received her early education in the old log school house which was the first Beaver Creek school. She took her first music lesson from the late Mrs. B. Beddomes. Attending high school in Lindsay she took further music lessons from Professor Lawsher. Graduating from high school she taught for a term in what was known as the McDowell School house near Cordova. Upon the death of her mother in 1875 she took up abode with her father in the Shannon Settlement.

After the old home was sold in 1885 she moved with her father to Springbrook where the latter passed away in 1886.

Accepting a position in the Indian Industrial School at Echart, Man., she sold her Springbrook home and left the district and later married the Rev. P. M. Colquhoun, who was then in his first charge at Dominion City, Man.

Through her health failing, trips were taken to Scotland and Indiana, in the hope of recuperation but all to no avail. Last year she visited Marmora and while visiting her nephew, George Wiggins, on her return journey, she was stricken worse.

The last two of the once large family of the late George Wiggins now surviving are Mrs. (Dr.) J. D. Williams of Consecon, and Mrs. James Wiggings of Cherry Valley.

The funeral took place on Friday—service was held in St. Andrew's United Church, Havelock.

LATE MRS. O. WINSOR FOSTER

Largely attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Foster was held Tuesday afternoon from her late residence in the 3rd. concession of Hallowell. The Rev. J. E. T. Blanchard conducted the service at the home and at the place of interment in Glenwood cemetery, Picton.

Acting as bearers were four sons of the deceased, Herbert S., George, Harry and Theodore Foster, her son-in-law, Harold Huff, and the Rev. W. Harold Reid of this city.

THOMAS J. McGURN

Stricken with a heart attack late Tuesday evening, Thomas Joseph McGurn passed away at his late residence in the 2nd. concession of Tyendinaga. The deceased was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGurn and was born 68 years ago in the township where his death occurred. All his life had been spent there. He was a descendant of one of the oldest families in the county, a member of St. Mary's Church of Marysville, and a prominent, upright and esteemed resident. On December 27th. last a son, Joseph Vincent McGurn was suddenly stricken and passed away at the residence of his sister, Mrs. J. V. McCauley at Marysville. To the members of his family goes the sympathy of a host of friends in the double bereavement that has visited them in so short a period of time.

Surviving are the widow and two sons, Frank and Thomas at home; five daughters, Mrs. Daniel McDonald of Kingston; Mrs. J. V. McCauley at Marysville; Mrs. Edward Cosgrave in Detroit, Mich., and Misses Evelyn and Leona at home; and two sisters, Miss Mary, residing on Queen St., Belleville, and Sister M. St. Leo of St. Joseph-on-the-Lake Convent, Scarborough. A sister, Sister M. Basilla predeceased at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, in April last.

LATE GRACE P. ASHMORE

With many sympathizing friends of her family in attendance the funeral of baby Grace Patricia Ashmore, two months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ashmore was held Wednesday afternoon from her parents' residence, 14 Geddes St. Little Grace passed away Monday last in the Belleville General Hospital and besides her father and mother, three brothers, Ralph, Roy and Frank remain to mourn the loss of the baby of the family.

The Rev. Gerald Graham conducted the service at the home and at the graveside in the Belleville cemetery.

LATE ALLAN C. MOTT

Former friends and neighbors, in numbers, were Tuesday afternoon in attendance at the funeral of the late Allan C. Mott, to accord their last tribute of respect to the memory of one who was prominently known throughout the province. Funeral service conducted by the Rev. I. B. Naylor, pastor of the Tabernacle United Church was held at 2.30 o'clock in the chapel of the Tickell and Browne Funeral Home, 60 Victoria Ave., and interment made in the Belleville cemetery with the Rev. Mr. Naylor officiating there.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. Hope McGinnis, Herbert Wrightmeyer, Walter Allore, William Ormond, E. T. Austin and Major Lorne F. Green.

MISS MARTHA DOUGAN

Madoc, (Special)—There passed away on Thursday, January 4th., in the village of Madoc one who was well known in Madoc Township in the person of Miss Martha Dougan, daughter of the late Robert and Maria Dougan. The deceased had lived all her life on the homestead on Number 7, Highway, three miles east of Madoc. She was of quiet disposition, very devoted to her home and to those who were near and dear to her. She had spent the New Year's holiday with her sister, Mrs. Fred Hill in Madoc and was about to return home on Wednesday, the 3rd when she was overtaken by illness from which she passed away on Thursday.

The funeral service was held on Saturday, January 6th., at 2 p.m. at the home of Mr. Fred Hill, Durham street, Madoc, and was conducted by the Reverend G. W. Rivers, B.A. B.D., pastor of Trinity United Church, who took as his text, St. Luke 8-52: "Weep not, she is not dead, but sleepeth". Interment took place in the family plot in Lakeview Cemetery. Those surviving are her sister, Mrs. Fred Hill, Madoc and her brothers, Charles on the homestead, John of Saskatoon, Sask.; Robert of Los Angeles, Calif.; and Henry of Vancouver, B.C.

LATE FRED P. BENJAMIN

In respect to the memory of an honorable and upright fellow citizen residents of this community in numbers this (Wednesday) afternoon, were in attendance at the funeral of the late Fred Phillip Benjamin. At his late residence, 96 Bridge Street East, Holy Communion was celebrated at 10 a.m. by the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas Church and at 2.15 o'clock the funeral service of the Masonic Order was conducted there by W.M., C. Crosby of The Belleville Lodge, No. 123, A.F. and A.M., with Rt. Wor. Bro. W. O. Adams assisting. The funeral then proceeded to St. Thomas Church for the remainder of Church of England service which was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Payne who also officiated at the graveside in the family plot in the Belleville. The last rites of the Masonic Order were performed there under direction of the Worshipful Master of The Belleville Lodge with Rt. Wor. Bro. Adams taking part.

Respecting the memory of a comrade who had served his country nearly 70 years ago at the time of the Fenian Raid of 1866 many veterans of Britain's later campaigns were present with officers of the local and district militia units.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. Arthur McGie, C. N. Sulman, W. C. Springer, B. F. Jennings, J. W. Davison and G. A. C. Weir.

PEDESTRIAN IS INJURED

Mrs. Lena Fitzgerald of Milltown Hit by Auto

Picked up in an unconscious condition and suffering from severe cuts on the head and a slight concussion Mrs. Lena Fitzgerald, of Milltown, was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital about 6.00 o'clock last evening, after being knocked down by a passing automobile driven by Mr. W. C. Springer of this city, about 600 feet east of the Milltown subway about 5.30 p.m. Mrs. Fitzgerald received medical attention at the hands of Dr. J. J. Robertson, who this morning, stated the injured woman was resting quietly.

Previous to the accident Mrs. Fitzgerald was walking on the north side of the highway in a westerly direction. Mr. Springer, who was also driving on the north side of the highway in the same direction turned suddenly to avoid hitting the pedestrian when he first saw her. According to the motorcycle officer who investigated, it is thought, that the running board on the right hand side of the car struck Mrs. Fitzgerald, hurling her against the right hand rear door. The glass in the rear door was broken and the door damaged in the impact. Mrs. Fitzgerald, according to the police theory, rebounded off the door into the north ditch, where she was found lying with her head away from the travelled portion of the highway.

Mr. Springer stopped his automobile as soon as possible and returned to the scene of the accident, and drove the injured woman in his car to the hospital. He informed the police, that he did not observe Mrs. Fitzgerald walking along the north shoulder as he approached. He was not exceeding the speed limit, he said. No statement could be taken from Mrs. Fitzgerald owing to her condition, but it seems she failed to hear the automobile as she kept walking westerly along the north shoulder when she was struck.

DAIRYING ASTRONOMICAL

The milk routes into Chicago via airplane are the real milky ways, says the office punster. The little boy in the nursery rhyme has heard of the cow jumping over the moon, but that is all a myth, say the adults, while the aerial freighting of milk across the skyline is a real thing. If the cow does not jump over the moon, at least the milky stream flows high above the earth. O, milk, how art thou aerated and modernified!

Strikers may feel bitter about this adoption of modern science to revive the tale of the jumping cow and at the same time frustrate the efforts of the striking class.

At the end of the new milky ways is a guard of police, that is, at the airport, to protect the supply. From a distance it looks as if the Chicago children will rattle their dishes with their spoons now that the lactic river safely flows across the sky.

THE SCHOOLBOY'S DRESS

Will the present garb of the schoolboy change the general dress of man in the course of time?

Perhaps a more practical and effective dress was never invented than the leather helmet, the leathern windbreaker coat, the breeches and the golf stockings, with which most of the young lads attending school today protect themselves.

While the boys have acquired a real serviceable outfit, man with his penchant for appearance, has not taken to any such outfit against the cold unless he be found in the ranks of drivers of trucks who wear what is very much like the coat, breeches and leggings of the schoolboy.

Now woman adheres to that type of dress towards which she has been drifting rapidly, with its touch of loveliness such as was created by the Grecian dames with their more ample robes.

But is man's hope in the boy? Perhaps the youngster will help man to a dress which is suitable for general purposes though not for the dress purposes for which woman's dress seems to be suited. There was a time when the dress of the Russian peasant looked queer but probably our dress today would look the same to one who was not accustomed to it.

THE COST OF SOAP

Canadians spend a great deal of money on keeping clean. Sales of soaps and other articles for washing and scrubbing cost this nation 39,097 tons of soap at a cost of nearly four million dollars last year, together with 11,925 tons of toilet soap, the outlay on which was approximately the same. Into the cleansing process went many hundreds of thousands of dollars; soap powders, $1,115,690; soap chips and flakes $2,108,412; castile soaps $375,097; shaving coap and cream $472,617; textile and mill soaps $119,019; soft soaps $63,270; liquid soaps $64,184; other soaps $105,606; ammonia powder $150,951; javel water $408,589; hand cleaner $113,258; washing compounds $205,182; cleaning powder or pastes $665,547, and other cleaning preparations $99,589.

COLDER WINTERS

The Herald Tribune (New York) makes the interesting prediction that the old-fashioned cold winters will return within the next decade.

Now the weather cycle is changing. Winters will be colder and summers hotter, for, in spite of the present uncertainties of long-range weather forecasting, there is little doubt that one important weather cycle swings between equable years and variable ones, and that this cycle, for the present centuries at least, has a length of some twenty or thirty years.

All this concerns the people of Ontario, where the climate, in the southern part of the province, is much the same as in New York State. As the New York paper points out, such weather changes would mean significant changes in public and business habits. Heavy underwear and men's fur coats may come back, and even fur gloves and earmuffs, now used mostly by chauffeurs and policemen, may become more universal. City budgets must provide more for cleaning away snow and ice, and railways must prepare for harder fights to keep trains running on time. If summers are to be warmer and winters colder for a period the textile industries will be directly affected. But prophecy in the meteorological realm may be as hazardous as in the field of economics. The test of the cyclical and sunspot theories will be the actual experience of the next decade.—London Advertiser.

THE CYCLE

The dead leaves, falling
Float down to ground
While under hedgerows
Piles many a mound.
Through them wind rustles.
On them snow sifts,
Pale winter sunshine
Along them drifts.

So, slowly crumbling
Into decay,
The winter weather
Rots them away.
In spring how gayly
They danced in mirth,
That now are dusty
And dry as earth.

Yet these poor leaves which
To dust return
In some far springtime
Will glow, will burn
In rose or lily
Or waving grass
They will come back when
The long years pass!

GEORGE COHAN, heavy on the AN; is still going strong after many years as actor, song writer and playwright. A member of the Sidelight family, who lived in New York City for several years, and was closely associated with George Cohan, and his family, draws attention to a recent paragraph in this column in which George Cohan's name was spelled with an 'en.' George's father, Jerry Cohan, was as Irish as they make them, and the name is the Irish Cohan. Must of been thinking of the Cohens and Kellys. Thanks, old chap for the reminder, this column cannot always be right, but with such a large and intelligent Sidelight Family of readers, we expect to be put right—and every time we hear from a reader, whether in praise or blame, or to contribute something for the good of the whole family, we know that the column is being carefully and appreciatively read.

MORTALITY IN EX-PRESIDENTS is excessively high, according to Will Rogers, cowboy humorist and philosopher. It is a vast economic waste to let ex-presidents wander out on the range and died for lack of suitable employment, after educating them in public affairs for eight years at the head of the nation. He cites Teddy Roosevelt, Wilson and Coolidge as public men who should be alive today and their talents and experience utilized for the good of the United States. Will suggests that ex-President Herbert Hoover be appointed by President Roosevelt head of the National Recovery Act program. In any event says Will Rogers presidents should be retired on half-pay subject to call when required in the service of the country. Great Britain and Canada do not scrap their leaders, but continue them in office, if not at the head of affairs, at least in opposition.

PSYCHOLOGY UNDERLYING MOB ACTION

Be Careful of Your Mob Reactions When in Crowd

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Recent lynchings in the U.S. have again brought to public attention the violence which a mob can engender within itself and project. The psychology underlying this is interesting.

The way in which an individual's mind works when he is by himself is quite different from the way it works when that same individual is in a mob. From the psychological viewpoint any crowd is much more than a simple gathering of many persons.

In a crowd, individuals of different nationalities, different sexes, different ages, and with different ideas and sentiments, change until they seem to become one single, composite individual. In a crowd a collective type of mind develops automatically which makes those composing the crowd think and act quite differently from what they would do apart from the crowd.

Individual personality disappears in a crowd. Each person becomes highly suggestible, especially to some common impulse, patriotism for instance, or even the instinct to kill.

It has been noted that a crowd is more suggestible when standing up than it is when sitting down. Much of the rowdyism in the galleries of English theatres was done away with when seats were provided for all.

Facts can best be imparted to a crowd by repeating them over and over in different ways. Speech must be simple. The appeal must be to the emotions. Apt, timely and even "trick" phrases are always telling.

A loud, big voice, impresses. Cartoons, flags, parades, band music—all these help to create the proper atmosphere of suggestion. However, just as a crowd is quick to accept a suggestion, it is also quick to lose it.

Crowd attention cannot be held for long. Physical discomfort such as hunger, cold, sudden rain, will usually break the hypnotic spell. To hold a crowd's attention, therefore, variety is important. Furthermore, a stronger suggestion — one appealing more to the emotions—will continue the hypnotic influence when a weaker suggestion has died out. For instance, at the cry of "Fire" in a theatre a stampede has often been averted by a sudden burst of music from the orchestra. The principles of crowd psychology which I have outlined above ought to help you to understand much of the world's doings which, on the surface, may have appeared puzzling, cruel and even contradictory.

But be careful of your own mob reactions when you find yourself in a large group. And beware of violence. If you can recall at such a time the underlying psychology of the crowd and can compare it with your own personal and individual convictions you will always be able to resist mob suggestion.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating supper, being stake under onions and ma said, I got an ingagement announcement today, Willyum the youngest Jennings gerl is going to marry the eldest Hopkins boy.

Naturelly, she's been angling for him long enough, pop said, and ma said, How can you say sich a thing, you men all seem to labor under the mistaken delusion that you personly have nothing at all to do with getting ingaged or married.

Neither we do, that's wimmins werk and always has been, pop said, and I said G, pop, did ma propose to you before you got married.

Why certainly, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum that's falts and it's wicked to put falts ideers in a child's formative mind and I want you to retract it immeditly this moment.

I was only fooling, Benny pop said. I proposed to your mother of my own free will and manly initiative, and I'll tell you exactly how it all came to pass. At the time I was young and innocent and your mother was young and we were disporting ourselves at the seaside jumping the breakers and shouting and laughing as young people will. Suddenly your mother seized both my ears in her ferm little hands and ducked my head under the water and playfully held it there with her strong young arms, and when I recovered consciousness I was safe and sound on the shore with my head in your mother's lap and she was saying, I saved your life, your life belongs to me, and I ansered weakly, Take it, darling, and she said, O how sudden, and from that moment on my life was indeed not my own, I mean I was ingaged to be married, pop said.

You crazy thing, you're ingaged at this very second to take me to the movies rite after supper whether you feel like it or not, ma said.

Wich pop genrelly dont, and they went to see a picture called The Strong Sex.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 10, 1914

Belleville hockey players are certainly all right— last night two teams won victories. The intermediates defeated the Whitby team in a fast game here by a score of 4 to 2 and the juniors at Kingston defeated the Kingston Collegiate team by a score of 10 to 6. The following composed the Belleville Intermediate team: Brotherhood, Bradley, T. Brant, Dunning, T. Whalen, Symons and B. Brant. The Whitby team had been heralded as almost world beaters owing to the fact that they had defeated Peterboro and Bowmanville. The arena was filled with an excited crowd of spectators. Lawson Whitehead of Toronto acted as referee. The Belleville Junior team was composed of the following: Nurse, Pemlott, Finkle, Goyer, Mills, Elliott and Box. Lou E. Marsh of Toronto acted as referee.

Among the many kind letters of congratulation received by Sir Mackenzie Bowell on attaining his ninetieth birthday was one from His Grace The Duke of Argyle and the Princess Louise.

Dr. Alex Forin is home on a visit from Edmonton.

30 YEARS AGO

Jan. 10, 1904

There was a large crowd present in the rink to witness the game between Belleville and Port Hope which resulted in the local team winning its first O.H.A. game of the season by a score of 8 to 2. Before the game commenced referee Hugh Rose called the players to the centre of the ice for a confidential talk. Whatever they did, he said, they were not to bite each other. The players took their places and then Mr. E. Guss Porter, M.P., who is a member of the O.H.A. executive for this district walked to the centre of the rink and made a little speech after which he faced off the puck. The following composed the Belleville team: Winchester, McMillan, Brown, Burrows, Kennedy, Johnson, Marks. Referee Rose was very strict and fair, but it really did seem that there was a little "too much Johnson" on the fence. It was not a rough game, but 18 men were ruled off—10 locals and 8 visitors. Marks was hurt in a scrimmage in the second half and had to retire. N. McMillan going off with him. The Port Hope players were: McMillan, Roach, Brown, McLean, W. McMillan, Sowden and N. McMillan. If the boys keep up their present gait they will make it interesting for Peterboro next week.

50 YEARS AGO

January 10th, 1884

A real snow storm has provided this locality with a superabundance of "the beautiful". At nine o'clock yesterday morning the snow was two feet deep on the level and in countless places where drifts existed it was four and even six feet deep. The sidewalks were deeply covered and fences in many instances were filled with it and when the doors were opened snow banks tumbled within the houses. The roads are impassable and the mail stages are unable to reach the city. On North Front street there is a pile of snow fifteen feet deep. The schools of the city were closed yesterday afternoon as the pupils were unable to wade through the snow. Conditions are a little better today. The street surveyor has a force of men engaged in clearing the crossings.

Owing to the storm the skating rink is closed. Capt. Jellett is doing the best he can under the circumstances and will have the rink cleared by Saturday, if nothing further prevents.

Mr. John Brenton while discussing the great snow fall today and the difficulty it occasioned travel, informed a reporter of the Intelligencer that about fifteen years ago he started from Belleville for Toronto on Monday morning and arrived at his destination on Friday evening.

ALONG MAIN STREET

HEN PARTIES

If you happen to see some homebound citizen striding in furtive fashion along some of the darkened streets these evenings with a hen tucked under his arm, don't jump to conclusions, or call the nearest policeman. It may be all perfectly proper and right, even if the citizen does appear a little guilty looking. He might have come by it honestly. Such carryings on just now at this season are only the aftermath of the usual mid-winter run of parties and socials of various lodges at which genial, but hardworking secretaries are constantly on the alert for something new and unusual in the way of prizes. During the past couple of weeks the prizes for the good hands have been hens—real live hens. And through the darkened back streets may be seen the prize winners, carrying their booty home, and casting many a backward glance over their shoulders to see if the law might be following. But the police on their lonely beats have become used to the goings on during the past few weeks. Solid citizens may walk right past the tall officers on the corners with narry a qualm. They may carry one or two hens under their arms—or even a duck—and they will not be questioned. Not long ago a local citizen won a fat little piglet at a raffle in one of the parties, but he solved the difficulty of transportation by hiring a taxi home. And still the genial secretaries rack their brains to think up newer prizes for their patrons.

TOWN HALL

"Up there," and the taxpayer who strolled by, evidently showing some of the sights of the city to a visiting relative, and waving a hand in the general direction of the city hall, "up there is the city hall. That's where you can get a marriage license, pay your taxes, fight over your assessments, find out if you're on the voters' list, register any kicks about water service, or go to hear the various candidates make their little speeches at election time. For the past twenty years or more I've paid taxes in the city, but in all that time I haven't been any further up in the building than the lower flat where I go to pay my taxes every year." The solid citizen strode off still pointing out other features of interest.

ber of film clubs throughout the province. Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., was present and spoke briefly; but the attendance of Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., the popular representative of the riding in the Upper House was regretfully missed, owing to his recent illness.

Invited to Platform

The junior organization of Sidney paid its respect to the senior Conservative organizations of the township and district by inviting to the platform J. Fred Wilson, president of the Sidney Conservative Association, Milton Seward, its secretary, Eben James, president of the Conservative Association of Trenton, Frank McKeown, president of the Belleville Conservative Association and Bruce Martin, president of the province-wide-known Thurlow Conservative Club.

President Jack Sargent of the newly formed Association of the young Conservatives of Sidney most capably acted as chairman for the evening and Miss Doris Ketcheson, its secretary presented her report of the organization's progress and outlined the proposed future activities of the Club.

Value of Clubs

"The time has come that these clubs should be formed throughout the province and the Dominion of Canada", said Mr. Henry. "This is the one means of meeting the youth of the country. Mr. MacPherson is in the forefront of opportunity and therefore it is of interest that the young people should be interested in their country and if it is not in a better way than through the organization of these clubs.

"As a son of the present Prime Minister of Ontario, I have started out in support of the Conservative party. I certainly would be an unworthy son if I did not support the platform.

"I have yet to learn an instance wherein my father has ever fooled one or let me astray. I have yet to learn any occasion where he has fooled the people of his riding or the people of Ontario. He is in my estimation, and in the estimation of the people of the province of Ontario, an honest man. He has also gathered around him a band of worthy men."

The young farmer referred to the passing of the Hon. Dr. Mowatt and the Hon. E. A. Dunlop. "These were men who gave their lives to Ontario," he commented.

Quality Improvement

Mr. Henry went into the question of marketing and the activities of the Department of Agriculture in the efforts to build up a foreign market for the surplus production of farms. He favored the immediate development of agriculture through the Imperial trade pacts and showed how the development of the past few years in farming has led to overproduction, making it necessary to foreign markets essential. "We must improve the quality of our products if we are able to do this there is then no fear to any minor of the future of the agricultural industry," Mr. Henry referred to the growth in apple exports, to the United Kingdom, and to the development of the cattle and dairy industries.

In the Farm Loan Board he saw an organization that the Conservative government performing a great duty especially at this time. "There is nothing today that helps the farm, better than cheap money and I do think the Ontario Government is to be commended on this", he remarked.

United Doctrines

The credit of the people of Canada and of Ontario is good, yet there are those among us who would break down what our forefathers have won for us, and adopt socialistic methods. I want to tell you young Conservatives the time has arrived when we must stand together behind the Government. Let us let party politics die and let party principles take their ballyho of untried doctrines, and that we are standing behind the Conservative party.

"The future of the Conservative party does lie in the hands of the passing generation but is largely in the hands of those like you here tonight. It is essential that we have at our head leaders who know what they are going to do and who do not change their attitude from time to time."

Prize Cattle Breeder

The Premier's son took the opportunity, of thanking the newspapers for their splendid editorials in reference to his father and himself.

"I have been referred to as a prize cattle breeder," laughed Mr. Henry, explaining that ever since his scholastic career ended at Guelph he had been engaged in every closely associated with farming in Prince County on a farm next to that of his father. There he attempted to carry on the business of agriculture while his father was away on the affairs of the province.

Laughingly he told of his efforts to build up a prize winning herd of Holstein cattle and of his efforts to win honors at the Canadian National Exhibition. At the same time he paid high tribute to the cattle shown "by some of our friends from the U.S.A."

Wider Education

Mr. Ross Philpott, organizer of the clubs which now number 98 in Ontario with forty more just coming into being, spoke along organization lines but also was a sort of cheer leader to the Sidney young people as he told them how they were filling up with this potent agency of education and information and education in regard to the economics of the province and the Dominion.

"The object of these clubs is not so much to get the young people into more to study the economic conditions of the country and to assist the government so that the power that may go forward with trained leaders among the young men and women.

"There must be co-operation between the members of parliament and the clubs. What suggestions has the young people join study groups in which the members will assist. Our object is get not only the older but the younger as well to understand the problems of politics and to we shall have a one hundred per cent. vote upon any issue, because we are going to fight and I hope that this is just what you need and what the Club will do."

Mr. Henry will address meetings of clubs at Cataraqui, Verona and Parham, and the Sidney Club will post is organizing a club at Centreville on Tuesday night.

Up to now Mr. Henry has made similar visits to Peterboro and Alliston.

At the conclusion of the meeting a delightful dance followed, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all participants. Charles Gorry's Bon Ton orchestra of Belleville, supplied the appreciated music.

PEACE STUDY PROJECT TO BE LAUNCHED

Importance of Peace Will be Emphasized in Canada

LETTERS SENT

Prominent Speakers Will Give Addresses Over Air

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—A national peace study project, to bring to every man and woman in Canada the importance of peace, was announced today by J. E. MacKinnon, president of the Association of Canadian Clubs, and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, president of the League of Nations Society.

In "a letter to all Canadians", the details of the society's project were announced. For the first time in Canadian history, it was stated, an attempt was to be made through the combined radio, platform, the press and group discussion to have a simultaneous study of a subject throughout the nation.

Whenever people meet together in churches, universities and schools, Y.M.C.A.'s and Y.W.C.A.'s, in Canadian clubs, service clubs and women's institutes, Canadian girls' clubs, trade unions and trade associations, in farmers' and co-operative organizations, addresses have been specially formed for the purpose, it was announced, are to be taken to plan discussion and study."

Mr. Macpherson and Mr. Lapointe said: "The start made in broadcasting on the subject of peace in Canada might well be followed by other countries and lead to an effective organization of the world in the peace of the people of the world."

"That is described as Sir Arthur Currie's last great message was used by Mr. MacPherson and Mr. Lapointe to emphasize the importance of their plan, and his question, whether Canadians were willing to devote themselves in this night of hysteria which may end in war was reiterated. It was not enough, they suggested, to applaud speeches about peace.

Seven Sunday afternoon addresses have been arranged to introduce the various topics listed in the discussion and study outline. They will be broadcast.

PEACE GARDEN PROGRESSING

H. J. Moore, Landscape Artist Now Superintendent of Project

Mr. Henry J. Moore of Islington, Ontario, one of the country's most foremost landscape artists, who with Frederick H. Brown of Ohio, was instrumental in locating the International Peace Garden on its present site on the border of Manitoba and North Dakota, stated today during his visit to the city, that work on the Peace Garden was proceeding satisfactorily. This year will mark the greatest progress on the site.

Out of the 2,000 acres set aside for offices and directors of the Peace Garden, consisting of the usual number of residents of the United States and Canada, 1,000 acres now held by Mr. Moore, that of landscape superintendent, is perhaps one of the most interesting. Mr. Moore devotes the work of laying out the site and landscaping which he plans. Mr. W. E. Groves of Bowmanville has been appointed by the Canadian committee and has also been named on the board of the project.

The Garden, it was explained by Mr. Moore, while in Belleville, consists of 2,000 acres, and is now being developed. Dotted with scores of lakes and winding driveways through the mineral forests, with natural preservation of the site as landscape artists adding further to the natural beauty of the spot, the Garden will be one of the show places of the world when completed. Three years of development over a period of years between two great nations, and is intended as a perfect lesson to other nations through-out the world.

CENTURY PARK MAY BE NAME

Suggest Name of Zwick's Island be Changed When Park Finished

"Century Park" may advertise to the rest of the country the location of one of the beauty spots of this central section when the Zwick's Island project is finished, if the choice of leading citizens in the name is carried out.

Suggested by Magistrate W. C. Mikel of this city, "Century Park" will express the idea describing the misleading title of "Zwick's Island," and will envision to residents and the outside world the one hundred years of progress which Belleville celebrates this year. The change in the name is particularly apt at this important time, the year of the centennial.

Original suggestions for a new name for the park suggested by Mr. F. H. Moore, landscape artist retained by the city to draw plans and suggest improvements, and which the scheme included "Century Park" and "Centennial Park."

"Perhaps," suggested Mr. Moore the citizens of Belleville might like to take a hand in naming their own park. They could hand in their suggestions to the Intelligencer or the Daily Ontario Intelligencer."

A short summary of the suggestions made by a reporter for a new name for the park resulted in a majority for the above two titles in preference to other suggested names. No choice, however, has been made as yet.

FRAME-UP TO REMOVE STRANGS IS HEARD

Probe Continues at Windsor Over Shelter Affair

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 10.—(CP)—The Investigation into the Children's Aid Shelter continued today, after M. A. Sorsoleil, Commissioner, had been charged with a "frame-up" to remove Misses Mae Strang and Catharine Strang, matron and assistant matron, from their positions.

Miss Marjorie Haley, secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, had told Mrs. Dorothy Wollard, a friend of the Strang sisters, that a woman from North Dakota, stated today during his visit to the city, that work on the Peace Garden was proceeding satisfactorily. This year will mark the greatest progress on the site.

Out of the 2,000 acres set aside for offices and directors of the Peace Garden, consisting of the usual number of residents of the United States and Canada, 1,000 acres now held by Mr. Moore, that of landscape superintendent, is perhaps one of the most interesting. Accumulation of Debt Would Retard Progress Says Premier Bennett selves were to blame for the debt, which the Dominion faced today, he said.

Guard Exchange Situation

There was no danger to Canada greater than the insecurity of exchange, said the Prime Minister in a brief reference to likelihood of the establishment of a Central Bank for the Dominion. Close guard of the exchange situation had to be maintained by the government, he said.

The Prime Minister spoke of the benefits under the Ottawa conference agreements, reviewed the steps taken by his government to protect the Canadian industry and declared every step taken to guard the industry of the country was justified. The tariffs, necessarily high, were designed to meet any emergency and they met it, he declared. Canada, he declared in closing his review, had weathered the depression better than most nations and many other countries envied the Dominion's standing. The Dominion was finding new and exporting nations—the same with the occupied before depressed conditions crippled world commerce.

Facts Establish Stability

The Empire trade pacts, had established stability of trade through agreements that could not be terminated at will or caprice, Mr. Bennett said. They had been completed in the fall of 1932 and in their year of operation Canada had increased her exports to New Zealand by nine per cent.; to Australia 29 per cent.; to South Africa 17 per cent; to the United States 19 per cent.; the United Kingdom 17 per cent.

Figuring during the last few months showed progressive improvement, he likes to sit to work in a time, when it was difficult to increase sales had advanced three and seven-tenths per cent. and to the British Empire 15 per cent. Treaties with Foreign countries Austria, Italy, The Netherlands and South American countries had resulted in increased exports.

Unfair to Compare

The trade of the world was about 35 per cent. of what it was before the depression and it was unfair to compare the total trade of Canada or that of any other country with pre-depression figures.

In 1930, Canada had an unfavorable trade balance of $100,000,000 this had been progressively reduced and wiped out until for the 11 months ending November 30 last she had a favorable trade balance of $134,000,000.

He emphasized what this meant to a debtor country like Canada which must meet its obligations abroad through creating credits like this the products of its gold mines, favorable trade balances or through services rendered.

It had been found necessary to enact embargoes against Russian coal, pulpwood, asbestos and furs, to new country now in this could develop trade if faced by unfair competition and by country of 160,000,000 people whose export and import policies were in the hands of three or four men free to-select this market today and another tomorrow, any one this free to trade with Russia except in the products named.

It was a matter of pride that during all the stress and strain of the depression no Canadian bank or financial institution had closed its doors, Mr. Bennett declared.

CONSERVATIVE CLUB FOR WOMEN MEETS

Business Transacted and Evening Spent in Cards

New Year activities were resumed by the Women's Conservative Club, Tuesday evening when they held a business meeting in their club rooms. The President, Mrs. McClunis extended a welcome to a number of members present, best wishes for continued success in the coming year.

Arrangements were made for a monster card party and dance to be held in the very near future. A very pleasant game of cards concluded the evening and dainty refreshments served by Mrs. McCarthy and Mrs. McMillan poured coffee. Prizes were won by Mrs. Cameron in euchre and Mrs. McKeown in bridge.

Telegraph Operators Vote On Extra Cut

Toronto, Jan. 10.—(CP)—Canadian Pacific and Canadian National telegraph operators throughout Canada are voting this week to decide whether they will accept a further five-percent pay reduction, George Pearson, general chairman of the central division of the C.P.R. Telegraphers' Union said. A 10 per cent cut was received 18 months ago.

BIG-EYED OWL SEEN DOWNTOWN

A large, big-eyed owl, who sat on a swinging sign of an office in Campbell Street early last evening, hooted and glared at the pedestrians passing below. An effort to catch the bird by a youth only made it fly to another support on the building higher up. This is the second evening this week the owl has been seen in the same location. It is thought to be responsible for daylight hours in some secluded spot in this neighborhood, emerging at nightfall to catch rats and mice at the rear of the downtown stores.

NO BACKACHE NOW—Thanks to Dodd's

Three weeks ago she could hardly straighten up for the pain in her back. Headaches blinded her—she felt miserable, couldn't rest, housework was a trial—children and friends bothered her. Yet she never suspected the real cause—her kidneys—until a friend said—"Try Dodd's Kidney Pills". She did so at once. Now backaches stopped, headache and all signs of kidney disorders disappeared. The Topic from the Study Book was given by Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Howe and Mrs. Ross. Mrs. Seldon read a letter from Miss Ada Sandles, missionary at Korea a friend of Mrs. Homans. The letter was very interesting to all, pointing out many true facts of Korea. Miss Sandles having spoken at a meeting here only a few months ago, it seemed as if members were listening to a message from one known and loved. Many thoughts of appreciation in due Miss Sandles for her letters sent and also to Mrs. Homans for hearing the same with others.

A piano solo was given by Ruby Howard, and a solo by Mrs. W. Simmons entitled "Always on Duty."

It was moved that each month

During the Offertory, and at Communion, Mr. Harold Anger in a most pleasing bass voice, rendered "This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Jesus, Jesus, Come to Me." At the closing of the meeting he sang "As the Dewy Shades of Even", with Miss M. McCarthy pre-siding at the organ.

After the wedding, a most bountiful wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home to a large number of relatives and friends.

In the evening, a shower and dance was held at the groom's home near Deloro.

Mr. and Mrs. Clemens will reside on a farm on Madoc Road.

The CANADIAN COOKING SCHOOL by Anna Lee Scott

FOR BEGINNERS
or for any woman who does not feel she has mastered the Art of Cookery

A New Course of 12 EASY LESSONS

COMMENCING January 15th

One of the tragedies of the age is the household where there is not a good cook—one who really knows food, for in that household there is sure to be waste which works against the family finances; just as inexpertly prepared and improperly combined foods work against the family health, causing unhappiness and no end of trouble. To those who do not consider the subject seriously it may not seem so important at the first glance. But it is the unmistakable truth that there is no accomplishment known to women which can compare with that of being a good cook. It does not matter whether the woman in question is to do her own work or have a staff of servants—these are the reasons for this new cookery course.

After five years of preparation, Anna Lee Scott is offering to all readers of this paper, her new 12 Lesson Course in the Art of Cookery, making it possible for everyone, regardless of their income, to find a new thrill in the preparation of food. These new easy ways are without a doubt the most interesting and economical ways.

The first lesson will appear on (Jan. 15). The other eleven lessons in the course will appear on this same day each week for eleven weeks. Read and study every paragraph. You will find the lessons decidedly helpful in the future as well as the present.

Why I Talk About Myself

The above is from a photograph of Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., at 75. When 50 years of age Dr. Jackson was given but four months to live by the famous Sir Wm. Osler, but through natural living habits and the use of alkaline foods Dr. Jackson is today in his 76th year the embodiment of youthful vigor and endurance.

In my articles (advertisements if you like) and lectures, I talk considerably about myself. To some this may seem "exaggerated ego" or conceit. Well, what of it, if what I say about myself and my achievements in rebuilding my old and decrepit body at 50 into a vital and youthful one at the three-quarters of a century mark, can be made the key that will open the door to glorious youth and health for some other tortured, decrepit and deformed body containing a cramped and tortured soul? But really those who know me best would be the last to charge me with conceit or an exaggerated ego.

Here is the reason that "I" finds its way so often into both my lectures and my health articles or advertisements. Until I was 50 I was weak and sickly—a down-and-out fellow whom the greatest men in my profession gave up for practically dead at 50, with at most four months to live, and, should I live, but four more years of sight. Then suddenly I made up my mind that I could "come back", because of an idea born of an incident in my own practice. I remoulded my living habits along more natural and simple lines, beginning with my foods. I knew that my body was clogged with toxic and acid residues that were irritating my vital organs and poisoning me. I invented Roman Meal to neutralize those irritant acids and eliminate the toxins of constipation and other abnormal conditions and for four years I lived almost entirely upon it. I worked out a system of exercises, sleep, fresh air and sunshine and a constructive mental attitude that I have adhered to religiously for 25 years, and I did come back! To-day at 76 I am mentally and physically so fit that I cannot conceive of anyone being more fit; immune from all sickness, including the common cold. In other words, I am the embodiment of my philosophy of natural health through natural living habits, leading to a natural immunity from disease. I am Exhibit "A" as it were, which is why I talk about myself in the same way that Henry Ford has to talk about his automobile. It is my kind of health I am trying to sell.

So it is not conceit that makes me talk about myself and how I remade my mental and physical equipment. I do not sell Roman Meal, Lishus, Bekus-Puddy and Kofy-Suh—I sell HEALTH—the greatest earthly human possession. It is because these foods are part of my philosophy, because they make it easily possible to live my philosophy that I both make and market these alkali-forming natural foods, Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy and Lishus and tell the world about them, and along with these foods I try to sell other things to my fellow-men, fresh air, sunshine, exercise and the proper mental attitude.

Therefore I have no apologies for using "I" in my talks nor for the references to my foods because I am thus able to help thousands of men and women to retain their health or to "come back" from miserable sickness to exultant health as I have done. What these alkali-forming laxative foods have done for me they can and will do for anyone who will as persistently use them. I shall be glad to send you list of alkali-forming foods and my booklet "How to Be Well"—both free. Write to Robt. G. Jackson, M. D., 533 Vine Ave., Toronto.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

He Tells Her She's Too Shabby

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I had been going with a boy for almost a year, and then he went away to New York. He used to do everything I asked him, and he gave me lots of lovely things because my father hasn't been working. Now he seems to think of nothing but hurting my feelings—tells me he'll come to see me, and I wait for him, then he goes to other places.

I love him truly, Miss Fairfax, but I can't go on like this much longer. He can't really be in love with me, do you think, to act this way. Everybody tells me not to bother with him and to go out with other boys who will treat me better. But he is the only one who interests me.

I am not at all bad-looking and dress as well as any girl in our neighborhood, yet this boy actually said to me that I don't dress well enough for him; though when my father was working, and this boy was shabby as rags could be, I went to church and everywhere with him. Now I am not stylish enough for him to go with.

He promised me a ring for my birthday, then gave me the money instead. Do you think it was proper for me to take the money even though we needed it so terribly? I know we're both young, and don't have just what's the right thing to do. He's 19 and I'm 17.

Would you advise me to talk to his mother? She is very fond of me.

B.

All said and done, my dear, I'm inclined to agree with those friends who advise you to drop this boy and go with someone who will appreciate you more. There's a strange perversity in some men and women—they just can't stand being loved. Happily, not all people are like this. It seems to be pursuit that interests a great many of them.

Objecting to your clothes strikes me as contemptible, and if he were a well-bred boy he would never have told you that was the reason he didn't like to take you out. As you ask me, it seems too bad you took the money instead of the ring. Money seems to be the root of many evils in love affairs. My advice is that you aim to keep cheerful. Enjoy yourself.

New Vamp in Town

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years of age, considered good-looking and quite popular, but now I have a dangerous competitor. This girl is new to our city, but you'd think she'd lived here all her life. She has successfully captured the boy friends of nearly all the girls in our set, and is dissatisfied and generally dopes them for someone newer in it few weeks' time.

She has wrapped my boy friend round her finger for the last three weeks. I am not jealous in the least, but I know she is doing this—to make me angry. Would you please tell me what I could do to rid this young man back without making her my enemy?

Bewildered.

As you tell me she gets tired of most of the boys after going a few weeks, why not give her time? Don't show her that you are angry or jealous. Appear to aid this friendship all you can. Take it as rather a joke.

Vamps don't wear very well, and I think in the long run your boy friend will come back to you, especially if you don't sit around moping and looking woebegone—just show him you're having a swell elegant time" with the rest of the bunch.

His Rival Drinks

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The girl I am in love with has a beautiful name of Carol. Another man who is paying her attentions is addicted to heavy drinking. Nearly all her dates with him are for dances, which leads me to believe that she prefers his dancing to mine. I have been very fond of this girl for at least three years, while my "deadly rival" has a way of flashing on the scene intermittently.

The girl has many good qualities which make her stand apart from all the other girls I've ever known.

Jack Oakie, Ginger Rogers and Jack Haley in "Sitting Pretty" at the Bella Theatre tomorrow.

Why does she care for a heavy drinker? Why can't she see how unfortunate it would be if she married this man? What can I do about it?

Puzzled.

If she prefers the heavy drinkers dancing to yours, this leads me to suppose he's a better dancer; has more ardents. All women fall for a ball-room conqueror. Wouldn't it be advisable for you to go to a good teacher and polish up your steps a little?

From certain things you have told me in your letter, and which I am not revealing, I fear you have been too humble with this young lady. Assert yourself more; it's time you were to be "swept off their feet."

PAYS PENALTY FOR PART IN FIRE

Steps through which the Dutch government sought to gain a lighter sentence for the young Hollander were unavailing.

Late last night Van Der Lubbe was informed by the Leipzig prison governor that justice must take its course, but the announcement failed to rouse him from the stupor into which he sunk virtually throughout the long trial.

Expressed No Wish

Van Der Lubbe did not reply to the question of whether he wanted a clergyman to attend him on the last walk to the guillotine—nor did he express any special wishes generally granted to persons on the eve of execution.

The guillotine was erected during the night by the official executioner and his attendants in the prison yard of the district court here.

At 7.25 o'clock this morning, a few strokes of the prison bell announced to the outer world that a man was paying the extreme penalty.

Few realized, however, that it was Van Der Lubbe—probably the most talked-of criminal in recent years.

There had been no intimation until the last moment that President Paul von Hindenburg would decline to pardon the Dutchman.

At 6.00 o'clock, the warden entered Van Der Lubbe's cell and told him his last hour had come.

Without saying one word Van Der Lubbe arose and after being shaved, was led by the prison governor into the courtyard.

There State's Attorney Werner, several physicians and 12 citizens "of good repute"—in accordance with the law—were assembled.

Justice Done

Without showing the least emotion, Van Der Lubbe with bowed head listened as the death sentence again was read by Wilhelm Buenger, presiding judge during the trial.

He silently shook his head when asked if he wanted to make a statement.

Herr Werner then said, "I surrender you to the executioner."

The latter, Herr Goebler of Magdeburg, dressed in evening clothes and wearing white gloves, laid his hand on Van Der Lubbe's shoulder.

Meekly, the young man ascended the scaffold where he was tied down.

Ascherr Goebler pressed a button, his head rolled into a basket of sawdust.

In 30 seconds it was all over.

Before a clergyman had finished the prayer, the executioner had called out:

"Justice has been done!"

200 CHILDREN ENTERTAINED

It was a grand sight to see over 200 children sit down to supper last night in John Street Church Hall. The tables were decorated in the spirit of the season and the whole ensemble produced a fine effect. Several children from the Ontario School for the Deaf were present. The supper preceded the annual concert of which Mr. Archibald, superintendent, was chairman, assisted at the piano by Miss Leona Riggs and Miss Helen Findlay. The program which was very amusing and interesting was as follows:

Address by the Chairman; Chorus by Mrs. Branscombe's class; Skit, "Chu Chu Train", Mrs. Archibald's class; Song by Gordon Bankier; Chorus, Mrs. Branscombe's class; Recitation by Illa Keen; Recitation by Bob Gibson; Song, by Barbara Reid; Recitation by Lois Bankier; Dramatization by Susie Deneke's class; Boys Snow Drill by Mrs. Christie's class; Guitar Solo, Bill Ferguson; Recitation by Laura Keen; Play, "The Lost Bounce", Doris Kerr's class; Cowboy Scene; Christmas Play, by the Mission Band; Recitation by Helen Miller; Play "Toad of Toad Hall" by Miss Templeton's class; National Anthem.

SAP'S RUNNING GROUNDHOGS DOZE

Sap's running, and on the sheltered sides of the hills in the back townships groundhogs have come out to doze in the sun report observers. The reports however, are merely relayed stories heard from residents of the back section who have entered the city during the past few days, and are not authenticated.

Questioning of rural residents of the section on Wednesday revealed the fact that sap in the sugar maples is actually running, but as yet the season is too early for owners of the trees to commence the spring work of "boiling down." "There'll be plenty of cold weather before spring is here", stated one of them.

A groundhog was said to have been seen on the snow covered road near Tweed on Tuesday afternoon, while from the district of Crookston, a transport driver of the city stated he saw another one dreaming away the hours on a large rock beside the road as he passed.

Jerusalem, Jan. 10—(AP)—Fears of a recurrence of last autumn's disturbances were awakened today by the decision of Arab leaders to signalize Jan. 16, which ends the Ramadan religious festival, as a day of protest against the government's Jewish immigration policy.

PARENTS ARE CRITICIZED

Magistrate Comments in Remanding Young Man

Frank McGrath, Sidney appeared in the local police court, this morning, charged with forgery and after pleading guilty was remanded in custody, for one week by Magistrate Mikel.

The offence arose out of the issuing of a cheque to a local merchant on Nov. 18th last, when McGrath signed the name of Thomas J. McGrath. It was the second charge of a similar nature, which McGrath has faced in a local police court.

His Worship Magistrate Mikel administered to the boy a severe lecture and added words in reference to so many young boys appearing in the police courts today. "It is quite apparent, that parents today do not punish their children sufficiently to make them mind," stated His Worship. "When the parents do not give their children a good sound thrashing for not behaving that is one of the main reasons we have so many young boys in our police courts today," added the Bench. "Nowadays when the parents refuse to discipline their children at home for fear of hurting their feelings it makes it so much harder in our courts," said Mr. Mikel, as he continued to lecture McGrath.

MILK BLOCKADE AT CHICAGO IS ENDED

Chicago, Jan. 10—(AP) — The Chicago milk blockade was ended today on a truce reached between warring factions in a conference with Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

The mayor announced milk deliveries would be resumed this afternoon after five days of violence that had left Chicago almost milkless.

Arbitrators were named to assist farmers and dealers in agreeing upon a price to producers.

DAYS GROW LONGER BUT ALSO WARMER

While water from the melting snow dripped from downtown eaves on Wednesday, balmy winds wafted through the district, sending temperatures up again to springtime heights. The country is due for a further spell, stated weather forecasters today, with the added probability of more snow coming. Householders in the city in the meantime are enjoying just about the same comparatively warm weather experienced in this district just one year ago when the first break-up of the thin ice in the Bay of Quinte occurred.

NO FRY SENT YET FROM HATCHERY

As yet no shipments of white fish fry have been sent out from the local government hatchery, it was stated today.

"Although the biggest bulk of the white fish now under culture will be used to restock the Bay of Quinte, we'll send a few shipments to other hatcheries later on," it was stated.

Merely routine work at the hatchery is occupying the attention of workers there this week.

Butter Imports Not Encouraged

OTTAWA, January 10.— Certain dealers in imported butter have indicated their intention to import butter; but it was authoritatively stated in Government circles Tuesday this was being discouraged because of the adequacy of local supplies for all present requirements. Butter in storage in this country in December, amounted to 29,000,000 pounds, it was explained, which is about 3,000,000 pounds more than that of a year ago, and approximately 5,000,000 pounds more than the five-year average for that period.

Last year with a much less quantity in storage at this time, the winter production and the storage was ample to supply Canadian requirements throughout the whole winter, and there was no need for import. The Government has stated, therefore, there is no necessity of importing butter for Canadian requirements and any such imports could only result in depressing the Canadian market for the producer who is entitled to a fair return for his production during the winter months.

Officials further stated that should any imports from abroad be brought in, it was the intention of the Government to impose such restrictions as would adequately protect the Canadian market against these unnecessary imports.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Egg prices at Montreal were again lower yesterday, continuation of mild weather and heavier receipts having an easing influence. Arrivals for the day were 1,235 cases compared with 435 cases on the same day last week, and 922 cases on Monday. While receipts are below a year ago totals, there is some accumulation of supplies, as demand is poor, buyers waiting to see whether prices will drop still further. Graded shipments in carlots were mostly quoted yesterday at 31c for grade A-large, 28c for grade A-medium, and 27c for grade A-pullets.

Demand was slow on the butter market and prices were generally around 25¼c per lb. for carlots or l.c.l. lots of No. 1 pasteurized. Receipts were 508 boxes.

The cheese market held steady steady at 10¼c to 10½c per lb. for current make Ontarios. Receipts, 126 boxes.

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO, Jan. 10. — (CP)— Stocks were in a cheerful mood in the early session today on the Toronto Stock Exchange and the Board displayed gains. Beverage shares, particularly the Distillery group were out in front. Walkers common gaining 1 1-4 to 55, Distillers Seagram 7-8 to 24 1-8, Industrial Alcohol 1-4 to 19 and Brewers and Distillers 10 to 2.80.

Most of the other interlisted issues moved up moderately, Nickel gaining 15 to 21.75, C.P.R. 1-8 to 15 3-8 and Ford A 3-8 to 15 3-4. Smelters was a point higher at 135. In the Beer Group both Brewing Corporation issues added small fractions and Canada Bud tacked on a quarter point.

Utilities and Distilleries and Steel issues were uniformly strong today, gains up to 1 1-2 points appearing in the early trading. Definite strength in the New York Market supported the Interlisted Group adding fractions to C.P.R., Ford A and Nickel. Brazilian was down about a quarter point.

Walkers' Common was the best of the distillery shares, advancing more than a point and Distillers Seagrams, Industrial Alcohol and Brewers and Distillers all moved up, moderately on good trading volume.

In the Utilities, Consumers Gas, Bell Telephone, Shawinigan, and Union Gas registered early gains up to 2 points.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 10—(CP)— The Standard Mining Market was firm today with the senior gold group with exception of Hollinger particularly showing hesitancy. Base Metal issues firmed moderately. Buying was again brisk in Hollinger with most of the sales going through at yesterday's quotation of 12.25. McIntyre was unchanged at 41.50. Pioneer unchanged at $12, Bralorne up 5 to 10.25; Teck Hughes off 20 cents to 5.90 and Wright Hargreaves up 5 cents to 6.85.

Base Metals constituted the strongest group with Nickel up 15 to 21.75, Base Metals Corporation 1 to 1.65, Pend Oreille 5 to 95, and Sudbury Basin 4 to 1.44.

Several individual stocks were in the spot light today, turning over in heavy volume at better prices while the general tone was firm with volume small in the leaders. The big gold shares were again sold although Hollinger had a good trade with the price shaded 20 cents to 12.05 in the early afternoon. Dome, Teck Hughes and Lake Shore took light losses in the early transactions.

Pend Oreille featured the base metal stocks, advancing 15 cents to 1.05. Nickel ruled higher and Noranda steady.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. —(AP)— Stocks moved a porpoise-like pace today but prices generally continued to display a moderately firm and cheerful undertone.

News of an especially inspiring nature was lacking and the public showed little or no speculative enthusiasm. Professionals accounted for the majority of the meagre transactions in the early hours. Bonds did fairly well.

Shares of American Telephone, Allied Chemical, U.S. Steel Preferred, U.S. Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol got up about 2 points each.

Canadian Securities mulled about in an exceedingly narrow range. On the big board shares of International Nickel, Canadian Pacific and McIntyre were a shade higher while Dome did slightly better. Hiram Walker gained about a point in curb dealings, Dominion Government bonds ruled steadily to 1-4 point higher. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 99.87 1-2.

His hope was high, his faith was strong;
The peace of Jesus fills his breast,
And in His arms he sank to rest,
We loved him yes, no tongue can tell,
How deep, how dearly and how well.
Christ loved him too and thought it best
To take him home with Him to rest.

HUFF'S ISLAND WEEKLY NOTES

Huff's Island, Jan. 11. — The Misses Doris, Lottie and Marion Wallbridge entertained their school mates at a jolly skating party on Thursday evening.

Miss Roberta Wallbridge spent the past week with Miss Beatrice Jones, Rednersville.

Mrs. E. Hall and baby have returned home from the hospital and both are doing well.

Miss Kathleen Montgomery was a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. Barber, last week.

Miss Roberta Wallbridge and Master Wilfred Motley were among those who were confirmed at St. John's Mission, Herchimer avenue, on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Black were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Black, Doxsee.

Miss Julia Huff spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. L. Wallbridge.

MRS. F. HAYCOCK ENTERTAINS W.M.S.

West Lake, Jan. 11.—There was not a very large attendance at the afternoon service on Sunday owing to the icy condition of the road and the rain.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Suddard and family were Saturday evening visitors at Rudolph Kleinsteuber's.

Edison McConnell, Daniel Maitland and Stanley McConnell spent Tuesday in Belleville.

Mrs. Ryan has been suffering from la grippe but is somewhat improved.

Mr. and Mrs. George Huycke, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Brown and Miss Kathleen Sanderson were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. McConnell.

A little son come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yardley last week.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

Sue walking to the window, leaning down into the street where cars purred. Randall guests.

"They wouldn't dare offer such a pointed insult to Jeff's wife unless they were sure he is feeling with me," she said.

For once, Mathilda was silent. She went on with the packing, stowing articles in trays with vigor and with speed.

When she had finished she went to the doors leading to the outer hall, taking care to lock each one and slip the inner bolts into place.

"We're not leaving these rooms tonight on any errand whatever," she said. "And we're admitting no one. There's fruit and sandwiches on the table. Help yourself. If we had Persons bring them upstairs. I'll tell whatever lies I must to add good dinner we have dined. Until then stay right where you are. Be early first plan."

Sometime toward morning there was a soft knocking on Sue's door. Instantly Mathilda was out of bed, her eyes agleam.

"Who is it?" she called.

"It's Jack Burton," came the muffled answer. "Did madame sleep?"

"No. Madame is sleeping."

"Madame is bad conditioned in the servants' rooms."

"You must be mistaken. No one rang from there."

"Excuse, please."

Mathilda watched on the lights. Sue was standing by the bed, poised for action. "Do you believe it was a mistake?" she asked.

"No. And I'll be glad to get out of this house."

"Let's get up." Sue, slipping into a negligee. "It's almost morning. As soon as its light we'll dress and go. No one will be about so early and we can leave unnoticed. We'll send for our trunks later."

"Not a bad idea." Mathilda agreed, calm and sober than most."

CHAPTER 25

On the broad old-fashioned veranda of the Green Springs Hotel Sue leaned against the rail and watched a party of hikers make off for a trail that led upward into the mountains. Servants with hampers followed the hikers. They would rejoin somewhere along the trail. Their laughter floated back to the figure of the girl on the veranda, mocking her solitude.

The youth in Sue clamored that she, too, should be setting out with a merry party for a day in the mountains. She should be one of the group over by the tennis courts, moving about in gay confusion. She should be one of the knot of girls at the other end of the veranda gossiping over milk punches after a canter through the hills.

How cruel youth could be to youth! Not one of those young people would have stared at her insolently, turned her head and walked away had she essayed to exchange a pleasantry. Definitely, she was an interloper. Interlopers in the select circle wherein these youths revolved were not to be borne, much less encouraged. "Jeff Randall's wife. Who was she?" "My dear, no one knows." "Rex says she was a stenographer or something Jeff picked up in an odd moment abroad. Probably when he was tight. So he's getting her the gaze." "How do you suppose she ever got to Green Springs?" "Some one must have left the gate open."

Sue studied the toe of her riding boot. Riding boots. She thought of the mornings she had stopped at the corner stand near her rooming house for the shine a Negro fan walking shoes. On her way to the office. On her way to work. Good old honest shoes. Good honest work. And she had hated them. She had stood in front of shop windows coveting riding boots. As if riding boots were accomplices of boots that would gallop her to happiness. Seven-league boots were good honest walking shoes that carried you to good honest work. If ever she stood in them again, she'd know.

Eyes at the other end of the veranda turned covertly, in her direction. They were whispering about her. Sue moved, uneasily.

"Good morning, Mrs. Randall." She heightening visibly. The young man who addressed her was also in riding togs.

"Glorious morning, isn't it?" Sue returned the greeting. "You have not seen my brother Tommy by any chance?"

"Just left him." The young man said. "He's gone to Green Springs riders in my time but Tommy tops 'em all. He asked me to tell you he would meet you at the second cross trail. If I'm not intruding I'd like to ride along. Feeling so fit, and the exercise will fog me into shape again."

"Why —yes— if you like." Sue, conscious of the covert eyes. They would see she was not entirely alone. True, the young man seemed to be an interloper himself. Outside the pale. Well, why shouldn't interlopers get together and form their own exclusive circle?

"I'll ask Mathilda to saddle the horses." the young man said and disappeared around the corner of the verandah.

At once Sue regretted having yielded to his evident anxiety to accompany her. The young man was baffling. Too suave. Too good-looking. Too given to turning up at unexpected places. And yet—he had quite won over Tommy. It was Tommy who had introduced him!

"Sue, I want you to meet my friend Jack Burton." Tommy had said in his grown man's voice. He was just in from a long ride, damp, covered with dust, and proud over his record on the trails. "I had him scared to death. I'm letting my saddle until Jack—Mr. Burton—caught up with me and gave me the heat." You break your neck this way, Sue"—Tommy squatted on the ground to fix his feet to illustrate his point— "then your knees grip the horse and you don't bounce off."

"Your brother will make a fine rider once he gets the rhythm," Jack Burton said when the introduction had been acknowledged. "He has a natural seat and he has courage."

"It's nice of you to help him," she said lamely.

That had been the beginning. Sue remembered it clearly. Mathilda, casually. The next day Jack Burton came again with the mail. Tommy on the trail. There was no disputing that fact. He was a born sportsman par excellence. Conversation was confined to the happenings of the trail. Tommy's ineptness in the rhythm of "posting" and was in the saddle.

Why, Sue asked herself, did she have the horses sent to the stable herself, to be rude to the point of abrupt dismissal to Jack Burton? Was it because he seemed to be more or less of a solitary in this strange, gay, cosmopolitan? Then she was being a snob, like the others. Was it because she was suspicious? Suspicious of what? Soon she would be insulting her own shadow.

The horses are being saddled," Jack Burton was back, smiling and immaculate as always. "I've picked two of the best. The maître d'hotel is putting up some sandwiches. Tommy will be ready for them by the time we catch up with him.

Sandwiches. Then they were to be a picnic, after all. Her pinole. Hers and Tommy's. Sue lit a cigarette she didn't in the least want, flickered it in the direction of the covert eyes at the far end of the verandah.

"I was thinking of new boots," she said. "These aren't bad after all." She flexed her foot so that the sunshine caught the polished leather.

Then she raised her eyes. That strange feeling of animus again. She didn't like the curved Jack Burton made of her boots. Cynicism, under-grinning lids.

A groom brought the horses. Jack Burton helped Sue to mount. She was conscious of the group on the verandah, watching her comely now. A choice morsel of gossip for them to tear to shreds. Jeffrey Randall's bride riding out with a strange young man! Let them. Jeffrey didn't care. He was through with her. Convinive with Bea to rid themselves of her. They need not. She'd get out of their lives without better mulled out.

Sunlight and shadow dizzled on the trail, briskly carseled with autumn finery. The air was brisk and heady. Un and un with the tang of the woods in their nostrils. Presently they came to a clearing.

"What are we dismount and stretch our legs?" Jack Burton suggested. "It's been a pretty steady climb. You'll sit your saddle easier, for a rest."

Sue was glad for the interval. They turned into the clearing. Jack Burton tethered the horses to the limb of a tree. A fallen log, moss-embanked, invited them to rest on its ample trunk.

"You've done splendidly." Burton encouraged. "When you get a little more strength in your knees you will be slender."

"It's a lamb of a horse." Sue said, glancing under the bridle. "He understands the lightest touch on the reins."

"Yes, he's well schooled. Will you be adoonlee in Green Springs for some time?"

Sue withdrawinz, percepubly. She did not want this young man to be persona with her.

"I haven't decided," she said, closer the subject.

"I thought if you were, you might arrange with the stables to keep the horse under riding while you're here."

There! She'd been suspicious again. Jumping at shadows.

"That would be fine," Sue, warming, to atone for her curtness of a moment ago. "Thanks for the suggestion. I'll try to arrange it when we get back. Don't you think we might go on now? Tommy will be waiting."

"Yes—spoother-couple of minutes." They were seated side by side on the log. Some one coming down the trail whistled a tune. "I'm not any his fit this morning." Guess I shouldn't have come out."

Jack Burton's voice was low, scarce more than a hoarse whisper. He was swaying on the log. Sue moved close to steady him. Suddenly he lurched forward, against her. His arms went up and encircled her shoulders. He was falling. she must hold him—if she'd only thought to bring water or some brandy —

At that moment two riders emerged from the woods, galloping swiftly along the trail. Sue, struggling to release her arms, to signal them for help. Before she could do so, before she could call to them they were gone. She could hear their laughter rigging.

The young man's weight was lighter now. He was reviving. His arms slipped from his shoulders. He sat up, unsteadily, blinking his eyes.

"I—I beg your pardon, Mrs.—same mistake."

"Why, of course!" Sue, startled. "That's exactly what they did think. His arms were around me, tight, so I couldn't move—his head was on my shoulder— Matty, whatever will they say?"

"They'll say it's the usual affair —lonely young wife, handsome young squire. Let 'em. Your skirts are clean. Do you know anything about this—Burton?"

"No. Except that he's a good horseman and he's been nice to Tommy."

"I'd avoid going out with him alone. Though there's no use actual if you're in a nunnery."

"I'll let him understand I prefer to be left to myself." Sue determined. "No," Mathilda argued. "Too pointed. Being always alone is more conspicuous than being decently squired. Just be natural and when you ride again, see that Tommy is with you."

But Sue was saved the necessity for decision regarding the attention of Jack Burton. For Tommy came in with the news his friend Jack had been called away suddenly and had already left Green Springs. Tommy was desolate. "Jack was going to take me over my first jump tomorrow," he said. "Now he's gone without hardly even saying good-bye."

"Did Jack tell you anything about himself Tommy?" Mathilda wanted to know. "What he does or where he lives?"

"I don't remember that he did." Tommy scarched his mind. "Mostly we talked about horses. He's ridden lots of horses in shows all over the country and he's ridden them abroad too, in France and in England. I don't think he's rich though because he said his riding breeches were worn out and they are the best part of him. But he said he was going to get the best outfit anyone ever saw when he got back to New York."

"Oh, he is! Then he must have money waiting for him in New York." Mathilda was talking to herself.

"Matty, what is it? What are you thinking?" Sue, in a panic.

"I was thinking about those people gallopting along the trail, just in time for what looked like a love scene."

TARZAN AT THE EART H'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The girl captive had not spoken since she had arrived in the Glovian village. She was turned over to Maral, the chief's wife, who was instructed to feed her and permit her to sleep. Now she stood by the cook-fire, her bonds removed and an expression of haughty disdain on her beautiful face. Maral was kind to her, speaking pleasantly as she offered food. "Do not be afraid," she said, "you are among friends. I, too, am from Zorium."

"You are from my country?" the girl cried eagerly. "Then you know how I feel. I would rather die than live elsewhere." "You will get over that," answered Maral. "When they have given you a mate, you will be as happy here as I have been." "I shall never mate with any of them," cried the girl, stamping her sandaled foot angrily. "I am Jana, The Red Flower of Zorzan, and I choose my own mate."

Maral shook her head. "Thus spoke I once," she said, "but I have changed, and so will you." "No, I!" said the girl. "I have seen but one man with whom I would mate, and I shall never mate with another." Nearby, Tarzan, with his constant companion, Ovan, the chief's son, had overheard the woman's talk and now he turned to the captive. "You are Jana?" he asked, "the sister of Thorar?" The girl looked at him in surprise and now for the first time her eyes quickly investigated him.

"Ah," she said, "you are the stranger whom Carb would destroy?" "Yes," replied the ape-man, "What do you know of Thorar, my brother?" "We hunted together. We were traveling back to Zorium when we became separated. We were following the tracks made by you and a man with you when the great storm came. Your companion was the one I was seeking." "What do you know of him?" demanded the girl. "He is my friend," said Tarzan. "Where is he?" For a moment the girl paused. "The storm caught him in the canyon. He must have been drowned," she answered sadly.

AMERKS AGAIN WIN

Rangers Set Red Wings Down 4th In 5 Win

Little Aurel Joliat, whose fighting heart and deft ability to avoid punishment have carried him through eleven years of the most strenuous hockey played, seemed bound today to make his twelfth season in the National Hockey League one of the greatest of them all.

The crafty left winger, oldest in that position in the big time, goes right along with those who started counting him out years ago. Recently he scored a goal or an assist in eight straight games. Last night he drove his puck past Dave Kerr and played his usual canny defensive game as the Montreal Canadiens in a 3-2 win from Maroons.

The Ottawa Senat has fought the ravages of time and borne up under the punishing grind of hockey so well that the younger generation of pucksters leads him in scoring points today. With 19, Joliat is tied for second placing in the lists with Earl Seibert of Ottawa, five points behind Charlie Conacher of Toronto Leafs.

If he keeps on as he has there is no reason to suppose he won't equal his top-scoring year of '27, when he had 37 points. He certainly should top his eleven-year average of 20.

Two Goals in Two Minutes

Joliat's two goals, scored in a little more than two minutes of the second period, were the result of a relentless checker in the first session and a deft shot the edge in the early series with Eddie Gerard's team. Canadiens have now won two games, tied one and lost one.

The Frenchmen's left wing shared starring honors with blonde young Russell Blinco, recently promoted from Windsor, Ontario, who scored both Maroon goals. Canadiens' scoring punch was spread around with Newsy Lalonde sent Jack Riley out to centre to play with Joliat and Johnny Gagnon, Riley get assists on both Joliat goals.

The win lengthened the Habitants lead over Maroons to four points but left them still ten behind Toronto Leafs.

Tonight for both New York teams improved their positions. Rangers beat Detroit Red Wings 3-1, evening their season series at two wins each, and moved into second place in the United States division with the Red Wings. Americans' 2-1 decision over Boston left them only two points behind Ottawa Senators and with a game in hand.

Young Red Conn had a lot to do with the Americans' win. He scored the first goal of the game in the 2nd period and then passed to Eddie Burke for the second in the third frame. Peggy O'Neill, the Bastetown youngster, got Bruins' only tally with less than two minutes of playing time left.

Brilliant Passing

Brilliant passing attacks gave the Rangers both goals against Detroit. Just as Teddy Graham returned from a penalty in the first period a five-forward attack Les Patrick had been trying clicked. Murray Murdock scoring. Then Bill Cook marked another goal in the second period with Earl Seibert and Frank Boucher in on the play.

Johnny Sorrell slammed the puck through Seibert's legs for the Red Wings' goal in a third frame that gave the New Yorkers plenty of thrills. Wings fought furiously for a goals but the Ranger defence turned them back.

CATARACTS AND PORTS MOVE UP IN RACE

Toronto and Hamilton Tigers Given Rude Jolt

Niagara Falls climbed into second place beside Trenton in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association standings today while Port Colborne berthed beside West Toronto Nationals in fourth position following a troublesome night for League leaders.

Port Colborne visited the Ontario capital last night and tripped up Toronto with a 2-0 defeat. A close battle was fought at Niagara Falls, where the home boys skated into overtime before obtaining a 2-1 victory from Hamilton Tigers.

The ports without a victory in six starts presented Toronto with a real surprise as the Ontario Motor Ports' goalie, kept the twine unscathed, with a sensational, last minded display. The tricky rushes of Quinney, Bhill and Mervin of Toronto' front line were dangerous all the time but "Dinty" managed to get in the way of every shot.

SOCIAL LAWS FORECAST

Quebec Jan. 10 (CP)—A programme of varied social and labor legislation was forecast and assurance given there will be no new taxes in the speech from the throne delivered today by Hon. H. G. Cermilieutenant Governor, at the opening of the third session of the 18th Quebec legislature.

CURRENT SPORT

Maybe it's because the amateurs have practically adopted the pro play-by-rules but, regardless, there is to be a professional-like playoff in the local intermediate O. H. A. group on Monday night's debut at the hands of Jay Ferris' charges from Campbellford really does not mean so much after all as the clay finishing thing in the group race will play a two game series with the second place club, while the ultimate winner of this post-season series will meet the group leader for the right to represent "B" section of group No. 3 sometime next February. Regarded "round robin" series, with all invited and all wondering who will be started counting him out years ago. Recently he scored a goal or an assist in eight straight games. Last night he drove his puck past Dave Kerr and played his usual canny defensive game as the Montreal Canadiens in a 3-2 win from Maroons.

The result of the recent ultimatum issued by the O.H.A. relating to flashlight during regular league games was more than noticeable on Monday night. When questioned as to also that they are liable to more than a mere five minute penalty, a one game suspension is the penalty for striking an opponent, they replied that before setting it out goes to prove the old adage—"make the punishment fit the crime" and you'll have fewer offenses", or words to that effect. Also, in the event of Monday the players had a slight notion to drop their sticks and mix it with each other. Why? Simply this—"they knew they'd get suspended for same. This new rule is undoubtedly one of the best put over as recently adopted by the O.H.A.

Hemlock Dairy hoisted up the situation down in the Kingston City League when they downed Kingston Jan. 10.—Outplaying Brockville virtually throughout the major part of the game, Hemlock Dairy scored a 6 to 1 victory Monday night and tied up the City League semi-finals, forcing a third game on Wednesday night. From the start Hemlock held a distinct edge, displaying strength in every department and coming through as much the better team on the night's play.

Monday night's game was another exhibition in which the players paid strict attention to the puck and the penalties handed out were for minor offences. With Bill Gowsell playing a brilliant game in goal and with the defence turning in a vastly improved performance, Hemlock scored the only goal of the first period, swept in for three more in the middle frame while Brockville were securing their only counter and finished off with two smartly executed goals in the last period to leave no doubt as to their superiority. The forward line of Peterson, Mathewson and Patterson played beautiful hockey all the way in addition to passing resulting in well-earned goals. The second line of Thurlby, Card and Murray also played a fine game, Murrer rattling two counters past Murray and his two side-kicks checking back with an effectiveness that broke up countless Brockville plays.

Murray, Bentley and Roberts went over top on the defence, especially Murray, who played about the best game he has shown in a couple of years. Before retiring, it only goes to prove the old adage—"make the punishment fit the crime" and you'll have fewer offenses", or words to that effect. Also, in the event of Monday the players had a slight notion to drop their sticks and mix it with each other. Why? Simply this—"they knew they'd get suspended for same. This new rule is undoubtedly one of the best put over as recently adopted by the O.H.A.

Hemlock Dairy hoisted up the situation down in the Kingston City League when they downed Brockville Jan. 8 by a 6 to 1 count. The winner of tonight's game between these two clubs will entitle the club to meet the local Cities Service team in the finals, which incidentally should open about Friday night of this week, with the winner of the Kingston loop are the best two out of three games, this year, judging from the present gait at which the Hemlocks are now travelling, the best "Oil-men" had better look to their laurels, if they expect to be represented here. This Hemlock aggregation is no push-over in any man's league.

Considerably baseball gossip has been heard in the off season relating to the O.B.A.A., the Ulster Hockey League and the T.A.R.A., but the latest gossip along these lines comes from "Sonny" Morgan-son, sports writer of the Toronto Evening Telegram, who predicts that a mutual agreement between all parties concerned is now practically assured. Let us assume, that the present breach between these organizations is patched up, that the Ulster Hockey loop be so willing to take outside baseball clubs into its fold, or will the T.A.R.A. then step in and demand the Ulster Hockey League withdraw its clubs in the Toronto metropolitan area? What of Oshawa's stand then?

If there is a reconciliation between the Toronto factions what stand will there be taken in the matter of the Oshawa Dukes in the T.A.R.A., especially after the ultimatum issued by the O.H.A.? Will Oshawa be considered garding Oshawa being considered C.O.B.L. territory? All of these issues along with numerous others have to be taken into consideration as there is more behind the scenes than the average fan actually realizes.

Ralph Morden's intermediate cagers are a very creditable showing down in Kingston last night despite the fact they came home on the short end of a 23 to 17 score. The local basketeers have not been afforded much practice together, which incidentally is the primary factor with any basketball team, judging from their showing here, the Kingston City League they are destined to accomplish great things towards the up-lifting of the cage game in Belleville this season.

Getting back to baseball, honest-to-goodness sports columnist recently penned the following note relative to the future activities of the diamond game in Eastern Ontario, of course this was published before Morganson's recent suggestion of an amalgamation in Toronto:

"As we've said before, the whole baseball situation in Ontario is in something of a muddle yet as it's a bit early to be planning any affiliation for next summer's baseball. But, for Oshawa, decision must rapidly, to go outlaw, what if they do join the Ulster Loop and go to the Peirs and Belleville? The Dukes would still have those trips! Another thing! Is the present executive the only one in Oshawa to handle a ball club? If, we to Messrs Elliott, Kay and Gibbard of the O.B.A.A. to get busy and get another Senior City club formed to play in the O.B.A.A. since Oshawa has exited the turn on the O.B.A.A. Al Tyson and Duke Dainty had a team last year in opposition to the Dukes, but could not play. There shouldn't be too much trouble getting another one going down that way. And a few of the present Dukes will hesitate about jumping the traces, and going outlaw."

"Y" CAGERS LOSE 25-21

Kingston Takes Game Although Outplayed in Last Half

Staging a belated last half rally the Belleville Y.M.C.A. intermediate basketball team managed to pull up to within a four point difference with the fast Kingston "Y" cagers in the opening game of the E.O.B.A. Basketball League played at Kingston last evening when the basketeers managed to squeeze out a 25 to 21 victory over the local squad.

Presenting a team that had not been afforded sufficient pre-season practice together Coach Ralph Mowbrey's band of cagers, after a rather faulty start in the first half, returned to form to out-play and out-score their Limestone City rivals in the last half of the tussle and were unfortunate not to have eked out a last minute victory.

Decked out in brand new black and white uniforms the local cagers took a decided stand for the better after trailing by an 8 to 12 score at half time. Led by Farley Faulkner the locals netted six field goals and a brand of basketball, that stamped them as potential Senior City circlers. The big scorers for the Mowbrey-men were Vic White, Al Wickerson, Faulkner, Smith and Cather.

Led by Hilliard, their scrappy forward who bagged nine points for the Kingstonians while Currie followed in line with seven points. Mc-Mahon and McLaughlin also played good basketball for the visitors. With the sturdy R.M.C. team as their opponents for next squad open the current cage season at Kingston Collegiate every night.

The line-ups Belleville "Y"—V. White, 4, Wickerson, 2, Faulkner, 4, Smith, 4, Elliott, 2, Cather, 3, Farley 2, MacLean, 3, White and Davison, Kingston "Y"—Hopgood, McLaughlin, 2, McLaughlin 7,McMahon, 6, Thompson, 2, Hall, 2, Drew, Ramsky, Pulidas and Sheppard.

TECS TIED FOR THIRD

London, Ont., Jan. 10.—(CP)—London Tecumsehs were a little further away from the cellar position they had occupied so long in the International Hockey League and, which will be remembered, relinquished to Windsor bulldogs.

Last night they increased their point-margin over the lowly bull-dogs to two when they held Martin Bizons to a 1-1 stalemate before 1,200 fans. Bizons also benefitted from the draw and advanced into a third place tie with Cleveland.

YACHT CLUB TO BE FORMED

Lou Marsh of Toronto Star Gives the Project a Boost

With a registration of over one hundred names of boat owners of the district already secured, work of organizing a yacht club for the district, whose sole effort will be the accommodation of aquatic sports, is rapidly forging ahead. The list of names already secured embraces owners of every type boat in the district from the speedy racing craft to the square end punts; Organizer Thomas Mason has also secured the names of prominent boating enthusiasts in Picton, Trenton and other nearby towns, who have offered to lend their support in the formation of the organization. Among the latter, Mr. Harry Moore, editor of the Trenton Empire-Advocate is prominently listed. It is expected that the first formal meeting of the tentative committee of the newly formed club or association will be held in the Y.M.C.A. room on the evening of January 28, when officers will be elected.

Lou Marsh, sports editor of the Toronto Star had this to say about the local effort in the January 9, issue of that paper:

Belleville has . . . or will have this season . . . a unique sailing organization . . . a club of young fellows who sail punts . . . square-nosed, square-sided, square-sterned punts from 14 to 21 feet long. The boys build their own punts and rig them up with everything they can carry, including a couple of bedspreads and the wide end of sister Nellie's drawers . . . anything they can get together and make anything which will hold wind and get their noses from here to yonder.

All last season the boys sailed races Wednesday and Saturday afternoons . . . catch as catch can, and go as you please so long as you get there. Now they are getting more ambitious and want to organize a club and handicap their boats and have some bi fabulist honest-to-jerry racing for cups and things . . . and some older men . . . who are interested in a club including the owners of 22 powerful launches, cruisers and runabouts . . . eight fourteen-foot dinghies of standard racing type . . . two auxiliary cruisers . . . and 25 sailing punts . . . to say nothing of paddlers and swimmers. He also added that more punts are being batted together in various cellars, woodsheds and garages and will be ready for the spring.

Mason also tells me that Trenton boys are building five boats of the new "Snipe" class and Picton, Napanee and Wellington are interested in various forms of sailing and power craft. . . . How about a Bay of Quinte Sailing Association, Tommies? . . . shake the boys up and get busy for a big season of interclub racing and cruising. Belleville used to be a great racing centre for yachts.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE
"Sitting Pretty"

Musical written by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, two of America's top song writers combined with comedy furnished by an all-star cast headed by Jack Oakie, Jack Haley, Ginger Rogers, Thelma Todd and Gregory Ratoff are the main ingredients of the fast and furious screen musical-comedy "Sitting Pretty," coming to the Belle tomorrow and Friday, matinee daily.

Produced by Paramount from an original story suggested by Nunn Wilson Putnam, "Sitting Pretty" boasts a good supporting cast including Lew Cody, Jerry Tucker, Walter Walker and Ben Bard, well known radio features. The Pickens Sisters and the Beverly Hill Billies.

Gordon and Revel, authors of "Underneath a Harlem Moon," "An Orchid to You" and other popular tunes have written several numbers for this picture including "Good Morning Glory" "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" "I Wanna Meander with Miranda," "Many Moons Ago," "Such a Comfort to Me," "Ballad of the South," "Lights, Action, Camera, Love," "There's a Rhubbub at My Window, and a Sheriff at My Door." Two smacking good production numbers are backed up by enthralling sets and one hundred of Hollywood's most talented retaining girls.

Jack Oakie and Jack Haley are a couple of likeable chaps from New York's Tin-Pan alley who finally sell a song so big that they think they lose their money in a crap game and end in hitch-hike. They meet a "nut" who tells them he's the president of a motion picture company. He takes a liking to them, gives them a contract and away they go.

When they arrive at the studio the cold reception given them comes as a complete surprise. But with characteristic boldness, they make their way into the studio, talk themselves into a big job and meet all the blondes.

Then their troubles begin. Success goes to their heads; dames, dames, and more dames destroy their work so they give up work. Ginger Rogers and Thelma Todd promptly becomes discords.

But it remains for a sweet, genuine young romance to reward the swing things into shape again. She gets the "sap" back at last, the picture ends in a surprising climax that is crammed with laughs and hilarity.

AT THE CAPITOL
"The Sphinx"

To one who enjoys unriddling the mystery of a baffling murder case, who likes his entertainment of the nerve-tingling, hair-raising, suspense sort, with much of the sinister underlying the plot and the characterization, we can heartily recommend "The Sphinx" which opens at the Capitol Theatre Thursday for 3 days.

This is a mystery-murder drama of the first water. It exposes the machinations of a clever gentleman-swindler of the financial district of a big modern city, who takes a gruesome revenge on those whom he has reason to believe are about to expose him. The manner in which he accomplishes his vile deeds and escapes detection until a clever newspaper reporter gets on his trail, it would be unfair to reveal. Suffice to say that the final denouement is startling and the suspense is kept keyed up to a high pitch until the final expose and capture of the criminal.

Lionel Atwill, the actor, Lionel Atwill, whose characterizations of sinister and original story characters succeed to the late Lon Chaney, Boris Karloff and the double role allotted him.

"The Sphinx" is a mass of mystery—it will keep you guessing from start to finish. On the same program we bring back Joe E. Brown, master of mirth in "You Said a Mouthful." Certainly Joe has to be his best comedy and laughs come fast and furious throughout the length of this mirth provoker.

Matinee daily at 2.45, evening performances at 7 and 9 p.m. for this particular program on Thursday and Friday. Also Saturday today to see "Ladies Must Love" at the Capitol—a scream with Jane Knight, Dorothy Burgess, Mary Carlisle and Sally Eilers. This is the beautiful foursome of gold-diggers and how they can dig. Didn't miss it—you'll be sorry!

9 p.m. when Ten Beautiful Silver Gifts will be given away, the matinee is a nine piece genuine sterling silver bridge tea set.

"Little Women"

Elaborate settings, amazing authentic costumes and a true reproduction of the original story combine to lines the dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's classic "Little Women" to be presented at the Belle tonight for the last times, starring Katharine Hepburn, this picture featuring a notable cast headed by Frances Bennett as Amy, Jean Parker is Beth, Spring Byington is Marmee, Frances Dee is Meg, Douglas Montgomery is Laurie, Edna May Oliver is the grumpy old Aunt March and Henry Stephenson is Mr. Laurence. It is a refreshing screen treat and should not be missed.

FRONT ROAD LADIES' AID

The January meeting of the Front Road Ladies' Aid, which was also the annual meeting and election of officers, took place at the home of Mrs. Robert Bell on Thursday afternoon Jan. 4th with a splendid attendance of members.

No work was done at this meeting as business took up the greater part of the afternoon, but Bennett very kindly offered to take the blocks, which had already been pieced and put them together ready for quilting.

The Roll Call was answered by a verse of Scripture containing the word "Repent", "Believe" was chosen for the keyword for Roll Call for next month.

The Secretary Treasurer, Miss Doris Reid gave a full detailed account of receipts and expenditures for the year which was very gratifying to all present showing a balance on hand of $32.08. The books were then audited by Mrs. K. Wilkinson and Mrs. Jay Purdy and found correct. It was moved, seconded and carried that $20.00 of the funds be appropriated towards the minister's salary.

The apron which has been going the rounds since early fall was well covered with patches each containing a generous donation. The person contributing the largest amount to receive the apron; amid much merriment the patches were removed and it was found five amounts were of equal value so one of the five was then drawn for by little Miss Laura Bell when Mrs. Bennett became the lucky owner of the apron.

The election of officers resulted in but slight changes from the previous year and are:

President—Mrs. S. Snider.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. T. J. Brown.
2nd Vice Pres.—Mrs. Frances Bird.
Sec. Treas.—Miss Doris Reid.
Pianist—Mrs. Earl Brown.

Picton and Prince Edward County

By Our Own Correspondent

Picton, January 10 (Special) — The death occurred at the residence of her son Gerald Cooper, King Street, on Sunday, January 7th, of Louise Brooks, widow of the late William George Cooper, in her 80th year. Mrs. Cooper had enjoyed remarkable health until the last few months, when her health gradually failed, until she had been confined to her bed in the last few weeks. She was born at Bristol, England, but had spent almost her entire life in Picton, where her husband predeceased her about six years ago. She leaves three children, Gerald and Clifford Cooper of Picton, and one daughter Mrs. Pickering of Peterboro. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon in St. Mary Magdalene's Church at 2.30, with rural dean C. O. Winter conducting the service. Interment was made in Glenwood cemetery.

Mr. Gordon Whattam has severed his connection with the A. C. Irvine funeral establishment in London, and returned to Picton to join with his mother, Mrs. Thomas Whattam, Burns Avenue.

REMAINS OF DR. MONTEITH LAID TO REST

Residents of Perth County and Stratford Gather Along Route

CHURCH FILLED

Members of Cabinet Act As Honorary Pall Bearers

STRATFORD, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP)—Attended by Government officials and many residents of Perth County, the funeral of Hon. Dr. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Public Works and Labor, who died here Monday, was held today. Flags on public buildings were at half mast and business places closed. Rev. Dr. Hincks, Methodist, conducted following a stroke.

Through streets unable to gain admission to the crowded church filled with tributes, the funeral to Avondale Cemetery. A light snowfall covered the ground as the remains of Dr. Monteith, a native of Perth County which he represented in the Ontario Legislature and as a former Mayor of Stratford, were carried to their last resting place.

From a flower banked room in the family residence, the body of Dr. Monteith spent quiet week-ends after strenuous days at his desk. The funeral service in the First Presbyterian Church, shortly after 11 o'clock, was the first to state until two o'clock.

At 2.30 o'clock the simple but impressive service at the church was started by Rev. Dr. Hincks, assisting Rev. Hon., Rev. W. G. Martin, United Church Minister, Public Welfare, and Rev. H. J. Seton Adjutant of the Salvation Army, the Bishop of Huron. A fitting eulogy was given by his former colleague by the Minister of Welfare.

Governmental Representation

Representing the Ontario Government were: Premier George S. Henry, Hon. W. H. Price, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Hon. William Finlayson, Hon. Dr. Forsyth, Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb, cousin of Dr. Monteith, Hon. Dr. Smith, Hon. Martin, all provincial Cabinet Ministers.

The Mayor and members of Stratford City Council attended. A number of the members of the Legislature, officials of the Labor Department, representatives of the Canadian National Railways from Montreal, Toronto and London and representative citizens from Toronto and all other parts of the Province were present.

Hon. Donald Sutherland, Minister of National Defence, represented the Dominion Government.

Members of the Ontario Cabinet acted as honorary pallbearers with Senator Dr. J. H. Spence, Senator M. Wright. North Perth member in the House of Commons. Active pallbearers were: Dr. F. H Nelson, Dr. D. Smith, W. Smith, K. C., C. E. Richardson, Ontario Legislature members. H. W. Strudley and Dr. A. Hall.

As the corteges left the church and wended its way to the cemetery the bell of old St. James church tolled its requiem to a respected citizen.

PLEADS GUILTY TO ILLEGAL SALE

Charged with selling illicit liquor William King, Coe Hill, pleaded guilty to that charge at the morning afternoon's county police court before Magistrate Leonard Ponton, Belleville. King was caught in the act of selling the liquor by Sergt. the R.C.M.P. on his own premises the day previous. He was fined five of $200.00 and costs or in default of payment to serve three months in the common the province's agricultural markets, Special attention had been paid to organizing a whole milk marketing.

The Ontario's best markets, the United States, had been restricted by tariffs and import regulations. The minister stated that at one time one-fifth of the record 100,000 pounds of Canadian milk annually but at the present only about 2,000 pounds. The Canadian dairy farmer had dropped to practically nothing while at one time they shipped 100,000 pounds annually, he stated

Cold Weather Over, Short Winter Predicted by Sidney Twp. Forecaster

"It's going to be a short winter, Sidney will be the best weather we know it. The cold weather is about over with." Thus stated a prominent farmer of the 2nd Concession of Sidney today.

He bases his claim on two things. The hair of his cattle and horses this year is shorter than it has been in previous years. This is an infallible sign.

Second: Squirrels of the district haven't even bothered to store their supply of nuts for the winter as building places this year; they've simply left them in little piles in the tall grass out in the open.

The geese are flying north already, points out the resident.

The cold spell, called in years two weeks ago in this district is explained by him. "It was just a little slip up on the part of Nature. This should have been a warm winter, from all the signs," he said.

SUICIDE OR MURDER?

ALEXANDRE STAVISKY

French newspapers are demanding government probe of the death of Alexandre Stavisky, central figure in the Credit Municipal Bayonne $31,000,000 bond swindle who, police say, committed suicide when faced with capture. It is openly asserted in Paris that Stavisky was killed to silence him lest he implicate other "big men."

THREE KNOWN DEAD IN FIRE

Firemen Trapped When Outer Wall Caves in, Loss $250,000

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 11 (AP)— The death toll in the spectacular midnight fire and ten cent store fire was raised to three known dead today as the body of one fire fighter was recovered and those of two others were sought in the ruins of the building. Several others were injured.

One victim were Fire Captains Edward Rest, John Peterson and Charles Eastman.

They were trapped when the three-story brick wall of the building occupied by the Woolworth five and ten cent store collapsed, endangering the lives of hundreds of spectators. Loss of the fire, origin of which caused damage estimated at $250,000.

The belief that bodies of other victims, some of them spectators, might be found under the debris was expressed by firemen. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Delegates to Western Ontario Dairymen's Association Told

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP)— The 67th annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario today heard reports from cheese and butter judges and on creamery instruction work for 1933. The report of instructor and inspection was read by F. Ferns, Chief Dairy Instructor.

The Dairy situation in Ontario was described by George H. Barr, Director of Dairying, while observations on the cheese and butter industry were heard from J. F. Singleton, Dairy Commissioner. A. G. Fraser, secretary of the National Dairy Council, referred in his address to weed distribution practices.

"One of our first acts was to get the industry organized, Hon. T. L. McCrimmon, Minister of Agriculture, told the convention last night in describing attempts to improve the province's agricultural markets. Special attention had been paid to organizing a whole milk marketing.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP)— The 67th annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario today heard reports from cheese and butter judges and on creamery instruction work for 1933. The report of instructor and inspection was read by F. Ferns, Chief Dairy Instructor.

The Dairy situation in Ontario was described by George H. Barr, Director of Dairying, while observations on the cheese and butter industry were heard from J. F. Singleton, Dairy Commissioner. A. G. Fraser, secretary of the National Dairy Council, referred in his address to weed distribution practices.

"One of our first acts was to get the industry organized, Hon. T. L. McCrimmon, Minister of Agriculture, told the convention last night in describing attempts to improve the province's agricultural markets. Special attention had been paid to organizing a whole milk marketing.

OIL PAINTING PREFERRED TO SITE OF CITY

Woman Who Rejected Grant of Land as Wedding Gift Dies

NOTABLE CAREER

City of Vancouver is Built Upon Site at Stake

Victoria, Jan. 11 (CP)—Mrs. Mary Jane Spencer Palmer, 86, widow of the late Mayor Richard Spencer Palmer, who refused a grant of land which is now the site of the City of Vancouver, is dead.

At the age of 18 she married the then Lieut. Spencer Palmer, one of the corps of Royal Engineers sent out to help establish the new colony. Shortly after their marriage the couple left for England where Mrs. Spencer Palmer spent most of her life, her husband meantime advancing in rank and in his career as an engineer and astronomer. He died in London in 1923.

Mrs. Spencer Palmer returned to Victoria to reside with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hugh Palmer, after the marriage.

A recollection of that ceremony is that Bishop George Hills who performed the service presented the couple a wedding-gift of either a piece of land which is now the site of the City of Vancouver, or an oil painting. They chose the oil painting.

STORM BREAKS UPON CABINET

Pawnshop Scandal Rouses Parisian Public

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Stavisky scandal storm broke full force in the government of Premier Camille Chautemps in the Chamber of Deputies today.

The cabinet went before the Chamber and sought to avert its overthrow by a series of admissions of "faults and negligence" and promises of drastic reforms and punishments in police and judicial procedure.

Deputies assailed the government charged that corruption in the government, in the parliament and in the press enabled Serge "Handsome Alex" Stavisky, who killed himself Monday when the police caught him, to fleece the public of more than 200,000,000 francs.

Stavisky had founded the municipal pawnshop of Bayonne and disappeared three weeks ago leaving 14 without assets.

The spectators' galleries were jammed as the Premier himself faced the House of Deputies with the "complete truth" of the Bayonne pawnshop affair, which has paralyzing the country and threatening the Republican regime."

MASS FLIGHT GOING WELL

U. S. Navy Seaplanes Promised Fair Landing

San Francisco, Jan. 11 (AP)—Six United States Navy seaplanes, in the first mass flight to Hawaii skimmed steadily toward a promised fair landing at the "Paradise of the Pacific" today.

"Bright sunshine" and a helpful tail wind for the end of the 2,400 land-mile flight from San Francisco was the report radioed ahead after the six officers and 34 men aboard the flying patrol boats.

The six all-metal winged planes which streaked out through San Francisco's Golden Gate at 3 p.m. (Pacific Standard time) yesterday after a difficult take-off from the bay with their heavy loads, roared swiftly through the night.

By 1 a.m. (Pacific Standard Time) after hacking head winds for the first 600 miles, the flight sped on countering a short but dense fog belt the squadron had covered more than one-third of the longest all-over-water route ever tackled in a mass flight.

The report at that hour on the flight by navy headquarters here gave the planes' distance from the Golden Gate as 1,099 land miles (954 nautical) from the Golden Gate. The average speed for the distance was 100 land miles an hour.

NEW LIEUT.-GOV.?

OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES

Fortunately Parents Are Awakened in Time to Escape

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Five members of one Toronto family, living in the lower section of a duplex residence, narrowly escaped asphyxiation early today when coke gas fumes filled the rooms in which they were sleeping.

Edward Johnston and his wife Florence, were the first two to awaken and feel the effects of the gas emanating from the furnace in the basement. Johnston rushed from the house, hailed a passerby and had him notify police. When he returned to the house he found his three daughters were suffering severely from the fumes.

Two of the girls, Mary 21, and Ethel 18, were revived and hospital where oxygen was administered. All are recovering.

MONTHLY ALIMONY OF $7,400 IS ASKED

Mrs. Vallee to Appear in Court to Support Suit

Los Angeles, Jan. 11 (AP)—Temporary alimony of $7,400 a month and attorney fees of $50,000 will be asked by Fay Webb Vallee when she goes into court here next Wednesday to begin prosecution of a suit for separate maintenance against Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader.

The demands of Mrs. Vallee were disclosed in answers to a wife's questionnaire filed in connection with the suit, which accused Vallee of indiscretions with three women, among them Jane Pyne, actress and member of his troupe.

Under a property agreement which she will seek to abrogate, Mrs. Vallee is receiving $100 a week in her suit she asserted that when the signed that agreement Vallee was making $350,000 a year and now is earning $50,000 a month. She also claimed she was the victim of subterfuges employed by him in making the agreement.

SURE WOMAN MISSING NOT AROUND LINDSAY

Cashed Cheque in Toronto After Leaving Lindsay

Lindsay, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)—Police are definitely of the opinion that Hilda Bordoff, 21, will not be found around Lindsay. She was last seen here at Christmas time while going from a boarding house to Haliburton to her home in Windsor, and a letter received here before today trying to pick up a coke trail and find his daughter.

Police have learned that Garnet Pogue, relief inspector, saw her here on a southbound train. Today they learned that she must have reached Toronto at least, as they have information from an authentic source that she cashed a cheque there after leaving Lindsay on her journey.

SEARCH PLANE ON WAY

Noranda, Que., Jan. 11—(CP) — The Junkers monoplane sent by Canadian Airways to search the east coast of James Bay, at Hudson Bay for Captain R. H. Bibby and party, took off from here at 8.45 a.m. today for Moosonee on the south shore of James Bay.

QUESTION OF TITLES WILL BE ANSWERED

Hamilton Laborite Puts Question on Order Paper

"PEN" AND REFORM

"National Flag For Canada" Question Will Be Taken Up

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Resolutions designed to canvass the opinion of the House of Commons on honourable subjects have already been registered with Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, K.C., Clerk of the house, and preparations are already underway to have these transferred to the order of paper. The house will open on the 18th of January.

An investigation to determine the causes of crime in Canada and to inquire if Canadian parliamentarians "are doing all that could be done towards protecting society by the reforming of the criminal" is asked by Allan Agnew Mitchell, conservative member for Southeast Grey.

Humphrey Mitchell (Lab., Hamilton East) will introduce the matter of granting titles to Canadians in a resolution which the King to refrain from conferring these on British subjects domiciled in this country, excepting however, the "professional or honorary titles that have conferred in respect to commissions offered to persons in the military services, or to persons engaged in the administration of justice of the Dominion.

The matter of a national flag for Canada, Hon. Ian Mackenzie (Lib., Standfield) will be resurrected when discussion is opened on the motion of R. K. Dickie (Cons., Kingsway) which asks the adoption of such a flag for the country.

A large number of resolutions dealing with economic and financial problems have been submitted by western members.

DEMOCRACY IS REPUDIATED

Final Blow at Every Liberal Principle In Italy

By JOHN LLOYD
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Rome, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Italy's final definite repudiation of "every Liberal principle" in Mussolini's new Chamber of Deputies was announced by Count Ceasar Maria De Vecchia in the Senate today as head of a special committee appointed to study the nation's new corporative law.

It denies socialism as well and attacks the vote of what has been called a crisis but what has been in reality the "dissolution of the democratic and liberal principles."

Citing Fascism's fundamentals, to-wit that "everything is in relation to the state or even out of the state," he said:

"Every government that seeks from human society a kingdom of this earth must make its basis that of all interests its prime objective."

50,000 SETS TRAFFIC GAME

Total of Distribution During Past Year Made Public

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Toronto, Jan. 11—Distribution of the Department announced today that 50,000 sets of a traffic game designed to teach children to be careful in traffic. Resembling the old-fashioned parchesi, this game consists of a board on which is printed a design representing a strip of provincial highway. Squares numbered one to 100 mark the route from "school" to "home." By spinning a top a contestant is advanced as many squares, except when he lands on one of the penalty squares.

Hon. E. B. Ryckman, M.P. Assumed Portfolios in 1926 and 1930

ILL SOME TIME

Resignation in November Last Due to Poor Health

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Hon. Edmund Bird Ryckman, former Minister of National Revenue, died at his home here, 64 Walmer Road, today followed a prolonged illness. He was 68 years old.

Since his retirement from public life November, 1932, Hon. Edmund B. Mr. Ryckman had been confined to his bed.

Mr. Ryckman had occupied the cabinet post for three years prior to his retirement, although he turned in his portfolio and the post was taken over by Hon. R. C. Matthews. Mr. Ryckman retained his seat in the House.

A veteran Toronto barrister. Mr. Ryckman was forced through ill health to relinquish his part in active business at the same time he resigned his portfolio, but time his condition had remained critical and his death today was not unexpected.

Industrial Interests

The former Minister resigned the presidency of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company Ltd., to take his place in the Cabinet at Ottawa. He was first appointed by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen to the Conservative Cabinet of 1926, holding the portfolio of Public Works during the Cabinet's brief duration.

Mr. Ryckman represented East Hastings in the House of Commons since 1921. He was re-elected in 1926 as the Conservative Government's standard-bearer, and was appointed Minister of Public Works. Mr. Arthur Meighen, Conservative Opposition.

Three years later, when a dividend upon Mr. Meighen to form a Government, he selected Mr. Ryckman for the important post of Minister of Public Works.

Cabinet Post ca 1926

Defeat of Mr. Meighen administration followed shortly on the retainment of office, and in September, 1926, Mr. Ryckman resigned his portfolio with other members of that government. "Electors of East Toronto had again chosen him to represent them, however, and he remained in the House of Commons as one of the prominent members of the Opposition.

Hon. Edmund B. Ryckman, M.P. Former Minister of National Revenue who died today after long illness.

In the legal profession, the business world and the arena of politics, Edmund Bird Ryckman achieved success. He was already prominent in the legal fraternity and in the business activities of the Dominion when in 1921 he entered the House of Commons.

While he had previously experimented in politics, contesting the Conservative candidate in East York, Ontario, in 1984, it was the general election of 1921 which saw the beginning of Mr. Ryckman's wider political career. The constituency of East Toronto gave him a majority of nearly 1,500 and sent him to Ottawa as a supporter of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative Opposition.

Three years later, when a dividend upon Mr. Meighen to form a Government, he selected Mr. Ryckman for the important post of Minister of Public Works.

QUEBEC MEMBER CONVINCED MONEY WILL NOT BE REPAID

Proposed Central Bank Might Also Work Hardship Says Member

Quebec, Jan. 11—(CP)—Advances made by the Dominion Government to the Western Provinces to defray ordinary expenses would not be repaid, Hon. John Hal; Kelly, member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, declared today in a proposed creation of a Central Bank he sees a further threat of debasement from provincial governments for financial aid from the Dominion.

Mr. Kelly made known his views yesterday in speaking in the debate on the address, in reply to the speech from the throne at the opening of the Upper House of the Quebec Legislature.

The Provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, he said, had borrowed a total of $42,000,000 from the Dominion exchequer to meet their ordinary expenditures. Notwithstanding assistance from the Dominion by Premier R. B. Bennett, Provinces were in difficulties.

"We all know this money will never be repaid," he said, "in other words the Dominion exchequer will have to step before the demands of the Provinces.

Fears Political Control

"In the future with the Central Bank acting as the banker for the Provinces, these demands would be made to the Central Bank and a Central Bank, politically controlled, could not resist those demands any more than the Dominion Government had been able to resist similar demands."

Creation of a Central Bank might open the door to inflation, Mr. Kelly said, and for this reason it was not in the interest of Eastern Canada.

"Once inflation becomes a fact, he said, "it acts like a runaway beast. It does not stop to inquire after all the damage has been done."

The Council adopted the address in reply to the speech from the throne and will adjourn until Jan. 30. Debate on the address continues in the lower house today with Premier L. A. Taschereau and Hon. Athanase Duplessis, Conservative leader, titled to speak.

CHIMNEY BLAZE ON CHATHAM ST.

On the second alarm of the current year, firemen were given a run to a chimney fire at 106 Chatham street, shortly after 9.30 o'clock last evening. No damage was caused by the threatening blaze.

MAKING ATTEMPTS TO SECURE BERTHS

Although the shipping season is yet far in the offing, already the unemployed have been attempting to secure berths, on the boats for the coming summer. A young man, about who relates the city last evening said he had already come from the west for the purpose of "signing on" and had journeyed to Kingston this week for the purpose. Boat owners, however, are not yet ready for enlistments. Over fifty boats are laid up at Kingston harbor this year, he stated.

Owners Guard Dogs Against Distemper

Dog owners of the city are jealously guarding their pets, through an outbreak of the dreaded distemper, which has already reached epidemic proportions in many larger cities throughout the province. Believed by some here to have been the recent severe cold and changeable weather, several cases have developed in the city. It is reported. Veterinarian Dr. McClung during the past week or so treating the new cases with the latest and most improved methods of distemper cure. The present wave of distemper however, is said not to be of the severe type, and in the case of valuable dogs prompt treatment has resulted in effective cures.

LAND CONDITIONS IN DISTRICT GOOD

Land conditions throughout the district are in a fair state in spite of the lack of snow, which covers the ground, and the alternate thawing and freezing, report residents of the rural sections questioned today. Shortage of fodder for stock in many of the districts is the chief worry of the agriculturists, and many owners have been compelled to sell at a time when the weather is as mild as other stock a minimum of roughage. In the west, stated Mr. Wm. Bishop, prominent seedsman of the city, today, the condition is almost reversed. In consequence, with the farmer from East County corn stalk thin years, the seed industry became a nuisance. "Most of the farmers have been burning them up," stated the visitor.

STEAM ROLLER RUNS OUT OF COAL

City owned cars used by the various departments have on 2844 occasions run out of gasoline, but imagine the embarrassment of the driver of the city steam roll, when the machine ran out of coal and left him stranded on the west side street on Wednesday.

The big machine has been used by the department of public works in thawing frozen catch basins throughout the city.

A hurry up call to the office of the department resulted in a load of coal being despatched to the stranded steam engine when aided the even tenor of the department again continued.

FARCE COMEDY TO BE GIVEN

All in Readiness For Production of Amateur Play

When the fair sex of the east of that well known farce comedy "Skinner's Dress Suit" appear on the Belleville Auditorium stage on Friday night to present the local Y's Men's club production they will be garbed in the very latest styles and direct from New York City. Final arrangements for these latest creations were completed early this week through Mrs. Reta Dodds, local modiste, who graciously consented to provide the local cast gratis, with the very latest in women's spring styles for the entire production.

It is seldom, that a farce comedy, in the class of "Skinner's Dress Suit", is attempted by an amateur group but, thanks to the untiring efforts of Miss Jessie B. Tuite, who capably directs the play, and the many hours of weary rehearsing, the play is "ready to go on" and the cast is perfect for the first time, as an amateur production in Belleville (through the sponsorship of the Y's Men's Club with all proceeds going to their charity endeavors). All furnishings used in the production have been generously loaned by the Percival Stores of this city.

During the intermissions between acts Miss Leona Riggs and Mr. James Mackey have kindly consented to sing, with Alec Gordon as accompanist, thus adding considerable high class entertainment to the evening's enjoyment. The production will be staged this coming Friday, Jan. 12th, and is reputed to be the largest, as well as best stage comeding ever written for the legitimate stage. The local Y's Men's Club have gone to considerable expense to pay high royalties in order to stage the production and stage play under their sponsorship. As was stated, all proceeds go to the charity endeavours of the club.

Not a single arrest was reported at the local police station during the past 24 hour, police activities being rather quiet and serene. Ten transients applied for a night's lodging, and protection from the cold winter blasts, at the sergeant's desk last night. All ten wended their various way, out of the city when released this morning, however.

JUDGMENT IN LUMBER CASE IS RESERVED

Action For Alleged Balance Due Plaintiff in Action

At an adjourned sitting of the county court held at the local court house before Hon. Mr. Justice Kelly presiding, the non-jury case of Reid vs. McMurray was heard with Judgment left in the matter being reserved by His Lordship.

The action arose out of a claim for the plaintiff company a certain alleged balance of account for lumber sold to the defendant, formerly of Gilmour, the defendant, for Deloro Smelting and Refining Co.

During the evidence submitted it was established that the defendant several years sold Mr. Reid's lumber, the only difference occurring in the matter being when he objected to the manner in which the defendant was disposing of it in bulk. The action arose out of the dealings of the two parties, which His Lordship will give his findings in writing at some future date, as he heard at the time but in the supreme court.

Charles A. Payne, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff while W. B. Herrington, K.C., and George S. White represented the defendant.

Mrs. Foster leaves to mourn four sons, Herbert, George, Harry and Theodore, and two daughters, Mrs. Harold Hull and Miss Hilda Foster, R.N., also one brother William Sills of Winnipeg.

Miss R. Johnson spent a few days last week in Toronto. Mrs. Johnson is still confined to bed with a severe cold.

Miss R. Johnson spent a few days visiting in Bell and on Sunday she and Mrs. Fred Johnson of Frankford spent the day with the former's father and sister.

Folks are appreciating the lovely mild weather after the terrible cold spell.

MILITARY NOTES

Lieut.-Col. E. A. Gren, V.D., officer commanding the Argyll Light Infantry, received word this morning from Military Headquarters, Kingston, that Lieut.-Col. Woodhouse and Corp. J. C. Palmer had qualified in Part I. of examinations for Quartermaster Sergeant.

Captain J. P. Lochead was the recipient this morning of a very particular monthly meeting of the officers of the Argyll Light Infantry of a very handsome serving tray, suitably inscribed. Captain Lochead was married on Wednesday and the tray was given to mark that event. Mess president Major Alford made the presentation.

ORIGIN NOT KNOWN

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)—About $2,000 damage was caused by fire which broke out at midnight last night in the department store of R. Martin and Co. on Durham street. The origin of the fire had not been determined this morning. Damage is confined almost wholly between building and contents.

BRIDGE STREET CAGERS WIN

Earn Title For First Half of "Y" House League

By virtue of their 30 to 16 defeat over last year's champions, the Trenton Grads, Bridge Street church team of cagers won the first half of the local Y.M.C.A. "house league" title, and will play in another league game played previous to the Albert College quintette downed the R.C.A.F. "Flies" after a tough struggle by a 26 to 22 score.

Following the winning of the league title the Bridge Street lads announced they would enter in junior O.A.B.A. competition under the name of the Deacon A.C., new uniforms and equipment being supplied them by the Deacon Shirt Company of this city.

Cole, Faulkner, Martin and Catrow went best for the winners with Hewitts and Langdon leading the losers in the last year title holders. In the second game, Smith and Burden outdid their teammates for the Pliers, with Macfarlane, Page and Waring best for Albert College.

Referees—Cather and Faulkner.

VITAL STATISTICS

Chubby boy babies born in the city during the month of December still continued to hold the lead over the dimpled girl by quite a wide margin, and signs that the depression has lifted for many is revealed by the uptrend of marriage licenses issued for one of the slowest months of the year for weddings.

During December a total of 19 marriage licenses were issued. There were 27 births in all, 17 boys and 10 girls. Births also held the lead in deaths, with 14 deaths being registered during the month, 9 of which were males and 11 female.

Two cancer deaths were recorded for the month.

WIDER NAME OF CRUSADERS

Central Ontario Crusaders Elect Col. Kennedy Hon. President

Central Ontario Commerce Crusaders is the new and more appropriate name which the Belleville Crusaders, originators of the two-year campaign for the exchange of British products and Ontario farm products, decided at a meeting held today.

A new factor in the scheme which is meeting so great success is the entry of the Central Ontario Chessmakers' Association, which is about to affiliate with the Crusaders. An official of the latter organization stated today that he saw no reason why the Cheesemakers should not identify themselves with the Crusaders particularly as the new from that of it broadens entirely agricultural in scope up to the present time.

Col. Kennedy Honored

As a mark of appreciation for which the Crusaders feel for the sympathy which has been extended in the movement, they today made Colonel the Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, minister of Agriculture, honorary Crusader president. Mr. Kennedy has been a staunch supporter of the Belleville group from its initial step.

Mr. W. J. Schuster speaking today of the scope of activity of the Crusaders stated that "I prefer that British coal should be handled and developed at every port between Prescott and Fort William, but local use at the various ports and transferred into use at Toronto. I contend that Belleville is the logical place through which we should supply Peterborough, Lindsay, Campbellford and other Central Ontario inland centres."

"Our plan at which we have been hammering away for the past year is well received by the leading newspapers of the province.

"Trade is exchange and it must be a two-way operation through established channels. Great Britain imports eighty per cent of her foodstuffs, of which we have a surplus, which we must seek to market in the British Isles."

Pig and Heuer Trade

"On the other side of the picture Great Britain has an over-produce, ton of articles which we consume, cost which Canada imports to the extent of eighty-five per cent. Our domestic market is natural.

Therefore we have been saying for months, that we should exchange Canadian coal for Uncle Sam and John Bull and the Crusaders have been work products for Scotch whiskey".

"In 1933, Canada exported 292,000,000 lbs. of cheese and in 1933 Canada produced 170,000,000 lbs. of cheese, an anomaly per cent in twenty-nine years.

"We are therefore this business in an extension of the market in Great Britain."

Coal miners, railway workers and sailors are all large consumers of cheese.

Ontario Leader

"Ontario's gross agricultural revenue for 1932, was $226,446,000. This exceeds the total revenue of Quebec, British Columbia, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

"Seventy-five per cent. of all the cheese manufactured in Canada, has been produced in the Province of Ontario, so that Ontario leads in this respect.

"The department of Agriculture of the Province of Ontario is the key department in its relation to all the other provinces.

"Trade Ontario Farm Product for British Coal. That is our object and it is also our slogan."

POLICE COURT

Chas. W. Pringle, Point Anne, was found guilty of assaulting his wife, returned for actual bodily harm, by His Worship Magistrate Mikel in Tuesday morning police court. His Worship suspended sentence on Pringle for the period of one year, binding both he and his wife over to keep the peace for that period.

Mrs. Pringle testified, that her husband had struck her in the face with his closed fist yesterday morning, cutting her lips and causing it to bleed. Dried blood was produced as evidence on her gown. Pringle in defence denied that his wife had scratched him and he merely pushed her away. Magistrate Mikel lectured the parents of five children at length and pleaded with them towards a reconciliation.

In a second assault charge, between two brothers both residents of this city, His Worship dismissed the action owing to insufficient evidence. The agreement apparently started over a boundary of a newspaper, it was disclosed.

"An average person reads about 1,000 newspapers a year and it is doubtful, whether they remember anything printed in the last week or the end of that time," stated the Bench to be absent from the proceedings, that fighting over a newspaper was quite a new and unprincipled bath for lies in relation to their action in the entire matter.

LYDIA LODGE L. O. B. A. ELECTS YEAR'S OFFICERS

The new officers of the Ladies' Orange Lodge of Bellevile acquitted themselves creditably at their first meeting of 1934 recently. Members hope they have a successful year in their lodge work, and the many activities connected with it.

The Worthy Mistress and officers of 1933 are to be congratulated on all they have achieved in the most successful year the lodge has organized—every event as it came and every responsibility connected with this order was met in full, it would be.

At the installation of officers many happy little events took place. Past Worthy Mistress Sister Stevens was given her P. W. Mistress' jewel in a very pretty one indeed, which a shower of roses. She has served for a number of years of real hard work. Sister Thompson thanked the lodge for these two most beautiful gifts by reading a very fine address.

P. W. Mistress Sister Savage was given a lovely fruit bowl in recognition of the work as Deputy and Sister her and speech of thanks was made by Sister Savage.

Rt. Wor. Brother E. Bell was there and his remarks were interesting and enjoyed.

Sister Morgan made a wonderful Director of Ceremonies while Sister Law supplied the music.

Bro. Hanna commended the officers of 1933 and P.W.M. Sister Dougherty gave a reading which all might heed in the coming year and all did at that.

At the conclusion greetings were exchanged and a social hour spent and refreshments enjoyed.

The new officers for 1934 are: P.W.M.—Sister Turner.
W.M.—Sister McKenna.
Deputy Mistress—Sister P. Bell.
1st. Comm.—Sister A. Bell.
Chaplain—Sister Banky.
Rec. Sec'y.—Sister Stevens.
F. Sec'y.—Sister Asseltine.
Treas.—Sister Hanna.
1st. Lect.—Sister Armitage.
2nd. Lect.—Sister Soules.

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD ANNUAL MEETING

The Parish Guild of Christ Church held its annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon, January 9th, in the Parish Hall.

Most satisfactory reports were read showing the group system to have been a success for the past year. The President, Mrs. Williams expressed her appreciation of the work and co-operation of the group leaders.

Rev. Mr. Wright addressed the Guild speaking of ways and means for future advancement and commended the Guild on the fact that the financial result of their work exceeded that of the previous year.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. Harry Williams.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Robert Bateman.
Secretary—Mrs. Chas. Bishop, Jr.
Treasurer—Mrs. Bruce Bateman.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served and a friendly half hour enjoyed.

DOCTOR SAYS SHELTER WAS WELLMANAGED

Never Saw Any Signs of Cruelty or Beatings

REVIEW TREATMENT

Nurse Tells of Spasms Taken by "Buddy" Stevens After Admission

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 11.—When the Probe into conditions in the Windsor and District Children's Shelter resumed this morning before Commissioner H. A. Forsbell the first witness was Dr. J. F. Campbell, city physician.

To Gordon Fraser, K.C., counsel for Miss Catherine Strang, he said he had been twelve years Windsor City physician and in that capacity for some years cared for Windsor cases in the Children's Shelter. He said that his considered conditions in the Shelter satisfactory at any time he visited the institution and he had never seen any signs of cruelty or beatings.

My impression was that the management was first class," said Dr. Campbell. "I thought the children well nourished and well cared for."

Did you ever see any bichloride of mercury tablets?" queried Mr. Humphries.

No, I did not see or hear of any being in the place. I did not order use of them for disinfecting purposes during any epidemic."

Mercury in some form could be used in impetigo cases but I do not prescribe myself."

Miss Nancy Nolan, teacher in the Sacred Heart School said Roman Catholic children from the Shelter come to that school since September 1931. She has taught some of them, she said.

They seemed like the average child as regard nourishment and clothing. They were exceptionally clean and their deportment was good. In studies they were average and for some of them very good considering their background," Miss Nolan said in answer to Mr. McHugh.

Children reported they went to Mass every Sunday and the singing was very good reason," said Miss Nolan.

She said she had gone to the Shelter to see why one boy had missed school and learned Miss Strang talk kindly to the boy and advise him he should do what he was told to go to school and not run away. Her opinion was that Miss Strang was a kindly person and nothing she had seen of Shelter residents gave any intimation that children were not happy and well cared for.

Told of Treatment

Captain Frances Burrows, superintendent of nurses in Grace Hospital, was questioned by Gordon L. Fraser, K.C., regarding "Buddy" Stevens' treatment in the hospital.

She said when she first saw the child he appeared well and sitting up in bed a few hours after his admission to the institution. About six hours later she saw him again.

He was in a spasm and his fingers lips were turning blue. I tried to reach the doctors but before I could get them the child was better and again sitting up in bed," said Captain Burrows.

The spasm", said Captain Burrows, "was rapid and weak pulse, respiration shallow and weak and finger tips and lips were blue."

It was not a convulsion, she explained to Mr. Fraser.

The child died during the third spasm," said Captain Burrows.

The medical chart of the case was put into the record and was examined closely. It showed the first night the boy slept well and spent a good night while the notation for early the next morning was "child is very hungry".

Died Day After Admittance

The child was admitted to hospital on June 4 at 9:45 p.m. and died the next day.

Dr. White was called at 12:05 noon on Monday according to chart notation but Captain Burrows stated he did not arrive until about 4 o'clock just after the child died.

Why did the doctor not come more quickly," asked Mr. Humphries.

I do not know."

Another doctor had seen the boy after he had been admitted and prior to the attack of spasms.

Mr. Humphries questioned about a glucose and saline solution treatment given "Buddy" on Sunday night and was told this might be for a dehydrated condition although the witness did not think the boy was in that condition.

So far as Captain Burrows knew Dr. Robson who ordered the child to the hospital did not come to see the boy. Dr. George White was reported out of the city during the Sunday night but came back during Monday.

Captain Burrows said to Mr. McHugh that early in the investigation she had been interviewed by R. J. S. MacDonald, city solicitor, and when Mr. McHugh stressed she was called as a defence witness there was a brief rather stormy discussion on why she had not been called earlier.

COUPLE TO SAIL ON DIFFERENT BOATS

Prince Alexis Mdivani Declares of Faith in Two Brothers

Vancouver, Jan. 11 (CP)— Ready to sail alone on his interrupted honeymoon, Prince Alexis Mdivani today declared his faith in his brothers, Serge and David, charged with theft in California.

Prince Alexis faced 18 days further separation from his heiress-bride, the former Barbara Hutton, when he was forced to leave en route to San Francisco to avoid a summons to make a statement in connection with the charges against his brothers. He will sail from here later today on the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Kikawa Maru for Yokohama, where he and his bride will be reunited. The Princess will sail about the same time from San Francisco aboard the Tatsuta Maru.

The charges against my two brothers are the most utter nonsense, and there isn't a vestige of evidence against them," he said. "If I thought there was anything in the charges I would break my arrangements and speak on their behalf."

HUNDREDS AT ST. ANDREW'S

Third Night of Week of Prayer Service Well Attended

It is most gratifying to observe the nightly increase in attendance at the local services held as a link with the world wide week of prayer. Last night the massed congregations at St. Andrew's Church were well over four hundred, and incidentally, Thanksofferings are eclipsing all records.

"Home and Youth" was the subject dealt with at last evening's service, by Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple, and in a very able and earnest manner it was presented. Rev. Geo. Graham assisted in the opening exercises of the service, accompanied in attendance by Rev. Dr. Seymour, Pastor of St. Andrew's. A composite choir in enlarged form under Professor Wheatley, led the singing devotions.

The evening's speaker, divided his theme, so that its two-fold aspect would serve between these very periods.

Launching into the spiritual exhortation for 'Family Religion,' the speaker declared the battleground for many a life was first fought out in the home. There was due appreciation of the home, its privileges and even accumulation of earthly advantages, but the issues of life depend on what happens in the home.

Several living examples were quoted as an effective influence in defense of the Christian home. Christian parents which included the story of St. Augustine and his mother's prayers, and made reference to Canada's first martyr, Fr. Hon. R. B. Bennett, who was saved by his mother, from the threshold of public life to pray and read the Scripture daily, as the latter quoted bearing testimony to his faithfulness in this regard.

Then, quoting Scriptural authority for the sanctity of the home, the speaker dealt with the divine order as citations from Deuteronomy, Colossians, Ephesians.

After the first intercessory session the guest speaker proceeded with a ringing challenge for the place of youth in the work of world evangelism.

A number of recent movements were named, wherein a large percentage of active coherents were young people, The Oxford Group and Anglo Catholic movement.

Then reference was made to Earl Booth, the prominent German Preacher, who is attracting the best of Germany's youth to hear his living message.

The Kingdom of God movements in Japan, Young Peoples movements in Scotland and Ireland, Australia, New Zealand and United States were vividly cited.

Closing his address Dr. Semple then eulogized "The Christian Commonwealth Youth Movement of Canada." This movement declares that the youth of Canada needs three things, a real religion, a real church, and a real work.

Self sufficiency having characterized the rising generation, the church must tell youth know that it can provide a pulsating motive, which can meet the call of power on earth.

During the second intercessory period, the evening's leader, asked for silent meditation during which the congregation was directed to pray for the home, as a Christian institution, for broken homes, for the youth of the land and every religious, social, moral and legal agency for the preservation of "Home and Youth."

Prior to closing exercises Rev. Dr. Seymour in a graceful manner heartily reciprocated the sentiments of mutual fellowship at St. Andrews for the past three nights, and congratulated the united congregations on such record attendances, and expressed warm wishes for continued interest and attendance Thursday and Friday evening at Christ Church.

EXCHANGE OF TRADE

Belleville Commerce Crusaders early caught the gleam of a revival of commerce when the first indication of it appeared. There has been a great deal of comment up and down Ontario about the efforts of the Bay of Quinte and lake towns and cities to develop exchange of commodities between this section and the United Kingdom market until the question is now more than local, and has become provincial in character. The originators of the thought had their attention brought to the question by local conditions but their plans, projects and proposals are of such a kind that from the start they knew they were of province-wide appeal. Today the future looms far bigger than even the fondest hopes of the Crusaders ever dreamed.

It is interesting to note how "Industrial Britain" refers to the Canadian trade especially in Welsh coal. In her grasp of the tide turning at last for Welsh coal and citing the fact that Portuguese State Railways have bought largely and mentioning the prospect of the sale of a huge quantity of Welsh anthracite to the British Admiralty, "Industrial Britain" notes a fact which is of especial interest to Belleville in view of the efforts being made along the bay ports to have the Bay of Quinte "Channel" deepened:

"The anthracite boom is to continue. Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries, Ltd., are arranging to charter from 120 to 150 cargo steamers for the Canadian service next year, involving a shipping tonnage of about 750,000. Sir Alfred Cope, managing director of the firm, states that they have expended £10,000 on a new colliery in South Wales to handle Canadian business in the main.

"The season for anthracite shipping has now ceased, owing to the St. Lawrence River being closed by ice, and will be resumed in the spring. This year 900,000 tons were sent from Swansea alone to Canadian ports, breaking all records by about 300,000 tons."

The above being written in 1933 before the end of the year, the references are to 1934 trade and to the trade of 1933.

From it it is clear that Wales and the rest of the United Kingdom are awake to the possibilities of trade.

Have we here gone as far practically as they have gone? It seems that much remains to be done and the time is at hand for intensive work to keep abreast of the stream of trade as surely developing as that tomorrow the sun will appear.

Trade after all is everything in this industrialized age. How sadly the world fares without it is easily appreciated after four years and more of diminished business.

The Bay of Quinte section, the Province of Ontario, and the rest of Canada have a gigantic opportunity ahead of them not only to help themselves in the exchange of trade, but also in what will give a fillip to ocean-going trade, which is the very breath and lifeblood of the Empire of which Canada is a part. Britain is stirring, and we must try to do as much in Belleville in our limited field.

ENDURING MUSIC

When Mendelssohn wrote, at the age of sixteen, the wedding march which goes by his name, probably the youth little dreamed that countless thousands of years would be wedded to the strains of his Midsummer Night's Dream marital music ages hence.

Today the famous Walter Damrosch, of New York City, after a life of music is seeking to find the couple married the longest time by the wedding march. The other day he played for Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wentz who were married in 1880. He will entertain in the Westertes at the Mendelssohn celebration in Madison Square Garden next Wednesday.

Such is the result of good music.

VICTIMS OF OVERWORK

Two deaths among ministers of the Ontario cabinet in the past few days give cause for thought. Both the Hon. Dr. Monteith and the Hon. E. A. Dunlop died of maladies peculiar to the overworked man.

The strain of office undoubtedly has been the cause of their decease.

Men in high office, particularly ministers of the Crown, are subject to worries they never dreamed of before their appointment. The public undoubtedly expects too much of them in energy and time. How often is a public man harrassed by this and that organization to address meetings which mean not only preparation of addresses, but loss of time from his office which must be made up, loss of rest and sleep, and a touch of worry over all. Public men should not have to endure that. They should have privacy and not be subject to work and call.

Public men in the time to come will probably look after their defence and their rights more than they do today.

But after all this is said, there remains the heavy burden of the duties of office. Both Mr. Dunlop and Dr. Monteith were in charge of departments which are more than overloaded with work at this time, the treasurership and the portfolio of labor.

THE WONDER

O, never bar it out
With fact and commonplace,
No not let dreary doubt
Slam doors in magic's face!

The wonder shines around
All pathways where men go,
It glows through thoughts profound
Or fancies light as snow.

Shout out no ray of dream
That guides the seeking soul;
The wonder of its gleam,
The wonder of the goal!

Keep it, though all the rest
Of things desired slip past;
Cease not the starry quest
Of wonder to the last!

AUTOMOBILES CROSSED THE RIVER on the ice at Brockville last week, a rare occurrence, for the winters have been mild since automobiles came into their glory. Last week the ferry crossing between Prescott and Ogdensburg was suspended, another rare happening for the ice-breaking car ferries there generally manage to keep a channel open all winter long. The St. Lawrence at Brockville is nearly two miles wide, unbroken by islands for a sweep of a mile and a half at least from the Three Sisters to Mile Island, and it takes very cold and continued cold weather to make a safe ice bridge. When the ferry ceases to run at Brockville due to ice conditions a service of sleigh and boat is generally put on. Horse and sleigh to the channel, batteaux across the channel and horse and sleigh on the other side. In extreme cold weather the channel itself freezes over, although the current is very swift, then crossing is continuous. Now that automobiles are adaptable to almost every condition no doubt the horse and sleigh ferry will disappear into the dark archives of the past. At Prescott the current is even swifter than at Brockville as the river approaches the rapids and accelerates its pace as if in a hurry to get into the mad rush of waters which tear down through the Cascades, the Long Sault, Lachine and other rapids—and as for the ice breakers, ply back and forth. All in all this has been an old-time winter, long to be remembered for its sustained cold and sudden changes.

UNCLE SAM IS SO THIRSTY that he is trading pork for whi9sky. He wants to sell his pigs and John Bull has more whisky than he can conveniently use, so is proposed to swap. Uncle Sam will raise the quota and permit an extra million dollars' worth of whisky or so to come in from the United Kingdom, and in return will ship a million dollars' worth of pigs to the British market overseas. As usual John Bull wins, he gets good food (Three Little Pigs and then some.), while Uncle Sam gets a headache.

CHRISTMAS IN IRELAND was not quite as merry as it might have been owing to the fact that money gifts from America were smaller than usual, due to business condition. This Christmas 68,000 letters were received in Ireland from relatives in the United States containing one hundred and ninety-nine thousand pounds, while a year ago there were one hundred thousand letters containing three hundred and forty-six thousands pounds. Worra, worra, but I was a lean Christmas we were after having in the Auld Sod because the boys across the sea were having a hard time making both ends meet without buckling in the middle.

RULER TO BE USED MAKING MENTAL TEST

Scientific Knowledge and Good Sense Must Be Employed

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Mental tests are becoming more and more of a vogue, and justly so. Whether or not a person is to determine an individual's mental status, or to discover how efficient certain functions may be, or to find out what kind of work a person is specially fitted for—it is always highly important that certain fundamental rules be followed.

If you have a child examined by a mental test expert, indeed, you undergo such an examination yourself, be sure, for one thing, that the person performing the test is one qualified to do the work.

For the interpretation of any mental test, whether it be to determine backwardness, precocity, vocational fitness or the like, is much more important than the mere giving of the test.

For this important task persons trained in psychology are necessary. The test used should also be "standardized" tests. That is, they should be tests which have been tried out on a few thousand individuals, until a fairly accurate idea is impossible to tell what the average or normal response to the test ought to be.

There are hundreds of tests in use but not all are standardized. To standardize a test takes a long time, for so many factors must be considered and examined. The truth of the matter is that it is the work of the psychologist to invent a new test than to standardize one already in use. That is why we have so many tests nowadays that cannot claim strict scientific value.

It is best, also, that

"form board" test be employed in addition to the ordinary tests which determine the rate of language. Particularly is this true when doubt exists as to the value of the ordinary tests.

A form board test is usually of the type where it is necessary to fit irregularly shaped pieces of wood into a frame. With these, no language is employed except in giving directions and even directions may be avoided, the subject being instructed, through pantomime, as to what is required.

These tests of manual manipulation are very valuable to testing foreigners, the deaf and dumb, etc. They have been found valuable also in testing immigrants at Ellis Island in the Port of New York.

I want to repeat again the importance of the interpretation of tests. Tests, by themselves, should never be taken as the final means of diagnosis. A history of the subject should invariably be taken in addition.

Such information as when he walked, talked, cut his teeth, toothete, infantile diseases, convulsions, etc., throws a flood of light on a child's inherent powers of development.

Hereditary factors may likewise be important. The conditions of the mother before and at birth should receive due consideration.

The environment of child or the adult, as the case may be, may have a bit to do with the mental capability and output. For instance, an otherwise normal child, but undernourished, or suffering from adenoids, may do poorly on a mental test.

Mental tests are a wonderful aid to our understanding of the human mind but they must be employed with scientific knowledge and good measure of good sense.

As a general rule, it is a good thing to have as many tests made as possible. The more tests are approaching the mind from various angles.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

A certain amount of fat is essential in every child's diet. Not only does it add energy to the system but it also acts as a lubricator and, in intestinal constipation with other substances, actually aids digestion. Besides, vitamin A is present in many fats. It has been estimated that the per cent. of fat in child's diet, as estimated in calory values not weight or bulk, should be about 35 per cent. and of protein 15 per cent and of carbohydrate 50 per cent.

For Eczema -- Skin Troubles

Make up your mind today that you are through with your skin at your mercy. Get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil—the Druggist or any other good druggist will supply you—and an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil—it lasts many days because it is highly concentrated.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that your skin troubles will soon be a thing of the past.

Remember that Moone's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating Anti-septic oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that it must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

CAN CALL WITNESSES ON BLACKMAIL CHARGE

Justice, Hollaway, Reserves Right to Do Thus

At the request of Crown Attorney Guy Gordon, Hollaway, 41 year old unemployed consulting engineer, won the right to call defense witnesses when he went on trial today charged with attempting to blackmail and threatening the king.

Agreeing to subpoena witnesses but reserving decision on whether he will hear them, Justice Charles of Old Bailey—adjourned the hearing until either January 19 or 23.

Questioned by the court concerning the application, Haddon, who claims to be the illegitimate son of the late Duke of Clarence, elder brother of the King declared:

"I have witnesses to say that my mother was secretly married to the Duke of Clarence."

"We won't say anything about that," the Justice added, "I will allow the subpoenas. I only want to include that if I find they have no relevance to the charge itself, although they may be material to other matters, you will, I know, expect me in pursuance of my duty not to hear them."

PREMIER'S SON GOES ON INSPECTION TOUR

Visit Home of George K. Graham And Looks Over Registered Cattle

Dear Them :

Mr. George Henry Jr., son of the Prime Minister of Ontario, and Mrs. Ross Philpott of Toronto, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Owen James of Trenton; following the meeting of the Trenton Canadian Conservative Club of Sidney, held in the Town Hall at Wallbridge, Tuesday night. Wednesday they came on to the cold storage plant of the Graham Bros. and later went over the extensive plant of the Montrose Dairy Farm owned by George and Graham's fine herd of some 300 head of pure bred registered cattle. The young men were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Wednesday noon.

Commenting to a reporter of this paper, Mr. Henry who is manager of his fathers farm and has one of his own, said he was most agreeably impressed with all he saw in the Graham plant in the city and at Mr. Graham's extensive barns, stables and dairy enterprise.

Escapes Serious Eye Injury When Lid is Pierced With Stick

Tweed—The annual meeting of District No. 4 of the Orange Lodge met at the Orange Hall in Thomasburg on Tuesday afternoon. Members were present from the lodges of Sulphide, Tweed, Lodgeroom, Elliott's, Thomasburg and Moneymore. The following district officers were elected:

District Master—Bro. C. E. Way, Tweed.

Dep. Master—Bro. Harold Peterson, Thomasburg.

Chaplain—Bro. Ed Good, Elliott's.

Rec. Sec.—Bro. H. Coulter, Elliott's.

Fin. Sec.—Bro. Ritchie Green Thomasburg.

Treas.—Bro. Irvin Bateman, Thomasburg.

Marshal — Bro. Harry Grier Tweed.

First Lecturer—Bro. Harold Varty, Sulphide.

Frank Moore, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Moore of Sulphide, was cut near the left eye while sleigh-riding on Friday last. Dr. M. G. Dales, who was summoned, found it necessary to put four stitches in the wound.

Tweed Branch of the A. N. V. C. held their regular meeting in their hall on Friday evening with the President G. P. Bowlby in the chair. Business of a routine nature was transacted.

Mr. Claude Finnigan, who resides at the home of Mr. Joe Masterson in Hungerford was the victim on Friday of a peculiar accident which might have resulted in the loss of the sight of an eye. While attending to some work in the barn, he came accidentally into contact with a sharp pointed stick which pierced the eyelid, causing a half-inch gash, but in some miraculous manner not harming the sight of the eye. Dr. Dales closed the wound with a suture.

Mr. Archie Sinclair fell heavily on the slippery sidewalks on Friday and hurt his hip painfully. He will be laid up for a few days.

Miss Florence Blaney spent Sunday in Toronto with her sister who has been ill.

Mrs. David Johnston of Bellwood is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) M. G. Dales.

Mr. Earl Allen who has been visiting his brother, Mr. A. B. Allen, manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank for some weeks has returned to Hamilton.

Mr. George West of Madoc accompanied Rev. W. A. Hunter, newly appointed minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

Observe Week of Prayer In Marmora Churches

Marmora—Miss Bernice Forestell who has been residing in Montreal for the past number of months, returned home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery of Mount Pleasant, visited friends and relatives in town on Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. O'Connor, who has been visiting her mother Mrs. Jane O'Neill for the past two weeks, returned to her home in Sudbury on Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Wyatt and Mrs. Wyatt Sr., Belleville, were in town on Sunday and attended the funeral of the late Norman Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Constable and family and Mr. G. McCurracher of Peterborough attended the funeral of the late Norman Mitchell on Sunday.

The World's Week of Prayer is being observed in Marmora on Tuesday and Thursday of this week. Services are as follows: On Tuesday at St. Andrew's United Church, with Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell as preacher. On Thursday at St. Paul's Anglican Church with Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth as preacher.

Choirs and congregations of both churches will unite for these prayer services which will be held from eight to nine o'clock.

Another euchre and bridge party was held in the Separate School on Monday evening. The winners for the bridge were: Mrs. E. Brady and Mr. P. Brawley and for the euchre, Miss Theresa Crawford and P. J. Flynn. At midnight a delightful lunch was served, after which dancing was very much enjoyed for a couple of hours. Music was supplied by Miss K. Doyle at the piano and Mr. C. Campion, violin.

Quick Relief for Women

Women need not endure periodic pains and headaches. They can spare themselves this suffering by taking ZUTOO TABLETS. Mrs. Allen Wright, of Fulford, who was relieved in 30 minutes of severe pain and headache, wrote saying: "Every woman in the land should know about ZUTOO TABLETS and what they will do." Just try the tablets and know for yourself how quickly they stop the pain.

BETHEL Y. P. S. VISIT MT. PLEASANT

Rawdon, Jan. 11. — On Friday evening, January 5, about thirty members of Bethel Y.P.S. journeyed to Mount Pleasant and paid the folks there a friendly visit, despite the icy condition of the roads. Mr. John Coggins, president of Mount Pleasant Y.P.S., opened the meeting and the pastor offered prayer. Mr. Coggins then heartily welcomed the Bethel friends and gave the meeting over to them. Mr. Walter Warren, president of Bethel Y.P.S. graciously replied to the welcome. Miss Nellie Morrison read the Bible lesson found in Acts 4:1-21. Mrs. H. Elliott acted as accompanist for the hymns. Miss Ruth Eggleton very ably presented the topic dealing with "The Life of William Wilberforce." Rev. Joblin devoted a few minutes in commenting on the topic. Master Bobby Elliott, one of Bethel's junior members, delighted the audience with a popular song, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf". Mrs. Mabel Hayton gave a splendid recitation entitled "The Leper". Mrs. Harold Elliott was heard in a beautiful piano solo. Mr. Gordon Green read a selection entitled "Thy Servant", telling the story of the three princes. Miss Annie Elliott sang a pleasing solo, "Golden Dreams of Long Ago". Miss Lola Heath read an appropriate poem, "Be the Best of Whatever You Are". After the program the president staged a difficult contest on "planting". Votes of thanks from both leagues were extended and the Mount Pleasant League under the direction of Miss Muriel Milligan served a dainty repast of sandwiches, cake, tarts and coffee.

Nurse Anderson is caring for Mr. John McCaw who is ill at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Dracup of Belleville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. McGie.

HOCKEY HELMET

Larry Aurie of the Detroit Red Wings hockey team, who was k.o.'d twice by falls on the ice in New York, tried out a new 'skull cap' invented by Frank (Honey) Walker, trainer of the Detroit team, which is proposed to lessen the danger of such injuries as suffered by Irvin (Ace) Bailey of the Toronto Leafs, who received a serious head injury when he crashed to the ice in scrimmage. Walker has been working with three materials for this new head guard—aluminum, leather and fibre, combined with foam rubber. Walker seeks to perfect a head guard that will be lighter than the football helmet-like affairs that have been seen on the ice since the incident in Boston. He intends to fit the head guard shown ABOVE with a framework so that it will fit the skull snugly.

FIRST MEETING OF TRINITY W. M. S. IN NEW YEAR

Madoc, Jan. 11.—The new year's meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Simeon Ashley on January 4 with the president, Mrs. J. Rutherford, presiding. The Scripture lesson from Luke 18:35-43 was read by Mrs. H. Bailey and a prayer was led by Mrs. J. Henderson. A short business period followed.

The annual reports of the secretary and the treasurer were very encouraging, showing a membership of twenty-five annual and thirteen life members, twelve monthly meetings held with an average of twenty-three present plus visitors. Bales of clothing were sent to the supply secretary and to the northern section of the country. The total allocation of $320.00 was realized.

In keeping with the new year Mrs. Hamm read "Looking Forward" by Wilhelmina Stitch and Mrs. Rutherford gave some excellent thoughts on the new year and its opportunities for service. The temperance secretary, Mrs. M. Bristol, spoke on "Alcohol From the Social Standpoint", pointing out the fact that the young people meet temptation oftentimes in the form of cocktails attractively served at social functions. The peace secretary, Mrs. H. McMechan, spoke briefly on conditions in the various countries with none too hopeful signs of peace. We need to pray and talk and work for peace.

A pleasing variation was a well rendered solo by Mrs. Wesley Hulin entitled "Sundown". Mrs. Leslie Ashley contributed an interesting item on "Rural Work in Africa". A verse of "Far Far Away" was sung, following which Mrs. T. L. Nickle took up the study from "Living Issues in China", beginning with a brief account of the life of the author, Dr. Hodgkins. Mrs. Nickle reviewed chapters one and two dealing with the new state system which China is creating and the education which is needed among the masses of this nation which comprises one-fifth of the world's population. In the face of many difficulties a hopeful spirit is seen in the act that so many of her outstanding leaders are Christians. Members and many visitors enjoyed this profitable afternoon. Mrs. Corrigal and Mrs. Rutherford were assistant hostesses for the social half-hour.

Meeting of Trinity Y.P.S.

The regular meeting of the Trinity Young People's Society was held on Monday evening. The meeting was opened with the president, Miss MacDermid in charge. After singing "Abide With Me" the president led in a prayer for the new year. Following a short business session the program was continued with Miss MacDermid in charge. A group song was given by a number of boys and was very much enjoyed. Miss MacDermid gave a reading, "Why should we have a Young People's Society?" A reading, "A Christian Social Order" was rendered by John Bristol. Another group song was given by some girls which was also very much appreciated by those present. The Scripture lesson from Acts 17:13-31 and Luke 15:11-32 was read by Gray Rivers. Alec Broad then led a short discussion on "God In the Old Testament" and "Jesus Reveals God". A poem entitled "It Shows In Your Face" was given by Mervyn Rutherford. The meeting was brought to a close with prayer by Miss Eileen Kelly and the repeating of the Mizpah Benediction.

Maple Leaf Mission Band Meeting

The regular meeting of the Maple Leaf Mission Band was held on Monday, January 8. The meeting was opened by singing hymn 30 followed by the Scripture reading by Billy McBain, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The roll was called and the treasurer's report given. A story was told by Miss Helen Zuercher, and a radio broadcast tale by Mrs. Bailey. Hymn 406 was then sung and the meeting brought to a close by repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

WORLD DEBTS ARE KEY TO RECOVERY

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—(CP)—Re-adjustment of international debt was an essential prelude to world economic stability, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, told the University Club here today.

"But," the Minister continued, "equally important is that the weight of internal debts be lightened by the lowering of interest rates and by extending the term of payment. In some cases, actual 'forgiving of debt' is necessary."

FERGUSON AWAITS TIMBER RULING

London, Jan. 10 (CP Cable) — Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, today awaited the British Government's decision on Canada's protest against large imports of Russian timber after he found there was no basis for a report a decision had been reached.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Sitting Pretty"

If you want 100 per cent. enter. tainment, just come down to the Belle Theatre and see Paramount's sensational musical film "Sitting Pretty," tonight or Friday, matinee and evening.

You have everything you can want. The comedy is swell, and the songs are sweeping the country.

The story is a real one, more sensational than the usual musical film. And it takes you on a joyful cruise.

Jack Oakie and Jack Haley enact the crazy song writers. This marks Haley's first screen role in several years, his only other appearance having been in "Follow Thru." He has been a big star on Broadway, and he adds immeasurably to the humor of the story.

It seems there were a couple of chaps wanted to write songs for musical films so they "thumb" their way from New York to Hollywood and meet Ginger Rogers who runs a roadside sandwich stand.

They arrive in Hollywood, and all is not easy sailing. We have the boys' crust! Nothing else but. They crash into studios and executives' offices, and songs are hacked, but who should arrive but Ginger and her old partner Fred Astaire, and nasty a little brat as ever appeared on screen.

Things progress rapidly. The boys get a break and Oakie goes for a screen test named "Mandalay." In the hilarious comedy to follow, he tries to write a few songs for a musical picture and suffer for his sins.

The film is loaded with performances. Gregory Ratoff is grand as an actor's agent. The Three Eton Sisters, Arthur Jarrett and Vivienne Sale, all have their names in lights.

There are the songs that were written especially for this picture. "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?"; "Good Morning Glory"; "You're Such a Comfort to Me" and "Many Moons Ago."

These are the ditties that have been catching on all over the country, and in "Sitting Pretty" Paramount shows you how they were written.

They are by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, composers of some of the biggest song hits of recent years. The picture was directed by Harry Joe Brown and the musical and dance ensembles were arranged by Larry Ceballos.

The supporting cast of short gems precede the feature offering including Charley Chase in his latest comedy, "Mechanic at It," the Belle Current News, and a funny Krazy Kat cartoon "Krazy Crazy."

Tea Gifts Tonight

Tonight is Treasure Night at the Belle, at 9 p.m., a beautiful nine piece genuine Community Silver Tea Set and nine other exceptional silver gifts will be given away.

Marie Dressler Next

Co-starred the first time on the screen, Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore bring comedy, heart interest and living drama to the big fans in an inimitable blend in "Her Sweetheart" (Christopher Bean) coming to the Belle Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE SPHINX"

A new menace is taking a permanent place on the screen. Not since the death of the late Lon Chaney has there been one outstanding figure, whose very name personified horror, until the advent of Lionel Atwill.

Although the results achieved by these two men are similar both being masters in the world of sinfulness up to a fine pitch of nerve racking tension—there is a marked difference in their methods. Chaney, screen trained, relied largely upon make-up to project his grotesque personalities; while Atwill, veteran of fifty or more famous stage roles, places little dependence on greasepaint, accomplishing his nerve-chilling effects chiefly by the power of his voice.

This power in Atwill's eyes, the strong personality noticeable even in off-screen moments. One suspects him of having cultivated the hypnotic art, of having, perhaps, delved deep into occult study, as Poteet, in his ability to subjugate even the most casual acquaintance to his will. While Chaney, then, their effect strengthened by the weird atmosphere that invariably exudes his pictures, the sinister dominance of his cold eyes and voice is sufficient.

Likewise, Atwill is a specialist in the mystery melodrama, boasting a distinct as the bugaboo tendencies of the "Hunchback of Notre Dame" and the terrifying quality of the old woman in "The Unholy Three" are worthy of the efforts of this connoisseur of crime. In "Doctor X," scenes of pure horror, he was the flesh of his victims; in "Wax Museum", he exhibited himself as a murderer mania in boiling wax; in "Murders in the Zoo", he was a fiend who trained poisonous snake to satisfy his devilish instincts; in "The Devil Commands", he sucked the blood of his victims' jugular veins like a vampire; and in "The Sphinx," his latest thriller, he resorts to strangulation.

It is a typical drama of life in the financial district of a large city. It depicts the successful efforts of a clever newspaper reporter to unravel a baffling murder mystery. Lionel Atwill and Sheila Terry have the leading roles.

In conjunction with "The Sphinx" we present a revival of Our Gang Comedy Hour, and funniest feature comedy ending "You Said a Mouthful." A fine cast including Ginger Rogers support this wide-mouthed comedian. She laughs come fast and furious, and you don't mind a bit. Showing again until you see the maestro of mirth, Joe E. Brown, in his hilarious comedy "It's a Boy," a Keen chaser. Don't forget, this double bill at the Capitol Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in 1930 Mr. Ryckman was appointed Minister of National Revenue. The portfolio was an important one. During the years of office, Canada's revenue had been largely concentrated by bringing into this department many other units, services, and the organization had consequently increased in very large dimensions.

Mr. Ryckman was faced with the usual problems confronting the head of such a department, but he was soon required to meet others of a somewhat peculiar nature. Depression economic conditions throughout the world inflated currencies to some extent, and generally abnormal conditions resulted in efforts to dump commodities into Canada's markets. The Government considered it necessary to revise values for duty purposes on many lines of goods coming into those currency dumping duties, and generally speaking take action from time to time in the matter of what was regarded as adequate protection was given Canadian producers. It was an involved and difficult task.

After more than three years at the head of the department Mr. Ryckman found that he could not continue. His health had not been good for some time. In November, 1933, he handed his resignation in to the Prime Minister. It was accepted with regret. Hon. R. G. Dunbam, also of Toronto, was appointed to the vacant portfolio.

Clear Thinker

Mr. Ryckman retained his seat in the House of Commons after resigning from the cabinet. Tall and erect with regular features he was an exceptional figure when he rose to speak. He had considerable ability. His speeches, while not oratorical in their make-up, were clear thinking and were concise and adequate in delivery. He impressed rather by his sincerity than by any poetic flights. He was a fighter in debate.

The business connections of Mr. Ryckman were important and extensive. On accepting his Cabinet appointment he resigned the presidency of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company, and all directorships in several other corporations.

In his early life Mr. Ryckman was an athletic player for several years was prominent in the affairs of the Canadian Wheelman's Association.

Born at Huntingdon, Que., in 1886, Mr. Ryckman was a son of the parsonage. His father, Rev. Dr. R. D. Ryckman is well remembered as one of the outstanding preachers in Canadian Methodism. Dr. Ryckman came of United Empire Loyalist stock. Mr. Ryckman's mother was Emmaline Edmond Baldwin.

He was educated at Brantford Collegiate and graduated with the general efficiency gold medal and the gold medal in classics from the University of Toronto (Victoria College). He also took the gold medal of the Law Society of Upper Canada Bill.

In 1916 he married Isabel Lou Gardiner. He was Lieutenant Edward Gurney Ryckman, of the Royal Flying Corps, was killed in the great war. Baird Ryckman, of Toronto, is another son. Geoffrey Beatty and Miss Barbara Ryckman, of Toronto, are daughters.

Mr. Ryckman was a member of the Toronto Hunt, Rideau Club, Royal Canadian Yacht, and Hunt Clubs, of Toronto; the Rideau of Ottawa, and the Manhattan of New York.

TRENTON WINS IN LATE PLAY

Defeats Hastings at Norwood By Four to Two

Trenton, Jan. 11 (Special)—After losing for the first time in Central Junior O.H.A. representatives came from behind to capture the first game of the two from Hastings Juniors at Norwood arena last night.

The ice was very choppy and puck carrying was almost impossible for the first two stanzas and Hinkes a lot of skating to keep the ice surface which is larger than any in the district including the Belleville Arena.

The "Sun" lott who has played here before and the "Sun" Burrit who was moved to the forward line last night by Coach Bowen, gave Trenton's share of the locals' victory.

Burrit got his assist when he netted for the rugged Lott.

Roy Par-ot the second line netted two points with a goal and an assist. Harry Teal notched his specials first counter on a pass from Allan Lemon. Godin figured in the northerners both counters which came in the first period. He left a tricky stick handler and fast skater, Tharby, Hastings pet goaltender a standout with Penton and Stewart making a real rear guard. Probably the robbed of several goals when he would rush through the centre zoned only to miss or get into the corner.

Referee "Mickey" Hogan of Hastings handed out several penalties and added extra for the players back talk.

The local lads some of them playing their first O.H.A. game, had a little timid on the start on the slippery ice.

L. Rogers scored on a pass from Godin in the second when Godin drove one past Cottrell from a faceoff in front of the local net. After this the locals buckled down but their rough tactics left them two men in the for the period ended, 2-1 for Hastings.

Lott Gets Two

Mitchell was in the penalty box when the period opened, but later "Bun" Lott drew a trip to the cooler for holding. As he stepped on the ice from the penalty box he picked up a loose puck along the boards and drove it past Tharby to even up the count. For Lott and Kidd combination and Lott finished another on a pass from Ray Par.

The period saw Hastings force the play but failed to tally. Half way thru' Ray Par beat Tharby on a pass from Lott to put the locals two up. Burrit drew an extra minute for roughing and Referee Hogan and with the locals shorthanded Hastings drove every man up but the time was short and Trenton held on for the 4-2 decision.

Manager Geo. LaBrash Councillor H. LePleur and Burt Kidd formed their cars for the team's transportation.

One goalstke was made. The teams were: Trenton—goal Cottrell; defence Penton and Stewart; centre C. Puffer, wings, L. Rogers and Godin. Hastings—goal Tharby; defence Agnew and G. Puffer.

Trenton—goal Cottrell, defence, Mitchell and Thompson, centre Lemon, wings Leaj and Burtt, alternates, Kidd, Par, Lott and Godin.

Referee—"Mickey" Hogan, Hastings.

The Lale John Preteen

Trenton, Jan. 11—Friends and relatives from Trenton, many of them outlying points, attended the last rites of one of the pioneers of the district, the late John Pretsen, held from St. Peter-in-Chains Catholic church on Tuesday morning.

Very Rev. Dean J. J. O'Reilly celebrated Solemn Requiem Mass and during the Mass Joseph Macaulay sang "In Paradisum" and Chas. Allen "Prayer for a Happy Death."

The profusion of flowers and mass cards showed the high esteem with which the deceased was held in community.

Interment was made in the vault at the Catholic cemetery.

The pallbearers were Joseph Lamore, H. Desjardins, F. Delisle, Sr., M. Henehan, A. Hood and R. Stout.

PREDICTION OF EXPANSION OF BUSINESS REPORTED

Sir Herbert Holt at Royal Bank Meeting Speaks on Railways

COSTS QUESTION

Too Numerous Governments Create High Taxes

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—(CP)—A prediction of expanding business in Canada was made today in a stern condemnation of heavy government, municipal and industrial in the address delivered today by Sir Herbert Holt, President of the Royal Bank of Canada, at the annual meeting of shareholders of the bank.

Sir Herbert Holt painted the optimism that we have come through the depression and that conditions, he said, "and that our future prospects are encouraging."

Canada's ability to profit from the present recovery in an early stage is based on the excellent character of her natural resources, he said, and the economy and efficiency of our export business. But costs should not be allowed to get out of hand.

"The country's position will be weakened materially if we allow our costs to get out of line. Taxation is the greatest item in the cost of production and I cannot emphasize too strongly the vital importance of reducing this burden.

Government Costs

"The cost of maintaining our too numerous governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal is rapidly becoming unbearable. . . . I am quite aware that the Federal Power has been a tendency to regard expenditure as the least objectionable exaggerated or overdone, but unless we are willing to curtail expenditure the situation will very soon be brought home to every individual."

Sir Herbert recalled he had stated at the last annual meeting the enforced cooperation between the railroads would not be drastic legislation, and expressed satisfaction with the recent announcement, agreement, free from all political interference.

Amalgation of Rails

"The expidence of a year of cooperation between the Governmental railroads and the privately owned railways has not tended to disprove that theory, and I am still of the opinion the maximum of economy can only be obtained by some kind of voluntary amalgamation. There is no reason why independent railways should not operate through such an arrangement, given the same standard of maintenance management, free from all political interference.

There has been a distinct improvement in Canadian business, he said, but unfortunately the gratifying growing industry had not shared in the improvement in any important degree.

"We can only hope its recovery will not be too long deferred and in the meantime everything possible should be done to lessen our destructive forces and to aid diversity production in Western Canada."

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO BONDS

Toronto, Jan. 11.—A good market for nickel developed on the Standard Exchange today, most of the sales however being of the broken lot order and business was fair also in Hollinger. Prices held prominent with a few variations in both directions appearing.

Senior gold shares continued the sluggish performance of recent weeks. Hollinger was off 5 cents to $12.25, Lake Shore dropped 10 to $45.50, McIntyre 10 cents to $41.00, Teck was unchanged at $5.90 and Wright Hargreaves was up 5 to $8.90.

Base Metals Corporation with a rise of 9 cents to $1.75 was the feature of the Base Metal group outside of the Nickel trading. Both Nickel and Noranda gained 50 cents each.

The Standard Exchange had the same kind of a market today that it has had over the past week. Some interest was shown in the senior gold group but prices were slightly off while Base Metals edged forward moderately.

Hollinger alone of the big gold group, traded in heavy volume. Profit-taking was evidenced and the price worked back to $12.20. McIntyre, Lake Shore, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves all dropped back a little.

Nickel, Noranda, Base Metals and Hollinger were the leaders in a little better in the Base Metal group.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—The bears could muster only three recessions against 16 advances in the abbreviated session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Trading continued up at a lively clip with distillery stocks showing over in volume at higher prices.

Most of the brewery shares were higher, featured by Canada Malting Corporation issues, Canada Bud, and Canada Malting Wood, the distillaries, Walkers, Common was up 1 1-4 to 56 1-2, Preferred advanced A 7-8 to 19 1-4, Alcohol B, a point to 19, Distillers Seagrams a point to 24 5-8 and Brewers and Distillers 3 cents to 21.90.

Nickel was taken in substantial doses around $32 for a gain of 39 points. Steels gained 1-4 to 12 3-4, O.P.R. 3-8 to 15 3-4 and Ford A was unchanged at 5.50.

The market edged forward from the opening and by noon showed but a handful of issues left over from a half dozen recessions. Beverage rooms, the first to show interest, were trading also active in Nickel, Brazilian and Canada Covenant.

Distillery stocks boarded gains up to 1-1 3-8 but Walkers Common were reduced under a mid-day wave of profit-taking. This afternoon Walkers, Common, was unchanged for a gain of a point; Distillers Seagram 7-8 and Industrial Alcohol A. Brewing Corporation issues traded actively at slightly higher prices.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Jan. 11.—Stock prices were cheerful but a little subdued today following their outbreak from the doldrums which has held sway for the previous session.

Trade news was still encouraging, although speculative forces were inclined to be cautious and sell off on home some of the profits which accrued in Wednesday's spurt. While most statistical factors were on their bullish, some chartists were talking of a "technical reaction" before the real advance gets under way. Bonds were irregular, commodities and U.S. government securities were not so heavy.

Shares of Nash Motors were among the most active with a gain or more than a point. Chrysler, however, lost a similar amount and Studebaker, Hudson and Packard ed. U. S. Industrial Alcohol got up a point and Johns Manville was shown by American Can. Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Montgomery Ward, International and North American.

Slight irregularity predominated among Canadian shares. McIntyre and Dome eased small fractions. The latter was ex-dividend Interprovincial Pipe was quite active in the early hours but closed with a fraction. Canadian Pacific was also slightly lower. Hollinger, Lake Shore Mines ruled a shade lower while Nickel Preferred was up a point. Dominion Government 4s and 5s regular 1st Mortgage. The Canadian dollar was off 1-8 of a cent at 99.87 1-2.

COAL COMPANIES ENTER APPEAL

Quebec, Jan. 11—(CP)—An appeal was entered today on behalf of five coal companies convicted of maintaining a combine in restraint of trade and fined at total of $30,000.

The companies are the two Canadian import companies, the two P. E. Weaver companies and the British Coal Corporation.

Her First Movie is 'Little Woman'

Elderly Belleville Woman Sees Picturized Story of Famous Book

"Little Women" which has played at the Belle Theatre for four days attracted the greatest of interest for a picture in Belleville for many years and paid admission to witness this picturized version of a lovely story which dates back to the times of 1864.

One of the best proofs of the enduring quality of Louisa M. Alcott's story was that a woman who had never attended a movie program in Belleville came to this show. One of these newcomers was an elderly woman who had probably read this touching story in her youthful days and who came in company with her relatives to witness the production. The story as she knew it in her youth was all revived in her very real to her.

Produce Market

Fresh eggs continued to decline in price on the Belleville market yesterday. Graded shipments in Ont. lots sold 12 to 20 per dozen less than on Tuesday, and from 26 to 30 per dozen less than on the first close of last week. Levels were generally 28-30c per dozen for Grade A-Large, 24-26c for Grade A-Medium, and 24-26c for Grade A-Pullets. Receipts were light, and because of the reductions supplies were hard to move.

The butter market remained quiet, buyers displaying little interest in announcement of Dominion stocks. The market for No. 1 pasteurized butter was steady at 26c per lb., with most quotations at 25c per lb. Other prints were 24c per lb.

Creamery butter market held steady at 10 1-4c to 10 1-2c per lb. for current receipts. Dairy prints, including broken, 25c. Supplies light. Cooking butter unchanged and steady. N. R. Mountains, 60 lbs. No 1, $1.10; 15 lbs. No. 1, $1.15; Quebec Whites, 30 lbs., No. 1, 95c; No. 1, $1.00; Maritimes, 90 lbs. No. 1, $1.30 to $1.35.

W. HUNTINGDON AND MINTO WIN

Smart Hockey Being Played in Centre Hockey Loop

STIRLING, Jan. 11—(Special)—Canniffton beat Minto for the first time in the first game of the double fixture, played in the Stirling arena on Tuesday evening. The teams were very evenly matched as the 2-2 score would indicate and the game provided plenty of thrills for the spectators.

Two minutes after the bell rang for the first period, Empson, of Canniffton put his team in the lead by socking the first counter on a pass from V. H. Jarrell. Minto fought hard to overcome the one goal lead and time after time mixed, sped to get through the Canniffton defense only to have their shots turned aside by Sharpe in the Canniffton nets. The Canniffton forward line showed real combination play and many times it looked as if they would add to their one goal count but Tanner in the Minto goal thwarted them at every turn. The one penalty of the period went to Henderson of Minto, for boarding Williams.

The second started off with a revised Canniffton line-up of Johnson at centre, Empson and Jarrell wings, and Smallbone at point. Quig on defence. As in the first period, the two Jarrell lads, Empson and Johnson were outstanding for the Canniffton squad while the Gibson brothers and Reid go most of the honours for Minto. The Canniffton lead was strengthened when in the second frame, Johnson the speedy centre combined with V. H. Jarrell, came through the defense on a solo run to make the count 3-0.

Shortly after the bell rang for the third period, Reid went up the ice and passed the defense pawing to Jack Gibson who notched the first goal for Minto. Minto anxious to even the count, worked hard and the game became faster. Shot after shot was rained upon the Canniffton net but Sharpe played a stellar game seemed invincible until a few minutes before the game ended, the Gibson brothers got together on a little piece of combination play and evened the score. Canniffton tried to stage a comeback and to Tanner in the Minto nets goes much of the credit for Minto holding the lead. At 2-2 in the third, one penalty was handed out to G. Gibson for tripping. The game was the best of any played in the Centre League this season. The playing of each team are, for the most part young lads yet still undoubtedly show a decided improvement in form before the season ends.

Referee—Ernest Dalnard.

Goal Umpires—Sexton and F. Dalnard.

West Huntingdon 5, Bethel 3.

In the second fixture West Huntingdon took Bethel into camp for a 5-3 victory. As the score would indicate, the game was too one-sided to be interesting from a spectators point of view and although the Dickey brothers, the boys from the Bethel team worked like veterans, they seemed to lack the scoring punch and were forced to be content with the goose egg.

The first period was scoreless and whether the soft ice was the cause or not, neither team could get going. In the middle of the second frame Mott of West Huntingdon, bulged the twine on a shot from the blue line, the Dickey-Dickey-Parsey combination attempted to reduce the lead but the West Huntingdon lads held their own. Early the latter, Charlie and Murney Wright, Harold Mott and Murney were outstanding.

Shortly after the final period opened, Elmer Murray, tallied from the Rebel blue line to be followed one minute later by a second counter by Mott. Just to round out the win for his team, Chas. Wright of Huntingdon notched a fourth counter and a few minutes before the song sounded, Elmer Murray added another tally making the score 5-0 for West Huntingdon. Three penalties were handed out, two in the second frame to Mott and E. Dickey for staging a private argument in the corner and the third, in the final period to E. Dickey for giving Mott the boards.

Bethel—Sills, goal; Robbin and Cranston, left and right defense; Parsey and E. Dickey, left and right wing; R. Dickie, centre; subs—Massey, McAvoy, Brough and Kingsley.

Referee—Earl Wallace.

Goal umpires—Hulin and Dowsett.

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

A point brumble that may easily shift the first three positions in the United States division and change three spots in the Canadian section is on the cards tonight as all National Hockey League teams but the Montreal Canadiens get into action.

Games at Ottawa, Montreal, New York and Chicago include three international battles and an all-American affair, the meeting of Boston Bruins and Black Hawks in Chicago.

New York Rangers who have moved up to near the head of the class after a long term in the cellar find their position at stake when they clash with Ottawa's Senators at the capital. If they bow to Buck Boucher's men, Detroit with whom they are tied, can leave them behind and hurdle Chicago too by beating the Maroons in Montreal.

Playing at home, Tommy Gorman's Hawks find themselves faced with the necessity of beating Bruins as either Rangers or Detroit, a point behind them, can go into the division lead otherwise.

Toronto Leafs, Canadian division leaders, come into the picture at New York where the high-flying Americans will attempt to add to their recently gained prestige by upsetting the Torontonians, beaten only four times this season.

AMERKS AGAIN IN THE RING

Shifting of Front Lines Has Shown Decided Improvement

By GEORGE MAGUIRE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 11—(CP)—They are the "amazing Amerks" once more.

Languishing at the cellar of the Canadian group of the National Hockey League and with but two victories to their credit after nearly half the season, the current season hag elapsed, the experts had forgotten that the families represented by the New York Americans had earned it in other years.

Predictions flew about they would be meeting another team, solo massage, individually and what not. Now all that is brushed aside, all the same faces red?

The gloomy part of the American's record vanished from the minds of their supporters completely with victory over the Boston Bruins in the hub on Tuesday night. Their forwards were somewhat weakened, but what pleased more than that was the fact that in it was the Amerks fourth soaring of the year in which they shot a spectacular comeback at the start of the New Year.

Of the York Rangers, Ottawa Senators, Montreal Canadiens and then, Boston felt before the unrenaisd puck juggling troop guided by Coach Joe Simpson.

There are many reasons advanced for the Amerks' success of late. Return of Ilitle Roy Worters to the game after he had been sidelined with injured hands finally ended the team to settle down to smashing pucks past the goalie. A smashing attack is one of the more numerous explanations offered.

CURRENT SPORT

Secretary Newt. Thompson of the O.H.A. announced this morning that he had received official word from Oshawa to the effect that the Dukes had withdrawn from the Central loop. The secretary of the Dukes forwarded the official resignation from the Oshawa club, but gave no details of their action or reasons for such a move.

Of course the attitude taken by the Oshawa club came as no surprise to local baseball officials. What baseball league executive in the well known crisp, however, was the fact that they (Oshawa) refused any invitation to meet on a common level to discuss matters toward the uplift of senior baseball in Eastern Ontario.

On the other hand the Dukes have declared their hand and surely would not make such a drastic move unless they had perfected some kind of a permanent berth in some other recognized baseball league of senior calibre. On the surface it looks as though it is a case of every team for themselves and may the better club survive the whirlwind. There is no denying the fact that Belleville seniors have done everything in their power to bring about a unanimous feeling among all clubs in Eastern Ontario towards sponsoring the 1934 senior baseball in the east but have received little or no co-operation from other league members.

Altho we doubt it, a current rumor has it that Jack Dempsey is now located in Kingston. From what we know of Goldenrib he was in Kingston enjoying life up along the shores of Georgian Bay in Southampton.

A recent press dispatch stated that Albert "Toots" Shor, owner of a well known tavern frequented by sporting celebrities, was the latest to be signed by Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, to train for his coming bout with Primo Carnera, Italian giant. Shor, who is a former boxer himself, is to be Dempsey's chief aide in the training grind. Shor is a big man himself, standing six feet two inches and weighing around 220 pounds.

Dempsey has been in training for the Carnera bout for some time and has been working out at Stillman's gym in New York. Shor's tavern is a popular rendezvous for sporting celebrities and Dempsey has been a frequent visitor there.

Dempsey's manager, Jack Kearns, is in Miami, Fla., where the bout will be staged, and is expected to arrive in New York shortly.

"FOR CRYING OUT LOUD" BROWNING WINS AGAIN

The face of champion Jim Browning is contorted with pain and a few of his best wails echo throughout Madison Square Garden, New York, as Ray Steer, tightens on a combination body scissors and arm twist. Despite these pain-ful and tense moments, Browning came back and threw his opponent with an acrobatic trick in the last hour, five minutes of grappling.

MODEL I. FOR AMERICA'S CUP DEFENDER

W. Starling Burgess and Burgess are shown beside a model of the craft that is to be built to defend America's cup against the challenge of T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavor next September. Mr. Burgess designed Enterprise, which beat the late Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V in 1930, also designed this craft for the Harold Vanderbilt Syndicate, and already work on building the new boat is in process at the Herreshoff shipyard at Bristol, Rhode Island. The length of the model is 5 feet over all. It is built to definite scale of the yacht and small squared lines are pencilled on it, as it lies overturned on saw horses. From them, and the blue prints the bigger yacht is built. Until now none but the few directing the work have been permitted to see the model, the details of which are guarded with as much care as are the plans of some government secret.

BULLDOGS SCORE FIRST WIN IN OVER MONTH

Switching of Gus Forslund to Team Changes Luck

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP) — Gus Forslund, 23 year old Swedish-born player who learned his hockey with Port William teams and formerly played with Ottawa Senators of the National League, switched from a Syracuse uniform to a Windsor sweater and immediately the Bulldogs' luck—which had been all bad recently—changed.

Traded to the Stars for Andy Bellemer, the chunky Forslund made his presence felt in the Bulldog line he played with his new companions by converting Lorne Duguid's pass into a tally which gave Windsor a 1-0 victory over Buffalo Bisons in an International League fixture here last night.

It was the first time in almost a month the Bulldogs were able to leave the ice with a win tucked under their belts and they stepped up into a tie with London for fifth place as a result.

FRANKFORD IS DEFEATED 4-0

Stirling High School Wins Opening Game in Loop

Stirling, Jan. 11 (Special)— In the opening fixture of the South Hastings High School hockey loop played in the Stirling arena on Wednesday night the Stirling public school showed the Marmora and Grey Frankford squad by a score of 4-0. An enthusiastic crowd was on hand to witness the play and the ice was in splendid condition. The game was by far, the best seen on the local arena this season having all the zest, that goes to make a real hockey match and was not nearly so one sided as the score would indicate. Penalties were numerous, the majority going to the Southerners who were inclined to be a bit rough at times but Referee Wallace kept the game well in hand.

The teams appeared very evenly matched in the opening frame with the play ranging equally around either net. Brookes of the red and white drew the first penalty for boarding. About five minutes after play opened, Joblin sallied through the defence to chalk the first counter for Stirling and shortly after on a Joblin-Munro combination play, Munro tallied bringing the score up to a 2-0 count. Munro served a penalty for tripping as did Dafoe of the maroon and grey squad. Although the Stirling goal was seriously threatened, Sprentall in the nets for Stirling turned in a stellar game thwarting every attack. To him goes no small share of the credit for Stirling's win.

In the second period the play was fast, the lone counter being notched by Joblin, Stirling's right defence player on a solo flight up the ice. This lad was easily the best man on the ice and could stick-handle his way through the Frankford defence with the greatest of ease. Penalties went to Bonisteel and Conley of Frankford and Young, Lockwood and Jones of Frankford and Stirling respectively for "having words."

The final stanza was much the same as the others. Time after time Loney, Dafoe, Lockwood and Corrigan would get through the Stirling defence but seemed to lack the scoring punch. Lockwood, who won a penalty for tripping, while playing in ordinary gloves, sustained a serious and painful injury to his right hand the fingers of which were brought to be treated. He was taken to a doctor's office for medical attention. The only counter of Stirling's was added in this frame by Munro on a Robinson-Munro combination play.

Outstanding for Frankford were Lockwood Loney, Dafoe and Lockwood while Sprentall in the nets, Joblin, Munro and Robinson copped the honors for the locals.

Line-ups:

Subs. A. Rodgers, D. Rodgers, Rollins, Sutherland.

Frankford—Lawrence, goal; defence, Wm. Loney and Bonisteel; wings, McGillivray and Lockwood; centre, Dafoe—Subs. Conley, Corley, Corrigan, F. Loney, Foster.

Referee—Earl Wallace.

BARGAIN IN LOVE

by JANE DIXON

CHAPTER 26

Sue rolled the last envelope out of her typewriter. Henry Hume's office and piled it neatly atop the others. Then she began tidying up her desk. A long day. She had been typing steadily since nine o'clock this morning.

"Betsey take those letters in to be signed," Matilda said, stopped by her desk. "Mr. Hume will be leaving in ten minutes."

"I've just finished." Sue rose, gathered the letters. "We'll stop by the market, Matily, and get some chops for dinner. And fruit. Don't let's forget fruit."

"I had myself set for a small steak but I suppose for economy," Matilda said. "Delphine is bringing in apple pie and cake she can bake at it. We'll know later."

A few minutes and Sue emerged from Henry Hume's office with the letters, piled them in the mailing basket, pulled on her hat and joined Matilda. Now they were a part of the swiftly moving current that flowed out from downtown cafeteria to huge tower offices, toward subways, into waiting motors, to the elevated. The day's work done. Now, home for a dinner hall. A cave in a towering man-made cliff. Sue's escape was a man-made mountain. Sixty by sixty feet of good acre in a suburb. Through wrought-iron gates along a graveled drive to a pint of period masonry "in the country".

Sue swung along so rapidly that Matilda found difficulty in keeping pace. Honest walking shoes. Honest work.

"Slow up, please," Matilda panted, "there's no fire."

"No but the firing's fine." Sue laughing. "Glad to be going home. I hope Delphine doesn't try any fancy work on that pie."

"Well, Sue, Randall, your dip into society and the flesh pots doesn't seem to have hurt you. You've done the work of three first-class stenographers since."

"And loved doing it." They dodged across the street. "You and Matily I'm free—free of the fog that used to hang over me. Free of making me see all sorts of fabulous mirages. Mirages like the Randall house—that resembling the real, indeed, me posing as Jeff's wife—remember? And the clothes! Gay in the French shop when I bought things. Anyone of which would have cost me a month's wages? And Green Springs. Ice dances — if anyone's riding the trails? I was sure if I could be a part of such a mirage, nothing else could matter. I have sold my life for a month of it. Now I find its ranch sweet, and a mirage, for me, is just something that disappears when you try to grasp it."

"Are you sure you want to be free?" They dodged traffic in another street, Matilda leading.

"Why—why—yes!" The word was a defiance. "You mean free of Jeff? Of course I want to be free of Jeff. You don't think I'm holding to a man who runs away and leaves me to carry out a bargain."

"Jeffrey not run away?" Mat. Hilda's lips were straight and tight. "You chased him."

"Oh yes!" Sue, brittle. "I said woof and the big brave man never stopped until he reached the interior of Mexico."

"What did you expect him to do? Bowl you over and sit on you?"

Sue did not answer. They reached the market and turned in.

On her return from Green Springs Sue had made a definite decision. She was going back to work. She would not return to the Randall house. Not because she lacked courage—when she thought of the "accidents" she was tempted to return and fight it out on a basis of victory—but because she believed in her imposing herself on those who hated her enough to dare violence for her removal.

On the last night of her stay at Green Springs she called Delphine Ransom on the phone and received a command to come down to the New Jersey cove cote over the garage. Tommy must get back to school. Delphine could "park you and Matilda on our new studio couch which is a nifty and soft as cows, believe it or not."

Delphine's Larry seconded the command.

"Don't disappoint us," he urged over the wire. "Anyone who's been right with Del is sent with me. She's been to show-you through our stupendous menage — our garage. Great girl, Del."

The pride in his voice, the funny little possessive chuckle that was almost a boast! Delphine, happy over a Pennsylvania Dutchman who all her life had taken luxury as a giant of Sue's stark unconcern.

Sue and Matily had seen Tommy off on his train for school and had gone to Delphine's dove cote. Three rooms, a kitchen and a bath. Delphine was as extravagantly proud of it as she could have been of a Park avenue duplex or a villa in Cannes. And Larry was a dear. Sturdy, with huge muscles and a wide smiling mouth. He had been the star in eastern collegiate boxing and might have made the ring a profession had he not met Delphine at his junior prom. Having met the one and only girl who could "take him for the count of ten", he decided to learn the automobile business from the inside out. So that now he was "back in school again" and earning a living for the two of them while he was being made "more conscious".

"We're having peach shortcake for dinner," Delphine said, exhibiting her kitchen as a lady of quality would exhibit her jewels. "If it doesn't fall. It's Larry's fault because he's been pestering me to look at a gadget he's devising to make little engines act like big ones."

"Yes, and I'll do it yet," Larry asserted.

"Of course you will, darling." Delphine peered under a napkin on the kitchen table. "It seems to be slumping all right. It was twice as high as it was the last time I looked. Oh, Jeems, show the guests to their rooms."

In a twinkling Larry had reached his hair into a stubby pompadour, his shoulders into a military extender his elbows, and with solemnity of an Swedish butler, stood at attention before the kitchen door.

"This way, milady," he boomed. "There were two flaks over Larry's zarape, the second a duplicate of the dove cote, and it was empty."

"If I had something to use for furniture," Sue said to Matilda that night, "I'd take the other flat. We could be quiet here until—well until it's all settled. I'll feel fairly safe with Larry across the hall, and there's no night mail to Jeffrey yet."

"Grand idea," Matilda said. "I had it too. We could move my junk and penates over by truck. I'm giving up my lease and if it will save me sending them to storage."

"Oh, Matily, would you?" Sue hugged Matilda in a fling that left her gasping for breath. "I could buy things, but I'd rather use up Jeff's money—and that's out. For modiste and for Tommy. I've earned the money. I'll need for mother and for Tommy. But I don't use another cent of it for myself. It's different with you, Matily. Jeff employed you, took you from a good job—"

"Never you mind about me, Susie." Matilda wagged a wise head. "If I'd let Jeffrey Rose, he'd make a rich woman of me. I have more than enough to live on and more to have and no worries about the niece in Atlanta. And now for the excitement. When can you find that, and pay checks in the bargain? I'll tell you. In the Randall mansion, the next day over a garage sale in front of the house. Sue, niece, I'd go along gratis, just for the exercise."

"Matily, you're a duck. Then it's settled. We'll move to-night—no, right away, if Larry will let us have the apartment."

Somehow, Everything's packed. All we have to do is hire a truck." Matilda shooed Sue away while she was "putting the flat on its feet."

Sue was so docile about her dismissal that Matilda sensed a reason. It was not an aversion to labor, physical or otherwise, that led Sue to accede so readily to the plan. Matilda was sure. No shirker, Sue. What then? Matilda shrugged. She did not ask.

The furniture arrived late in the afternoon of the morrow, as Matilda had predicted. Too late for accomplishment that day. After dinner it was "all hands out for the movies," order of Larry. And on top off the films a raid on the ice-box which divulged a lobster salad, somehow or other smuggled in by Matilda.

In the morning Matilda was up bright-eyed early to find Sue already out of her bath and patting on powder in front of a mirror.

"I'm off for bearing lions," Sue, whisking into a blue suit skirt, wriggling into a white blouse.

"Lions?" Matilda yawned, rubbing the sleep from her eyes. "Only plenty of blank cartridges in your pistol?"

"Plenty."

"Then all you have to remember is that when they roar at you, don't yell and barrage."

All barrels and a rap over the head with the pistol."

Matilda laughed — and climbed out of the studio couch. "You're a bright pupil," she said.

When Sue returned to the flat opposite Delphine's dove cote the lights were on and the place was in more than a semblance of order. Pool cues protruded through the rooms that had been empty in the morning, and by a low table under a rose lamp, Larry was reading the evening paper.

"Welcome to Casa Femina". Larry made a sweeping bow. "Del and Matily are doing things in the kitchen. Gee, Mrs. Randall, you look great. As if you'd had a shot in the arm. Did you meet Santa Claus?"

"Practically, Larry — and please don't Mrs. Randall me—I have my old job back. I'm going to work. Starting tomorrow, Larry, do you know what that means? I'm going to work! Shoes, not boots, subways, not trails. Larry it's the most wonderful thing that's ever happened to me. I have a job."

Matilda came in from the kitchen.

"What now?" she asked, depositing a plate of stuffed celery on the table.

"Nothing." Sue, sampling the celery, commanding herself not to rush Matilda with an embrace. "Except, I don't want to die. 'Cause, even if I do go to heaven it can't be as heavenly as this."

"Let's hear about Sue in Wonderland," Matilda said. "Delphine and Larry will understand, and what they don't we'll explain."

Sue; her chin high.

"First, I went to Henry Hume. For work. He had an idea. Service. I gave the firm service. You gave dinner," Delphine said, exhibiting her kitchen as a lady of quality would exhibit her jewels. "If it doesn't fall. It's Larry's fault because he's been pestering me to look at a gadget he's devising to make little engines act like big ones."

"Yes, and I'll do it yet," Larry asserted.

"Of course you will, darling." Delphine peered under a napkin on the kitchen table. "It seems to be slumping all right. It was twice as high as it was the last time I looked. Oh, Jeems, show the guests to their rooms."

In a twinkling Larry had reached his hair into a stubby pompadour, his shoulders into a military extender his elbows, and with solemnity of an Swedish butler, stood at attention before the kitchen door.

"Grand idea," Matilda said. "I had it too. We could move my junk and penates over by truck. I'm giving up my lease and if it will save me sending them to storage."

"Oh, Matily, would you?" Sue hugged Matilda in a fling that left her gasping for breath. "I could buy things, but I'd rather use up Jeff's money—and that's out. For modiste and for Tommy. I've earned the money I'll need for mother and for Tommy. But I don't use another cent of it for myself. It's different with you, Matily. Jeff employed you, took you from a good job—"

"Never you mind about me, Susie." Matilda wagged a wise head. "If I'd let Jeffrey Rose, he'd make a rich woman of me. I have more than enough to live on and more to have and no worries about the niece in Atlanta. And now for the excitement. When can you find that, and pay checks in the bargain? I'll tell you. In the Randall mansion, the next day over a garage sale in front of the house. Sue, niece, I'd go along gratis, just for the exercise."

"Matily, you're a duck. Then it's settled. We'll move to-night—no, right away, if Larry will let us have the apartment."

Somehow, Everything's packed. All we have to do is hire a truck." Matilda shooed Sue away while she was "putting the flat on its feet."

Sue was so docile about her dismissal that Matilda sensed a reason. It was not an aversion to labor, physical or otherwise, that led Sue to accede so readily to the plan. Matilda was sure. No shirker, Sue. What then? Matilda shrugged. She did not ask.

The furniture arrived late in the afternoon of the morrow, as Matilda had predicted. Too late for accomplishment that day. After dinner it was "all hands out for the movies," order of Larry. And on top off the films a raid on the ice-box which divulged a lobster salad, somehow or other smuggled in by Matilda.

In the morning Matilda was up bright-eyed early to find Sue already out of her bath and patting on powder in front of a mirror.

"I'm off for bearing lions," Sue, whisking into a blue suit skirt, wriggling into a white blouse.

"Lions?" Matilda yawned, rubbing the sleep from her eyes. "Only plenty of blank cartridges in your pistol?"

"Plenty."

"Then all you have to remember is that when they roar at you, don't yell and barrage."

All barrels and a rap over the head with the pistol."

Matilda laughed — and climbed out of the studio couch. "You're a bright pupil," she said.

When Sue returned to the flat opposite Delphine's dove cote the lights were on and the place was in more than a semblance of order. Pool cues protruded through the rooms that had been empty in the morning, and by a low table under a rose lamp, Larry was reading the evening paper.

"Welcome to Casa Femina". Larry made a sweeping bow. "Del and Matily are doing things in the kitchen. Gee, Mrs. Randall, you look great. As if you'd had a shot in the arm. Did you meet Santa Claus?"

"Practically, Larry — and please don't Mrs. Randall me—I have my old job back. I'm going to work. Starting tomorrow, Larry, do you know what that means? I'm going to work! Shoes, not boots, subways, not trails. Larry it's the most wonderful thing that's ever happened to me. I have a job."

Matilda came in from the kitchen.

"What now?" she asked, depositing a plate of stuffed celery on the table.

"Nothing." Sue, sampling the celery, commanding herself not to rush Matilda with an embrace. "Except, I don't want to die. 'Cause, even if I do go to heaven it can't be as heavenly as this."

"Let's hear about Sue in Wonderland," Matilda said. "Delphine and Larry will understand, and what they don't we'll explain."

Sue; her chin high.

"First, I went to Henry Hume. For work. He had an idea. Service.

KILLED SHEEP COST $400

58 Sheep Killed by Raids of Dogs in Western Ontario

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP)— Farmers and municipal officials of Puslinch Township, up in arms over the cost of the wanton attacks of sheep killing by dogs in the history of the district Wednesday started a campaign to prevent a repetition of raids which have cost the Township $400 in the last three days.

There will be presented a notice offering a reward for the capture of murderous dogs, provincial and city police were asked to cooperate in enforcing dog tag by-laws, and in shooting all stray dogs wandering throughout the district, and farmers kept their flocks confined within barns, not even permitting them to run the barnyards.

Fifty-eight sheep were killed on farms in Harriet Township, Agricultural College and the Ontario Reformatory, records of the murderous raids by dogs, John Clark lost 16 head of his flock; Archie Moodie had 21 sheep killed outright and James Thomas lost 13 valuable animals.

INTREPID CANADIAN FLIERS RISK LIVES IN DAILY WORK

GRANT McCONNACHIE

ARCHIE McMULLEN

TED FIELD

Winter has no terrors for these intrepid young fliers of northern Canada. Their flights into the Arctic hinterland may be epics of daring and adventure to the lay man, but they are all in the day's work to these men. Pilot Archie McMullen has been the "hero" in many a merry flight, but he goes about his daily chore of carrying passengers, express and mail into the far north much more nonchalantly, perhaps, than you and I venture out to work on a cold day. McMullen's flying base is Fort McMurray in the Great Bear Lake region. His home is in Edmonton. Pilots Grant McConnachie and Ted Field, both of Edmonton, and graduates of the Northern Aero Club, are busy flying half a million pounds of fresh, unfrozen fish from Peter Pond, in north Saskatchewan to the nearest shipping point at Cheechma on the northern Alberta railway.

Mrs. George Walker arrived home on Monday after attending the funeral of her mother Mrs. Plunkett at Hybla. Rev. Father Mr. Plunkett accompanied her home to spend the winter months.

ALONG MAIN STREET

WOODCHUCK—WEATHER PROPHET.

Is the woodchuck an infallible weather prophet? Does his appearance on the proper date foretell the exact date of the end of winter? Well, you'd have a hard time convincing members of one fire hall in this city that he isn't.

The story dates back several years ago to a time when one of the hairy little prophets was kept as a pet at No. 2 Fireball. Nobody paid very much attention to the little fellow the first year he had been kept around the hall, but on the second year, to settle a bet, the exact time the little creature trundled up in a little ball at one end of the cage and prepared to sleep the winter away was carefully recorded. With note book in hand the 'chuck was carefully watched.

On November 18th of that cold winter season, a few scratches at the farthest end of the cage, rolled himself up in a ball and sank into a deep slumber. From that date until the 38th day of January the pet remained as if dead. Even when he was hauled from the cage by the firemen, and handled, he remained in the torpor. But on the morning of January 28 he awoke, bright as a dollar, paced the cage several times, chewed on a few cabbage leaves and again settled down to a deep sleep for another six weeks—or six week just lacking one day. Winter, during that period still reigned. Then, at the warming rays of the sun rose higher in the sky, the pet again awakened after his second sleep of six weeks. It has been with much interest since that check-up of the habits of woodchucks was made that firemen of both stations now wait for the appearance or non-appearance of the rest of the 'chucks on Candlemas Day.

OTHER BAROMETERS—

But the lowly, hibernating woodchuck is not the only barometer or weather prophet man may make use of. Certain animals and birds and even insects forecast weather conditions as well, often, as scientific instruments. Take the crickets, for instance. If you have one on the hearth, toss the old thermometer out the window. You can tell the exact temperature by the cricket's chirps. But you'll need a pencil to do it.

Subtract 40 from the number of chirps of the cricket per minute, divide the result by four and add 50 and you've got the temperature of the room.

CHAIN LETTERS—
